Dear Colleen,
We are pleased to know that Mennonite Church USA has received a grant to digitize the print files of Gospel Herald and The Mennonite.

You have our full permission to digitize all issues of The Mennonite and make them available for free, with full-text access.

Best wishes in this important endeavor.

Sincerely,

A Happy and Blessed New Year to All Readers!

College of Chinese Studies

PEKING, CHINA, Christmas, 1938

May the great joy, the joy in the Lord, which the angel announced to the shepherds, be yours now and forever, for it is for all people. This is our Christmas wish for you. And may the New Year be filled with God's choicest blessings.

We are anticipating a most joyous Christmas season, for He who has made Christmas possible and who gave it its real worth is constantly with us. He has led us here and is filling our lives with blessings, so we shall be most happy even though we are far removed from home and friends. Our greatest wish is that we may speedily learn the Chinese language so that we may soon be able to bring these people the wonderful Gospel message.

We praise God for bringing us here safely. Our first ocean voyage proved to be a most enjoyable one. We soon recovered from our slight attack of seasickness and were able to enjoy the fellowship of our travel companions, most of whom were missionaries. Our visit to Hawaii was all too brief, for there was very little one could see in the few hours spent there. After thirteen days of sailing we arrived in Japan. Here we spent four days waiting for a boat to take us to China. These were very interesting days too, in spite of the fact that Grace Joan had quite a severe cold, which hindered us from getting out a great deal. On October 11 we reached Peking safely, and without having had any difficulty, including our baggage. Upon arriving at the language school we were immediately taken to two rooms reserved for us by the Mission Board and were soon comfortably situated.

The day following our arrival we started our study of the language. Since school had been in session for seven days, we received private instruction for several days, then joined the regular class of first year students. There were thirty-two of them. We found it rather difficult to keep pace with the others, and still find ourselves somewhat handicapped. However, we are enjoying the language study very much. We thank God for your upholding intercession.

We herewith also want to extend a hearty thank you to all of you who so kindly remembered us with steamer letters. It was most interesting to sit hour after hour and read your newsy letters. We hope that all of you will find time occasionally to write us the news of the day.

We find China to be most interesting. If we could take each of you for a ricksha ride down the street, you would have a much clearer picture of China than pages of description could give you. Some of the immediate outstanding impressions would be the great number of people on foot, the swarm of rickshas interspersed with donkey carts, and the scarcity of automobiles, although they are more numerous since the Japanese are here. Of course one must not omit the filth and odors which at times are quite prominent.

We have been fortunate in having had the opportunity of meeting most of our China missionaries. Four of the mothers with their children were staying in Tunghsien, which is twelve miles east of here, so we spent our first two Sundays with them. Since then we have also met Mr. Voth and Dr. Pannabecker. They have all returned to the station now, except the older boys who are attending school in Tunghsien. We hope that we shall soon be able to join them in their work. They are all happy and well.

Grace Joan has become quite reconciled to staying with the amah while we are in school. We were very happy to find a nicely equipped play ground here on the language school compound.

We again thank you for all your kindness and wish you the Lord's richest blessings.

Yours, for Christ in China,
Albert & Wilma Jantzen and Grace Joan

"I know of a certainty that a haughty, selfish or intemperate, lustful or wrangling, disobedient or lying, backbiting or revengeful man, whoever he may be, is no Christian, even if he were baptized a hundred times and kept the Lord's supper daily; for it is not the ordinances, such as baptism and the Supper, but a true Christian faith with its unblamable good fruits, that makes a true Christian."—Menno Simons.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Newton, Kansas, Dec. 14, 1938

Dear Mission Friends:

According to the schedule we had on the mission-field it is my turn to write a report at this time—my last report as missionary. I take it to be not only a duty but a privilege as well to write this report. However, the next question is, what shall I write? At the time when I had been among the Indians about ten years I felt that I had much to write about, and I did write, alas, often with more zeal than knowledge. Even after I had been with them about twenty years there was much that could be put down in writing, although it took a little more consideration than in previous times. After 30 years it began to be a task to write something worthwhile in regard to the work; and now after more than 40 years of service I am at a loss to know what to write for a last report. It is not a lack of material, on the contrary, there is a superabundance of it; nor is it an aversion to writing; and as for experience in writing, it was usually our (I mean Mrs. Linscheid and myself) lot to be delegated to do what extra writing was to be done on that particular part of the field, so we have had some practice along that line. But in spite of a plentitude of material for writing, a readiness to write and some practice in writing there nevertheless come to my mind the words of the prophet Isaiah when he was commissioned to cry he said: "What shall I cry?" Surely Isaiah, as capable a man as he was, was not at a loss of knowing what to say. There is, however, a vast difference between uttering mere words and really saying something. Isaiah was bidden to say something which seems anything but progressive and encouraging: "All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the fields."

In missionary activity—yea, in all spiritual activity—there is constant encounter with the "flesh." That which is of the "flesh" as we find it in others and as we find it in our own selves. But flesh is grass and gras withereth away, only the word of the Lord standeth forever. The paramount question in missionary work and in spiritual work in general is, how to instill in the carnal mind a satisfaction in, and a desire for the abiding and lifegiving Word of the Lord. The giving of gifts and the rendering of unselfish service are means to that end. We are, however, all aware of how readily the carnal mind will accept the means as the end, and there appears to be no difference in that respect between the Indian and the white man. The carnal mind is selfish and abhors self-denial, for that reason it is antagonistic to the word of the Lord given Isaiah to cry. Thus it was then, so it is now and so it will be from generation to generation; "The Lord will have war with Amalek (flesh) from generation to generation." Exod. 17:16.

Now that we are retiring after 43 years of service, we have this consolation: we have attempted to hold forth the banner of the Lord among these people. Many of them have heard and accepted the Word. It was cause for special joy to Mrs. Linscheid and myself that shortly before our departure a number of young, promising men joined the church and we trust will be efficient helpers in the work. One young man, especially, had been assisting in the work for some time and was a believer, but because of strong opposition in the immediate circle surrounding him, he hesitated until we were about to leave.—May the Lord in His grace bless that which was according to His will, and may He make of none effect that which was of the flesh.

And now, dear mission friends, what shall we add in conclusion? It is you who by your gifts and your prayers have made it possible for us to render our feeble services. Upon the advice of physicians we must now turn the work over into younger hands. Especially Mrs. Linscheid's condition is such that the doctor said her retirement was none to soon; his statement was amply borne out by the fact that she has not been well at all ever since moving away from the field and into our new location.

The Lord in His providence led us both into this work; in a wonderful way He led us in the work and it is our conviction that it is He who has brought us back again. May it please Him to continue to bless your and our further going out and coming in until to His glorious appearing.—G. A. Linscheid, 1001 E. Broadway, Newton, Kansas.

Universal Bible Sunday

Dear Worshipper:

The Scriptures, in whole or in part, have now been translated into over one thousand tongues! There is a solemn challenge in this fact. It is probable, as a result of this striking achievement in translation, that the Word of God might now be heard by nine tenths of the people of the world in their own tongues. What a pentecostal experience this would be! But, alas, not one fifth of them have heard it. The type is set, but the books are few, and the messengers to take them to the uttermost parts are fewer still. The American Bible Society could double its distribution of books, made last year to the extent of over 7,000,000 copies in 197 languages and in over forty countries, if the Christian people of America would make it possible. We hope your church is among those contributing. Gifts of any size may be sent to the Treasurer.

Faithfully yours

HOME MISSIONS

ORDINATION AT ALTOONA, PA.

On Friday, December 9th, 1938, the Western Section of the Eastern District Worker's Conference convened in the Memorial Mennonite Church, Altoona, Pa.

A worker's Conference was held in the afternoon, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, discussed the topic: "What is Necessary for a Good Church Organization." Rev. Erland Waltner, treated the subject: "What is the Work of a Layman in the Church," and Mr. Samuel P. Snyder, Roaring Spring, spoke on the subject: "What should be the Attitude of a Church that is without a Pastor?" Open discussion followed. Many joined in this part of the program.

During the intermission we enjoyed the fellowship and a fine evening meal prepared by the ladies of the local church.

Ordination Service in the Evening

Rev. John S. Raugh, Elder of the our Smith Corner church, who had also served as Elder of the Altoona church, delivered the Charge: "The Congregation's Responsibility to the Pastor or Elder."

This was followed by special music by the Male Quartet of Memorial Church. Rev. Ernest J. Bohn, Elder, Zion church, Souderton, delivered the message: "The Pastor's Responsibility to the Church."

The Congregation sang: "Have Thine Own Way." The Ordination of Rev. Emerson F. Slotterback as Elder, was in charge of Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary o fthe Home Mission Board. All the Elders present joined in the laying on of their hands.

Rev. J. J. Plenert, President of Eastern District Conference, was chairman of the meeting.

The day was one rich in spiritual fellowship and God's Spirit was manifestly present.

GOD ALONE THE AUTHOR OF LIFE. A noted scientist has declared that by the next ten years the chemical laboratory will be able to produce the identical alkaloids of nature, such as lime, potash, soda, amonia, etc., bearing all the characteristics in their artifical nature, so to speak, essential to producing a productive soil. This will certainly be a great achievement. But let it be remembered, there can be no soil productiveness without a seed germ planted in it; and, after all, the secret of the seed's life, the one element which alone can prove productiveness, will still be as impossible of imitation as it ever has been. God alone knows that secret, and He alone knows how to store it; and only He will impart or will not impart that secret to the chemist.

I Want Democracy!

In December 12 issue of THE MENNONITE you published an article, "I WANT A DICTATOR." I'd like to voice a friendly, but firm protest.

Firstly, I'd like to point out, what seem to me, falacies in the author's position, as I understand it. He says, "I want a dictator whose heart is tuned to the pulsations of your soul and mine . . . " I only know One Person who could be that kind of a Dictator; and He refuses to be. He deems it wiser to "pull me with love," than to "dictate."

The author says further, "I fear democracy without brotherly love." I heartily agree; but would add that "I fear dictators 'without brotherly love' MORE." (Place the atrocities of American Democracy beside Nero, Napoleon or Stalin).

Still further, he says, "It was to preserve democracy that 10,000,000 men fought and died . . . " That is what propaganda said we were fighting for. I'd like to recommend "The Life and Letters of Walter Hines Page," as the answer why we entered the war. Also, five months before we entered the war, "democracy" had re-elected a president, "BECAUSE HE KEPT US OUT OF WAR." But the "financial dictators" had already promised America to the Allies, "if we were needed." (Read Col. House's diary). And those same "dictators" took us into the war.

Finally, he says, "It was the blundering will of the people — 'crucify Him.' " Was it? "The common people heard him gladly." So it was probably the "dictator-priest," who wielded enough of a "big stick" over the people to "stir them up," probably with threats rather than with reason of democracy.

True, democacy has many atrocities to its credit; so has the Christian Church. But the loftiest Manhood came from that "blundering Church." Crucified by the "Church"? Surely; but also "reared in the same 'Church' which crucified Him."

Yes, the Church has made errors; but I believe in the Church. Yes, democracy has committed crimes; but I believe in democracy. God, in His dealings of Love and Wisdom with men, has not become our Dictator, and I don't believe He want to become such. He wants me to "CHOOSE HIM."

"I Want Democracy"; a Cooperative, Christian Democracy, in which individuals surrender their lives to The Prince of Peace, and in which those individuals will not need a Dictator; but will strive earnestly to live Christ-like lives, and "seek first the Kingdom of Heaven," whose Ruler refuses to be a dictator.— Carl J. Landes, Bluffton, Ohio.

The idea of bringing all men on an equality with each other has always been a pleasant dream; the law cannot equalize men inspite of nature. A majority of the people living the Sermon on the Mount could do it.

Dr. Walter Judd on China

by Marie J. Regier, Chicago

For some years, both while I was working in our Mission in China and here in America, I had heard a great deal of Dr. Walter Judd. I had heard of him remaining at his post when other missionaries had evacuated their stations. Again I heard of him when he was back on his first furlough. There were those who thought him overzealous, too radical. But let me quote a passage from a speech he made at that time. He was telling of a bandit chief who had intended to take him along when he was forced to evacuate the city. But when the time came he told Judd that he would not take him, because he had been fair with them, had treated his wounded soldiers and him. He took not a man or a woman captive. This is Walter Judd's comment on it:

"I could think of only one thing as he sat there, Francis Thompson's "Hound of Heaven." It had been after him. He couldn't do what he had planned. Something had happened to Lu Hsin Min! He could not do it. If God can change the heart of such a man, he can change anybody. The way of love works.

"Oh don't misunderstand me, my friends. Don't think my religion is just a charm, something to keep me safe personally. I might get picked off the second day after I get back, but I will never have another worry on that point again, because I know that if in that hour I act as a Christian ought to act, the man who pulls the trigger will have something happen to him. It has always been so. Christ won people's hearts—when he died for them."

Thus far I had never heard or seen Judd personally, but the other day I had a chance to hear him speak at a church forum. He is no longer with the Mission Board. He has so endeared himself to the Chinese that they have sent him to America to plead their cause.

Having heard so much of his almost overwrought intensity, I was so surprised to find a man so cool and collected. He was zealous; a flame was burning within him; but his reasoning was fair, logical. I can hardly imagine a man who has gone through all that Walter Judd has, to keep his self-control and appeal to the emotions only by way of reason as he did. His own experiences he brought in only as examples of principles he was trying demonstrate. There was in him a great compassion for the millions of Chinese who are mowed down, yet no hatred for the Japanese as such, only a plea that the terrible war machine might be rent asunder.

He told us that Americans do not have a correct picture of what is going on in China. He said while we were foolish during the World War to believe all the atrocity stories which were not true, we are equally foolish not to believe them when they are true as in the case in China, hundreds of witnesses attest to this fact.

In comparison to the war in China, the world war in 1914 was a gentleman's war. At that time we had certain codes, which, although violated at times, nevertheless were binding. But Japan has no such codes. The Japanese government goes into the killing of civilian population and the raping of women not accidentally but with forethought. Anything that will break the morale of the Chinese they consider military strategy. The backbone of China will be broken more effectively by killing a man's children and by violating his wife, than by killing off a soldier who is trained for war. The Chinese will be subjugated more effectively when the wounded are left to die without care than if they are permitted to be taken to hospitals. It is not the common soldier who is so wicked, so without human sympathy, it is the totalitarian state. China has always worshipped the scholar; the soldier was lowest in the scale of human beings. Therefore Japan seeks out the schools and throws the bombs there. No education for the Chinese. One Japanese said, "You Westerners are very foolish; when you conquer a place, first thing you do is to establish schools, thus training those in your control to overthrow you." While Dr. Judd was presenting these terrible pictures, I repeat, he evidenced no hatred toward the Japanese, only a desire to cut away that cancer which is ruining both China and Japan.

The terrible thing about the whole situation, as far as America is concerned, is the fact that if it were not for America's help Japan could not carry on the war. All the scrap iron, many aeroplanes, practically all the cars come from the United States. If the United States would put its foot down, Japan would probably have to stop fighting immediately. But what can the individual citizen do? Dr. Judd says, there are several things he can do. In the first place there is the personal boycott. Each pair of silk hose that a woman buys, gives the Japanese government just so much more power to buy shells and shrapnells. As a rule I am not in favor of boycotting civilian goods, because it lays the burden on the innocent and not on the guilty. But, as Dr. Judd explained, in this case, if we do not boycott, then it means the death of innocent civilians in China, and more terrible outrages there, than what would happen in Japan. So we are killing off innocent people one way or the other, but in the latter we are at the same time helping to overthrow the war machine.

Of greater importance of course would be a ban laid on shipment of war materials. But even there the individual has more power than he thinks, perhaps. Letters written to representatives, senators, Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, and the President are of greater importance than one would think. Someone in Washington said that eight letters on a certain subject indicate that it was a hot subject. One senator remarked that fifty letters would change his vote. Dr. Judd says, it is not up to us to tell the government just what methods to pursue. We are not lawyers. But we do have a right and duty to insist that we want peace and that we want justice done to China. It seems to me that it is the duty and privilege of every Mennonite to at least write these letters. The Mennonites at home can do more to save the cause of Missions at present than can the Missionaries out on the field.

In the third place, Dr. Judd says we can give more. Charity can never take the place of justice, but it does give the Chinese to understand, that while we are still bungling and not knowing how to get out of the situation, we are at least trying to find ways to get out and to be fair to China.

Dr. Judd's harmony of zeal and poise is remarkable. There are few like him. I believe Christ must have been like that. His own family thought he was going insane, they wanted to talk to him lest he lose his poise. Yet he had more poise than any of them. We never fully realize His courage and His zeal, I think. Suppose we had been there when he stood up before the leaders of the General Conference, for that was what the Pharisees and Saducees amounted to, and had heard him condemn them. Surely we would have thought he was too severe, too rash for a young man of thirty.

Dr. Judd's message stirred me deeply and I want to pass it on to others.

Glimpses of Christmas in Germany

Berlin, Dec. 25.—The mass of Germans cherish steadfastly the old-fashioned Christmas—even in the face of some of the more radical Nazi neo-pagan notions—and today's Christmas was no exception.

Church and Christian family observances and the traditional Christmas tree remained the predominating center-pieces of the celebrations.

Evidences of the Nazi spirit—such as the winter solstice festivals by party formations and the swastika instead of the star of Bethlehem at the tip of yule trees at blackshirt and brownshirt troop gatherings—were shoved to the background outside ranks of the National Socialist party.

Nazi influences, however, had been noticeable in extra-party quarters as, for example, the discouragement in schools of Nativity plays built around depiction of the holy family.

Christmas carols and songs such as "Silent Night, Holy Night"—regarded by Germans as immortal—and "O Tannenbaum" are still most popular and could be heard continually over the radio and echoing from family gatherings around cribs of the Christ Child and candle-lit trees.

In Catholic South Germany, particularly at Swabia in upper Bavaria, the old-fashioned customs were gleefully carried out.

Groups of two or three children each traveled through the streets of upper Bavarian towns on the last two nights, knocking on each door with wooden mallets to announce that the Christ Child was about to be born.

The children's rewards were loads of Germany's famed Christmas goodies such as lebkuchen, pfeffernuesse and gingerbread.

German emphasis of Christmas as a family affair was carried out this year as always. Men who had been working on Germany's western fortifications were given vacations until January 4 so they could rejoin their family circles.

In Cologne and in many other centers, theaters, were closed to avoid distraction from family gatherings. Restaurants as a rule were closed also—From Evening Kansan Republican.

CORRESPONDENCE

GRACE MENN. CH., DALLAS, OREGON

Dear Readers of the Mennonite: Here we are again very near the close of another year. Christmas Day the best day of all the year is just around the corner. A lot of the people have forgotten what the Spirit of Christmas means. But we are glad that we still have the scripture that tells us of the birth of Jesus, the real meaning of the Day of days.

So very much has happened since I last wrote, that I hardly know where to begin. Progress on the church is very slow now. The basement has been finished for some time and we make very good use of it every Sunday. The building fund has dwindled down very low, so we do not make much progress. But we leave it in the Lord's hands.

A few weeks ago we had a real awakening here. Rev. J. J. Esau from Lima, Ohio, was with us, and many souls were saved during the two weeks he was here. It made every one feel the nearness of the Holy Spirit.

On the last Monday in November, we had our yearly meeting. Bro. J. M. Franz from Pratum was with us and brought us a report on the General Conference which was very interesting. Then on the next night the Ladies Aid sale was held. Everything brought a good price and we did real well.

Now every one is busy getting ready for Christmas. Our program will be held Saturday evening, Dec. 24. It will take about two hours to bring the program.

We are having quite cold weather in the valley now, but no snow as yet. Some of the farmers are afraid their grain crops will freeze out.

As the chuch is not yet finished, we hold our prayer meetings in the homes now, on the same evening the choir practices. About a month ago they had a house warming for Brother and Sister Peter Schragg and family. They built a new house this summer. A very good time was had by all who attended.—Yours in Christ, Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

PETER COMMENDED AND REBUKED

Matt. 16:13-25

Introduction

Considerably more than a year had passed since Jesus had called Peter by the lake (last Sunday's lesson). By this time he could well be convinced that he really is the Messiah. A crisis time had come in Jesus' ministry and it was time for a mental inventory of the group of disciples. For over two years He had been revealing himself to them. The time had now come to tell them of his approaching death.

Peter Confesses Christ vs. 13-16

Jesus had been praying in seclusion (Luke 9:18). Now He feels they need to have a definite apprehension of His deity and should openly avow their belief. So He begins with the question (v13). How do the people estimate Him? They held various opinions (v14) and all readily admitted that He was a prophet of God, but did not recognize His deity. He followed with the very pointed question (v15) pressing the disciples for a definite declaration of their personal convictions. It is good for each of us to express our own inner heart thoughts. It is far more important that we know and say what we personally believe Jesus to be, than to know what others believe. We need to confess our convictions by word of mouth (Rom. 10:10). Peter answers for the entire group. He knew Him better than the people did. He knew Him as the Lamb of God. He probably did not grasp the truth more readily than the others, but he was quicker to give it expression. His words expressed faith in Christ in simple and direct language. He expressed a fundamental doctrine of our faith.

Jesus Commends Peter vs 17-20

Jesus, highly pleased with Peter's confession, tells him that the spiritual insight given him by the Father in heaven, gave to him this revelation (v17). No one can really know Jesus as the Son of God unless the Spirit reveals it to him. This confession made weak Simon into Petros (a piece of rock). Jesus said (v18) that upon this rock (petra, a large ledge of rock), faith, He would build His church. The gates of hell, anything of satanic origin, shall not prevail against the Church built upon Christ and faith in Him as the Son of God. This should give courage to God's people. The Church is not going to smash, nor will she become hopelessly corrupted. Jesus gave to Peter the keys of the kingdom of heaven (v19)—not the keys of heaven—but the power to open the doors of that kingdom by his teaching and thus let men in . Jesus granted to him and the other disciples (Matt. 18:18) special authority. They would be so directed by the Holy Spirit that what they would bind (forbid) and loose (permit) on earth, would be so sanctioned in heaven. God would endorse the decisions of Peter and the others. They could not decide as to who would be permitted to enter heaven.

Jesus Rebukes Peter vs 20-25

Peter confessed Jesus as Messiah, yet he had a very inadequate conception of His mission in the world. Jeus tells the disciples what MUST shortly befall Him (v21). Peter could not believe Him. It was unthinkable to him that Christ should suffer such humiliation and death (v22). Jesus rebukes him very sharply (v23) for Peter's thought was of Satan, not of God. He wants Peter and us to think God's thoughts. Jesus sets forth in a searching way, the conditions and cost of discipleship (vs 24, 25)—self-denial, take up cross, follow Jesus. He who is wholly concerned about saving his life literally or in securing temporal advantages, will lose it eternally. He who loses thought of self in the service of Christ for others, saves it eternally.

Advent

F. F. Janzen

The Bible plainly speaks of another coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, which coming is not mentioned in the article on page one of No. 49 of THE MENNONITE.

In John 14:3 we read: "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself." That is not his coming into the flesh, nor his coming into our hearts, nor his coming for judgment, as we shall see.

In Acts 1:11 we are told by two men in white apparel "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

We might ask: "When will Jesus come for his own to receive them unto himself?" We are told in I Thess. 4:15-17, "For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them who are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air." Then I Cor. 15:51-52, "Behold, I shew you a mystery: We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed." I Cor. 15:23-24 "But every man in his own order: Christ the first fruits, afterward they that are Christ's at his coming, then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father."

Notice here the division into three definite, separate acts: "Christ the first fruits," "afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." We know that a long period of time has intervened between the resurrection of Christ, and the resurrection of them "that are Christ's at his coming," which resurrection is still in the future. So there is also a period of time between the resurrection of them "that are Christ's at his coming" and "then cometh the end." For we read in Revelation 20:4-6, "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years."

This "first resurrection" is what the apostle Paul writes about in Phil. 3:14, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." He knew "blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection." Therefore he also writes in Phil 3:10-12, "That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death; if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. Not as though I had already attained, nor was already perfect, but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus."

So let us notice the order of the "Advents": 1. Jesus coming into the flesh, about 1938 years ago; 2. His coming into our hearts, when we believe in him; 3. His coming for his own, at the time of the first resurrection; 4. His coming for judgment, after a thousand years. This last coming is also described in Rev. 19:11-21. Let us note the difference in what it says of His coming for his own in the scripture references given above, and others, and then in this one in Rev. 19 and others that speak of judgment. Let us watch and be ready, for his coming for his own is at hand. Jesus tells us in Rev. 22:20, "Surely I come quickly. Amen." Then let us add with those that wait for him: "Even so, come Lord Jesus."

NOTE: The article referred to above was a short editorial, the purpose of which was to stress the fact that the important thing is Christ's coming into our own hearts. There was no intention to exhaust the subject of Christ's coming.—Editor.

—Mennonite Church, Hanston, Kansas.—In our church we had a Christmas and Communion service Christmas Sunday morning, with a good attendance. In the evening we had a pageant by the Sunday School and our choir sang the cantata, "The Song and the Star," daughter Mabel directing the choir.—A. S. Bechtel.

CORRESPONDENCE

FLATLAND MENN. CH., RICHLAND, PA.

Dear Editor and Readers:

We have enjoyed another year of blessing, both materially and spiritually.

Our pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, attended the General Conference in Canada as our delegate. During the absence Rev Rome Betts, representative of the American Bible Society and Rev. George Stonback of Goshen, Indiana, conducted the church services. After his return, the pastor gave an interesting report of the Conference and his visit to Canada.

Duing the summer we were fortunate in having with us Dale Brown, of the Friends Peace Service Committee, one of a group of young men who were doing volunteer peace work during their summer vacation. On July 24, our church conducted the services at the Old Folk's Home at Frederick, with Mr. Louis Bolnick, superintendent of the Community Childrens Home as speaker. On Sept. 18, our Harvest Home Service was held. The vegetables and canned goods brought by the members were given to the Home at Frederick.

Our pastor recently conducted a series of meetings at the Smith Corner Church, East Freedom, Pa. During his absence Rev. P. J. Boehr filled the pulpit.

On Nov. 25 we were happy to have Mrs. S. T. Moyer, missionary to India, at Flatland to give a Missionary address concerning the growth of mission work and general living conditions in India.

During the year we lost two members by death: Mrs. Henry Baringer and Mrs. Eleanora Seipel. Services for both were conducted by our pastor, at our church.

One wedding occurred in our church: Herman Yeakel and Caroline Ahlum were married on November the 19th by our pastor.

Wishing everybody a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.—Correspondent.

MENNONITE CHURCH, HILLSBORO, KANSAS

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

We wish you all a very happy and prosperous new year.

Again we are at the threshold of a new year, so quickly has time rolled by that it seems but yesterday when we heard the greeting Happy New Year. Yet, when we reflect, what has it not brought? Much happiness, joy and goodwill, as well as much sorrow grief and sadness. Many are the blessings we have received, spiritual as well as material.

We had several series of meetings conducted by visiting ministers.—The summer union meetings held every Sunday night in the open, were an inspiration and a blessing to the community. In summer a group of young men and women were united with the church through baptism. Some mission programs have been given. The different organizations have tried to do their share of work in the church. Several beautiful weddings have taken place, and a few of our members have been taken to their eternal home.

We have been reminded that no one is too young to die. A few months ago, Vernetta Regier, 3½ year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. W. Regier, had to have her tonsils removed. Complications set in, and she went home to Jesus. In December it was a mother, Sister Bartel was called. She suffered intensely for 3 weeks.

At our annual business meeting of the Sunday school, Brother Herbert Wiebe was again elected superintendent. — Dec. 15, we had the annual business meeting of the church. In some places old workers were left while in others new workers were placed. May God grant that all may work together for the best of the church and the glory of God.

Christmas with all its hustle and bustle is again history. We had two fine programs. Sunday night, Dec. 18, the choir and the male chorus gave a program in song, and on Christmas eve the Sunday school gave theirs in story and song, bringing to all the old, old story that is ever new and more wonderfully sweet.—Mrs. Jno. Bartel, Corr.

MENNONITE CHURCH, PULASKI, IOWA

On Christmas evening a very interesting and inspiring program was given at the church, consisting of exercises by the little folks and others; interspersed with congregational singing and music by a large and well organized choir. A very liberal offering was taken for the Orphan Homes at Ottumwa and Council Bluff, Iowa.

On Christmas evening a Mrs. Isenbise from Chicago, gave a very interesting and instructive talk on Missions, relative to her work in Chicago among the Chinese, Italians, colored folks and others. A very timely message in these days of needs and calls for help. I wish for all the Mennonite readers a Happy New Year.—W. W. M.

FIRST MENN. CH., ABERDEEN, IDA., 12-23-38

Dear Editor and Readers: As we are drawing near the close of another year, it is well to take a backward look and enumerate some of the many blessings for which we are truly grateful. God has been most gracious to us in permitting us to complete our new house of worship, which is filled to capacity every Sunday morning. It has proved a great blessing, not only to our own members, but to many others who now come to worship with us. The edifice was dedicated June 5 and on the following Sunday, nineteen children were consecrated to the Lord. It was a very impressive service. During the past year we had the privilege of hearing many visiting ministers and missionaries, among them were: Miss Fannie Baumgartner, Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander, Rev. P. H. Richert, Rev. Dan Unruh, Rev. John Esau, Rev. Rudolph Schmidt, Missionary and Mrs. Brown and Roland, Missionary Wiens and Miss Emma Ruth.

Death has entered only once in our midst, when it claimed Peter Isaac, Sr.—We had two church weddings, Miss Paula Horsch to Charles Cary and Rudolph Horsch to Caroline Hofmeister. Both were officiated by our pastor Rev. P. A. Wedel. One wedding took place at the parsonage, Paulina Dalke to Edmund Wilske.

Just before Thanksgiving, the Ladies' Mission Society served a harvest dinner in the basement of the church, the proceeds of which went to Missions. A musical program was rendered during the dinner. Last Sunday four young people were baptized and taken into church by our pastor. A class of twenty-two young people are being instructed in catechism and will be taken in later.

On Christmas evening a chorus of fifty voices will present a Christmas Cantata entitled "Messiah's Advent" by Fred W. and W. Peace. The children's Christmas program will take place the following evening. May this blessed Christmas season bring joy and happiness to all kind readers.—Setchen Leisy, Corr.

ZION MENN. CH., DONNELSON, IOWA, 12-9-38

"God is able to make all grace abound toward you —Being enriched in everything to all bountifulness which causeth through us thanksgiving to God." These words from Corinthians express our feelings as we think of the blessings that we received during the week of Thanksgiving. We are spiritually enriched as a result of having had Rev. Kreider from Bethel College in our midst for a week. It was both a pleasure and an inspiration to listen to his Biblical expositions. Brother Kreider has a special gift to clarify Bible truth and to apply it to one's personal needs Every evening a period was set aside for Bible study during which time Philippians, Galatians and Romans were studied. He also spoke twice at union services which includes the Evangelical, the Presbyterian and the Methodist congregations of Donnellson.

I would like to say a few words in this connection about our venture in a cooperative Christian experiment in making all of our evening services union meetings. There has been much favorable comment about these union services which help to bring the four churches of our town closer together in harmonious fellowship. This also makes it possible for us to plan special services more frequently. In this way all of the people of the community have the privilege of hearing an outstanding speaker or a fine musical program more often than would otherwise be the case. Then ever so often an evening is set aside as young people's night which is planned especially by and for the young people. We feel that these union services are a move in the right direction. We can do more for the Lord as we of the various denominations unite our efforts in building his kingdom.

With sincerest wishes to all readers of the Mennonite for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I am, sincerely yours,—Adolf Friesen.

MENNONITE CHURCH OF LIND, WASH.

We have been very fortunate in having quite a number of visiting ministers in our midst. Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander, Rev. H. J. Regier, Missionary P. J. Wiens and Rev. Edmund Miller occupied the pulpit on various Sundays. Rev. Felix Schrag, on two different occasions, brought inspirational sermons. Missionary Brown visited in our midst twice also, showing his slides of China. Rev. W. Harley King brought us the message on two Sunday mornings, also giving us a report of the General Conference. Sunday, Dec. 11, Rev. King administered our communion service. We are very grateful for these various services, as we have not as yet a regular minister, in spite of efforts by our deacons to engage one.

In August we had the privilege of hearing the Bethel College Quartet. On Wednesday, Dec. 7, the Hilty Brothers of Bluffton, Ohio, gave us a very inspirational musical program.

Our choir is planning the rendition of the cantata, "The Herald Angels," and the Elementary Sunday School Dept. is working on a program, to be given during the Christmas holidays.

Wishing all a Happy and Blessed Holiday Season—Othielia Franz, Corr.

P. S. Our Sunday school and Christian Endeavor elected officers for the new year at the end of the third quarter to enable new officers to prepare for the work of the coming year.

BUTTERFIELD MENN. CHURCH, 12-19-38

The Ordination service of Rev. Louis Linscheid to the office of elder in the ministry was held in our church, Nov. 27. Rev. Schultz explained that the ceremony of ordination is no more than a recognition of his divine calling to the work, an approval of the church's action and of his entrance upon the duties of the office: while the public ceremony is but an appropriate and an impressive commendation of the candidate, sending him forth to his work with fraternal benediction.

Rev. Schultz chose for his text, 1 Tim. 3:1-7, pointing out first, the qualifications of an elder, second, the functions and third, the obligations of an elder, carefully explaining each step. This was an impressive and inspiring ceremony and one of the high lights of our church year.

Rev. Linscheid was born and grew to manhood in this community. After attending Bethel College for a number of years he returned with Mrs. Linsceid, about twelve years ago, and made this their home, serving the Mennonite church for ten years until Nov. 28, 1937. Rev. Linscheid now has charge of the Bethany church at Freeman, S. D. The best wishes of all go with the Linscheids to their new home.—Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

JOE SCHWARTZ, the son of Jacob and Maria (Graber) Schwartz, was born Dec. 23, 1872, at Okleck, Russia. The family migrated to America in 1874 and settled on a farm east of Freeman, S. D.

Here he received his training in a Christian home, the Mennonite Church and such schools as were within reach of those early settlers. He learned to know and love his Savior early, was baptized upon confession of his faith in Christ Jesus by Rev. C. Kaufman and received into the Salem-Zion congregation. He married Miss Julia Graber Jan. 28, 1897. Two children were born to this union. The eldest of which, Tilda, preceded the father to the heavenly home at the age of 11 years.

Through ten years of his life he served his Master in taking care of the house of worship for the congregation, of which he remained a faithful member to the end of his days on earth. He loved to sing the praises of the Lord and had stored in his heart many spiritual songs which he loved to sing even in the days when pain and trials rushed in and the closing of his earthly time came into view for him. Even to the last he sang of the faith and hope that lived in his soul. He died after nearly 4 months of suffering, Dec. 8th at 3 p.m.

His age was 65 years, 11 months and 15 days. He leaves to mourn his departure his beloved wife, his son Fred and his family, three brothers and three sisters with many relatives and friends.

Rev. John J. Schrag and Rev. A. P. Waltner spoke words of divine comfort to the family in the home on Sunday, Dec. 11. In the Salem-Zion Church Mr. Schwartz's nephew, Rev. Walter Gering of Moundridge, Kans. and the pastor of the congregation brought messages from the Word, and a quartet of men under the leadership of Elias Schrag sang three selections of song to the large gathering of sympathizing friends who had gathered for the funeral.

A Letter from China

CHINA, NOVEMBER 2, 1938

Dear C. E. Friends:

It's a joy to meet with you again, even if we must use this rather long-distance method!

One rainy Saturday afternoon, the narrow footpath was almost deserted, but we spied a few men eating their noon meal under the awning of a hot water shop, and as we came closer, called out to them, "Can you tell us the road to Feng Ku?" "Feng Ku," they answered, "which Feng Ku, there are seven of them!" We gasped a bit, and then explained that we were looking for the village where there were folks who believed in Jesus. "Oh, you want Wang Feng Ku. That road will take you there," he said as he walked a little way to point out the path. Sure enough, Wang Feng Ku was right, and we had a hearty welcome, Miss Fast and I, as we entered the village. They took our bicycles, and we walked in to the courtyards of the Wang family, where our preaching place is located, and where our evangelist and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Sun, are doing good work. We were not left alone very long, in practically no time a crowd gathered, and inspected the 'foreigners' very closesly. After the usual questions about our age, and whether or not we had a mother-in-law, etc., Miss Fast started to teach them a Bible song, and found that they could sing surprisingly well. Shortly afterward a young girl, Wang Su Chin, came in, and she soon had the children lined up, and singing whole Psalms from the Bible as well as other hymns and choruses. It sounded fine, and it was so different from what one ordinarily meets in Chinese villages.

We asked some questions and found that this girl had gathered the children together, and with some help, had taught them to sing, to memorize parts of the Bible, and to read a little. She did it out of the joy in her heart, since she is a happy Christian. She is about 19 or 20, and is a fine, normal kind of girl, quite at home with other young women in her village.

The next day we were interested in seeing the folks come to church (church being a mud building, with a dirt floor, the pulpit a table, and the pews backless benches). They came very clean, and obviously dressed up. Most of our folks here don't follow this idea too closely. They sang so well, and the children repeated their Scripture verses so clearly, without fuss or coaxing, that it was a pleasure. We heard a good sermon, then, from a young man who has seen some terrible things in this war. One sentence he used a number of times sticks in my mind, but it doesn't translate very well. It means, though, "as I walked, I prayed," and he was in many tight places as he walked and prayed and his prayers were answered.

After church when we talked to some of the folks we found often that when we asked, "Are you the only Christian in your family?" they were proud to reply, "No, our whole family follow the Jesus way." Remember that here whole family does not only mean father mother and children, but all the grown sons and their households, grandparents and very frequently an uncle or two and his family.

The Prayer meeting committee asked for a challenge and here are three: First, to do as Wang Su Chin dos, with a group of under-privileged children, second, to do as the young evangelist did, pray as you walk and work, and the third is to do your part in making your WHOLE family Christian.

If you expected me to ask you all to become missionaries to China, you may be disappointed, but I very strongly feel that only God can issue that call. However, I can tell you that what is going on at Feng Ku is just one village, and there are about 4,500 villages in this part of China that we Mennonites are responsible for, and that many of the people in these 4,500 villages have never heard of Christ who loved them, and gave Himself for them.

God bless you all richy, and make you each a blessing.

Sincerely, Wilhelmina Kuyf.

Suggested Hymns

We've a story to tell to the Nations, I Love to tell the Story.

If you read the Bible like any other book you will soon find that it is not like any other book.

Suggestions

Make this a meeting where the Scriptures are really searched. The members should be asked to come prepared to repeat a Bible verse from memory. The two Scripture passages given for the lesson might be recited from memory by two Endeavorers. Several persons could be asked in advance to memorize Bible prayers which will be given with bowed heads.

The following great topics with geat texts might be assigned to different members for 2-minute talks.

1. Integrity, Deut. 16:19, 20; 2. Tithing, Mal. 3:10-12; 3. Religion, Jas. 1:27; 4. Duty, Micah 6:8; 5. Faith in Prayer, Mark 11:24; 6. Sin, 1 John 3:4; 7. Faith, Heb. 1:1-4; 8. Patience, Heb. 12:1-2; 9. Peace, Phil 4:6-7; 10. Thoughts, Phil. 4:8, 9; 11. The Love of God, 1 John 3:1-3; 12. The New Life Col. 3:1-4; 13. The Power of the World, Heb. 4:12, 13; 14. Encouragement, 2 Cor. 12:9.

Other Topics: The Bible as Good Literature; The Bible, The Most Widely Read Book in the World; What was Jesus' attitude to the Bible of His Day? Bible Promises; Bible Commands.

Different Members could be asked to search the Scriptures for worthwhile passages on such important themes as 1. Salvation, 2. Sanctification, 3. Redemption, 4. The Christian Life, 5. Love, 6. Faith, 7. Eternal Life, and many others.

Reasons for studying the Bible

(An outline of "The Worker and His Bible" by Eiselen Barclay).

Chapter IV

I. The Testimony of the Ages
  1. Thousands of great men have reverenced it in proportion to their greatness.
  2. Warriors have fought, philosophers labored and martyrs died for it.
  3. All that is best and greatest in literature for two thousand years has been rooted in it.
  4. Our foremost statesmen and philanthropists have confessed the force of its inspiration.
  5. It inspired the hundred best pictures such as those of Fra. Angelico and Raphael.
  6. It inspired the hundred best strains of music such as those of Handel and Mendelssohn.
  7. It kindled the intrepid genius of Luther, and the imagination of Bunyan.

II. Literary Excellence
  1. It contains sublime specimens of history, law, poetry, and oratory.
  2. Bible Masterpieces
    a. Epic stories of the Old Testament.
    b. Idyl—Ruth
    c. Orations of Deuteronomy
    d. Poetry of the Psalms.
    e. Philosophy, Books of Wisdom.
  3. The Inner Circle of the World's Masterpieces
    a. Job
    b. The Isaiah on Rhapsody (Chs. 1, 5, 40-53, and 60-62).
    c. The Apocalypse.

III. A Knowledge of Literature and History based upon it.
  1. Most great literary works are full of allusions and illustrations from the Bible.
  2. It is in itself almost a liberal education.
  3. The Scriptures have been the guide, inspiration, the ennoblement, the statesman's manual of the greatest nation in the world.

IV. Its' Unique Religious Value.
  1. The permanent religious and ethical value are the chief reasons for its study.
    a. Every Scripture inspired of God is profitable for:
      (1) The exercise of a saving faith in Jesus Christ
      (2) The development of a strong and noble character.
      (3) The performance of good works.
    b. A source of consolation
    c. The most comprehensive vision of God to be found anywhere.
    d. Its' keen insight into human nature.
    e. Teaches how the vision of God may be ours and its power felt in our lives.
    f. All these truths are presented in a manner that even the simplest can understand.
  2. Permanent religious significance of the Old Testament writings:
    a. New Testament truths have root in Old Testament.
    b. Reality and providence of God clearly shown in lives of Old Testament characters.
    c. Devotional Value of Psalms.
    d. Teachings of prophets—social and economics
  3. Permanent Religous Value of the New Testament
    a. Our Lord's biography—instructive and inspiring.
    b. The Sermon on the Mount
    c. Discourses, miracles and parables of Jesus.
    d. Chraracter sketches of a large number of faithful disciples of Jesus
    e. The Epistles
    f. Revelation.

Jesus, Our Divine Example

Intermediate C. E. Topic, January 22, 1939

For Daily Reading

Jan. 16. His meekness. Matt. 11:25-30
Jan. 17. Reaching the common people. Mark 12:-35-40
Jan. 18. As a guest. Luke 10:38-42
Jan. 19. As a friend. John 15:9-16
Jan. 20. Winning souls. John 4:5-15
Jan.. 21. Meeting sinners gainsaying. Heb. 12:1-6
Jan. 22. Topic—Jesus, Our Divine Example. John 13:12-17; 1 Pet. 2:21-24

Preparation for the Meeting.

The success of a meeting depends much on the preparation that is made for it. Set the room in order and make slight changes in the arrangement. A living plant or bouquet will add much. One of the famous paintings of Jesus hung in an appropriatee place will fit into the program. Have hymn books distributed before the meeting and check up on any part of the the meeting that calls for special preparation.

Preprayer

Read Heb. 4:14-16. Christ is not only our perfect pattern but also our intercessor. This should give us confidence in prayer. Pray that each Intermediate may be challenged to become a devoted follower of His example.

Appropriate Songs

"More About Jesus," "I Would Be Like Jesus," "I Need Thee Every Hour" (Have your announcements early in the meeting).

A Suggested Worship Service

Piano: (softly) "Majestic Sweetness"

Leader: Jesus said, "I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."

Song: "Tell Me the Story of Jesus"

Scripture reading and leader's talk. 1 Peter 2:21-24

Poem: "The Tapestry-Weavers"

Special Music :"Face to Face"

Sentence prayers.

Offering with dedication prayer or song.

Topic discussion.

Closing song: "Have Thine Own Way, Lord" and benediction, Ps. 19:14.

For the Leader

Someone has said, "Example is more forcible than precept." Jesus not only gave us the precept, but He is the perfect example of what He taught. Take some of His teachings in Matt. 5 and show how He lived them.

If you ever visit one of the great art galleries of the world you will probably find a student sitting in front of one of the great masterpieces with canvas and brush, making a reproduction. He observes no one around him. He is lost in admiration and study of the picture before him, and stroke by stroke he seeks to reproduce it. The reproduction may not satisfy us, but we must remember how much better the result is than if he had had no pattern to follow.

Jesus is our pattern, our divine Example. We must take time to study and admire Him: If we keep our eyes on Him, the result will not be a perfect reproduction, but a life infinitely better than if we had not seen Him .

Thoughts for Talks

1. Our Example in Meekness. Matt. 11:25-30. What is meekness? What reward did Jesus say there would be for the meek? Matt. 5:5. It is said that the Greek had no word for meekness. The nearest to it was meanness. It was not recognized as a human characteristic. It took Jesus to teach the world true meekness. Give examples from His life. Is meekness popular today?

2. Our Example: Reaching the Common People. Mark 12:37b-44. What are some of the things against which Jesus stood that made him popular with the common people? Are efforts being made today to secure certain rights for the common people? How does the love of money tend to divide people into classes?

3. Our Example as a Guest. Luke 10:38-42. What is it a guest appreciates most when he comes into your home? What do we expect when we go to visit our friends? What did Jesus want above everything else as he visited in this home? What are some of the unnecessary things about which hosts are cumbered? Tell how you like to be entertained.

4. Our Example as a Soul Winner. John 4:5-15. What are some of the hindrances today that keep us from winning others to Christ? (1) What will people say? What did Jesus' disciples think. John 4:27 (2) We are too busy with our own affairs. Jesus was tired and hungry yet he had time for this woman John 4:6 (3) We think people are not interested. If we are genuinely interested in others they will be interested in what we have to offer. How did Jesus show his interest in the woman?

The Tapestry-Weavers

Let us take to our hearts a lesson—no lesson can braver be—
From the ways of the tapestry-weavers on the other side of the sea.
Above their heads the pattern hangs: they study it with care;
The while their fingers deftly work, their eyes are fastened there.
They tell this curious thing besides of the patient, plodding weaver;
He works on the wrong side evermore, but works for the right side ever.

It is only when the weaving stops, and the web is loosed and turned,
That he sees his real handiwork, that his marvellous skill is learned.
Ah! the sight of its delicate beauty, how it pays him for all his cost!
No rarer daintier work than his was ever done by the frost.
The master bringeth him golden hire, and giveth him praise as well;
And how happy the heart of the weaver is no tongue but his own can tell.
The years of man are the looms of God, let down from the place of the sun,
Wherein we are weaving alway, till the mystic web is done,
Weaving blindly, but weaving surely, each for himself his fate.
We may not see how the right side looks; we can only weave and wait.
But looking above for the pattern, no weaver hath need of fear,
Only let him look clear into heaven; the perfect pattern is there.
If he keeps the face of our Saviour forever and always in sight,
His toil shall be sweeter than honey, his weaving is sure to be right,
And when his task is ended, and the web is turned and shown,
He shall hear the voice of the Master; it shall say to him, "Well done!"
And the white-winged angels of heaven, to bear him thence shall come down;
And God for his wage shall give him, not coin, but a golden crown.

Anson G. Chester.

JUNIOR CORNER

The Lord Will Hear When I Call

Psalm 4:3

The Leaders Prayer:

"Lord, I have shut the door, speak now the word
Which, in the din and throng, could not be heard.
Hushed now my inner heart, whisper Thy will,
While I have come apart, while all is still.

In this blest quietness clamoring cease;
Here in Thy presence dwells Infinite peace;
Yonder the strife and cry, yonder the sin:
Lord, I have shut the door, Thou art within!

Lord, I have shut the door, strengthen my heart;
Yonder awaits the task, I share a part.
Only through grace bestowed may I be true;
Here, while alone with Thee, my strength renew."

Program Suggestions for January 22, 1939

Quiet Music: "Sweet Hour of Prayer"

Opening Service:

1. Solo voice singing the words of "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Verses 1 and 3.

2. Group sings: "What A Friend We Have in Jesus" Verses 1 and 2.

3. Speaking again the prayers that David spoke: By previous announcement, the group is now ready to rise (informally one after the other) to speak the prayer verse selected fom the Psalms of David.

4. Group sings the prayer: "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind." Verses 1 and 2.

Mission Minutes: Reports from the field and leader's prayer.

Study Period. Aim: to teach the value of prayer.

1. Chairman introduces study with 1 Samuel 13:14, using the phrase: "The Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart."

2. Stories of David: By previous announcement the group has been asked to bring a story of David. These are now given by volunteer tellers. On the board could be the brief outline:

   a. David chosen by God to be king
   b. David the king

The children could be asked first for stories under Number a. Each story told could be tabulated. Then would follow the telling of stories of David as king.

3. Special music: The prayer, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me." Let these voices hum the music through once and then sing verse one and the amen.

4. David's prayer life: Talks by juniors

   a. David prayed when he went to bed. Ps. 4:7, 8.
   b. David prayed when he arose in the morning. Psalm 5:1-3
   c. David prayed when he had enemies. Psalm 3
   d. David prayed to thank God when he saw the beauties of nature. Psalm 8
   e. David prayed for forgiveness when he sinned. Psalm 51:1-4a, 10
   f. David prayed when he needed to learn God's Word. Psalm 119:4-12
   g. David prayed when his heart was full of thanksgiving and praise to God for all his love and care

5. "Teach me to pray": Leader's statement refering to Luke 11:1. Then this prayer:

"Teach me to pray, Lord, teach me to pray;
Thou art my Pattern day after day;
Thou art my Surety, now and for aye;
Teach me to pray, Lord, teach me to pray."

6. Repeat in unison the verse for the evening, Ps. 4:3b

7. Closing song: "Stepping in the Light"

8. Leader's closing prayer

In Memoriam

FRANZ D. ENNS was born in South Russia on January 7, 1863, and passed away at Reedley, Calif., on November 3, 1938, having attained the age of 75 years and 10 months, less 4 days.

The family emigrated from Russia to the United States when the deceased was eleven years of age. They established their home at Mt. Lake, Minnesota Here he grew to manhood. He was baptized at the age of 23 and joined elder Wall's Mennonite Church.

On May 9, 1889 he was married to Kathrina A. Harder who, with 7 of their 9 children, survives him, two children having preceded the father in death. Eleven grandchildren also survive the deceased.

In 1906 the family moved to Aberdeen, Idaho. where they remained 12 years. In 1918 they came to Reedley, California, and have resided here since that time. They joined the First Mennonite Church soon after their arrival and have been associated with its work ever since.

The deceased became critically ill August 10, 1938, and for nearly 3 months endured great pain during most of the time. He wished and prayed for release from this suffering and seemed glad when he felt that the moment of his departure was at hand. He was grateful for the fact that he had an opportunity to see all of his children before the time of his departure came, and bade them a hearty farewell.

Texts: German, Psalm 90; English, Eph. 5:15-17.

PETER J. SCHMIDT, son of Abraham and Anna Schmidt, was born in Franklin Center, Lee County, Iowa, April 20, 1856. He was baptized and joined the Mennonite Church there in 1869. In April 1877 he moved to Kansas and there on October 25, 1885, was married to Christina Vogt, who preceded in death on April 18, 1933. To this union eight children were born; one of whom died in infancy. Surviving are Mrs. Clara Weber, Mrs. Minnie Horsch, Gerhard, Albert, Bertha, Linda and Ella, all living in this vicinity. There are no surviving brothers or sisters.

He was one of the charter members of the Garden Township Church in Kansas, and there served in many capacities, such as deacon, Sunday School Superintendent, and Choir director. At the time of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the church last September, he was one of the seven living charter members.

In the spring of 1907 he and his family moved to Upland where they have resided since. In the Upland Church he also served in many ways.

He passed away December 7 having attained the age of 82 years, 7 months, and 17 days. Funeral services were held Friday, December 8 at 2:30 o'clock, at the First Mennonite Church, the pastor, Rev. Lester Hostetler officiating.

—Leadership Training School at Inman, Kansas.—The churches of the community (mostly Mennonite) have arranged for a Training School during January 15-21. Rev. Myron C. Settle, General Secretary of Kansas Council of Christian Education, and Mrs. Settle will have charge of the school. There will be classes each afternoon and evening. Afternoon classes: "Guiding Children in Christian Growth" and "Understanding Adults." Evening classes: "Ways of Teaching" and "Building and Administering Intermediate Programs."—The Church Visitor.

— News from Bluffton College.—The crew of solicitors for Bluffton's $500,000 Endowment Fund, headed by Dr. A. B. Curran of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, have now about completed the solicitation of Ohio communities. The results thus far have been encouraging. The next field will be the Mennonite communities in Indiana.—Contributors to the special gift for Dr. and Mrs. S. K. Mosiman will be glad to know that more than 170 alumni responded, not only with gifts but with expressions of appreciation for what the efforts of the couple have meant to the College. It was possible to present a check for nearly $500.00 to the couple to help allay the expenses incurred in his recent illness. On Dec. 3 Dr. Mosiman returned to the hospital for observation and treatments needed for further recovery.—Bluffton Alumnus.

— From "Monthly News Letter," Salem Mennonite Church, Freeman, S. D.: Annual Congregational Meeting, Monday, Dec. 26. Elections: Deacon, trustee, secretary, treasurer correspondents, ushers, Freeman College Welfare Committee, etc. Subjects: Changing of time of annual meeting on account of weather conditions, Church Music Committee, English Sunday morning services, entertainment of Northern District Conference in 1939, Summer Bible School.—The pastor has visited one third of the families of the Church on the MENNONITE and BUNDESBOTE errand. Quite many take subscriptions. — Brother Schroeder is setting a fine example. May we hope that this will encourage other pastors to do likewise.—Editor.

— First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—"New Year Candle Lighting Service Sunday evening, Jan. 1, jointly with the Christian Endeavor. Communion Services January 8 at both morning and evening service. "This do in remembrance of me."—Congregational Annual Church Meeting, Wednesday, January 11.

— Mountain Lake Bible Preparatory School is planning a Mid-January Short Bible Course. Dr. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. D. is to take part in it.

— Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa. is planning to start catechetical classes the second Sunday in January. The pastor hopes to have two classes, one for the younger and one for an older group.—White Gift Service was held on Christmas evening which this year proved to be one of the biggest White Gifts we have ever had.—Sunday Bulletin.

— Among the many fatalities that resulted from the recent cold wave and snow storm we notice the following as reported in the Berne, Indiana, Witness: Rev. E. O. Habegger, a native of Berne, pastor of Mt. Carmel Evangelical Church, Adams County, Ind., and Mrs. Mary J. Sprunger of Berne. Rev. Habegger, whose car skidded on a slippery road, crashing into a tree, died in the hospital from his injuries about a day after the accident. Mrs. Sprunger died as the result of a collision on slippery pavement. She was buried from the Berne Mennonite Church.

— St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio.—"The Adoration Pageant," picturing the adoration in the Bethlehem story and challenging the consecration of life to Christ through gifts of Self, Service and Substance, was a service of genuine worship presented by the young people of the Church, assisted by the choir and a junior choir."—The membership is urged to subscribe for the Junior Messenger and The Mennonite.

— Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa.—MARRIED: Miss Alma Elizabeth Moyer and Mr. Kenneth M. Fink were married at the pastor's home, Friday evening, Dec. 2. They will reside at 2030 S. Aubrey Street.

— First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, Ohio. — A PEACE FELLOWSHIP is being formed in this church. This is a Prayer-Study-Action-for-Peace group. Every one interested in the serious national and international problems and desiring to share the responsibilities and opportunities these problems present, is welcome. The subject considered at the first meeting was: "In War: Regular Service, Non-Combatant Service or Absolute Conscientious Objection?" —The pastor of this church, too, is urging subscription to the church papers. Thank you!—Editor.

— From the Bethany Messenger, Freeman, S. Dak.—Many people greatly enjoyed the series of services conducted by Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kansas. He served this community in a wonderful way during the Freeman College Founder's Week.

— The Moscow paper Pravda has stated that the congratulations of President Roosevelt upon the twenty-first anniversary of the Russian bolshevik revolution was the only one received from the head of a nation. There was also one from Earl Browder, communist leader in this country.

— Quarterly statistics of the International Labor Bureau show the number of unemployed in Germany has been reduced since August 1937 from 509,257 to 178,802. How does this compare with our own country?

— Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas.—"Our Mary Martha circle recently gave a special mission program. Missionary G. A. Linscheid gave an interesting talk.—Our pastor, Rev. Arnold Funk, held a series of meetings at Pawnee Rock, Kansas.—Catechism classes have been started for the young folks. Junior and Young People's Meetings are held several times a month. Bible discussion group once a month.—On Thanksgiving Day Herbert Funk and Elsie Goertz were married by our pastor.—Mrs. J. E. Rempel, Corr.

— Dr. Theodore O. Wedel, son of the first president of Bethel College, who has been secretary of the college work of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church since 1934, has now accepted appointment as director of studies at the College of Preachers associated with the Washington Cathedral at the nation's capital.

WHAT IS HAPPINESS?

There is one universal wish among men, all wish to be happy, the rich, the poor, the old, the young, the white man, the black, the yellow and brown skinned man. We wish each other happiness on the occasion of our birthdays, at New Year's time, and at other times, and yet very few of us are genuinely happy.

Happiness! Where, how can it be found? One man has all of his wants satisfied, his life is full of what the psychologist calls satisfiers, and yet he may be miserably unhappy. Some try to find happiness in the accumulation of wealth, some in trying to climb the ladder of honor and fame, and find that even up there there is no genuine happiness. Others try to find it in amusement, in a life of pleasure and orgy, and fail to find it. Some seek it in the pursuit of knowledge, in agreeable work or congenial companionship, and find it not.

What is happiness? A state of perfect peace in heart and mind. It is a state of mind that has the element of permanency; it is not merely a feeling that comes and goes. The only place in the world where there was real happiness was Paradise, and that has vanished out of sight. Happiness cannot be bought. A newspaper once offered a prize for the best definition of money. This definition received the prize: Money is a universal pass, but unfortunately not for heaven. Everything can be purchased with it except happiness. Goethe, who entertained the civilized world with his unsurpassed verse, his pungent philosophy, and his brilliant wit, confessed that his life, like that of Jacob, had been full of trouble, drudgery and hard toil, and that the sum total of really happy times that he had had, probably did not exceed a few weeks.

Happiness is very elusive. Those that try hardest to get it, find it constantly slipping. Goethe truly says, "Wilt thou always farther roam?

Look and see the good lies so near Find happiness right at home
For happiness is always here."

Happiness is inside of us. A man may look very happy, and yet be full of misery. Why is happiness so elusive? It is because of the evil round about us and within us. Evil thoughts, evil memories, evil imageries, evil emotions, instincts with an evil tendency, evil experiences: all this makes us unhappy.

We are at variance with the will and mind of God. We have gone astray, we are going our own way. And we cannot be happy, until our lives are one with the heart and mind of God, until we are attuned to the Divine Will. God wants us to be happy and points the way. The Bible tells us very definitely, how we may be truly happy. "Neither is there any salvation (true happiness) in any other: For there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (made eternally happy), except in Jesus Christ.

Christ was truly happy, because he was in perfect union with the will and mind of God. He had the peace of God in His soul. And how did He do the will of God? By living a life of helpfulness and utterly unselfish love, for the good of others, and by giving himself as a ransom, to make others happy and blessed.

If we truly follow in His footsteps in this new year, we too may have the peace of God and be happy.

WORK.—To have anything to do and to do something is security against a thousand temptations that lie ready to employ empty hands. The nobler the work, the better; but all honorable and honest toil may be a calling in which we abide with God. Baruch earnestly repaired the piece of the wall; he put his earnestness into the work as a mason. The Jews said that not to teach a boy a handicraft was to teach him to steal. And the word of God tells us to be not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.

LIFE WITHOUT LOVE is nothing. The most eloquent speech, the profoundest knowledge, the sincerest faith, all are nothing without love. This is the message of 1 Corinthians 13 and it is worth reading and re-reading. It is a truth that needs emphasis. Nothing can take the place of love. None ever gave all his goods to feed the poor, or his body to be burned, without love. But if such a thing were possible and should occur, it would do no good. It would all be vanity. Love desires and works for the good of others. It is the heart of Christianity and it explains the meaning of the cross of Christ. God so loved the world that He gave His Son.—Lester Hostetler.

BIBLICAL TRAINING SCHOOL

Janjgir, C. P., India, December 1, 1938

Dear Friends in the Homeland:

The staff and students of the Biblical Training School of Janjgir send you greetings! There are twenty-six students enrolled this year. The school was opened in 1929 by Rev. W. F. Unruh. It is managed by a Joint Committee which is composed of six Christian Indians and three missionaries. The aim and purpose of the Biblical Training School is to give the students a thorough knowledge of the Bible, to awaken in them a zeal for the Lord Jesus Christ and His work and to train them for Christian service, such as personal soul winning, village evangelistic work, Sunday School work, Christian Endeavor work and general church work.

It is conceded by most Christian leaders that the hope of the future Christian Church in India lies in the rural communities and not in the city churches. Since about 90 per cent of the people in India live in rural districts, it is evident that rural evangelism should receive major emphasis. It is the aim of the Biblical Training School to educate and prepare young men and women who will go back to the villages and stand out as leaders in the Christian communities either as laymen or as paid workers. It is our experience that a person with a common school education and three years of Biblical training besides, is well qualified to become an outstanding leader in his village, provided his heart is right with God.

Perhaps some of you will wonder why our students do not first finish High School before they enter our Biblical Training School. In our India Mission field we have several thousand Christians living in 70 or 80 different villages. These are mostly farmers who may possibly own from five to twenty acres of land. Many of them have no land and are day laborers. There are very few among them who can afford to send their children through High School. Besides, there is no High School in our whole Mission field of 600,000 inhabitants. Those who wish to send their children to High School send them to neighboring Missions where they have to pay tuition and board. Many of our young people do not even have the privilege of obtaining a common school education. We have only two schools in our whole Mission field where the pupils can finish the eighth grade. The one for girls is here at Janjgir and the one for boys is at Birra. There are only about fifteen pupils in the eighth grade in each of these schools. We have about ten mission Primary Schools where the pupils can pass the fourth grade. Now-a-days the British Government has opened Primary schools in many of the larger villages in the rural districts, so that all of our Christians' children have the opportunity to learn to read and write, at least.

It is for these reasons that the entrance requirements of the Biblical Training School are at present very low. Anyone who is able to read and write well, who is above sixteen years old, and who is spiritually and morally worthy, is admitted into our school. This year we have a number of students who had finished the eighth grade several years ago, but who later felt the call to do evangelistic work. As the number of villages where Christians are found increases, so the demand for outstanding Christian leaders also increases.

The Biblical Training School offers a three years' course. The course of study includes the following subjects: Old Testament History, The Life of Christ, Acts of the Apostles, Child Psychology, The Art of Story Telling, Training the Devotional Life, Old Testament Prophets, Epistles of the New Testament, Bible Doctrine, Village Preaching, Church Administration, General Church History, Indian Religions, and a History of Missions in India, with special emphasis on recent mass movements. The students take a keen interest in their studies. It is a great joy and privilege to teach them. The class-rooms are at present in the Janjgir church.

Recently we have been able to build a small library for the School. We wish to thank all those who have sent gifts to enable us to build this much-needed room. We also wish to thank all others who have been sending us gifts for the scholarship fund and for other purposes. Most of the students are supported by the churches where they are members. But these churches are small and are not able to support more than one or two students a year. The Mission has therefore opened a scholarship fund for worthy students who would like to take this training. The expenses are only about $20 a year for single students, and $35 for a married couple. The students do their own cooking. Some of them have small vegetable gardens during the rainy season. Some bring their rice and split peas and peppers from their own fields. All the students live very simply and are not allowed to make debts while they are in school.

There are two Bands of Witness or Gospel Teams among the students. These go out every Friday afternoon to nearby villages to sing, teach the life of Christ, and to testify of His saving power. Before they go out, the students meet for prayer and preparation. Recently some low cases of Janjgir have expressed their desire to become Christians as a result of the work of our Bands of Witness. Not everyone is glad to listen. They often meet opposition especially from the educated high castes. When the students give their reports on Monday mornings, the problems of opposition are discussed and hard questions answered. India is turning to Christ in masses. Every month over 15,000 are being baptized. But the enemy is at work. Pray that Christ may be victorious.

In a few weeks there will be held at Tambaram, near Madras, India, a world missionary conference to which 450 delegates from all Christendom will gather. The main topic of the conference will be Christ's prophecy "I will build my Church." It is a matter of praise and thanksgiving that India today has hundreds of self-supporting churches. There are nearly seven million Christians in India today. But do you know that there are still 345 millions without Christ? Only 6 per cent are as yet Christians.

We praise God for the new missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Jantzen from Los Angeles, California, who arrived in our midst about three weeks ago. They are now studying the Hindu language, of which we all need to have a thorough mastery before we can do effective work.

Our work here in India keeps us very busy and we do not have much time to write letters. But we can never forget our friends and loved ones in America. I wish to thank you all, heartily, for your letters, your greetings, your prayers and your gifts.

Your missionary friend,
MARTHA BURKHALTER.

Publication

THE REVISED MENNONITE HYMN BOOK

Some of our churches are inquiring how soon the revised Mennonite Hymn Book will be out and ready for use. We are sorry that we cannot at present answer that question with any degree of definiteness. The members of the Revision Committee are all very busy with their own regular work and are living quite a distance apart. They have held sessions at Bethel College as often as they could manage to get together, and are also doing individual work. They plan to meet again shortly, at which time they hope to finish the work of selecting and assembling the hymns. That done, the task of getting the book ready for the printer can proceed faster. And unless unforeseen difficulties arise, it is seriously hoped that some time in fall the book may be looked for. Effort to do so will not be lacking.

The Committee and the Board of Publication jointly asks the churches to be sympathetic and patient in trying to get along with old books until this new one is available. The Committee is doing all it can to give the churches such a variety of first-class hymns and songs that all should be able to find their needs satisfied.

One suggestion: Many who have attended the recent General Conference sessions are familiar with the pamphlet of some sixty hymns, selected from the Hymn Book. The Mennonite Book Concern can furnish these for ten cents a copy or possibly less. Samples may be had for the asking. Churches who are in serious need might order some of these to tide them over. They always come in handy during times of large meetings.

Our Subscription Manager

The Board of Publication had planned to begin operation of the Subscription Department at Newton, Kansas, by the first of the year. But as the prospective manager, Rev. J. M. Suderman, is still under the doctor's care, a postponement had to be made. We hope to make a definite announcement pertaining to this very soon.

Practical Christian Religion

Rev. J. J. Balzer

Text: I Cor. 10:31: "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatever ye do, do all to the Glory of God."

Introduction

For many hundred years the last Sunday of September has been set apart by the Protestant Churches, as a day of Thanksgiving for the harvest of the year, by which our heavenly Father has again made provision for sustaining the life of man and beast for the coming year. It surely is a solemn thought to know that by the grace of God and diligent labor of men, foods have been gathered into store-houses, to feed and supply with nourishment more than 1800 million human beings, besides the unnumbered animals kept under men's care. And we can gladly and truthfully say, that the people whom we call farmers or agrarians, are the greatest philanthropists of the world, for King and Beggar, Rich and Poor are fed by his hard and earnest labor.

At the same time it is a pity to say that he receives the least recognition of all classes of occupations. He is not even given a chance to set the price of a dozen of eggs, a pound of butter or a bushel of grain, to make his labor pay, for he is absolutely dependent upon the world's supply and demand. Others are enriching themselves on his products. It often seems to me that the farmer is thus providentially chosen to do all his work to the glory of God.

It is a very common mistake with us Christian people to think that we can be religious only when engaged in religious acts. We forget that all duties are religious duties, that from the most ordinary and trivial acts of life, such as eating and drinking, to the wider sphere of whatever we do, all may and shall be done to the glory of God.

There are duties of worship and duties of work, duties of the Sabbath and duties of the week, duties of rest and duties of pleasure, which are all alike religious if done in the right spirit. If a thing ought to be done, then it is religious to do it. We can serve God by honesty in trade and diligence in business as truly as by fervency in spirit and fidelity in prayer. You are religious when you are buying, selling, building, engaged at trade or profession, if only your motives and methods are right. It is one of the leading peculiarities of things sacred and things secular. Thus we make our whole life sacred.

Let us remember first of all that there must be union between religion, devotion, and the business of life. Christianity is not to be kept as a thing apart from our common duties of life, away from it, unmixed with it, uneffected by our daily work and not influencing it. Yet there are very many who believe that business is business and religion is religion. They have a time and a place for each. They keep them apart; make each to know its own place; put them as one has said, like the farmer puts his apples and potatoes into separate bins. The week-days are the bins for business and Sunday is the day for religion; and when Church services are done they put religion off like the Sunday dress and say: "I'll see you next Sunday!" Religion has no business with the business life, and business has no part in religion.

Now God has so created us, that body, mind and soul demand activity. He has placed us in the midst of a busy world demanding our efforts. Man cannot live without labor. God has ordained both religion and labor; how then can they be opposed to each other? We can surely serve Him best by carrying our Christianity into our work, and into society rather than shutting ourselves away from all. Religion and daily work are inseparable.

Whether therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

A second thought involved in our text is, that we have many reasons to rejoice, because our God has given us such a bountiful supply of provisions in a good crop in field and garden. From many communities of our State, and from other States, come reports of heavy losses by hail, tornados and floods. Crops were destroyed, homes blown down, cattle and fowl killed, and people left unprovided. Other districts suffered from drouth and grasshoppers, wandering worms and other pests, which left them nothing, and their future looks very gloomy and sad.

Yes, we have a thousand reasons to glorify God in eating and drinking, and whatsoever we do, because we have such rich supplies for our daily needs. This joy we should not only express in giving thanks, but glorify God in helping others who are in want, and so exercise our faith in opening our hands for building God's kingdom at home and abroad. We should be "The Good Samaritan." Listen! The burden of the Gospel message is glad tidings of great joy. The Kingdom of Heaven is likened to a treasure in a field, which when a man has found, for joy thereof goes forth and sells all he has and buys the field to get the treasure.

Surely our Father in Heaven, surounds us with all the lavishness of beauty, He gives to us the smiling fields, the rippling brooks, the fragrant blossoms, the delicious fruit, the nourishing vegetables, and fills nature with beauty; surely He never meant His children to go about as if black were the color of heaven, and as if their feet would keep time only with the steps of a funeral march. Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice! That's the Apostle's program for a Christian life. And as we are but God's stewards, let us not forget the question of the Psalmist of old: What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits towards me? And his answer: I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all of His people.

And now let me close with one more thought. It is our blessed and precious duty to live our lives to the glory of God. We are called to be witnesses. Let our testimony be true. We are to shine forth as lights. Let us reflect His glory. We are to commend Him to others. Let us do it truthfully, joyously. Shall we not do better than before? By more holiness in living, by more zeal in our daily tasks, by cheerful obedience, and by showing forth the happiness and good cheer of that Christ-like life, that whether we eat or drink, or whatsoever we do, all may be done to the glory of God. May God help us. Amen!

WHO ARE GOD'S CHILDREN

Not all men are children of God—only those who choose to be. And how me may have God as our Father? An incident has been used as an illustration of this —yet it is lacking. A childless woman had adopted four children, and one day the oldest, a boy of ten, said to her: "Mother, did you borned me or did you get me as you get these other babies?" The loving mother drew him close to her as she answered: "Mother wishes she could have borned you, son. She wishes it with all her heart, but she couldn't. But she wanted you so much that she gave a whole lot of money for you. And you are mine." The application is made that we are a chosen race; God wanted us so much that he paid a priceless cost for us, and we are his This is indeed true: we are his "purchased possession" (Eph. 1:14), "which he hath purchased with his own blood" (Acts 20:28). But the unspeakable joy and glory of all of us who are saved is that we are not only bought "with the precious blood of Christ," but we are also "borned." God has both redeemed and "borned" every child of his. He "gave his only begotten Son" to die in our stead, that we might "have redemption through his blood," and that, believing in him, we might be "born again," "born of the Spirit," literally born of God and "borned" by God, so that we have the double relationship to him of adoption and birth. No wonder John says with thanksgiving, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God"; and exclaims in grateful joy: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God" (1 John 3:1, 2). —Sunday School Times.

. Prominent AP Writer Sees Hope of Greater Religious Tolerance

by DeWitt McKenzie

Leaders of democracy on both sides of the Atlantic hold that the dictatorships will defeat themselves in due course through opposition by their people, unless there is a decided change of policies.

The argument is that in this advanced day no civilized people will endure indefinitely complete suppression of individual liberty such as now exists in the Totalitarian states. They may stand for absolute regimentation for a time in the hope of escaping from the desperate financial and economic difficulties, but in the end they will turn against the bondage.

Particularly dangerous is interference with the rights of the individual to worship as he pleases. Our Pilgrim fathers came to America to escape religious persecution. Even savages will fight for the right to worship their heathen gods after their own fashion.

The weakest spot in the Führer's armor is the attitude of the Nazi party towards the Christian religion. The attempts being made in Germany to "Nazify" both the Protestant and Catholic churches are dangerous in the extreme to existence of the party.

There have been indications recently that he has seen the writing on the wall and may inaugurate a regime of greater tolerance. If he doesn't he is inviting trouble. Reigion is a big thing in the lives of the newly absorbed people of Austria. Religious liberty was one of the fundamental laws of the republic.

Some 6,000,000 persons, of close to 91 per cent of the population of that little country, are Catholics Most of the rest are religious, more than 295,000 being Protestants.

In Germany itself the Catholic and Protestant churches claim close to 96 per cent of the entire population—63 per cent being Protestant and 33 per cent being Catholics.

This means a total of 62,000,000 people who for nearly five years under Nazi rule have contended for religious freedom. He is a very daring man who challenges such a power.

Hitler was given a very clear-cut warning of the sentiment of the people some time ago through leading army officers. They protested against the spread in the army of the new neo-pagan religion which scoffs at "Christ the Jew" and surrounds Hitler with divinity. They said this was destructive to the morals of the army and the people.

—Dr. J. E. Hartzler writes: "After January 15, 1939, by address will again be Hartford, Conn., at 99 Sherman St. I will return to Hartford Seminary to continue my teaching there about January 20. We have a very interesting group of Mennonites there this year."

Our Sympathetic Savior

Sunday Sermonette—By Rev. H. N. Harder

"When he heard that it was Jesus . . . he began to cry." Mark 10:47. "And Jesus stood still and commended him to be brought unto Him." Luke 18:40; "And Jesus had compassion on him (them) and touched his (their) eyes." Matt. 20:34.

No doubt blind Bartimaeus had been wishing Jesus would come to Jericho. He had come to believe that if Jesus would come He could open his eyes. And what a joy filled the poor man's heart when he learned that Jesus was passing by. His opportunity had come now. Immediately he began to cry out.

The cry of a poor blind beggar stopped Him who had said: "I must go to Jerusalem to be crucified." Already the cross was casting its shadow over Him. He was bracing Himself for that last struggle in Gethsemane. And yet He had a heart to soothe, to help, to sympathize. Is not this a pattern for us all? Is it saying too much that Jesus found relief from the weight of approaching sorrow and pain, when He healed this man and acknowledged his faith? Is not this a lesson for us who are only too often selfish in our sorrow? Don't we read a lesson of Christ's quick sympathy at a moment when He was most absorbed?

No enemy, no opposition, no beseeching on the part of true and ignorant friends could have stopped Jesus, but the cry of this suffering and pleading man did. The cross and all else great as it was for the world had to wait its turn, because the earnest prayer had to be attended to. Don't we see here a beautiful instance of an earnest desire and power?

Where faith and promise meet, there must be help. Don't we see what power Christ puts into the hand of believing prayer? Jesus put the key to the treasure house into the hands of faith and supplied all the needs of this beggar. Bartimaeus knew what he needed most. If we were as conscious of our need as Bartimaeus was of his, we should pause as little in our response to the question: "What wouldst thou that I should do for thee?" "Lord dost thou not see that mine eyes are dark? What else but sight can I want?"

Jesus still comes to us with this same question. God grant that we may then say: "Lord, how canst Thou ask me? Dost Thou not see that my soul is stained, my eyeballs dim? Give me Thyself." And Christ's quick reply will then come: "Go thy way thy faith hath saved thee."

Bartimaeus went away rejoicing. "At the cross, at the cross where I first saw the light, and the burden of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith I received my sight and now I am happy all the way!" Amen!

PETER SEES CHRIST'S GLORY

Matt. 17:1-9, 14-18

TOPIC—The Transforming Power of Prayer

Christ's Glory on the Mountain vs. 1-9

Following Peter's confession and Jesus' announcement of His suffering and death, (last week's lesson) He took three of his discipls into a high mountain (v1), doubtless Mount Hermon, for a time of intimate fellowship with God in prayer (L. 9:29). While praying, He was transfigured before them (v2), His whole outward appearance was miraculously changed. The radiance of His inner life shone through His body and clothing. The glory within His soul was visible outwardly (Mark 9:3; L. 9:29). Jesus the servant, was here transfigured, changed into the glorious appearance of the Son of God. This gives us some idea of how He and we will appear in the resurrection glory.

While the three looked upon their glorified Lord, they saw Moses and Elijah, whom God sent from heaven in answer to Jesus' prayer, speaking with Him about his coming death (L. 9:31). They recognized them whom they had never seen in the flesh. This mountain-top experience impressed the three profoundly. They had a vision of the glory and greatness of Christ. Peter wished to continue it indefinitely (v4, L. 9:33).

God Himself descended upon the mount (v5) in a bright cloud which, in the darkness of the night (L. 9:32), overshadowed them. Fear filled their hearts. God speaks, making the scene more awe-inspiring, directly to the disciples. Jesus is His Son, hear what He has to say. He is greater than Moses and Elijah—the Law and the Prophets. This was a glorious hour for the three. Jesus however did not wish them to publish it (v9) as people would not understand the meaning of it as yet. He had not yet proclaimed His deity publicly.

Christ's Glory at the Foot of the Mountain vs. 14-18

Jesus' disciples met with difficulty as soon as He was absent (vs. 14-16). A case of greatly aggravated need was brought to them (v 15, Mk. 9:17, 18) and they were impotent to help (v 16). The anxious father appealed to them in vain—a truly tragic incident. How often Christ's followers are helpless in the presence of great need, and perhaps for the same reason (v20). Jesus came in time to help them in their defeat and to heal the afflicted boy. He revealed His glory in rebuking the evil spirit and restoring the child (v18), an amazing miracle. The father appealed directly to Jesus when the disciples failed because of their weak faith. We can likewise go direct to Him. Our Lord is grieved over our failures to help the spiritually needy.

Transforming Power of Prayer

Prayer was intensely real to Jesus. He was communing with the Father, believing that He heard. It may be just as real for any other person. Prayer transforms the mind. True prayer taps resources otherwise closed to us and transforms the very depths of our being. A season of prayer in the morning, will influence the entire day for us. Prayer, is inducing contentment of mind and freedom from needless worry, is conducive to bodily health. Trustful prayer contributes much to equanimity of mind. The inner changes wrought through prayer, will reveal themselves outwardly. The sinner's conduct is changed. A new vitality will show itself in the Christian, a greater cheerfulness, a new ring in testimony, greater effectiveness in service. There is no short-cut to anything worthwhile. We must "take time to be holy." "Food for the soul can not be taken in capsules." There must be a systematic cultivation of the devotional life in meditation and prayer.

LETTER

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 8, 1938.

Dear Brother Thierstein:

I want to make a brief report as Conference Secretary of the wonderful Joint Conference of Mennonites, Schwenkfelders, Brethren and Friends recently held at the Norristown Schwenkfelder Church. The Rev. Robert J. Gottshall is pastor of the church.

The afternoon discussion on "The Rediscovery of the Message and the Mission of the Christian Church" was most profitable. One brother after another would get up and speak from his heart as the Sipirit directed. Then Dr. D. V. Steere of Haverford College, summed up the discussion in a very unique manner.

At the dinner table brief addresses were delivered by Rev. S. T. Moyer on the work of Christ in India and another by Daniel West of the Brethren Church who spent some time in Spain in the interest of needy and hungry children.

In the evening the pictures of the 1934 Schwenkfelder Pilgrimage to Germany were greatly appreciated. Dr. E. E. S. Johnson, professor of church history at Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn.. (A Schwenkfelder, Mennonite, Congregationalist) delivered an address on "Our Common Background" in a very forceful and interesting manner. Thus came to a close a very profitable afternoon and evening. The next meeting may be held in the Upper Mennonite Church, Zionsville, next June.

It may also interest you and the readers that as Secretary of the Eastern District I have received an invitation from the Allentown Chamber of Commerce to hold the 1941 General Conference session in Allentown. I am very grateful for this invitation and hope that it might be seriously considered. Note this touching paragraph: "The Chamber of Commerce convention committee will be glad to assist in helping to plan your program, assisting with registration of delegates, in arranging for local tours, to the end that the convention here will be a memorial event."

Fraternally yours,
Howard G. Nyce, Secretary.

Excerpt from a Travel Diary

Erland Waltner

"The Mennostein and the Mennolinde"

Monday, July 18, 1938

At an early hour I roused myself to get to the Lehrter Bahnhof in Berlin in time for the Hamburg train. The ride was quite uneventful but we made good time and by noon I was in Hamburg-Altona on my pilgrimage to the tomb of Menno Simons. Having been instructed to inquire of Pastor Otto Schowalter of Altona about the details of the visit, I set about to find his church. After several erroneous attempts I found it, a very fine brick chapel with residences for Pastor and sexton. My only disappointment was that Pastor Schowalter had gone on his summer vacation and would not be back until August. That put me in a predicament. No one else seemed to know just how to get to the Mennostein which marks the tomb of Menno Simons. I refused to be discouraged and finally found two elderly ladies who said they knew Rev. P. R. Schroeder from his visit to the Mennonite World Congress in Amsterdam and who were able to tell me how to find this Mennostein. I must go back to Hamburg, then to Oldeslohe, and then to little Fresenburg—on as many different trains.

At Fresenburg everyone knew where the Mennostein was. A hike of half an hour, since there is no open road to the tomb, would bring me there. Inquiring my way as I walked along I met the owner of the property on which the memorial is located. After he had ascertained my identity, he gave me full instruction as to how to find the object of my quest and even sent his little daughter on her bicycle to show me the way. It was a very tired but eager pilgrim who at last plodded his way through a barley field, then a pasture, and finally a plowed field to stand in the presence of the Mennostein. The stone is of granite and bears a plate with the face of Menno Simons, the date of his birth and the date of his death. It is set in a very neatly kept enclosure, surrounded by a strong iron fence. Flowers and benches for pilgrims added to the atmosphere of the memorial.

At first my reaction to the scene before me was one of awe. Now I had come to the Mecca of my pilgrimage. Then I was overcome with a feeling of gratitude. Out under the open sky with no one near to disturb my devotion, I knelt down and thanked God for the life and influence of the man who lay buried beneath. In full sincerity I pledged my life anew to the perpetuation and the propogation of the work which this soul had nobly begun.

After taking a number of pictures I hurried back to Fresenburg and continued to walk back to Oldeslohe. It was beginning to get dark but I wanted to see the famous Mennolinde, the large Linden tree which traditionally Menno Simons planted. The tree located just beside a main road loomed before me as a majestic symbol of the work of its planter. Tall and stately with its branches welcoming the birds of the sky it made a striking silhouette against the evening sky. As I stood there I thought that our Mennonite Church too was like this tree but is it as majestic and as attractive to those who see it as is this tree?

Beneath the tree was a little white house. I was told that Menno Simons' printer had once lived there. It was occupied even now by an aged couple. The lady came out to see what I was doing. In the conversation which ensued she assured me that this was the Mennolinde and that Menno Simons had really planted it. She was most interested when I told her that I was a Mennonite from America.

It was a weary but inspired lad who came tramping into Oldeshole to take the train for Amsterdam, Holland. I would have to change trains several times during the night which would mean no sleep but I simply had to be in Paris by Wednesday to see the English King and Queen who were to visit there. The German officials as well as the Dutch were very kind to me as I crossed the border, only half awake, weary from one day of excitement and getting ready for the next.

Work by West. Dist. Mission Church

655 Lorraine Ave., Wichita, Kans.

December 31, 1938.

Dear Christian Friends:

Repeatedly the request came for us to write more often regarding the work in Wichita. The reason we have not been writing more often was because we did not want the people to feel that we are "blowing the horn." What we write from time to time is in the spirit of thanksgiving for what our Heavenly Father has done for us.

Our church attendance is growing and the average attendance at the meetings is very good. In November we had an average attendance of 95 in the S. S, 107 at the morning worship period, in December 82 in the S. S. and 94 at the morning worship. This church is fast becoming too small. We have a seating capacity of a few more than 100 and for our Christmas program we crowded 197 into the church. Can you imagine how we were packed? We must think of a new church building if we are to meet the challenge that is presented to us in this field in Wichita.

Our church membership is 87, representing 40 families coming from about 30 different churches. We have living in Wichita besides these 40 families, 163 other families who at one time were Mennonites or still are Mennonites but have not joined here. This certainly is a challenging field and we are thankful to Bethel College, the Home Mission Committee of the Western District Conference and the Relief Board of the General Conference for their assistance. Arthur Friesen doing graduate work at Bethel is sent to Wichita each Saturday and Sunday to assist with the work. Mrs. Phillips and four or five students come each Saturday afternoon and return to Bethel after the evening meeting among the needy. The Relief Board contributes $25.00 monthly for this work and the balance necessary for this work is donated by Bethel College and friends.

The Saturday program is sponsored by Bethel College and we fit into the program and help where we can. Saturday afternoons are devoted to sewing of clothing, bedding, etc. Other Saturdays we go into the homes of the needy and talk to them about their various problems, budgeting their income, cleaning up the home and the person, helping them with their social and moral problems, reconciling of parent with parent or children and parents, supplying the needs of the families that are unaided with food, clothing or fuel, or help families with insufficient income, so as to tide them over until help can be secured for them by the united charities. Saturday evenings are devoted to a brief business meeting of the Southwest Welfare club. This is followed with community singing and Bible Study. The attendance is good. Sunday afternoon we conduct a Sunday School and church service for those people who are not reached by other churches. All this work is done in the home and double garage of the Warfields at 1116 Merton St. The garage is cold, heated with a little laundry stove, for seats we use benches, boxes or stand. There is no organ or piano to help with the singing In spite of these handicaps we are happy for it is God's work. The state of Kansas has undertaken a Family Relation Educational program and selected Wichita as an experiment station. I was in conference with the director and workers of this area and they told me that the work we have been undertaking for over a year is the type of work they now are carrying on. "You are one year ahead of us in this work," they said, and asked if they might work with us.

You people have been so kind in gathering clothing and funds to carry on this work. Personally we try to write each contributor, thanking them for the gift and telling them a little about the work. This in itself is a big task and should anyone be overlooked it is not done intentionally. It will take a few weeks to write to all who have sent things for Christmas. During the last year about $200.00 came in for this work and was used for this humanitarian work. With part of this money we bought a one horsepower electric motor and a grinder. Now we can grind the grain and prepare corn meal and breakfast foods. This is a big saving to the people and also supplies them with food elements that they do not get by eating devitalized foods purchased from the shelf. Over 200 pounds of home made soap came in and will help to keep them clean.

Besides the regular work in the church and this relief program it is my privilege to help people to better health. This is done through our Health Guild where we study health habits, through personal counseling and in some cases, where necessary, treatments are given. The Guild is planning to edit a monthly magazine which will be mimeographed and distributed to such who may be interested in this work. It would take too long to tell of results, suffice it to say that God is blessing the work.

This month Dr. Ward, head of the Health Food Department of the Rorabaugh Store has asked me to assist him with the work. For several weeks I have been helping him two days a week and thus have supplemented our income, making it possible for us to carry on this great work on this field, without which it would be impossible for us to continue.

The work keeps us going from 6:00 in the morning until 11:00, 12:00 or even at times until 2:00 o'clock at night. During this last year I have not been privileged to spend more than one evening a month with my wife and two children. The work is heavy, the problems are plentiful and the trials at times are sore. Will you pray for us and the work?

We are preparing and looking forward to next October when the Western District Conference is to meet with us in Wichita. We extend to you all our best wishes for a most prosperous and blessed New Year.

Yours in the Master's Service,
Edward D. and Ella Schmidt,

The Church and the Needs of Youth

Theme for Young People's Program of the W. D. Conference held at Enid, Oklahoma, October 19, 1938. By A. Theodore Mueller, Enid, Oklahoma.

Introduction. The title of this talk implies or presupposes two things: (1) That youth needs something and (2) the church has something which young people need. I am sure we all accept these two statements to be true. This theme can only direct your attention to a little of what the church has (or should have) which young people need and should desire.

Jesus Christ in His teachings on the Mount, as recorded in Matt. 6:33 says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

To this one verse of Scripture let me also quote a part of one given to us by the wise King Solomon as recorded in Proverbs 29:18, "Where there is no vision, the people perish . . ." These two verses shall shape the trend of our thoughts throughout this talk.

The Task of the Church. The church is no temporary or superficial organization of people. Those within are to be definite and positive believers in Jesus Christ. They are entrusted with no simple and easy task — it is one which involves the enterprise of bringing maturing young people (along with all others) into contact with a Divine Power so that they may share in a divine purpose and aid in establishing among men the transforming way of life which we name the Kingdom of God.

This task of the church arises from the needs of the Kingdom of God. God desires that all men believe in Him and become a part of His kingdom. It is the positive task of the church to proclaim God and Christ unto all the world so that by grace through faith in Jesus Christ all mankind might be saved.

The goal for the church and its members can be taken from the latter part of John 3:16 where we find the reason for Christ's coming, namely, that no one might "perish but have everlasting life," or in John 10:10 where we read that Christ came to give men "life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Cooperation. Youth needs to cooperate with, but also needs cooperation from, the church. Youth is often over-ambitious, becomes impatient when results do not follow immediately, and may feel like working independently. This characteristic of restlessness of youth must be recognized and if properly controlled and directed, will prove a blessing to all. The burden of responsibility falls upon the church, with members of maturer persons.

Cooperation on the part of the church members should provide for youth a number of avenues for growth and expansion. Christ grew in wisdom, in stature, and in favor with God and man. One church leader has said that the program of the church should be of youth, for youth, and by youth. This leader realized that the future of the church depends upon its youth.

Train youth in the correct ways of life, and it will not depart from those ways. Provide opportunity for growth. Our usual activities are the Sunday School, the Christian Endeavor, and choirs. I am glad to note increased interest and attention given to young people's retreats and conferences. Growth comes through prayer and meditation, through experiences which require contacts with radiant Christian men and women.

Vision. Perhaps no greater responsibility can be given to the church than that of giving vision to its members and its youth. By vision I mean the God-given quality to recognize a need and to understand how to meet that need. "Where there is no vision the people perish . . . " Where there are no church members or leaders who recognize a need or understand how the need is to be met, the church will perish.

The first part of the placard erected to the honor of three great men who helped found Bethel College reads: "Honoring the memory of J. J. Krehbiel, David Goerz, B. Warkentin whose vision . . . " These men saw a need and did something to realize that need. The placard ends with "and their works do follow them." How truly this is being realized is known better by those who attended the celebration at Bethel College last week. By their fruits you shall know them.

A few years ago while attending Bethel College I often thought of the question: "Where are the future leaders of our churches?" It is true, there are a few church leaders of the ages of about 30 to 40, but not enough. Where was the vision of our churches for that generation? Could it be said of those years what is said about the time of Samuel's youth as recorded in I Samuel 3:1, "And the Word of the Lord was precious in those days; there was no open vision." Eli had little public vision. He did not provide future leaders for Israel, but God did this through a devout and praying woman. My observation leads me to say that today our church and school leaders must be having visions: I see young people prepared for leadership in churches and still others in seminaries or other schools preparing for active service. Credit is due especially to the leaders of our schools and churches today who reveal to our youth the great need of well-trained men and women

Being in close contact with Sunday School work I especially put this following question to the preachers and Sunday School Superintendents: Are you and your Sunday School teachers leading your young people to see visions, to see a need (some work to be done in the future) and to prepare to meet that need?

Visions will not make leaders out of all of us, but we will use our talents as fully as possible if we know definitey what to use them for and how to use them. A vision of Christian fellowship at home can help to create international friendships. Love for service will uplift social relationships in our home community. With visions we may live, and live more abundantly.

Youth has ambition, but it must be directed. This ambition must be purposeful—it should be made so as early in life as possible. Often I wonder, and I know others do too, whether we do not allow our youth to drift purposeless so long that it becomes a habit. We have drifters in our churches because of a lack of vision on the part of someone. What a waste of precious time before one realizes his best period of growth has been squandered! Christ already knew at the age of twelve what His life's work was to be.

"WAYS OF USING THE BIBLE"

Luke 4:16-21; Ps. 119:97-104

Meditations:

M. Jan. 16. For family use. Gen. 18:19; Duet. 11:8-21
T. Jan. 17. Walking in the light. Ps. 119:105, 130
W. Jan. 18. Searching for the truth. Acts 17:10-12
T. Jan. 19. Study for correct interpretation. 2 Tim. 2:14-16.
F. Jan. 20. Showing the Way to God. John 14:-1-6.
S. Jan. 21. Applied to daily living. Matt. 7:24-27

Suggested Hymns: How precious is the Book divine, Tell Me the Old, Old Story.

Take the Bible from the shelf and put it in your heart. The Bible is the Book of Books. Do you know how to use it?

Program Suggestions:

Some of the suggestions given for last week might be profitably used for this meeting. Bible drills are always interesting. Different members might be asked to tell the others of their plans for Bible study. Introduce the Bible into the meeting as much as possible. Some of the following topice and questions might be used. 1. How does the Christian Endeavor pledge honor the Bible? (The pledge should be read in the meetings occasionally) 2. How can we read the Bible intelligently? 3. What method of Bible reading have you found most helpful? 4. What gains come from memorizing the Bible? 5. Mention some ways in which the Bible should not be used. 6. What are some printed helps that should be more widely known and used? 7. Keeping the quiet Hour. 8. Using the Bible as a daily guide. Any of the daily meditations may be used as topics for short talks.

Thoughts for the lesson discussion.

The Bible is found in most of the homes of our land but not in its hearts. In too many homes the Bible is merely an ornament. The Bible is not a package of magic, nor will good luck attend one merely because he possesses a Bible. The Bible is not a scientific text-book, neither is it a resource book on economics even though a careful study of the Bible may throw light on any of these subjects. If we read the Bible irreverently, perhaps from a sense of obligation, we can neither enjoy it nor benefit from it. We are likely to have the same experience if we use the Bible unintelligently, paying no attention to the historical setting or the context.

Reading the Bible without a plan is better than not reading it at all. However there is more purpose in the reading if one follows some plan or system. Many like to use the daily readings for either the C. E lesson or the S. S. lesson. Other suggestions are: Reading straight through the Bible; 2. Bible study by Characters; 3. Bible study by books; 4. By Topics; 5. By Periods, and 6. By using different Versions. A concordance, a Bible index, a dictionary and Bible commentaries will prove to be valuable helpers.

Six Points About Bible Study

1. The manner of Bible-Study: a. Constructively, according to some plan; b. Persistently; c. Enthusiastically; d. Reverently.

2. The atmosphere of Bible-Study. The first hour of the day away from distractions is best. Dependence upon the Holy Spirit is essential, as are prayerfulness and obedience.

3. The recording of Bible-Study: Carefully record the helpful thoughts of each day's study. The book containing such notes will become a priceless treasure.

4. The memory side of Bible-Study. Each day commit to memory a verse of Scripture including the book, chapter and verse number.

5. Appropriating from our Bible-Study. Every promise is to be claimed, every appeal of the text responded to, every warning heeded.

6. Sharing the Blessing of Bible-Study. We learn more about what we have studied when we attempt to pass it along and explain it to our friends.

The Bible Interprets Life

The Bible is the interpreter of life—its meaning and purpose. The men and women of its pages not only show how all men and women should or should not live, but demonstrate why certain ways of living make for success or failure. Anyone who undertakes a thorough study of the Bible will find that it makes three great contributions to the interpretation of life. 1. The Bible teaches the truth of life. The Bible rests on the experience of the human race; men lived before they wrote. Since the release of the Bible men and women have experimented for two thousand years and found the truths contained therein fundamental and valid. 2. The Bible teaches the place of law in life. Even though the present trend is away from authority, no thinking Bible student can fail to see that none dare to cross the laws of cause and effect without impunity. The Bible makes it very clear that men do not ever break the law. They who try it merely break themselves against the law. 3. The Bible gives direction to life. Life needs dirction as well as growth. The Bible is the greatest record of purposeful living—a never-ending parade of men and women who tried to catch a vision of their calling and having caught it marched on triumphantly.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

MY CHURCH AND MY LIFE

Intermediate C. E. Topic, January 29, 19c9

For Daily Study

Jan. 23. The house of God. 1 Tim. 3:14, 15
Jan. 24. Christ's ideal for the church. Eph. 5:25-27
Jan. 25. The early members. Acts 2:42-47
Jan. 26. The first church. Acts 8:1-4.
Jan. 27. The first church in Europe. Acts 16:11-15
Jan. 28. The goal of church work. Eph. 4:11-16
Jan. 29. Topic—My church and my life. Rom. 12:1-21; Eph. 2:19-22.

Do Something

Consult with your superintendent and pastor about some definite project which your society can take up for the church. It will increase your part in its work. Here are a few suggestions: clean and mend hymnals and Bibles; do some necessary clean up work in the church or yard; plant flowers or trees in the yard; do typing or other office work for the pastor; assist with kindergarten during church services; care for pastor's children when the wife may wish to be free for some special service; raise money for some special gift to the church.

Preprayer

Read Phil. 1:1-6, bringing out how Paul always prayed for the churches, and asked them to pray for each other. Let this be a time of prayer for your church with all its activities.

*Suggested Songs

"The Church's One Foundation," "I Gave My Life," "Fairest Lord Jesus"

Society Announcements

A Worship Service

Instrumental prelude (two at one piano): "O Worship the King"

Leader: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

Hymn: "I Love Thy Kingdom"

Leader: "Jesus, with thy Church abide,
Be her Savior, Lord and Guide
While on earth her faith is tried;
Response: We beseech Thee, hear us.
Leader: May she guide the poor and blind,
Seek the lost until she find
And the broken-hearted bind;
Response: We beseech Thee, hear us.
Leader: May her lamp of truth be bright,
Bid her bear aloft its light,
Bring all nations clearer sight
Response: We beseech Thee, hear us."
(Thomas Polloch).

Hymn: "Fling Out the Banner"

Sentence prayers: thanks for God's leading and blessing in the church.

Offering: with dedication prayer.

Presenting the Topic

1. Introducing the topic. There are many things in life that we have enjoyed since we were small that we take them for granted. We do not realize what life would be without them. For most of us the church has been that way. We need to ask ourselves two questions in connection with this topic: (1) What has the church contributed to my life? (2) What do I owe to the church for these benefits?

1. What the Church Has Contributed to My Life? (short talks).

(1) A Knowledge of the Scriptures. 1 Tim. 3:14-17. In how many ways has the church helped you to gain a knowledge of the Bible? How does our salvation depend upon this knowledge? Acts 8:26-29. Tell this story in your own words.

(2) Ideals for Christian living. Phil. 4:8, 9. No higher ideals for living can be found anywhere than those taught by the church. Take each one of the words in the passage and show what it would mean to live it. The Bible not only gives us ideals, but gives us an example in Jesus. We also have the promise of His help to attain these ideals.

(3) Fellowship. 1 John 3:10-17. The Christians were known in the early church by their love for each other. John 13:35. Jesus says that love is to be the mark of His followers. Do you think the church of today lives up to this commandment? What would you say are some hindrances? How much does our "feeling at home" with a group depend upon this spirit of love? A little boy hearing his echo became angry and shouted "I hate you" and of course received the same answer. He told his mother of the little boy who was shouting to him from the woods and how he was afraid of him and hated him. Then his mother told him to go back and speak words of kindness to him. He did and the response was very different. "I love you," made an entirely different impression.

(4) Training in Service. Eph. 4:11-13. What opportunities for training in service does your church offer to young people? What more do you think thev should be given to do? In what ways in particular does Christian Endeavor train in service for Christ and the church?

(5) As a Mennonite. Has the Mennonite church made any special contributions to your life that you might not had received in the church of another denomination? The emphasis in the Mennonite church has been on consistent living. Is it stressed in your church today? What heritage do we have on the subject of peace? (Consult your pastor or parents).

2. What Do I Owe to the Church?

(1) By an Intermediate

(2) How can I make my church membership mean more to my life? By the Pastor.

Closing Song: "Take My Life." Benediction.

JUNIOR CORNER

"TO THE WISE THE WAY OF LIFE GOETH UPWARD"

(Proverbs 15:24 R. V.)

Junior Topic for Sunday, January 29, 1939

Quiet Music

Opening Service

1. Rise to speak "The Lord is in His holy temple, let all the earth before Him silence keep."

2. Group sings (from memory) verse one of "Holy, Holy, Holy"

3. Leader's prayer for blessing (seated)

4. Group sings: "The Child of a King." Verses 1 and 2.

Mission Minutes: This brief period can be connected with the evening's thought with the statement that our missionaries are helpers in showing the way upward to God. A few chosen missionaries could be brought near to the children through pictures of them and family, their station of work and experiences in the work. (This material can be gleaned from past Mission Numbers of Mennonite and Mission News and Notes.)

Study Period. Aim: to teach "to the wise the way of life goeth upward." Prov. 15:24 R. V.

1. Group sings: "I'm pressing on the upward way,

New heights I'm gaining every day;
Still praying as I onward bound,
Lord, plant my feet on higher ground."

Verse one and two of this song could be written on the blackboard and verse one sung from the board at this time.

Discussion: "To the wise the way of life goeth upward." Ask the children to turn to Prov. 15:24. Let them give their thoughts on this verse. Give to the group a brief definition of "The Way Upward" and "The Way Downward." (The way upward leads to God, the way downward leads away from God). This could be illustrated on the blackboard.

3. God gives us helps on the upward way through His servant, Solomon. Talks by juniors:

a. Who was Solomon? 1 Kings 2:1-3, 12; 4:22, 23, 26; 10:1-9.

b. Solomon's wise prayer. I Kings 3:4-14; 4:29, 30.

c. The temple Solomon built. I Kings 5:4. If there is a good library near, pictures of Solomon's temple would be available. These could be shown at this time. 1 Kings 8:10-13; 9:1-3.

d. Solomon's writings. Let this junior name them and also use I Kings 4:32, 33.

4. Special music: "He Lifted Me." Verse 1 and 4.

5. Helps on the way upward: Previous to the meeting deal out verses from Proverbs. Steps could be constructed by use of bricks or blocks. The children, having verses could come one by one, lay their slip on a "step upward" and give their verse. The bricks (or blocks) could be covered with white paper and the verses could be on yellow rolls, the length of the bricks. This makes a beautiful effect when lighted candles stand on either side of the steps and the rolls have been put down one by one.

6. Heart-talk: the leader steps to the scene and in a few statements reminds the group again that Jesus is the door and the way, that He waits to take us by the hand and help us to walk the stairs upward which leads to God.

7. Solo (unseen, from rear) sings as lights are turned out and candles still alight, verse two of "Higher Ground."

8. Repeat in unison the verse for the evening

9. Closing song (still by candle light): "Trying to Walk in the Steps of the Saviour"

10. Leaders' closing prayer

TALKING VS. DOING

The late Chas. M. Alexander was taken to task after one of his services, by a Christian who said, "I admire your spirit, but I don't like your method."

"Neither do I," said Mr. Alexander. "How do you do it?"

"I—I— don't do much," stammered the man.

"Well," said Mr. Alexander, "I like the way I do it better than the way you don't do it."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, GEARY, OKLA.

For Sunday evening, Dec. 6th, the Men's Quartet from the colored school at Langston, Okla. was invited to give a program in our church. After the program, lunch was served to them, their director, their pianist and the faculty of the local colored grade and high school. The latter were given a special invitation to attend the concert. The whole affair was sponsored by the Booster class of our Sunday School.

On Christmas evening the children of the S. S. presenting a well prepared program, including an impressive candle lighting service.

Communion was fittingly observed on New Year's day.

This coming Sunday afternoon, Jan. 8th, we will hold our annual Sunday School and church business meeting. Then in the evening a varied program of music by the grade and high school also a religious talk by the County farm agent, Mr. Dowell.—Corr.

WINTON CALIF., JANUARY 3, 1938

It is now five months since we were permitted to come to Winton to work in this portion of the Lord's vineyard. The work here is in the nature of a Community Effort. The Presbyterians here have a building but no minister, then there are a number of General Conference Mennonites here without a church ediface; these appealed to the Evangelization Committee of the Pacific Conference District that I might be sent here to serve them.

By the new plan of cooperation between the Conference and the Home Mission Board of the General Conference this was made possible. This work like all pioneer work is difficult. It is especially so because of the local conditions which have to be worked out on the field itself. We are not in the least discouraged. On the other hand we feel very much encouraged by the fact that there is manifest a splendid spirit of cooperation by the other churches in the field. There are six other groups to consider. It was highly gratifying when the writer suggested a Union Thanksgiving Day service. All but one of the groups readily cooperated in spirit as well as in person. The meeting was successful to a high degree. Many expressed their hope that other Union Services could be arranged. Our Sunday School enrollment has increased from twenty-eight to fifty. One Sunday we had fifty present. Our average attendance at S. S. is 38 to 47. I am pleased to report that on January 1, 1939, we had the pleasure of officiating at a very unique marriage ceremony. The bride was Elizabeth (nee Penner) Fast, aged sixty-five years, and the groom Abraham A. Friesen aged seventy years, both of Winton. The entire community has been in a state of hilarious joy ever since the announcement of the event. Standing room in our church was at a premium. Following the ceremony the public was invited to the City Hall for fellowship and refreshments. I have officiated at quite a number of similar affairs, where the contracting parties were years younger, but never has more joy and genuine happiness been expressed on the faces of bride and groom as well as those of the guests as at this event. I consider it one of the high points of my service. (See Vital Statistics).

We solicit an interest in your prayers for our work here as well as for ourselves.

Sincerely in His Name,
Mr. and Mrs. Dillman B. Hess.

HEREFORD MENN. CHURCH, BALLY, PA.

Greetings to the Editor and Readers:

Our Annual Harvest Home Services were held in our Church on Sunday morning, September 11. Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Gottshall of Boyertown celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on September 15th. May their days be multiplied and their blessings increase with the years.

Our Annual Fall Preparatory Services were held on Friday evening September 30th and on Sunday morning October 2nd we observed the Communion Feast of the church. On Friday evening October 14th Joseph B. Bechtel, who was our representative at the General Conference the past summer gave us a very interesting report of his trip and the sessions at the Conference. We thank him for this splendid report.

Mrs. Samuel T. Moyer visited our church and spoke at our morning Worship Services on October 30th. We enjoyed her fellowship with us and hope she can come back at some later time.

Worship services were conducted in our church on Thanksgiving morning. Our pastor, Elmer E. S. Johnson, had charge. The children in the Primary Department collected more than two bushels of apples and eleven and one-half dozen oranges as a Thanksgiving gift to the Old Folks Home at Frederick. On Thanksgiving morning, before daybreak, we lost one of our oldest members by death, Miss Emma G. Clemmer. She was the last of her family but is survived by a number of nieces and nephews.

The Primary Department held their Christmas program on Sunday morning, December 18th at 9 o'clock. It is always a treat to see and hear these young people do their part. On Sunday evening, December 25th, the Young People presented the pageant entitled "The Seeking Wise-Man."

It is the end of another year and we are all in the midst of annual business and congregational meetings, ready to carry on the work for another year. Trusting God, we expect to go forward for Greater and Nobler things in 1939.—Mae Latshaw, Barto, Pa., Corr.

MENNONITE CHURCH, WAYLAND, IOWA.

During the Christmas vacation we enjoyed the presence of our young people, both students and teachers. On the evening of Dec. 29, Rev. and Mrs. Penner entertained the young people in our church basement. All report a splendid social time. Our annual business meeting was held Dec. 31. Reports were given, officers were elected and the necessary business was transacted.

On January 1, 1939, the following impressive Installation service for Rev. William Penner, as pastor of our church, was carried out with Mr. Jacob Roth, chairman.

Piano Prelude—Mrs. Mabel Wittrig

Doxology and Hymn—Congregation

Scripture Reading—Rev. Delbert Welty. II Tim. 2

Trio Sang: "My Task." — Prayer, Rev. Simon Gingerich.—Hymn, Congregation

Installation Sermon—Rev. Simon Gingerich, based on I Cor. 12:27.

Installation Prayer—Rev. Delbert Welty

Charge to Pastor and Right Hand of Fellowship—Rev. Welty

Male Quartet—"Help Me to Be Holy"

Charge to Congregation—Rev. Adolf Friesen

Prayer—Rev. Friesen.—Hymn, Congregation

Benediction—Rev. William Penner

Dec. 23 the young people of our Sunday School presented the pageant, "The Story Beautiful," and the primary department gave several numbers preceeding the pageant at Christmas.—Mrs. C. K. Schantz, Corr.

BETHEL MENN. CH., WOLF POINT, MONT.

Just a few lines to let you know that we are still on the map. In July Rev. M. M. Lehman of Monroe, Washington held two weeks of interesting Evangelistic services in our congregation. We all enjoyed his visit with us and the wonderful way in which he expounded the Scriptures to us.—On July 17, Brother A. F. Toavs was ordained as deacon of our church. After the ordination services we had the Lord's supper, the services being in charge of Rev. Lehman. — July 20 the Ladies' Mission society held their annual sale in the afternoon. They served lunch at noon. The sales brought 150.50. In the forenoon the Daily Vacation Bible School gave its closing day program and Rev. Lehman gave a missionary sermon. — The funeral of Mrs. P. A. Fast, who passed away after a long illness, was held on August 9. The services were in charge of Rev. Albert Schultz, assisted by Rev. Lehman. At the meeting held in the evening Rev. Lehman gave us the report of the General Conference, as he had served as our delgate to the Conference.—On October 8, Rev. M. L. Walters from Orlando, Florida, preached a very interesting sermon. The Walters family used to live in our community. —We held our annual Harvest Thanksgiving Festival on October 23. Rev. Henry Fast, field secretary of the General Conference, preached three times. He is a very capable and a very interesting speaker. Rev. Albert Ewert also preached in the afternoon. Clarence Bartel gave us a message on Thanksgiving Day. —On November 27 the Lustre Bible School gave a very interesting program in our church.

Our different Christmas programs were well given and brought blessings to young and old alike.—Sincerely, A. A. Toavs, Sec.

In Memoriam

ELIZABETH B. KREHBIEL was born in Lee County, Iowa on March 25, 1860. Soon after her birth her parents moved to Summerfield, Illinois. Here, at the age of 14, she joined the Mennonite Church by baptism on confession of faith.

In 1887 she went to Halstead, Kansas, where she lived for two years when she returned to Illinois. In the fall of 1907 she came to Reedley, California and soon united with the First Mennonite Church in which she remained a faithful member to the end of her life.

A month ago she became seriously ill and was taken to the hospital where she suffered much pain which she bore patiently. Relief came to her Thursday morning, at four o'clock, when she passed to her reward at the age of 78 years, 7 months and 22 days.

She lived a long and useful life. She was kind and considerate to all. She will be sadly missed by her two brothers and her two sisters, and many friends. But they sorrow not as such who have no hope.

Funeral text: Psalm 116:12-19.

MRS. EVA BARTEL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bartel, was born near Hillsboro, Kansas, April 1, 1882 and passed away Dec. 10, 1938, at the age of 56 years, 8 months and 10 days. Her death was caused by cancer. This ailment was not considered very serious until about five months ago when physicians told her that it was incurable. Yet she nevertheless firmly believed that her dear Savior could cure her if it was his will. The last three weeks the dreaded disease made such rapid progress that she fully surrendered to God's will, that either way was the best for her.

In 1899 she accepted the Lord Jesus as her personal Savior, was baptized and taken in as member of the First Mennonite Church of Hillsboro, of which she remained a true and faithful member until death. —On March 17, 1910, she was united in holy matrimony to H. J. Bartel, with whom she has shared joy and sorrow for nearly 29 years. This union was blessed with three children: Reola, Mrs. Jake Becker, Goessel, Kans.; Frieda, Axtel Christian Hospital, Newton, and Elgin at home.

Our beloved mother was a strong believer in prayer.

During her last illness and severe pain, she constantly prayed, "Come, Lord Jesus, and draw me nearer to thee." Her most sincere prayer was that her family would walk in the steps of the Savior so that they would meet her in that sweet beyond. In a family worship, prayer was made that God should give her strength to bear her pain and fear, when she replied, "Daddy, I have no fear."

She leaves to mourn for us her untimely departure, her bereaved husband and children, three sisters, three brothes and their families: Corn. Bartel, Wolf Point, Mont.; Mrs. Mary Schroeder, Fairview, Oklahoma; Mrs. Anna Schroeder, Mrs. Tillie Schmidt, John and William Bartel, all of Hillsboro, Kans., and a host of relatives and friends. "We bow to God's will and beckon the departed one, so dear to us, a last farewell, with the assurance of a joyous reunion in the glorious life beyond."

Funeral services were held Wednesday, Dec. 14, at the First Mennonite Church. Rev. J. W. Vogt gave a sermon in English on John 11:32-45, and Rev. Epp spoke in German on Phil 1:29. She was laid to rest in the cemetery near town.

H. B. FAST, a son of Herman J. and Aganetha (Becker) Fast was born May 19, 1887. He received his schooling in the country school and the German Preparatory School in the village. Ambitious, energetic and eager to learn he developed, through wide study and reading a broad range of interests, in home and farming, the church, various farmers' cooperative organizations, politics, and other worthwhile enterprises of community interest. He served two terms as representative in the Minnesota legislature where he won the respect and regard of his colleagues by his sincerity and honesty of purpose.

On March 16, 1911, he married Miss Anna Warkentin of Mountain Lake. Into their home were born five children, four girls and one boy. On their farm, a short distance from the parental home, they built up through industrious application their present home. In 1936, they had the happy privilege of celebrating their silver wedding anniversary.—At the age of twenty he gave his heart to the Lord and united with the Bethel church. Here he took part in various activities, church, Sunday School, choir, etc. Repeatedly he occupied positions of responsibility and trust.

He had been ailing for some time with periodic attacks of headache and dizziness. At St. James, where he had gone to take treatment and attend a meeting, he suddenly grew worse, and passed away at the hotel, Dec. 20 last. His untimely departure was a severe shock to the family, though not unexpected by him. He was only 51 years and 7 months of age. His immediate family, his wife, the children: Wilma, Bertha, Alma, Marie, Ruth and Robert his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Fast, his brothers and sisters, John B. Fast, of Mountain Lake and Rev. Henry A. Fast of North Newton, Kans.; Miss Aganetha Fast of Taming, China, Mrs. Sarah H. W. Wall of Dallas, Ore., Miss Mary K. Fast of Mt. Lake, Mrs. Olga Nachtigal, Winnipeg, Man., besides a host of relatives and friends will remember him for those fine qualities of Christian character that found expression in his life and service.

The funeral was in charge of Rev. John Bartel, assisted by Rev. Dale of the Lutheran Church at Butterfield, Minn.

JAPAN'S TRAGIC PERSECUTION OF THE KOREAN CHURCH

Almost unbelievable facts of Japan's control and persecution of the Christian Church are reaching America in letters from missionaries in Korea—letters that could never go through the Japanese mails but have come through in other ways. The Sunday School Times (Philadelphia) tells the tragic story in the leading editorial in its Missionary Number. December 24. It reminds one of the old Spanish Inquisition. At a meeting of the Korean Presbyterian General Assembly in September, for example, in Pyengyang, the Chief of Police of the city and the Chief of Police of the province were seated at the two tables at the front of the room, while some eighty other detectives were scattered in the audience, and the building was surrounded by police. The Moderator and delegates did only what the Police told them to do, in their voting and in all else. A few courageous souls protested, but it was no use. Many of the Korean Christian leaders are now in jail. The amazing story in the TIMES is an imperative call to prayer.

—Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kansas.—At the annual business meeting, customarily held the first week day in the new year, Rev. J. N. Smucker was unanimously reelected pastor for a five-year period. With 17 new members recently taken in, the church now has a total membership of 336. The financial stewardship of the church showed up quite satisfactorily. But like many other congregations in our conference ours spends considerably more for the maintenance of its organization than for external needs. Christ, our Master, cannot be satisfied with the financial stewardship of the churches of God, until they are willing to make just as large sacrifices for the support of mission, Christian publication and education, relief, etc., as they do for themselves. The norm should be a fifty-fifty division.—A member.

"Occupy Till I Come"

Text: Luke 19:11-28

Conference Sermon by Rev. P. P. Wedel, delivered at the opening of the Western District Conference at Enid, Okla., Oct. 19, 1938

Dear Conference Delegates, Guests, Brothers and Sisters in Christ Jesus:

It is not our purpose today to give an accurate exposition of the text. Let us rather apply this parable to the work of our conference. The words in the thirteenth verse, Occupy Till I Come, are to form the basis of our meditation and, as we hope, also the key-note of this conference session.

The parable leads us into the history of Jesus' last journey to Judea and Jerusalem. Passion Week and the death on the cross were approaching. He had already proceeded as far as Jericho. The people that accompanied him, because they were on the way to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover festival, were full of hope. They hoped that Jesus would now establish his Kingdom; that now the Kingdom of God would be manifested . When Jesus perceived this, He began to speak and showed them through this parable: "The Kingdom of God is to be manifested, indeed, but not yet. I must first go to my Father and have it given to me by Him, just as a noble man journeys into a far away land, in order to be given a Kingdom of his own and then returns to come into its possession and to rule it. When the Father's hour strikes, then I will return: then will the Kingdom of God be manifested. In the meantime, however, this motto is intended for my followers: OCCUPY TILL I COME." As we apply this word to our conference, let us first state,

We Have the Means to Occupy.

The noble man of this parable who journeyed into a far country gave each one of his servants a pound. When our Master ascended to heaven, He gave each one of his servants or apostles a pound. To this day, every redeemed child of God receives the same pound. We might argue about what this pound could be, and we would probably receive different answers, if we were to ask one another here today, what this pound might be. But we shall simplify the matter and simply conceive it to be the Gospel of redemption through Jesus Christ. The Lord entrusted it to His disciples and has entrusted it to us. We are to use it. We are to carry on or "traffic" with it, in that we proclaim it and testify as to its redeeming qualities. That applies to every individual Christian, to every church, and also to us as a conference. To that end we are met here. With the Lord's help we want to counsel together and resolve, how we may, with Divine aid, accomplish this task and this privilege of spreading the Gospel in the most advantageous manner.

At a time so serious as this, in which we live, the world needs, in spite of all the remedies that are offered, no other one as much as the Gospel, the glad tidings, that God, through Jesus Christ has reconciled the world with Himself and that the sinner, by the grace of God, through faith in the redeeming blood of Christ, may have complete forgiveness of his sins. To apprise the world of this fact, with due reference to the crucified, risen and returning Christ, that is the pound entrusted to us.

We are here, not only to discuss and resolve how to deal with this pound, but also to encourage and to urge one another to act with greater zeal. Who can assert that we should not act with more efficiency and more loyalty? In this we can learn a lesson from an eighty-one year old servant of the Lord, who lives in Australia. It is related of her that she had not been able to see for fifty years. More than fifty years she has been bed-ridden. She has suffered different kinds of sickness and pains. For a time she was blind; then again she lost her speech. Repeatedly she had to undergo operations, when both of her arms and one leg were gradually amputated. But she could not be discouraged. With an apparatus that was fastened to her shoulder, she learned to write, and so from her sick bed there has been developed an activity which resulted in hundreds of letters being written and sent out, in order to comfort and strengthen others, and proclaim to them the Gospel. According to reports concerning her activity with the Gospel, many souls have found Christ and many Christians have been led to a closer walk with God. In view of such examples, who could assert that we as individuals and as a conference could not carry on more efficiently the work of spreading the Gospel? Who would dare to say that there is not room to act with more zeal in recommending Christ to the sinner, and also the child of God. We are here for mutual encouragement, for to us the Gospel of Christ has been entrusted. We have the means to act and

We Have the Territory for Work

That is the second thought that we want to bring out. The noble man that journeyed into a far country gave his ten servants a territory in which they were to carry on. That, our Master has also done. Those servants were to carry on in the territory which the noble man had gone to receive as his realm. Christ has given us the territory in which He himself was active and which He is going to have given to Him by the Father, that He might establish His Kingdom. For that reason the whole world is our field of work. It is evident that we as the Western District Conference cannot take care of the whole world, but it is a fact that God has given us this district as our territory. For that reason we think today especially of the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Southern Nebraska, and Kansas. We think especially, too, of the sections where our churches are represented. But we must not think too narrowly and too strictly of these sections. We also think of the different branches of our conference activities. Within these and through these we are to carry on our work.

Through the Home Mission Committee we are directly endeavoring to "trade" with the pound of the Gospel, inasmuch as brethren are engaged to proclaim full redemption in Christ. Concerning the work itself and its different aspects, the Committee will report. The brethren of this committee are earnestly endeavoring to act efficiently, but without a doubt they will also report that there is still much room and need for more extended work. In fact they have already done that. For have they not recently sent out a call to the churches for gifts, in order that right here in Enid a church may be built, so that more efficient work may be done here.

The Committee for Deaconess Work and Care of the Sick is to look to the healing of the body, but so that it may be done in the name and for the sake of Christ, thus combining soul saving work with it. Now the conditions among us are such that this committee cannot do very much in their field, but perhaps we ought to find a way by which more may be done.

Through our Education Committee we are active in the work of Christian education. For our children and our young people are our hope of the future. If we wish to build for the future, then we will have to do very active work here. The Committee has developed a rich line of activity. It will pay to support it strongly and energetically. It is also our duty that we support the schools that carry on their work in our circles. As a conference we have more than one thousand votes in the Bethel College corporation. Should we not for that reason regard this school as our school and make more of a conference school of it, through which we may carry on the work of spreading the gospel from this field of work.

In the field of the Care of the Sick we do not do anything that is reported in capital letters by daily papers; but our committee which is charged with the care of the sick is ready to do whatever it can. And here too it is possible to act more zealously and find ways and means to develop larger activity, in order to proclaim the love of Christ through works of charity.

The Peace Committee tries hard to promote the cause of Christian peace founded on Christ, the Prince of Peace. It endeavors to serve through addresses and literature. In this field there is still much room for the dissemination of literary material. Much more should be written and read concerning Biblical non-resistance. The militarists cry for war. The world round about us cries, "Peace! Peace! And yet there is no peace." Four hundred long years, our denomination has stressed peace. Should we not bestir ourselves and seriously attempt to promote the peace that comes from the Gospel.

But we could think of still other fields of work and activity in which we have thus far done nothing or very little. So let us today ask ourselves the question, whether we should not increase our fields of activity (traffic).

At the spring session of our Minister's Conference the question was asked, whether we should not make use of the radio to spread the good news of the Gospel. Here is an opportunity to reach many people through the proclamation of the Gospel of salvation. Here we could carry on with the pound of the Gospel. If, for instance, a speaker, as has happened recently, asks the Christian people for a gift of $600 in order to give a series of nine lectures on the radio; if so-called radio preachers here and there ask for a collection, so that they might be active in this field, and when many gifts flow out to these individuals even from among our people, would it then not be perfectly proper that we as a conference also make use of this means of activity, to serve humanity with the Gospel of God's redemption through Jesus Christ.

For years a question has been in my mind, whether as a conference we could not and should not do something in the line of the distribution of the Bible and Biblical literature within our conference district? Through this means we would not only reach souls with the gospel, but we could also lead the young people on to serve the Lord.

Then there are also opportunities in our conference district where our conference is not represented, places that are reported to be without church and without spiritual nurture. Should we not look up such places in order to try to serve them? We could thus extend our field of work.

In those sections where our churches are represented, we so often think only of our posterity or of our church members, that move out of our churches into other parts. Should we not also make use of th opportunity to proclaim the Gospel to those who are yet without it. That is probably more a local task than a matter for the conference. But the conference should also cooperate here, in evincing an interest in that direction. If in our Mission field in China, Mrs. Chia, who has already served twenty-five years as Biblewoman, still goes out into the villages to take the Gospel to the people; if young Mrs. Li Yin-Hsuan, who graduated not long ago from our Bible school in Kai Chow, now so zealously goes out to find the lost sheep, that at the beginning of last year she was able to lead thirty souls to a confession of Christ; if our church in Janjgir, India, in March of this year put forth special effort for a whole week to witness for Christ, when daily almost the whole congregation in groups of six with a leader went to the villages, to sing and to pray and to proclaim the Word of God: Who will, in view of this, assert that we could not do more also in this field. We have the means to act, we have the field for work,

The Time for Action is Short

"Occupy till I come." These words tell us that the time for action will not always last. How soon the Lord will come, He does not reveal to us, but he tells us that He will come. World conditions and world happenings that are unfolding before our eyes speak a loud language and call to us that the Lord will soon come. Soon the noble man will come to establish his Kingdom. What a challenge that should be, to carry on with all of our strength, that the Gospel may be preached widely and richly; so much more so, since we know that the work in the Lord is not in vain. The parable shows us that the one servant with his pound gained ten pounds; the other with his one pound gained five pounds. They did not work in vain. The Lord will also bless our conference that the pound with which we faithfully carry on may gain other pounds.

So we can await the coming of the Lord with joy, knowing that faithful work will be rewarded. But it also behooves us to view the coming of this great day with seriousness, knowing that indolence, indifference and disloyalty in acting will be punished.

"Occupy till I come." God be praised that we have in the Gospel the means to act and to carry on. He has given it to us. God be praised that we have the territory for work in which we may be busy in the various branches of activity. May God help us to realize that the time for action is short. May this conference be a challenge to make use of the short time in faithful activity. May the discussions and resolutions of this conference contribute something that the pound that has been entrusted to us, as a conference, may gain more pounds. May we so act that we, too, at the coming of the Lord to establish His Kingdom, may be able to say, "Lord Thy pound has gained other pounds."—Translated from the German by the editor.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

TUBA CITY, ARIZONA, JAN. 8, 1939

Mennonite Board of Foreign Missions—

Dear Brethren:

Happy New Year's Greetings in the name of the Lord! We have now closed our Christmas service for our Indians of Moencopi, also have gladly spent the new year holidays. Praise God for the many blessings we and our Indians have received during the Christmas season. I find so many happy faces in our Indian village, both among the little children and the older people.

Our Christmas program was given by our Sunday School children on Christmas eve. The fourteen young girls of our sewing class sang Christmas carols and made up our choir program. Also seven older men and women helped us during the Christmas season, so that with the help of these Indians we were able to handle all the work that needed to be done for the nearly four hundred Indians of our village. Those who helped us say it is a pleasure to help in the mission service. From this you can see that our people are willing to help us, where they know the work is for their happiness. Although not all helpers are Christians, all of them attend our Sunday School and Church services. This encourages us. During Christmas season we were over-crowded. We had over one hundred people in S. S. just before Christmas. A number of them dropped off just after the gifts from the Mission, but still we have a lot of them keeping it up. In fact some of the new ones have joined our S. S. classes for the new year. We have succeeded to bring one large Hopi family from Tuba City to join our service. They promised to come regularly Sunday morning and evening.

One of my old uncles, Seeyawoma, from Oraibi, was visiting his daughter in our village for one week. Since he came, he and his daughter and her little children have been regularly coming to our service. And just before he left he got up at one of our Sunday evening services, and spoke to the Indian audience. He said in part, "I wish to say something before I leave your village for my home in the morning. I want to say I am convinced that this is the place where blessing could come to us Indians. I have received great blessing while I have been in your midst. We Indians are looking for happiness, for something which is good. We look this way and that way, saying maybe here is the place where we can find something good for us, or maybe there. We turn around and look in every direction for blessings. Tonight I am convinced that right here in this church we find what we long for. Let us forget our troubles among ourselves, and let us start life over again. If there is anyone in this village who wishes to accept the Christian faith I will not interfere."

I thought that was a pretty good confession of an old Indian who is not a Christian. It surely set our whole audience to thinking. Our church was crowded that night. I am rejoicing over the people who flock in to hear the gospel in our church. I often wish that some of you brethren from the Board could see the large crowd of Indians in the church here. It would make your hearts rejoice to hear our people sing the gospel songs both in Hopi and in English. I am still waiting to see God save these Indians, and to help them turn completely over to Christ, from heathen life and its practices. I do not see why God seems to bless us in the mission work here. But perhaps there are hundreds of you people who are praying for this work here. We are now in the new year and we pray to God for greater blessings for the coming twelve months, and we believe the work of the Lord is going to bear some fruit. We only ask that you do not interefere with us in this work, for we know our people, and we know just where (how?) to deal with them. White men will never understand us and our ways.

I remain sincerely,
Fred A. Johnson

Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Richert
Newton, Kansas
Dear Friends:

"A Merry Christmas and a Hppy New Year" to you! You will be glad to know that we are getting along nicely. The first days of unpacking and receiving visitors are passed. The Conference is over too. The house has been repaired and now we are ready to go out again. This morning we sent out ten evangelists and Bible women to bring the Word of Life to the thousands of people in the villages. Some more must be sent. We, too, shall start on a trip in two or three days, and if we go as planned we shall be away from home for two weeks. The weather is getting chilly, but not severely cold, yet in the morning it begins to be snappy. The country is peaceful and the people have enough to eat, for grain is cheap this year. We have about 2,000 regular soldiers here and a lot of extra help. They keep good order and also keep the "evening" out. That is, we still have the old Chinese regime. These days some of us had a bad cold, but we are getting over it again. Everybody is glad that our group is on the field again.

The work is great and we need to apply ourselves in dead earnest, but we also need strength and grace from above.

Sincerely yours,
H. J. and Marie Brown

ECHOES FROM SASKATOON, SASKATCHEWAN

Three paragraphs from report by Rev. J. J. Thiessen.

"In the past quarter the General Conference was held in Saskatoon. In preparation for the Conference many plans and much preparation had to be made, in which I was also permitted to have a part. The Conference is history now, but very often when in conversation with others, it is the main subject of our discussion. Many with Mennonite connections but who had manifested little interest, have as a result of the Conference held here, received a new conception and consequent interest in the various phases of our Kingdom work—Missions, Publication work, Relief and Education. May the Lord grant as a result of this seed-sowing a large and enduring harvest.

"In our church the Lord has richly blest us. We were permitted to receive 17 new members into our church, by the Right Hand of Fellowship and reconfession of faith. At present we have 105 members. The regular Worship Services are regularly held and in humility we dare to admit that they are all well attended. Last Sunday there were approximately 60 children in our Sunday School, 89 in the Morning Worship and 165 attended the Evening Service. The attendance at Evening Services is always larger, because the working girls have opportunity to attend. Our attendants are: Church members, working girls and young people who attend colleges and the University in the city and many other visitors. There are approximately 40 attending our institutions of higher learning in Saskatoon. Special efforts are made to keep in vital contact with this group, and to have them cooperate in our Young People's Society and Church Choir. Many attend here regularly.

"Regular weekly visits are made to hospitals, to visit those of our Mennonites who might be there. Not infrequently I am requested by the patients to make extra visits during the day or in the night. The past Friday I administered the Sacrament of the Holy Communion to those in the Sanatorium. On the first Friday of each month, we conduct a worship service here from 10:30 till 11:30 a. m., by permission of the Administration. These meetings are eagerly awaited by the patients. Among those ill in the Sanatorium (of the German tongue) are some who belong to the Bruedergemeinde as well as the Mennonites. For this reason I invite Rev. H. S. Rempel to cooperate in the observance of the Communion. When men are near to the portals of eternity, they think less of the differences than of the things that unite us in the common Savior. Many blessings have come to me in this work."

Psalm 133:1—Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!

Publication

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Subscribers to all General Conference publications, including the Christlicher Bundesbote, The Mennonite, Junior Messenger, Sonntagschul - Lektionen, Christian Sunday School Quarterly and Intermediate Christian Sunday School Quarterly, are kindly asked to note the following announcement. After January 15, 1939 all the business connected with the publication of the above-named periodicals will be concentrated in Newton, Ks. Therefore, after that date all orders and renewals for these publications, whether by individuals, Sunday Schools or churches, as well as all payments for same, are to be sent to the following address:

Publication Department
Mennonite Book Concern
131B West 6th Street,
Newton, Kansas.

The Year Book and the Bundesbote Kalendar will also be mailed from this address.

All orders for books or Sunday School and church supplies, besides the above-named publications, and payments for same, are to be sent as before to THE MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, IND.

The Subscription price for each periodical will be found in the periodical itself. Subscribers residing in Kansas are requested to include 2 per cent on all remittances for subscriptions to cover Sales Tax. The Kansas law requires this tax to be paid. Canadians should pay only with Postal Money Order, or else send 25c extra for exchange.

It is hoped that the above announcement will be carefully noted and complied with in order to avoid confusion, delays and unnecessary expense.

In behalf of the Board of Publication,

J. M. Suderman, Publication Manager.

THE 1939 MENNONITE YEAR BOOK

Readers of THE MENNONITE who are entitled to the Mennonite Year Book as a premium for paying their subscriptions at least a year in advance are writing or calling to know why they do not get the book. They are entitled to know the reason and here is the explanation:

The Bethel College Printshop has the contract for the 1938 and 1939 issues of the Year Book, which stipulates that the book is to be ready for mailing November 15. But, in the first place, the shop is none too well equipped for a job of this kind which fact naturally retards the work. Then, too, lack of help to get through with all the work passed on to the shop, outside activities and vacations, and other hindrances made it very difficult for the hard-working shop foreman to get the book finished before this.

But the first copies came out today, Friday, January 13, and the book will go out in the mails in a very few days.

May we add that those entitled to the book will be amply rewarded for their patience, for it is richer than ever and, instead of 48 pages, it will contain 64, for which the editor is largely responsible. Every family should have a copy of this interesting book. It costs 30 cents alone.—J. R. T.

Our Position on Peace

Resolutions Passed by the Grace Church, Lansdale, Pennsylvania, at the Annual Church Meetting

For over 400 years our forefathers inspite of persecution, have held to the principle of love and nonresistance.

In view of the present disturbed conditions and increased armaments the world over, we the members of Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pennsylvania, feel it our duty to make clear our attitude on peace and war.

It is our contention:

1. That the Scripture teaches men to save life rather than take it, to love their enemies and pray for those who persecute them. For Christ said concerning his mission, Luke 9:56, "For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." He also exhorted his followers to, "Love your enemies, bless them that hate you, and pray for them which depitefully use you," Matthew 5:44. Paul the great Christian missionary wrote, "Be not overcome of evil but overcome evil with good," Romans 12:21. Other references; Exodus 20:13, Matthew 26:52, Romans 12:20, Romans 14:19, Hebrews 12:14, and James 3:18.

2. That war is sin. Works havoc with the highest values of life, destroys the nation's best manhood and causes great financial burden.

3. That the highest patriotism seeks to promote the public welfare through love and goodwill to men of every race and nation. A nation can only genuinely prosper when there is peace.

For this reason we cannot sanction war nor consciously lend our support to the taking of human life. But we will by the help of God try to bring peace and the love of Christ to the hearts of men.

Brother J. Clarence Fretz suggested that we do something similar to our sister congregation in the Central Mennonite Conference and so church council appointed Brother Fretz and the pastor to draw up the resolution to be presented to the church.—Olin A. Krehbiel.

Peace is the evening star of the soul, as virtue is its sun, and the two are never far apart.—Colton.

PETER DENIES HIS LORD

Luke 22:31-34, 54-62

TOPIC: Meeting Unexpected Temptations

Introduction

There are advantages and dangers in having a forward, impetuous, self-confident disposition such as Peter had. Such a person will have an influence, many will listen to him "put over" his ideas. Properly trained intellectually and spiritually, and well controlled, such an one may accomplish much good. On the other hand impulsiveness may readily lead to doing and saying unwise, rash things. Such a person may discount the good advice of others and the divine injunction to "watch and pray." Fancied security readily paves the way for a serious fall.

Jesus Warns Peter vs 31-34

We learn several important truths from this passage. Satan, the arch-enemy of believers, is unceasingly active (v31). He asked for the privilege of putting the disciples to a great test. "You" is plural in the Greek. In sifting wheat the good grain remains in the sieve, the dust and chaff are thrown away. The coming trials would reveal the quality of their faith. Abiding, firm faith is necessary to victory in this world.

Jesus interceded for Peter, the leader of the apostles, the one most in danger. He knew him better than Peter knew himself (v32). It makes much difference if one knows that God cares. Our Lord prays for us even when so undeserving (John 17:15). Special mercies call for special duties (v32b). He who has been helped by Christ, can best help others. No one lives entirely to himself. Peter felt very sure of himself (v34) and also his repentance and restoration.

Peter Yields to Temptation—Repents vs 54-62

The dark hour of Jesus' arrest followed so closely upon the sacred hour in the Upper Room. The Master is now in the enemies' hands, is being led to His trial. Peter's courage did not fail entirely. The other disciples had fled. Peter, through fear of man, "followed afar off" (v54, cf v33). He disregarded the warnings of Jesus and now is sitting among His enemies and warming himself at their fire (v55). He literally walked into temptation with open eyes—like we do so readily. He does not protest at what is said about his Master. He got himself into danger in seeking to avoid it. He was recognized by three different ones and with increasing vigor denied his Lord. He was being "sifted as wheat." He lacked moral and spiritual courage when most needed. Shall we condemn him? Would we have done any better, yea even as well? We deny Christ under far less trying conditions—in an unchristian spirit, lack of love, unkind speech, evil speaking, failing to speak for Christ when we hear others speak ill of Him.

Jesus evidently heard the denial, He turned and looked upon him (v61). That look aroused the apparently deadened spirit in Peter. He remembered all. Christ's loving look touches the hearts of His own. So is God's love toward His faltering children. Peter sinned, he denied his Lord vigorously. He recognized his sin and repented with his whole heart and soul (v62). Jesus had prayed for him (v32).

Meeting Unexpected Temptation

The best of men have faults and the strongest have their weaknesses. Soul safety at high spiritual altitudes is maintained only on our knees. Temptations will likely come unexpectedly and circumstances may require an immediate decision from us. We need definite convictions, based on God's Word, as to what is right and wrong, to meet such temptations successfully. We must needs know His Word and have a firm determination not to do any wrong knowingly. There should be continual cultivation of the devotional life. "Begin each day with God" and live in a prayer atmosphere. Take time to feed the soul upon God's Word, meet Him in public worship and associate with Christian people.

PETER DECLARES HIS LOVE

John 21:11-19

TOPIC: Proving Our Love For Christ

Introduction

After Jesus' resurrection, the disciples had returned to Galilee (Matt. 26:32; 28:7). Seven of them (v2) had gathered at their old fishing haunts on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, apparently ready to take up the old occupation. Peter, the leader, declared his intention to go a fishing, (v3) the others went with him. They spent a fruitless night. At day-break a stranger standing on the shore hailed them, asking if they had caught any fish (v5). At his direction (v6), they cast the net on the right side of the boat and caught a large catch of fish.

The Risen Lord at the Sea of Galilee vs 7-14

John was first to recognize the stranger as Jesus and spoke to Peter (v7) who was the first to act. Hastily he sprang into the water and was the first to greet the risen Christ. As soon as they landed (v8, 9) they saw a fire of coals with fish broiling on it. Again Jesus is among them as one who serves. After Peter had drawn in the net full of large fish and when all was ready, Jesus said, "Come and dine," and He gave to them bread and of the fishes (v13). This was his third appearance to his disciples—an unmistakable proof that He had indeed arisen with a material body that could be seen and his voice could be heard. These seven men could not have been mistaken. An eye-witness wrote this account.

Peter Restored to Fellowship vs 15-19

Jesus especially addresses himself to Peter, who because of his lamentable denial, especially needed to be searched, then encouraged and commissioned. He addresses him as Simon, his weak name—not as Peter, the rock. "Lovest thou me more than these"? (v15), at once reminds him of his self-confidence, boasting and sad fall. He had boasted that though all the rest should leave, desert Jesus, he would stand by Him even unto death (Matt. 26:33-35). Jesus asks him if he still thinks so after his denials. Peter does not hesitate to re-affirm his love, using the word love which means a tender heart of affection (see R. V. margin). He had learned humility. He does not say that he loved Jesus more than the others did. Jesus commissions him to feed, spiritually, His lambs, the young both in years and in Christian experience, of the flock.

The question is repeated (v16) with the same reply. Then another commission, "feed (R. V. tend, shepherd, direct) my sheep," the entire flock. Jesus asks the question the third time (v17)—Peter had denied Him three times)—now Jesus uses the same word for "love" that Peter had used. "Simon do you have a deep affection, love for me"? With greater earnestness he declared his love—"Thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee." Peter loved Him because of what Jesus was and what He did in life and in triumphing over death. Again the commission to feed Christ's sheep with the Gospel message.

Peter now knew definitely what was expected of him. He was to give proof of his love. It was well for Peter to declare his love before Jesus and other disciples. We too should declare our love for Him. An open confession of our love for Christ and allegiance to Him is a source of strength to us, and has an influence upon others and helps to magnify our Lord.

Proving Our Love For Christ

Peter declareed his love and proved it for the rest of his life in faithfully following Jesus, even unto death. It is easy to profess love for Jesus, it is quite different to comprehend what real love means and prove it by our lives. Love will lead us to do that which He approves of, even if it involve hardship and sacrifice. Christ will always come first in words and deeds. We prove our love for Christ in giving Him the first place in heart and daily life—in all things.

"Hail, dear Savior! Hail, O Jesus!
Thou our treasure, stay and rest;
Life and comfort, Thou wilt give us,
Thou, our Counselor true and blest!

May our hearts with holy passion,
Long to claim Thee as their own;
Sanctify them, O dear Jesus,
As Thy temple and Thy throne."

Institute for Pastors and Bible Workers to be held at Bethel College, Jan. 30 to Feb. 3, 1939

A WORD OF GREETING

Dear Friends: We are expanding our Bible Week to an Institute for Christian workers. We hope many who are interested in meeting the needs and problems that arise in connection with the various phases of Christian work will avail themselves of this opportunity offered. To our friends everywhere, laymen as well as ministers, we extend a hearty invitation. —

Fraternally yours, Ed. G. Kaufman.

SPEAKERS

Dr. Rufus D. Bowman, a leader in the Brethren Church, is the president of Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, Illinois. Two years ago his church called him to this responsible position. Previous to that he was the pastor of the Brethren Church, Washington, D. C. He understands the work of the pastor, the teacher, the preacher. From his widely varied life he will bring to the Institute the benefit of his rich experience. He will lead a ministerial conference each afternoon and will speak before the general meeting each evening.

Dr. Max I. Reich, a Quaker, is a widely and favorably known Bible teacher. He is especially well known to the churches of the eastern district conference. He is an unusually able teacher. His Jewish background is an asset in his interpretation of the Scriptures. He writes, with reference to his work during the Institute, "I have several lines of study on my mind, Studies in the prophecy of Isaiah, Studies in the Gospel of John, Studies in the Psalms of Israel." He will lead the Bible Hour each forenoon and afternoon during the week.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The Institute is open to ministers, ministers wives, and all others interested. This program represents the earnest effort of the College to serve the ministers and the churches by providing this privilege for study and fellowship.

Rooms: Rooms will be provided free of charge for those who come from a distance and wish to stay for the week. They should apply in writing to A. E. Kreider, North Newton, Kansas, before Saturday, January 28.

Meals: Meals may be secured in the college dining hall at the rate of seventy-five cents a day. The price of the noon-day lunch is twenty-five cents.

Infantile Paralysis Sunday

January 22, 1939

America's great church organizations are responding to the call to aid the nationwide fight against infantile paralysis.

Under the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis a concerted effort is being made to stamp out this disease and to do everything possible for those who have been crippled by this mysterious virus.

Noted physicians and surgeons have emphasized the fact that only through a nationwide effort can there be hope of removing this menace which hovers over every home in every part of this country.

The church takes its place beside the surgeons, the doctors, the teachers and the millions of workers who are resolved to do everything possible to help our crippled children and the men and women who have been afflicted with the after effects of this disease.

Sunday, January 22nd has been set aside as "Infantile Paralysis Sunday." On that day all members of the clergy have been asked to deliver a message in behalf of the present campaign to urge all members of their congregation to contribute to the fund.

Under the National Foundation's new plan the churches will naturally play a very important part. Permanent chapters of the Foundation are to be established embracing all counties and church members will be called upon to direct and assist these chapters which will expend 50 per cent of all the monies raised.

There is a great work of education also to be done and in this the church will play a major part.

Physicians need to be told the latest discoveries in regard to diagnosis and early treatment of the disease. Physicians need to be kept informed of every development and the use of every appliance which will tend to prevent the crippling after effects.

Even today proper use of the knowledge and facilities at hand would do away with 50 per cent at least of the twisted backs and distorted limbs of little children.

When an epidemic strikes our aid will go to the local chapters so that quick and efficient treatment can be provided and those stricken provided with every care.

Church members further, can be of great aid in assisting in making surveys of their community to see that no case of infantile paralysis is neglected. These surveys also will be of help to local hospitals in securing additional facilities and the establishment of orthopedic wards where infantile paralysis patients can be given the best of care known to medical science.

The churches of America have risen to every emergency. They never have failed to help those in distress.

In this campaign the church will do its part for God and for country.

The Church and the Needs of Youth

(Concluded from last week)

Theme for Young People's Program of the W. D. Conference held at Enid, Oklahoma, October 19, 1938. By A. Theodore Mueller, Enid, Oklahoma.

Responsibilities of the Church. If the church would be a source of power and influence to its youth, its members must conduct themselves in accordance with laws which will influence youth in a positive way.

1. The church members are charged with the proper regard for each other. We cannot in church life harbor grudges and expect our youth to bear fruits of love, kindness, and sympathy. If our home and family affairs are tainted and shady, we cannot expect our children to be shining lights for Jesus. Be not deceived . . . for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.

2. The church is charged with the maintainence of sober attitudes in the midst of intellectual and spiritual insobriety. The church should act as a governor acts on an engine. Are we led hither and yon bv the many whims and "isms" of today? Why do our churches have so many religious or spiritual "gypsies"?

3. The church is charged neither to dominate nor to be dominated. Christ came to minister. "Serve ye one another" and "bear ye one anothers burdens" for "Herein will you know that ye are my disciples." Pray for each other; love and labor together.

There are many other things that are required of the church and its members. Time permits only the directing of your attention to a little booklet "The Charge of the Church of Jesus Christ to You" by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter.

Needs of Youth. Naturally while talking about some of the things which the churches have or should have, something was said about what youth needs. Some of the following points may in part duplicate and overlap ideas already given, but they bear emphasis from other angles.

The supreme need of youth is contact with Jesus Christ through radiant Christians (Morris, P. J., Winning Youth for Christ, p. 16). Youth is inspired through the friendly guidance, sympathy and understanding of great men of God who lead young men and women into true experiences of the heart and not knowledge only.

Youth needs the opportunity to grow by doing. It grows and lives more abundantly as it experiences Christ and His purpose through contacts and experiences in worship, recreation and group enterprises. Growth will result from meaningful experiences which the church and its leadership should provide. Youth needs experience with God and fellowship with Christ. Youth must, as John R. Mott says, fix its gaze on Jesus Christ, the Source of life and energy. The result will be Christian character.

Youth needs to be challenged by great leaders and issues; it grows when brought face to face with the serious choices and the demands of life. Don't expect youth to be mature in judgment, but strength of character will be a result.

Youth needs participation in church work and affairs. It needs a program of work, and not necessarily all by itself. Young people's activities should be correlated with those of the adults whenever possible. Youth must lose itself in order to find itself—lose itself in Christ and service for its fellowmen. The result will be an insight into the larger and wider purpose of the church. This participation will also develop responsibility.

Youth needs security and stability. It needs a will and determination which will make it as sure of its calling as the Apostle Paul was of his. It needs faith and courage to make it strong. But how much sympathy and encouragement does youth often get? For instance, some of our young people who have studied for the ministry find no place in our conference churches. A pastor often finds himself with a parish unwilling to provide means enough for himself and his family to live and to grow.

Youth needs reverence for worthy qualities such as love, kindness, obedience, respect, sympathy, courtesy. Where is our respect for things Holy? Is there always reverence and respect in the left-hand corner of the balcony in the House of God during an evening meeting? The best thing to do for young people when irreverent in church is to have them sit with their reverent parents.

Youth needs serenity—so does every human being. Take time to be Holy. Take time to love, praise, adore and commune. All great deeds are born of silence. Great ideas and discoveries are sparks from thinking brains listening to the voice of God.

God needs men of vision—men filled with a vision of their purpose here on earth. God needs men who cooperate, not only with one another, but men who let God work when they say: "Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven."—

The Church's One Foundation; I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord!

Our denomination should be one of our absorbing interests. This does not mean that we should be unfriendly to those of other denominations or take narrow and sectarian views. Our denomination is one division of Christ's army, if that division is not kept up well, the whole army suffers. How much do we know about our denomination? You will need to enlist the aid of your pastor in preparing for this meeting. You will need a short history of the Mennonite church. The "Year Book" will give much information on "Organization." An older member of the congregation might be asked to tell the story of the founding of the local church. A display of pictures of persons and relating to the larger work of the church would be very much worth while. A "question and answer" program could be worked out. A large number of questions pertaining to the history, aims, and work of the Mennonite church should also be passed out. These should not be numbered, but the person who thinks he has the correct answer should give it. Of course the leader will have to check to see if the answers given were the correct ones.

Special Material

This is known as Christian Endeavor Day, being the Sunday following the birthday of Christian Endeavor, which is Feb. 2. A special packet of material is obtainable called "Christian Endeavor Week Package" from the International Society at 41 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass., for 25 cents. This will supply you with much additional material on the topic.

Preprayer

Consider Jesus' prayer for His followers in John 17:20-23, that they may be one to the glory of God. Pray for the fellowship in your society, your church and the world, among the believers, that there may be oneness of spirit.

A Suggested Worship Service

After a few opening songs and the announcements, the following worship service can be carried out:

Instrumental prelude: "Love Divine, All Love Excelling"
Scripture Reading: Eph. 4:1-6
Song: "In Christ There Is No East or West"
Scripture Reading: 1 Cor. 12:12-26
Prayer.

Presenting the Topic

1. Leader's Remarks. Jesus last command to His disciples was to go and teach all nations. Matt. 28:19, 20. There were to be no favorites. The preaching of the Gospel was to be world-wide. In John 17:20-23 Jesus prays earnestly that there may be a spirit of oneness and fellowship among His followers "that the world may believe." Divisions are a great hindrance. Christian Endeavor has done much to bridge over the differences between denominations and races, and to carry the Gospel to all nations. It is found in over 80 denominations.

2. Brief History of Christian Endeavor. Have someone give a few outstanding facts about Christian Endeavor. Organized Feb. 2, 1881, at Portland, Maine, by Rev. Francis E. Clark. It has spread to every nation of the world since then, until today there are over 4,000,000 Christian Endeavorers. The motto from the very first has been, "For Christ and the Church." Its principles are: (1) Devotion to Christ (2) Service for Christ (3) Loyalty to Christ's church (4) Fellowship with Christ's people. Beyond the individual society there are county, state, and national unions and one world union that unites Christian Endeavors the world around. Harry N. Holmes, vice president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, has said, "Youth of many lands are following dictators, but when they are all forgotten, the one who will draw them will be HE who said, 'And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me.'"

World-Wide Fellowship

Christian Endeavor in many lands.

1. Australia. The tenth World's Convention was held in Melbourne, Australia, last summer with an attendance that kept increasing until there were 20,000 present at the closing session. It was declared to be the greatest religious gathering ever held in Australia. There are 100,000 Endeavorers in Australia alone, one in every seventy of the total population, making the Christian Endeavor organization the largest and strongest in proportion to population in the entire world. The greatest percentage of the membership belongs to the Methodist church and C. E. is the official young people's organization in that church for Australia. The main emphasis of the convention was on Evangelism. More than 700 decisions were made by young people attending the convention. At one session Dr. Poling asked all in the audience under 25 years of age to stand, and more than 80 per cent of those present rose to their feet. A real gathering of Christian youth.

2. China. In spite of the war, China reports an actual gain in societies and members, a total membership of nearly 50,000 in nearly 1,200 societies. The World's Union has made it possible for a full time Secretary to resume work. His time for months has been given over largely to evangelism and relief in refugee camps and the establishment of Christian Endeavor societies.

Turn to the October issue of the Christian Endeavor World for information on Christian Endeavor in other parts of the world.

3. India. The Golden Jubilee has recently been celebrated in a convention in India. Hundreds of Indian Christian Endeavorers attended, scores of young people confessed Christ as their personal Savior and there were many decisions for full-time Savice. The story of one delegate is told who walked seven days over hills to reach a railroad and travelled four days to complete his journey. He lives among the former head-hunters in the Naga hills. Five years ago he accepted Christ in a mission school. After finishing school he went to his hill home and in less than five years has organized 40 C. E. societies among his own people. (Turn to the January issue of Christian Endeavor World for additional material on India).

Closing Moments

Consecration service. (A larger C. E. monogram in the front of the room should now be lighted up) Leader: We are happy to belong to a Christian youth movement that is world-wide. Tell something of what Christian Endeavor has meant to your group in general and then ask each one to give a "one sentence" testimony of what it has meant to them, using the letters C. E. if possible.

Reading of the Pledge

Song: "Living for Jesus." Stanza one.

Benediction

JUNIOR CORNER

Leader's meditation:

"Christ has no hands but our hands
To do His work today
He has no feet but our feet
To lead men in His way;
He has no tongues but our tongues
To tell them how He died,
He has no help but our help
To bring them to His side."

"Then take my hands and use them,
My feet, guide in Thy way
And keep my tongue proclaiming
Thy words, O Lord, I pray.
Into this empty vessel Come now, God's Servant be
To gather lost and fallen
Into the fold with Thee.

General Outline for February

Lessons from Isaiah:

February 5: "Though your sins be as scarlet"
February 12: "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of Hosts"
February 19: "Come ye to the waters"
February 26: "I will make mention of the loving-kindness of the Lord." (Annual felship night)

Verse for the month: "All things work together for good to them that love God." Romans 8:28.

Song for the month: Jesus Loves Even Me."

Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet

Call to service by prelude

Opening Service

1. Theme meditation: A guest voice from the Intermediate department singing, "Though your sins be as scarlet." Verses 1 and 2.
2. Response from the group: "Lord Jesus, I long to be perfectly whole." Verses 1 and 3.
3. The sins of Israel: Scripture reading by a junior, Isaiah 5:18, 20, 21, 22.
4. My sins: response by group singing, "Nothing but the blood of Jesus." Verses 3 and 4.

Mission Minutes: Let a junior relate a story from the mission fields which tells of the joy of forgiveness.

Study Period

1. Isaiah: It will interest the children to know that Isaiah lived in Jerusalem, much of the time at the court of the kings. He was cultured, poetical, fearless, consecrated. The book of Isaiah is divided into eight volumes.—The chairman could state these facts as an introduction to the evening's study.
2. Seeking in Isaiah: Let this be a "sword drill" in which the group is seated on either side of the aisle, in even numbers. The leader is in charge and has ready a list of gem verses out of the book of Isaiah. This can be in the form of a contest. The reference is announced. The side having found the same is allowed to read it and is given credit for it. The following references could be used but should not be used in this formal order: Isa. 1:18; 6:3; 9:6; 12:2; 25:1, 25:9, 26:3; 26:4; 26:12; 33:2, 33:22: 40:8; 40:28; 40:30; 41:13; 43:1; 43:25; 44:6; 45:22; 48:17; 48:18; 48:22; 49:10; 49:16; 52:7; 53:6; 53:7; 54:10; 55:1; 55:6; 55:9; 58:13 and 14; 60:1; 61:11; 64:8; 65:24; Romans 8:28. (Repeat this verse in unison several times).
3. Sing in unison: "Jesus Loves Even Me"
4. Object talks by pastor: "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."
5. Solo: The same voice that sang at the beginning repeats verse one of "Though your sins be as scarlet," singing it softly.
6. Group responds with chorus of Whiter Than Snow"
7. Closing prayer

BE STRONG!

We're not here to play—To dream, to drift.
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle—face it; 'tis God's gift.

Say not the days are evil. Who's to blame?
And fold the hands and acquiesce.—O shame!
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name.

It matters not how deep entrenched the wrong,
How hot the battle goes, the day how long!
Faint not—fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.

CORRESPONDENCE

BEATRICE, NEBRASKA, JAN. 8, 1939

The Second Mennonite Church at Beatrice, Nebraska, has started the New Year with a series of Bible study hours and preaching services, conducted by Rev. J. M. Regier of Bethel College. That his messages were well received was evidenced by an increasing interest and attendance.

The annual business meeting of our church was held on the evening of the next to the last day of the old year. The pastor, Rev. M. Horsch, reported that seven new members have been received through baptism and one by the hand of fellowship, and that the revised church record now shows a total of 166 active members. The Sunday School has an enrollment of 171, with an average attendance of about 75 per cent. This includes a number of children from our district, some of whom are regularly walking a distance of from one to two miles. The annual business meetings of th S. S., C. E., and other auxiliary church organizations are held at various times throughout the year.

Appropriate Christmas programs have been rendered by these various organizations; the choir offered a much appreciated cantata on the Sunday before Christmas and carols were sung for the delight of the hospital patients, jail inmates, and many homes, during that week.

It is gratifying to note that, in spite of the poor crops, the church budget for the past year has again been met and, with the help of God, we are confidently going forward into the new year. May His grace abide with us all.—W. C. A. Corr.

FIRST MENN. CH., BUTTERFIELD, MINN.

Now that the holidays are over and things are back to normalcy again, it is well to take care of all obligations and to begin the New Year right. It is quite sometime since a report from this church has been sent in, due perhaps, to the fact that a busy woman was chosen as correspondent. During the past year, we have enjoyed many spiritual as well as material blessings and mutual fellowship that means so much to us.

It was our privelege this last summer to have a number of visiting ministers with us. Rev. Cornelius Classen, missionary to South America was with us one whole day. He and Mrs. Classen spoke very interestingly of their work. Miss Lydia Jantz, missionary to Africa spent a number of days in our midst. The faith and courage of this brave girl was an inspiration to us all.

Rev. Williams of Los Angeles held meetings in our church during the latter part of August. The meetings were well attended and his messages well received. Many more were drawn closer to the Lord.

On September 4, our church observed a sort of missionary festival. A speaker had been arranged for but found at the last moment that he could not be here. With Rev. Schultz here, we need never worry that a situation may arise that cannot be coped with, as he can always bring us good things from God's Word. We are truly grateful to have him here and our prayer is that his ministry in the coming year may be even more blest than it was in the last.

The members of this church and friends of the Rev. Linscheid family gathered in the church, Nov. 25 to bid them farewell and to wish them God's blessing in their new charge at Freeman, S. D. They were presented with a purse of money as an appreciation of their services.

The annual meeting of the church was held Nov. 28. All church and S. S. officers were elected at this meeting. Our treasury showed a decided increase in offerings during the year. As usual, the children rendered a Christmas program, Dec. 24.—Mrs. R. E. Casey, Corr.

In Memoriam

ARTHUR G. FRIESEN was born Dec. 25, 1914, near Henderson, Nebr. On May 16, 1937, he was baptized upon the confession of his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Savior, and was accepted as a member into the Bethesda Church. On Sept. 27, 1037, he was married to Mary Buller. As is the fate of many young men today, he sought work wherever possible. During the summer months he worked on a large farm near Omaha and in the fall of the year he found employment in western Nebraska.

On Dec. 12 he complained of not feeling well, and consulted a physician. Upon thorough examination it was found that an appendectomy operation must be undertaken immediately. He was getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances. But on Dec. 18 other complications set in and another operation was performed. From this time on things did not look promising. In a few days peritonitis set in, which, humanly speaking, gave very faint hopes for recovery. During his suffering his constant prayer was that the Lord should take him home. On Dec. 18 he found peace in his soul and spoke much of the heavenly home to which he was going. His prayer was answered and peacefully on Dec. 26, at 2:30 a. m., he passed on to meet his Savior whom he loved.

The fair meek blossom that grew up and faded by my side,
In the cold moist earth we laid him, when the forest cast the leaf,
And we wept that one so lovely should have a life
 so brief;
Yet not unmeet it was that one, like that young friend of ours,

So gentle and so beautiful, should perish with the flowers.

He leaves to mourn his early departure, Mary, his young wife; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Friesen, 3 brothers and 1 sister; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob P. Buller, his father- and mother-in-law, also many relatives and friends.

He had attained the age of 24 years and 1 day.

MISSIONARY WILHELMINA KUYF VERY SICK OF PNEUMONIA.—The following cable message is just received from Peking, China, Jan. 11, 1939: "Kuyf Pneumonia serious, wire parents—Kuyf—Voth." Sister Kuyf is stationed at Tanningfu, and no doubt is in the Nazarine Mission Hospital there, although this cable comes from Peking. Tanningfu probably has no telegraph station in operation.—The mission friends will all want to pray for her speedy recovery. She had just finished her language study and started work at Tanningfu, with all her zeal and energy. She may have been too zealous and overtaxed her strength. Will publish further reports as soon as they come.—P. H. Richert, Secretary.

—Johannestal Church, near Hillsboro, Kansas.—Rev. Edgar Toevs of Aberdeen, Idaho, delivered a series of most inspiring sermons at our church, Jan. 8 to 11. It was indeed a season of blessing enjoyed by the whole community.—Erwin R. Penner, Corr.

—First Menn. Church, Reedly, Calif.—Our church observed the week of prayer. The theme, "Why are we interested in Prayer," was used throughout the week. One evening's service was given over to each of these church organizations: Christian Endeavor groups, the Church Council, Sunday School, Music organizations, Missionary groups. Friday night was left open for a testimony meeting. It was a week of blessing to all.—Mary Haury, Corr.

—Rev. Sam P. Preheim has consented to become solicitor (collector) for Freeman College. He knows the history of the school, understands our conditions, knows what we went through here the past nine years, and can convince people that every cent given goes for a good cause.—Freeman Courier.

—Bingham Lake, Minnesota.—Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hiebert observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Friday, Dec. 30, at the Bethel Church in Mountain Lake, in the midst of their children, relatives and friends. An interesting program of music, readings, some of which were original poems by friends for the occasion, and a short message by Rev. John Bartel based on Sam. 7:12 was enjoyed.—Mt. Lake Observer.

—Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas.—Rev. and Mrs. Walter Goering recently had one of the big surprises in their lives, when several friends, members of their church, presented them with a new 1939 Buick automobile. Equipped in every detail the gift, a tangible token of the esteem in which the Goering's are held, is greatly appreciated by them.

—Mrs. F. F. Jantzen, wife of Rev. F. F. Jantzen of San Marcos Church, Paso Robles, Calif. and mother of Albert and Aaron Jantzen who with their families recently went out as missionaries to China and India, resp., has passed on to be with her Savior. May the Divine Comforter be very near to the bereaved ones.—At the home of Rev. Jantzen's brother, in Newton, Kansas, relatives held a memorial service.

—Brother J. W. Krehbiel, recently passed to his reward at the Home for the Aged, Newton, Kansas, and was buried from his home church, West Zion at Moundridge, Kans. with his pastor, Rev. P. K. Regier in charge of the funeral. Mr. Krehbiel had been manager of a large and successful milling business for many years. The Reverends H. P. and C. E. Krehbiels are brothers of his. Son Nelson, his successor and Mrs. Orlando Goerz, Calif., are living children.

—Berne, Indiana.—Mr. Vernon Ramseyer, 42, husband of Florence Lehman Ramseyer and son-in-law of Mrs. J. F. Lehman, was so fatally wounded in an automobile accident not for from Oskaloosa, Iowa, his home, that he succumbed to the injuries. Mr. Ramseyer was owner of a large hatchery at Oskaloosa, and was very active in church and civic affairs, being a member and trustee of the Presbyterian church. He leaves to mourn his untimely departure, his wife, Florence, the children, Jacqueline Rose, 15, and J. Carroll, 6. May the loving heavenly Father be near to them and the members of the J. F. Lehman and Ramseyer families with his comforting presence.

—Two Sunday School Lesson Discussions this week.—Due to some oversight these "Lessons" got behind one week, so that there was some complaint that the help didn't reach everybody for the Sunday whern needed. This should now no longer happen.

.—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—This is our month for contribution for the Aged at Frederick, Pa. Our apportionment is $1.00 per member or about $350 for the congregation. Some cannot afford to give their dollar, but others can give more, so if each does his share, the quota can be reached.—Bulletin. Why cannot other conferences jointly, through membership levies, support some of our needy institutions? The East. District can teach us some lessons.—Editor.

—A National Radio Program under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Education is being broadcasted every Sunday afternoon, at 2 p. m., Eastern, 1 p. m. Central, 12 noon Mountain, and 11 a. m., Pacific time. The purpose of these programs is to foster more amicable relations between America and other nations, in showing the worthwhile contributions that the immigrants from different countries have made to our nation's life. Sunday, Jan. 8 it was the good work of the Irish, Sunday, Jan. 15 it is the Germans with their contributions to our cultural, social, economic, agricultural and political life.—Our readers will be benefitted by hearing these programs. —THE MENNONITE.—Our denominational paper contains a lot of very interesting information for all conference members. Reports and plans in the mission work and other denominational activities give an insight in the doings of our representatives. News items of interest, Y. P. pages, Sunday School lesson thoughts, timely topics of merit, all combine to make it so important that a copy should be in as many homes as possible. How many subscriptions have you secured?—From Y. P. S. and S. S. U. Notes, Eastern District.

MAN A SCULPTOR.—One day Michael Angelo, the famous sculptor, was starting to work on a block of marble. As he did so, he meditated on the possibilities within that piece of stone and addressed a poem to it, the gist of which was something like this, "Within you there is beauty and ugliness. Which comes out depends upon me." Then, applying the chisel he proceded to fashion that block into the figure of a saint. We are all sculptors in this life. God has provided salvation, but since we are created with a free will to do as we choose, it depends after all on us what we make of ourselves. Every day upon which we enter is a block of marble upon which we are privileged to work out our design. The good spirit within us is tugging with all his might to help us make a beautful figure, the evil forces are determined to spoil it all. There will be opportunities for doing good or evil, for making some one happy or miserable. There will be situations to add beauty to our character or to mar it, of shaping our life to make it conform more to the image of Him who made us or to deform it. Angelo brought beauty out of his block and enriched the world. We can do like him if we choose to bring beauty out of our days.

WHITHER ARE WE GOING?—When the boy Jesus was asked why he stayed behind in Jerusalem conversing with the doctors, his answer was, "Wist (know—German wisst) ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" What a profound answer that was! Even as a boy of twelve the goal of His life stood clearly before Him. Yes, it must have entered His mind at birth. And every step He took. every deed He performed, every word He uttered led definitely toward that goal. So it is with people who have a definite aim for their life, especially those that have a worthy one, who intend to get somewhere, who are bound to make much of their opportunities. who are trying to make full use of their God-given talents. It is written on their faces, it is noticeable in what they say and do. And as one observer says, "To such glorious men and women, noble, brave, self-sacrificing souls, inspired by a vision, actuated by a worthy cause, must be given credit for everything done to advance the cause of humanity, to make the world a better place to live in, since Christ died upon the Cross of Calvary." It is the people who are going, headed for a worthy goal the sight of which they never lose that definitely go the Jesus way.

CITIES OF REFUGE.—But where shall a refuge be found for Jews driven out of Germany and for Gentiles fleeing from the Sudeten territory? The Arabs are up in arms against Jewish immigration. They want no more Jews in the Holy Land. And America has its quota laws, limiting the numbers from every land in a year. Beyond question, a home must be found for these homeless. Our Congress now in session, should give this matter first consideration. A suggestion has come from Canada, to the effect that many of them might be given the chance to carve homes for their families in the northern wilderness. Why could we not offer Alaska? The other evening I heard one of the Matanuska settlers telling the brave tale of the new career he had fought in the Government settlement up in the Wonderland of the North. The Mormons went across the plains, over the mountains, through the deserts, suffering inconceivable hardships, in order that they might find a home in a land no one else wanted. Salt Lake City and its environs is the answer. They have made of the wilderness a garden. In the United States we have vast stretches of uninhabited territory. Why not give these refugees the chance to get a new start by reclaiming our waste places? — The Presbyterian.

THE PROPAGANDA of ill-will is all about us and we must be on our guard. Campaigns of hate are being waged against Communists, against Nazis, against Negroes, against labor, against capital, against the government, against liberals, against conservatives, against what not. But hate is not a Christian weapon. It is not a fruit of the spirit. It is the devil's way of dividing people and results in narrow nationalism, progroms, class strife and war. No Jew was ever converted by hating him. No saloon keeper was ever brought to Christ by Christians with hatred in their hearts. Our hatred for sin and wrong-doing must not crowd out our love for the sinncer. If you cherish hatred in your heart for any individual or class you should get down on your knees and promptly ask God to be merciful and help you.—L. H. in "The Herald".

Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred therewith.—Bible.

Our Boy's Work in India

Excerpts from a Letter by John Thiessen, Principal of Christian Rural School, Mauhadih, C. P., India

In India very much attention has been given to the boys and girls of our Christian communities. We know that the present children and youth will some day be the pillars of the Christian church, and whatever their mind-set will be in the future, now takes shape and form while they are in their childhood and teens. In past years our schools in India were mainly intellectual institutions; yet while Christian behavior was always emphasized in connection with Bible teaching, we saw that our youth were not prepared to face life and church duties as they should.

When we took up the school work for the boys of our Christian communities in India we set ourselves a threefold standard: viz., (1) the school should be Christ-centric, (2) it should be educationally worthy, and (3) the dignity of productive labor should be taught. One could say much about the first phase of this standard, since it receives much attention in our schools, and is in fact the most important. A great deal could also be said about the second because God has given us our intellect and its proper development surely is not to be neglected. However we wish to write here mainly about the third phase of this standard, though in connection with the educational phase of our school we must make brief reference to its standard in the opinion of state officials. Our work has been recognized by the government, and our school is often referred to and rocemmended by officials as one that really serves rural India. In our last government public examination our school had eighty-six per cent result. State officials consider this very good since our students do so much physical work besides their regular class work.

We presented this threefold standard to our Christian constituency, and we found that we would not have easy sailing. A number of parents were quite enthusiastic over the idea that orphan boys should learn economic independence, that is—learn to labor physically and productively. But their own sons—no, they were not so ready for that. We westerners are often somewhat impatient with such an attitude, because to us physical work is as honorable as spiritual and intellectual work. But many oriental people think differently. It is generally believed in the Orient that only ignorant people do physical work. To most educated people physical work is dishonorable.

Our first attempt at broadening the usefulness of our school was in introducing weaving and sewing. Those boys whose parents knew weaving soon took to this work. But many other boys thought that we were trying to dishonor them. Sewing was not quite so bad. It is a more or less new kind of work in India, with no firm tradition connected with it.

As time went on we added activity after activity. Soon we did carpentry work and basket-making. In 1934 we started agriculture and that has gained so much momentum that the government has supplied us with a government paid man to direct that work. Our school farm has become a demonstration center in the community. The soil of our farm is sandy and poor, yet by proper cultivation and some irrigation we have demonstrated that we can raise very good potatoes, sugar-cane, peanuts, all kinds of vegetables and various kinds of fruit, especially oranges, bananas and citrus fruit. We also have added smithy work, animal husbandry and poultry work. The latest development has been a banking system and a cooperative store. The boys receive a small allowance for piece work in the shops, and either a small pay or part-crop for farm work. Their earnings they may deposit in the bank, for which they receive a low rate of interest.

For the further improvement of the social life of the boys, we are developing a system of student government, and the cottage system of home life for the residential students. The students learn to settle their own problems (sometimes quarrels) thus learning to face life's conditions by actual practice. At present we have one hundred and eighty-nine students in our school, of whom nearly one hundred are boarders. So we have a large colony and real-life situations in which to live and prepare for life.

We also have a class of students who work in the shops or on the farms all day, with the exception of taking studies in the Scriptures and business Hindu, a course corresponding to business English in America. Another class, called the teachers' preparatory class, may be joined by both boys and girls upon finishing the seventh standard (eighth grade in U. S.) The students in this class receive two years of training in methods and theory of teaching on afternoons, and practice or regular teaching on forenoons. Some of our ex-students, now in the field of labor, do very creditable work. Hence we look upon these two departments as a very essential part of our extension work.

Some of you who read this letter, especially C. E. Sewing and Mission Societies, may ask, how you can help to promote this work. In the first place, remember India's boys and us before the throne of grace. In the second place, we try to run the weaving, carpentry and other industries without budget funds from the central mission treasury, with the exception of the pay of teachers in these departments. So if you can give us a lift, here and there, to buy yarn, tools for the carpentry department, fresh seeds and implements for the farm, etc., your help will be sincerely appreciated. And in this way you assist in preparing these boys of India to face life and to become pillars in the Church of Christ.—Courtesy of Eastern Brotherhood which circulated the entire letter among its members.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

The Secretary of the Board of Trustees of First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, reports in part of their work as follows:

"Our church membership is small in numbers, neither does it represent a great portion of wealth. But that does not deter us from gaining in spiritual wealth. God willing, we will do our part in building the Kingdom by the "Every-day Living" route. We believe we have a very important place among the churches of this city and expect to help build the Kingdom.

"We have a Sunday School enrollment of 155 of which perhaps 75 per cent is the average attendance. Other auxiliary organizations are: The Sunshine Bible Class, meeting Wednesday nights with the objective of Bible Study. During the same hour the Adult mide-week prayer meeting is conducted by Rev. C. H. Dirks.

The Senior C. E. meets once a month for regular programs of varied types, seeking the interest of Christian people in worship and fellowship. The Young People's Society meets every Sunday at 6:30 for study and worship.

Besides these the church is open to Mennonite working girls who are working in Hutchinson private homes. They meet with Mrs. C. H. Dirks for a period of Sunday School lesson study and a period of recreation, sewing, singing, etc."

Are all our independent churches as busy for the Lord as this one that is receiving a small amount of support from the Home Mission Board?

An Earnest Appeal

Dear Churches of the Western District Conference!

Your Charity Committee is aiding several widows and sick brethren who are in need of monthly assistance. Since only few churches have in the past contributed towards this treasury, it is almost depleted.

May we ask you to lift an offering for this cause at one of your Sunday services in the near future and thus enable us to continue to help the needy in the churches of our Conference?

All offerings may be sent to Brother J. C. Kaufman, Moundridge, Kansas, treasurer of the committee.

Yours in His Service,
The Charity Committee

The Case for the Religious College

By William McAllister

Since the usual state college and large private colleges have student bodies ranging from 1,000 to 10,000, and the religious college is essentially a small college, with a student body under 1,000 and as a rule nearer the 500 mark, the question of the relative value of the two types of institution resolves itself to the advantages of the small college over the large, with the emphasis of course on the religious aspects of the two types.

After questioning several students of a large California state college, I was forced to the conclusion that the main reason for going to the large state school was a matter of finances, a just reason of course; but one must also conclude that the education process is mass education in a huge learning machine by a disinterested faculty. A spiritual emphasis on the campus of a state university is doubtful, in fact, out of question.

I have learned what the large college has to offer the undergraduate, but in spite of the wealth of resources for educational and scientific research and the financial backing which it may have, I am convinced that the religious college has as much to offer, on a scale suited to the size of its student body, and even more which the large college cannot offer at all.

Granted that not every student who attends a college is, or will be, a credit to its name, nevertheless, at religious colleges, the opportunity for religious cultural enrichment exists. The student can make of this opportunity what he will.

The small religious college definitely has the spiritual emphasis. It adds to the good of the large state school the betterment of the religious attitude and way of life. In our church training we are given a foundation for a life philosophy based on religion. In continuing our education at a religious college it means that this background can be developed into a working philosophy of life which is full of idealistic practicality.

Although there is a tendency on the part of colleges founded by religious groups to draw away from the control toward more worldly and material attitudes and activities that characterize many state controlled colleges, the true religious college holds to the primary tenets of its religious founders. Modern in every aspect and just as challenging as the state college, or larger private school, in its educational purpose and methods, it holds that the individual, not the mass, is of the first importance educationally, and so provides individualized plans of instruction designed to meet the needs and abilities of each student. Its purpose, as one institution states, "is to help its students attain their best, to become men and women whose wholesome bodies are fit temples for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, whose social graces make them welcome where gentlefolk congregate, whose keen minds enrich scholarship, whose reverent souls worship God in spirit and in truth, whose loyal lives examplify the teachings of Jesus Christ and serve to advance His kingdom and His righteousness."

It adds to one's attitude toward the relative values of life to live in the small religious college. You gain independence; you are more easily oriented into college life than at the large school. There is a friendly spirit to greet the newcomer. There is a unity of thought and aims because your fellow students are for the most part of like minds and tastes.

The classes in the religious college are small. Your professors are neighbors, and willing to help and advise you at any time. Athletics are more for the benefit of the student and team spirit instead of being publicity stunts. The social life cannot be excelled anywhere. There are more things to do than you possibly have time for and more organizations and activities than you can join; but even at that one feels more a part of real college life because there is such a close contact with everyone, which is impossible in the large university. Back of it all there is the true spirit of brotherhood, the religious spirit.

Perhaps we of the religious college feel that spirit most when we sit in the hush of the chapel; or perhaps we feel it when we sing college songs together; perhaps it is as I have felt it at my own college when we stand as a group on the steps of the administration building overlooking the campus after a student body meeting or rally, and sing the alma mater, watching through the cool and starry night the blazing, rugged, college initial carved on the distant mountainside, a symbol and a challenge toward truth and goodness, beauty and service. But wherever we catch that glimpse of the chalice that is the grail, we of the religious college follow that gleam, for we feel that it is there, and we know that it is real!—Condensed from The Watchman Examiner.

The Mennonites

Principles and Teachings

From the 1939 Church Directory of First Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.

1. THE CHURCH is composed of the body of believers and baptism should be administered only upon confession of faith.

2. CHURCH AND STATE are separate. The Christian should be obedient to those in civil authority except in case of conflict with the Scriptures or the dictates of the Christian conscience.

3. Membership in oath-bound secret orders is regarded as unscriptural and inconsistent with the spirit of Christ whose message was open to all and who did nothing in secret.

4. War is contrary to the teaching of Christ. For more than four centuries the church has taught peace and her members have refused to take part in war. The doctrine of non-violent resistance—the overcoming of evil with good—has been an important tenet throughout the entire history of the church, many having suffered martyrdom for their faith.

5. In church organization and policy, we are congregational and democratic. Authority is vested in the body of believers composing the church. The individual congregation confers with other congregations but is subject to no higher authority save only Christ the Head of the Church.

6. In addition to the above teachings, Mennonites hold to the generally accepted evangelical doctrines, such as repentance, salvation by faith, the new birth, the divinity of Christ, the Scriptures as the infallible rule of faith and conduct, the punishment of sin, the presence of the Holy Spirit, the future life, and the coming again of Christ in glory.

We believe in: Unity in essentials
Liberty in non-essentials
Love in all things

Let's Be Helpers All

There are just two kinds of C. E. members—those that help and those that do not. Let's make the re solve now to be helpers!

1939 is upon us. Is there not SOME GOOD THAT WE CAN DO EACH DAY? Is there not some burden that can be made lighter by an act of kindness? Perhaps just a word of cheer to somone will do it. Maybe calling on some lonely person could be our "widow's mite" for today.

This is the first issue of the Tidings. It is hoped that it will be of service to the young people of our district.

Its aim is to be a helper for we have long felt that the purpose of our Christian Endeavor Convention ought to be to serve rather than to be served. The letters, oratory items, list of missionaries, mission notes, and other material is being sent to serve.

It is by clinging to this aim and through cooperation that we can continue to grow. Our prayer is that Christ's Love and Grace shall abound in and through us as individuals and as a big family.

—The Western District Tidings.

Genuine religion is a matter of feeling rather than a matter of opinion.—Bovee.

Be Not Deceived

W. C. Andreas

The lady next door was all excited. She had just read an article in a more or less popular magazine entitled "TO HELL WITH LINDBERGH." It was almost unbelievable that our hero of 1927 should have bowed his head before the Nazi leader, so that the Service Cross of the Order of the German Eagle could be slipped over his neck. Lindbergh had visited Moscow, was enthusiastically received by the Soviets, and now repaid their hospitality by stating publicly that the Russian air force was ineffective, because it had shot its best men. Naturally they called him a "stupid liar," etc. I promised to read the article and, in return, asked her to read a pamphlet entitled "Persecution" and "Let us consider the Record," copies of recent radio talks by Father Chas. E. Coughlin, which had just come into my hands.

When I met the lady on the next morning, she was even more excited than the day before. She had never surmised that there was so much Jewish propoganda in our Press, the Russian cabinet was entirely composed of atheistic Jews with assumed Russian names, that between the years 1917 and 1938 more than 20 million Christians were murdered by the Communistic government in Russia and that some 40 billion of Christian property was appropriated by these atheistic Russian Jews.

Why don't we get this information on the radio and in the press? Father Coughlin says: "Ask the gentlemen who control the three national radio chains; ask those who dominate the destinies of the financially inspired press—surely these Jewish gentlemen and others must have been ignorant of the facts or they would have had a symposium in those dark days—especially when the students of history recognized that Naziism is only a defense mechanism against Communism, and that persecution of the Christians always begets persecution of the Jews."

People today do not differ greatly from those who lived on this earth at the time of Christ. The same people who cried "Hosanna" on Sunday cried "Crucify Him" on Friday. We are still a mob-spirited people, so let us not be unduly influenced by all that we hear and read. Let us weigh everything in the light that God gives us and prayerfully consecrate our lives to Him and His cause.

Enthusiasm Wanes in Japan.—As the war drags on wearily week after week and no "victory" seems to be in sight in spite of "advances," a sort of hopelessness has settled down over the Japanese people. Even the patriotic groups show little enthusiasm, though the military clique does not need it to put the war over. This is characteristic of totalitarian states.

Gradually, facts are beginning to seep into Japan in spite of a strict censorship of mails. The outrages after the capture of Nanking are known. Several Japanese have said that the number of Japanese soldiers who have lost their lives so far in the war amounts to 400,000.—World Events.

The Functions of a Church Choir

Walter H. Hohmann

The choir has a distinct duty to perform in a church service. This duty is not only a duty but a noble privilege. Any person singing in a choir should prepare himself both mentally and spiritually for this duty and privilege, if the high purposes of a choir are to be achieved.

The first function of the choir is to sing to a congregation. This function demands a high degree of sincerity, of consecration, and of preparation. The choir may sing a hymn, a gospel song, a chorale, an anthem or any other sacred type of music to the congregation. In this function in particular should the director of the choir consult with the minister in order to have the music fit into, or support the sermon the minister expects to deliver to the congregation. A close cooperation of the choir director with the minister on this point is not only advisable but very desirable.

The second function of the choir is to sing for the congregation. This function again demands a high degree of sincerity, of consecration and of preparation. Following the Pastoral prayer, for example, the choir sings for the congregation, a response into an awed and hallowed silence filled with the prayers of worshiping souls—

> Spirit divine, attend our prayer,
> And make our hearts Thy home;
> Descend with all Thy gracious power;
> Come, Holy Spirit, Come!

or—

> Let the words of my mouth and the meditations > of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight,
> O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer.

What choir would venture to sing for a congregation under such circumstances, unless it had prepared itself by means of consecration and prayer for such a high privilege and duty?

The third function of the choir is to sing with the congregation its hymns of praise and adoration of Almighty God. This is the holy of holies experience for their choir. The choir in singing with the congregation must help in the service of song and worship and not seem to dominate or make a display of itself. The great hymns of all ages are to be sung by the congregation in their worship of God and the choir is permitted to help in this service. There is blessing for congregation and choir in such a service.

In conclusion Johann Sebastian Bach gives us much to ponder and to think about when he says: "Its final purpose (that is music) is none other than this, that it minister solely to the honor of God and the refreshment of the spirit; whereof if one take not heed, it is no proper music, but devilish din and dischord."

Peter Preaches at Pentecost

Acts 2:12-18, 36-41

Topic: What the Preaching Service Means to Me

Introduction.

Jesus instructed his disciples to "remain in Jerusalem until endowed with power from on high" (Luke 24-49), so they remained after His ascension, meeting in an upper room with other followers of Jesus, in prayer and supplication (1:13, 14). Pentecost, the most popular of the historical feasts, the fiftieth day following the Passover Sabbath, was near at hand. When the day came, all of Jesus' followers were together (v. 2:1) and the marvelous outpouring and infilling of the Holy Spirit took place, even as Jesus had promised (v. 2-4).

Meaning of Pentecost vs. 12-18

The great multitude of people, many of them from other nations, (vs. 9-11) who had come for the feast "were amazed and marvelled" (v. 7) at what they saw and heard (v 8). Words seem to fail Luke in describing the events of the day. Deep heart emotions are usually difficult to express in words. The people were at a loss to explain and asked, "What meaneth this?" The workings of the Holy Spirit are beyond mere human understanding. Always there are those who mock when His presence is manifested (v. 13).

Peter, the leader, boldly, courageously answers these mockers and explains the meaning, significance of it all in the first and perhaps greatest of all gospel sermons. He who had denied his Lord, now faces the multitude, preaching as they had never heard any man preach, magnifying the Christ whom he had denied and boldly accusing his hearers of crucifying and slaying their Messiah (v. 23). Peter finds the explanation of this, so amazing occurrence directly in the prophet Joel (2:28, 29). They have seen and heard the complete fulfillment of this prophecy.

God Hath Made Jesus both Lord and Christ v. 36

Peter is definitely assured of what he is saying. He sums up all in one magnificent statement. Jesus' resurrection definitely establishes his Messiahship. Peter, an eye-witness (v. 32) to the fact of His resurrection, goes to the Scriptures for proof in addition to his own evperience. The testimony of the disciples is unimpeachable and in addition all those present see the evidence of the outpourd Spirit (v. 33), a further evidence of the resurrection of Jesus. This fact none could deny.

Peter's Preaching Reaches Hearts vs. 37-41

The working of God's Spirit on and in human hearts is clearly shown. The listeners—a requisite for an effective sermon—were moved inwardly. They did not applaud, nor say loud "amens." They cried in dead earnest, "What shall we do?" realizing that something needed to be done about it on their part. Peter spoke with convincing and convicting power (v. 37). Repent, first of all—change mind about Jesus—accept Him as "Lord and Christ"—renounce sin—surrender will to Him. Second, be baptized, an outward act in which they definitely proclaim their faith in Christ, renunciation of sin, acceptance of Christ. To such God gives the gift of the Holy Spirit freely. This promise (v. 39) is for all believers of all races, of all time, Jews and Gentiles, in every age of the Church. Many gladly received Peter's message and sealed their belief in baptism.

What the Preaching Service Means

The service cannot accomplish what is should unless there be preparation by preacher and people. Peter had acquired a degree of intellectual training in his association with Jesus. He had seen his deeds and had heard his words. He had received a very definite spiritual perparation while with Jesus. Also there was the season of waiting upon God in the upper room and above all, the mighty infilling with the Spirit, who came upon the PREPARED disciples. Without the Spirit's help, the preaching service fails to accomplish the best results. There must also be this preparation on the part of the listeners.

WANTED—CORRESPONDENTS

An Opportunity for Mennonites

An appeal comes to the Christians of the United States from Mr. Douglas Wollen of the Methodist Church Temperance and Social Welfare Department, 1 Central Building, Westminster, London, S. W. 1, for the Methodist Church of Great Britain, which is trying to further peace by building up personal touch with individual Christians of various nations who wish to write letters to each other. Mr. Wollen asks for names and addresses of Christians in the U. S. A. who would be glad to be put in touch with English Christians. Indication of the age and occupation of those who write would be appreciated. He adds, "We ask our people not to write with the intention of raising controversial political issues, but to express Christian fellowship and the longing for Christian." A similar request comes from France, from Professor Roger Boulanger, 71 Rue Pasteur, Lens, France. He wishes to establish contact with about ten persons, especially teachers, who would like to correspond with French teachers or students—World Events.

Here is a capital idea which should meet with a hearty response from all Mennonites who take their position on Christian Peace seriously. Will not many of our teachers, pastors and young people take advantage of this opportunity in the spirit in which it is offered?—E. L. H.

Relief Notes

(Compiled by O. Miller, and Abraham Warkentin)

At the recent December 29 annual meeting of the Mennonite Central Committee held at the Mennonite Home Mission, 1907 South Union Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, ten of the eleven members of the committee representing its eight constituent organizations were present in person or by proxy. Most of the time at this meeting was taken up in receiving Brother H. S. Bender's report of his past summer's visit to our South American colonies and in a general discussion of the recommendations in the report and of the continuing relationship between the committee and the colony organizations.

The report, as well as the continuing correspondence from the colonies, especially the Chaco—Fernheim colony, indicates that the colonists are making good progress in their new home. 1938 crops were fair but the year financially did not reach the high point of the year 1937. The colonists, however, faced the future with more hope and confidence than at any time since their being in South America. The main economic interests of the colony have to do with cotton and the development of cattle.

The committee's yearly financial statements as approved by the annual meeting follow:

Previous relief notes advised of continued negotations with the German government in reference to the passage debt by the South American Colonists. These negotiations culminated in personal contact with Berlin officials by the M. C. C. secretary-treasurer in company with Brother Benjamin H. Unruh, the representative in Germany who has represented all the Mennonite organizations to the government since the credit was first granted. The German government's reply dated October 19 advised that all interest charges past and future on this debt were waived. The debt initially totaled about three million German Marks but had later been reduced by the government to about one million Marks on which interest was to be paid at the current rate and which was later reduced to two per cent. The colonists as well as all the committees are deeply grateful for this further reduction in debt terms. The M. C. C. is keeping actively in touch with the Brazil and Paraguay groups until this part of their debt made in connection with moving to Paraguay is finally liquidated. In connection with the original credit as well as with his faithful negotiation with German authorities the committee and the colonists are most appreciative of the efforts of Brother Unruh.

On Friday, November 25, 1938, the Chaco, Paraguay, Fernheim Colony celebrated the ninth anniversary of their deliverance from their suffering in Soviet Russia. The colony has annually kept this day as a holiday. Thanksgiving services are held in all the villages. The colony is concerned that the coming generation learn to appreciate the significance and background of the movement from Russia. In these various gatherings on November 25 just past, besides expression of gratitude to God for this deliverance there were many expressions of thanks formulated through the M. C. C. to the churches in the United States and to Brother Unruh as agent in this deliverance.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—At the recent annual meeting these new officers were elected: Milford Haas, deacon; Monroe Geiger, trustee; Hiram Kohli, secretary; Arthur Schumacher, treasurer; Mrs. Josephine Moser, correspondent to the Mennonite. A motion was passed, asking the trustees to investigate the possibility and advisability of buying a parsonage.

"Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness, and Thy paths drop fatness." These words of the psalmist suggest themselves as we recall the many spiritual blessings enjoyed by our congregation during the past year.

A number of visiting ministers and other speakers have brought us inspiring messages during the past months. Rev. P. K. Regier, our pastor, is the capable leader for the interesting and inspirational topics, such as, "The Reformation under Luther and Zwingli," "The Anabaptists," "Life and Teachings of Menno Simons," that have been discussed at the mid-week prayer services. The different organizations of the church again fittingly celebrated the birthday of the Christ-child. The Junior and Intermediate C. E. Societies had their special Christmas programs. On December 18th the Ladies' Choir presented a Vesper Service to a large audience. The children of the S. S gave the Christmas story in scripture and song, on Christmas eve. White gifts were again given by the various classes for missions, hospitals and other needy causes. Christmas evening a mixed chorus of twenty-four voices presented "Spirit of Christmas," by Bruno Reibald, which was illustrated with sterioptican pictures of Christmas scenes.

The annual business meeting of the congregation was held on December 27. Rev. P. K. Regier was unanimously re-elected for a three-year period. Eight new members were received into the church by baptism and fifteen by letter. The following were called to their reward: Mr. Wm. D. Fast, at the age of eighty-six years; Henry S. Schmidt, seventy-nine years, and Gus. Sangals in the prime of life.

Rev. P. R. Lange of the Brethren Church of Buhler, Kansas, conducted a series of meeting in our church, from January 8 to January 13.

Our S. S. is looking forward to the completion of the new Intermediate Quarterly. The Board of Education and the Board of Publication of our Conference, are to be congratulated for the work they have done on both the Adult and Intermediate Quarterlies, and deserve the hearty support of all our churches.

As we enter the portals of the New Year, we are prone to ask, "How can we know the way?" John 14:5, but the answer also comes to us—"I am the Way." "Every mile of the journey He has chosen, and every place where I pitch my tent He has selected for me."—Correspondent.

ST. JOHN MENN. CHURCH., PANDORA, O.

Readers of the Mennonite: 1938 is history. Ye shall henceforth no more return that way. Deut. 17:16. 1939, Ye have not passed this way before. Josh. 3:4.

The year just closed was a normal one for our church, which is located in a rural district and therefore many of its members make their livelihood by farming. In our locality we have never yet suffered a total crop failure. Sunshine and moisture were always provided, and we thank our heavenly Father for it. There was a good corn and potato crop last year.

With the exception of many colds the health conditions are fair. So far we have experienced a mild winter not much zero temperature and not much snow. Our church lost some of its members through death. To some of the homes new recruits were added. Our church celebrated the birth of Christ with an impressive pageant on Dec. 18. It was given by the younger people of the S. S. A crowded house was in attendance and it was well received. On Christmas morning the Primary Department children gave their program to a fairily well attended audience.—Jan. 2, the annual business meeting was held and new officers were elected.—Rev. D. J. Unruh is pastor.—Mrs. J. W. M., Corr.

First Mennonite Church, Madrid, Nebr., 12-30-38

Again a year has passed into the ocean of eternity. Looking back we notice many missteps for which we ask God's forgiveness. But when we recall the many blessings that God has showered on us, we are constrained to say, "The Lord has done great things for us, whereof we are glad." Through God's grace and the help of the Evangel. Com. of the Northern District, God has so led that Bro. and Sister J. F. Sawatzky have moved here and taken over the leadership of the church. To God be honor and praise and our sincere thanks to the Committee for their help

The Sawatzky family moved here Oct. 22 and on Nov. 13 we were privileged to observe a Mission and Thanksgiving festival, at which time the couple and their two sons were taken into the church and Rev. Sawatzky was installed as leader and Pastor. Besides Rev. P. A. Wedel of Aberdeen, the principal speaker, the Brethren D. M. Duerksen of the M. B. church, N. P. Janzen and J. R. Warkentin also took part. We had a full house at all three meetings.

On Nov. 18 we had our annual meeting at which the officers of Church and Sunday School were elected and other matters set right for the coming year. Bro. Sawatzky has succeeded in interesting a group of young souls in a catechical class for the new year.

Rev. John Esau is reported to be scheduled for a series of evangelistic meetings in this part of the state early in January. And, God willing, he will begin a series in our First Menn. Church, Feb. 11. We need and commend ourselves to the intercessary prayers to the members of our sister churches, that many souls be won for Christ.—We had a fair wheat and a small corn crop, and sufficient fodder. Only too bad the price of products are so low.—P. A. Regier.

What Kind of a Program of Mennonite Follow-up Will Meet our Needs

by William Juhnke

(A growing Mennonite Church depends upon gaining the goodwill and retaining the support of a large number of our Mennonites—those that are on the move. This is the first of a series of treatments on this subject.)

The subject of Mennonite Follow-Up is especially challenging, since no one knows just how many of our own group are on the move; and what is more important, no one can definitely know just how many Mennonites—young and old—our church has lost to other denominations and to the world because an effective system of keeping in contact with them was and is non-existant. The absence of a detailed survey, however, should not permit us to close our eyes to and wash our hands, as it were, of a matter that is of prime importance.

It is, of course, not debatable that a large number of our people are on the move; that is, they migrate from one section of our Mennonite constituency to another, or what is more serious—they move from a Mennonite community to a locality where a Mennonite Church does not exist within fifty, a hundred, or even a thousand miles.

It is not being asserted that our sect, or denomination if you please, has more people living in trailer cabins than any other. As a matter of fact it is not this type of people that we should try to "follow-up."

Who are those that leave their homes for new and challenging fields?

Some are students going away to college, university or theological school; others are employed in businesses that require frequent change of addresses. There are the natural shifts in population such as are required by deaths in the family. Change of location due to marriage, due to need of different climate are still others.

The unfortunate thing is not that people move, but that a large number of those that do, including many of our best church people, have been leaving us for other denominations. A case in point is the example of a good Mennonite family each member of which was a creative factor in the church. As time went by the family spread apart one going into business in Wichita where there was no Mennonite church. He joined another church. A second member joined another in Dallas, Texas; and so on until only one member of the family remains a Mennonite. This is but one example.

Dr. A. Warkentin, prominent Mennonite statistician and editor of the Who's Who, presented a survey on this subject at the Western District Conference on Oct. 21, 1937. Doctor Warkentin gave a brief factual resume on this fundamental problem. (The minutes of the conference fail to give a report on Warkentin's talk. He had appeared on the Young People's program.)

That some who move away discontinue church affiliation is not a point against Mennonitism; likewise, the fact that some of our best church people have been leaving us for other denominations, does not demonstrate the inferiority of our denomination. Rather these sore spots should make us more zealous in a personal and collective effort to stem this tide.

It was an attempt to face this problem that the young people's union interoduced, debated and accepted reolution VIII in their sessions at Saskatoon last summer. This resolve reads: "That we recommend that the incoming executive committee be instructed to devise a system whereby young people leaving their home for school or work be placed in contact with Mennonites in their new locality."

Call to Worship (by the leader)

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto Thy Name, O most High; to show forth Thy loving-kindness in the morning, and Thy faithfulness every night. Let the people praise Thee, O God; let all the people praise Thee.

Prayer (unannounced—by some one prepared).

Song Service—"A mighty Fortress is Our God" and "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind."

Responsive Reading

Leader's Talk.—This service celebrates the fifty-eighth birthday of the Christian Endeavor movement. Fifty-eight years ago a group of young people of the Williston Congregational Church in Portland, Maine, came by invitation to the home of their pastor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frances E. Clark. Most of them had recently accepted Christ and the pastor was praying and planning about ways to help them grow in their Christian life and become useful members of the church. That night he presented and they discussed the plans for a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. Most of them signed the constitution which he had prepared, and became members of the society.

Almost immediately the idea proved valuable. The meetings were well attended. Other societies were soon organized. Its wide acceptance among denominations, its adaptability among people of other nations, its promotion of genuine fellowship have made it the most successful and far reaching young people's society the church has known.

It is natural then that the movement should celebrate its birthday and that the opportunity should be seized to bring to public attention the varied and successful departmental and other activities.

There are 80,000 Christian Endeavor societies. Beyond them, and claiming 4,000,000 active members, are the various larger unions. There are local, district, state and national unions. There is the International Union and beyond that the World's Union. There is something in the fundamental principles of C. E. that has made it successful in helping millions of young people to prepare with Christ to meet every crisis of life. These principles are in the pledge adopted by that first C. E. society and still used by thousands of societies as a statement of purpose and a basis of membership. Some of our members are going to tell you about these principles.

Before this let us sing "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations."

First Speaker:

The pledge begins with this sentence, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever he would like to have me do." Here is suggested a permanent, far-reaching standard of life. Christian Endeavor is trying to help its members to learn to live their lives by this Christian standard,—"what would Christ like to have me do." This is a call to an out-and-out acceptance of Christ.

Second Speaker:

Dependence on Christ as the source of strength is another great principle of Christian Endeavor. "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength," says the covenant. Men need not only to know what is Christian but they need the strength to do it. A Christian need not be left alone. He has Jesus to help in the hour of need. It is a great purpose of Christian Endeavor to help young people to know Christ as Savior, as a Friend, and as a source of strength in time of need.

Third Speaker:

A third principle of Christian Endeavor has to do with daily devotional practices. The familiar pledge says, "I will make it the rule of my life to pray and to read the Bible everyday." One must study God's Word in order to know His will. Thru the daily use of prayer we grow in our acquaintance with Christ and in the use of His strength for our needs.

Special Music

Fourth Speaker:

The fourth great principle of Christian Endeavor is loyalty to the church. This loyalty can be expressed in many ways, but in none better than by regular attendance at the service of the church.

Fifth Speaker:

The principle which I declare is that which calls for consistent personal witnessing on the part of every Endeavorer to the faith that is within him. Some of this witness will be by spoken word, some by outward acts, and much of it by the very radiance of a Christian character.

Sixth Speaker:

A sixth principle is valuable in making a complete life. It is that perfection which comes from long training and as a result of a wide variety of activities. Christian Endeavor carries out its training possibilities by having as many members as possible on committees. The pledge says, "I will be true to all my duties as an active member.

Seventh Speaker:

Last, but by no means least, of the principles to be described is that which has to do with fellowship with other churches and with other nations.

Song: "Follow the Gleam."

Note: The speeches given above will need to be elaborated upon.

Feb. 11. Spirituality. Col. 3:1-4
Feb. 12. Topic—The Negro's Contribution to American Life. I Cor. 1:18-29.

Our Topic Practical

It is easy to express sentiments toward those of another race, when oceans divide us, but if they live in our own home town it is different. Let us make this topic practical. If there are Christian negro young people in your town, ask some of them to come to your meeting and tell of their own people who have made contributions. Or plan to have a joint meeting with them sometime.

Preprayer Circle

Read Acts 10:34, 35. Pray that a new appreciation and love for the negro race may grow out of this meeting. Pray that any feeling of superiority may be removed. May there be humble gratitude for the advantages we have enjoyed.

Presenting the Topic

1. For the Leader. Speak of the fact that on this the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, it is fitting that we as Christian young people should take time to study the American negro in an effort to appreciate him as one who has equal rights with us and one one whom God has used in many remarkable ways.

The Scripture lesson, I Cor. 1:18-29 brings out the thought that God often uses that which is despised of man, the lowly, the weak, to carry out His purposes. The general attitude of the white man has been to look upon the negro as being inferior in every way. It has been proved through many psychological tests that when the opportunities are equal the negro has ability equal to that of any other race.

1. Spirituality. Col. 3:1-4. The negro is a deeply spiritual man. This has been a result to a large extent of his past. The lot of the negro has been a very unhappy one as a rule, with severe toil, which brought many hardships and much unjust suffering. It is natural then that the religion of Jesus Christ, which bids men to "seek those things which are above" would make a great impression on them. In this life they had nothing better to hope for. How precious then was the hope of life hereafter, where all this would be changed. The Negro Spiritual songs reflect this very definitely, since most of them speak of the joys of heaven. Select several of these songs and read the words.

2. Music and Musicians. How did music serve as an escape to them from their unhappy surroundings? Ps. 98:1-9. The negro seems to be born with a love for music and a keen sense of rhythm. The negro Spirituals that have become so popular are a result. Within recent years there have also been instances where a negro has gained recognition as a musician. Roland Hayes was perhaps the first outstanding example of this kind. He worked his way through school, studying here and in Europe. Then from 1916 -1920 conducted his own conecert tour in the United States, because no one would have had confidence in his success. Later he sang before kings and queens in Europe and was awarded a medal for the most outstanding achievement among colored people. As a concert singer he ranks with the best. His success paved the way for others. Marian Anderson, the contralto has almost repeated his success. Their interpretation of the traditional negro melodies has received wide recognition. To hear Mr. Hayes sing "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord," is to say, this is more than a work of art, this is a spiritual experience.

3. Eloquence. Acts 18:24-28. Booker T. Washington, the organizer and first principal of the negro normal school at Tuskegee, Ala., traveled all over the United States delivering addresses in the interests of the school and a better understanding between the whites and blacks. The school was started in a little shanty and church. During the first 19 years of his presidency, 40 buildings were erected largely by student labor. He was born on a plantation in Virginia. He got his elementary education in a night school, while he worked in a salt furnace and coal mine during the day. By walking and begging rides he travelled 500 miles to Hampton Institute, where he stayed for 3 years, working as janitor for his board

4. Science. Eccl. 7:29. One of the most interesting biographies to be found anywhere is that of George Washington Carver. Have someone give a report on it as it is given in the Feb. 1937 issue of Readers Digest, "A Boy Who Was Traded for a Horse." Born a slave, stolen when a baby, and later traded back for a broken-down horse valued at $300. He has achieved remarkable things in his scientific studies. From the peanut alone he has made nearly 300 useful products, including cheese, candies, pickles, dyes, soap, printer's ink and even axle grease. His discoveries came in response to his inquiry into, "God, what is a peanut and why did you make it?" The secret of his life he says is that "in the woods each morning, while most people are sleeping, I best hear and understand God's plan for me."

Closing Moments

Read one of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poems.

JUNIOR CORNER

Holy, Holy, Holy

(Adoration)

Program Suggestions for February 12, 1939

"Fairest Lord Jesus, ruler of all nature,
O Thou of God and man the Son,
Thee will I cherish, Thee will I honor;
Thou my soul's glory, joy and crown."

Let this hymn be played softly as a call to worship

Worship Service

1. Singing Jesus-hymns of adoration
2. Scripture reading, Revelation 5:11-13
3. Adoration: Let the piano play "Holy, Holy,, Holy," while the lights are put out and from the rear of the church a few selected junior girls, dressed in white, come forward bearing candles and singing verses 3 and 4. If there are side aisles, they could follow these, passing each other in front of the altar and circling to opposite aisles, walking into their pews in the rear of the group, remaining standing until verse four has been finished and the piano has followed the singing with one more playing of the hymn, this very softly.

Mission Minutes: Extracts from "Mission News and Notes" retold by juniors. It could be woven into theme of the evening by putting the various stories or news items under the one heading, "Glorifyng Jesus on the Mission Fields." (Explain that to glorify His name, means to make Him wonderful to other hearts).

Study Period. "Aim: To lead the child to a fuller adoration of the Christ.

1. Sing in unison the chorus, "Into My Heart" repeating it softly.
2. The chairman announces the theme of the evening by bringing to light a large valentine which he sets between two lighted candles. This can be made out of a sheet of poster paper folded in half, cutting out of it a heart with a base. On the base print in large letters, "I will Love Thee" (Psalm 18:1). Around the outer edge of the heart, outline (in heavy black) the form of a simple petal flower (only the open face, no stem or leaves). Put these all about the edge of the heart. Out of bright colored papers of various hues, make cut outs of the same form. On these put the verses to be used in the evening's adoration service. These "flowers" are to be distributed among the juniors who, when the time comes, step up to the valentine, give their verse and by the aid of a bit of glue, paste the cut out into the outline in black. Thus the flowers will be edged in black and make a beautiful appearance.
3. We adore Him because ————: Let the chairman announce each speaker with this phrase, calling on the speakers by name but not announcing the cause of adoration. This is left for the junior called upon who holds a "flower."
   a. We adore Him because He is our Friend: John 15: 14 and 15
   By motion of leader all join in singing verse one of "What a Friend"
   b. We adore Him because He is our Guide' Psalm 32:8; Psalm 48:14
   Special. music: From the rear of the group comes a voice singing the prayer, "Guide Me. O Thou Great Jehovah." Verses 1 and 2
   c. We adore Him because He is our Keeper: Psalm 23:1. This junior asks the group to repeat the remaining verses in unison.
   d. We adore Him because He is our Light: John 8:12.
   Sing in unison "The Light of the World Is Jesus." Verses 1 and 2
   e. We adore Him because He is our Savior. Luke 2:11; John 4:42
   Special music: "Pass Me Not O Gentle Savior." Prayer song by rear voices. Verses 1 and 2
   f. We adore Him because He is our King of Kings: Rev. 1:17, 18; Rev. 19:16
4. Rise to sing in unison, "Praise Him! Praise Him!"
5. Heart-talk "Jesus Loves Even Me": by leader, who in a few statements leads the child's heart to love and adore Him who is interested in each individual life to the extent of giving His life for the same.
6. Sing in unison, "Jesus Loves Even Me"
7. Response by group in quoting the verse beneath the Valentine
8. Closing prayer by leader followed by the soft singing of verse one of "My Jesus I Love Thee." This by the group in unison.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, NEWTON, KS.

Dear Editor and Readers: I had asked the congregation to elect a younger man or, better, lady, as correspondent. But they reelected the old one in spite of his 87 years.

On Sunday evening, October 2, Rev. J. N. Smucker of Bethel College was our guest, preaching on Is. 40:1-5, "How can we prepare the way of the Lord," and two nights later the Hilty Brothers of Ohio gave a nice musical program.—Sunday, Oct. 9, Rev. J. M. Regier, field secretary of Bethel College, spoke on "Christian Education." The collection taken was for the College.—Sunday evening and all day Monday and Tuesday there were interesting meetings at Bethel College in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the corner stone laying, concluding with a pageant depicting scenes from Mennonite and college history.—Sunday, Oct. 23, we had communion service. Rev. Entz preached very earnestly.—The same week the Harvey County Religious Education Organization held its convention in Newton, with the last session and banquet in our church.—Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, we held our annual Sunday School meeting, at which Menno Schrag was elected superintendent and Herman J. Andres assistant superintendent.—The next evening our Bible Study class started work again, with Dr. A. Warkentin as leader, beginning with the Epistle of John.—Sunday, Nov. 13, in the evening, the Y. P. C. E. had an excellent program on "What we as Christians have," and Rev. H. J. Kliewer preached especially to the young folks, on the text, Luke 2:40-52.—On the Wednesday following, Dr. Wilson of Kansas City led the Bible Study class and the teacher's meeting.—On Thanksgiving day the sermon was preached in three languages by missionary G. A. Linscheid, English, German and Cheyenne.—Saturday evening, Nov. 27, was a surprise party for Bro. C. F. Classen, this being his 79th birthday, at the home of his son, Ted. His dear wife was too weak to attend, but his children, grandchildren and relatives were there.—On Sunday, Nov. 27, we observed the 60th anniversary of the organization of our church, and the 35th anniversary of the ordination of the Reverends B. Regier and J. E. Entz, now our elder. Bro. C. F. Classen gave a brief history of the S. S., which, starting with a mere handful, now has 543 members, and needs more room, while the church has 529 members. Rev. B. Regier preached in German on 1 Sam. 7:12—Ebenezer—and gave a vivid picture of the church. Rev. Entz gave a historical sketch and emphasized the unmerited lovingkindness of the Lord. Three charter members, Rev. B. Regier, C. F. Classen and his sister, Mrs. John Regier, are still living. Ninety-year old Sister Hillegonda recited a self-composed poem fitted for the occasion. Dr. Milo Kauffman, president of Hesston College, based his address on Psalm 103, "God has blessed you in the past, he will bless you in the future." Inspiring music was interspersed.—The anniversary spirit was further manifested in meetings throughout that week, with Pres. Milo Kauffman as main speaker. One evening he spoke on the greatest question of today. There are many weighty questions: What shall be my life work? With whom shall our children associate? etc. His text was Matt. 27:22. The greatest question today is, "What shall I do with Jesus?" We have a will, we must open the door of our heart, when Jesus knocks. Each day we must ask: "What shall I do with Jesus?" Without Him, without God, we are lost.—On another evening he spoke on, "The Victorious Christian Life." You must be born again, that is the necessary beginning. Be sure yours sins are forgiven, through Jesus your Savior. Yield yourself fully to God. Join the church and be a loyal member. Be faithful in daily reading of the Bible and in prayer. You must do Christian work. Use your God-given powers. Practice makes strong.—The various Christmas programs brought blessings to all. The senior choirs presented the cantata, "The Coming of the King," in the beautifully decorated church.—For the S. S. children's program the church was full. The choir loft was filled with singers and the enlarged platform crowded with happy children. On sylvester evening Rev. J. E. Entz preached a farewell sermon of the old year.—At Bethel Hospital they are very busy erecting a large addition. At this writing, Jan. 5, they are pouring the third cement floor. God has blessed them with favorable weather. —Van der Smissen, Correspondent.

Apostolic Mennonite Church, Trenton, Ohio.

Sunday, January 8, 1939, our Annual Congregational Meeting was held The Sunday School met at the regular hour followed with the morning service, at which time Rev. J. E. Amstutz chose for his subject, "My Church," basing his remarks on Eph 5:25-27, giving us a very inspiring message.

Immediately following the morning service, an invitation was extended to all members and friends of the Congregation to partake of a covered dish dinner in the basement of the Church, where all enjoyed a delightful social period.

The afternoon session at 1:30 was opened by Rev. Amstutz, reading Rom. 12, followed by Prayer. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, after which reports were given by the various organizations of the Church, followed by the election of officers.

Rev. Amstutz gave a resume of the activities of the Church during the past year, during which time many visitors spoke from our pulpit, and we also had the pleasure of entertaining the Middle District Conference, which also was a blessing to our community. A short memorial service was held in memory of our departed members and friends of the church.

Another year is before us; and we ask ourselves what opportunity does it hold for us, and our Church? We look bravely forward to the veiled figure that stands at our threshold. We know nothing of what it brings, we know only that it is God's New Year. May He bless it to us all and may we make it the BEST Year of our lives.—Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, ALBANY, OREGON

Another year has slipped into the fading past, and a new year has been ushered in—a year budding in bright hopes and new ambitions for the GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH of Albany, Oregon. A wonderful Christian spirit seems to be gripping the entire congregation and a sense of cooperation is being developed that one seldom encounters in any church.

The Ladies Missionary Society, under the leadership of its capable and active president, Mrs. J. N. Widmer, held its annual needlework and cooked foods sale the first of the week in December with very satisfactory results. Some of the money taken in will be sent to China, where the Society is supporting two native Bible women. Perhaps one of the secrets of our Church's development spiritually is the fine missionary spirit shown by this consecrated society working quietly in the background.

On Monday evening, December 12, we held our annual business meeting. Again, because of much prayer beforehand on the part of faithful members, God's presence was felt in the elections themselves. When the time came to elect the Pastor for the new year, the entire congregation arose in a body and unanimously ushered Rev. W. R. Augsburger into his fourth year of service. How it cheers and encourages his heart to know his Church stands behind him one hundred per cent in his service to God in this community.

"The Christmas Message" was presented Thursday night, Dec. 22, by the various departments of the Sunday School. A very interesting program was enjoyed by a crowd so large that we had to resort to the Primary Department's chairs to seat them all. An offering was taken at this program and also during the Christmas Sunday services, which will be used to reroof the parsonage.

We extend a most blessed New Year to all of our sister churches.—Corr.

In Memoriam

HENELE MATTHIES, daughter of Jacob Thiessen and Catherine Suderman Thiessen, was born in South Russia, March 27, 1962. At the age of 18 years she and a sister spent eight weeks in the home of Rev. Johannes Wiebe to receive religious instruction in preparation for baptism. She has always looked upon this experience as one which has enriched and given direction to all of her later life.

She was married in 1881 to Herman Matthies. Six sons and three daughters were born to them. Two sons died in infancy in Russia. Immediately after their arrival in America in 1893, two daughters, aged 2 and 6, died following illness and hardships endured on the journey.

Three years later, in 1896, her husband passed away, at the age of 36 years, leaving her with five children, ranging in ages from 6 months to 12 years. Her faith in God gave her strength and courage to assume the heavy responsibility of providing a Christian home and training for them. Again she passed through deep sorrow when her youngest son Herman died at the age of 17 years. Immediately afterward she came to Aberdeen, Idaho, joining the Mennonite church in 1915. Later she spent some time in Kansas, transferring her church membership as she went, but since 1921 has again been a member of the Aberdeen Mennonite church.

Hers was a life of service to God, first in her care for her children, then to her aged parents, and after that to many friends in Idaho, Kansas and California, wherever there was need of assistance, often working beyond her endurance. She was rarely ill, but in frail health for many years. She returned to Aberdeen in the spring of 1938, to be once more at home in the Aberdeen community and with her son Ben and his family, where she received loving care during her last illness.

Her trust and hope, in life and in death, was in God and in His saving grace in Jesus Christ. She reached the age of 76 years. She leaves to bless her memory one daughter, Mrs. Henry Becker; three sons, Ben Matthies of Aberdeen, Jacob Matthies of Nampa, and Peter Matthies; eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

— PLEASE NOTICE—The address of C. E. Krehbiel is simply NEWTON, KANSAS (not North Newton) All contributions for the BUNDESBOTE should be addressed: Bundesbote, Newton, Kansas, or C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas. This will avoid delay and confusion.

— Mrs. John Lichti, wife of Rev. John K. Lichti, Sanger, California, passed away Jan. 3 as the result of apoplexy. The couple had only recently sold their home at Upland and moved to Sanger, Calif. to be near their children, to have their care, if anything should happen.—We extend to Bro. Lichti and children our heartfelt sympathy.

—Bethel College has again had a substantial addition to its endowment fund through a gift of $5,000 from Mr. G. Frank Grattan, prominent attorney in McPherson, Kansas, who gave $5,000 only a couple years ago, to establish a scholarship fund. As a frequent advisor and counsellor of Mennonite folks he learned to appreciate them. Hence these tokens of good will toward them and their children.

— Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa.—As a New Year's message, Rev. Penner used for his subject, "Aspiring to the Christ."—Jan. 8, installation service was held for our newly elected deacon, Bro. Arthur Wyse.—Jan. 9, Mr. Ed Sponberg, 53, one of our members, was called by death. Funeral services were conducted by our former pastor, Rev. Elmer Basinger and Rev. Penner.—Jan. 15, communion and baptismal services were observed. Eight members were added by baptism and three by the right hand of fellowship. May this addition prove to be a mutual blessing — Corr.

— Friedensberg Church, Avon, So. Dak. — A group of about fifteen church members joined in sawing and packing the ice for our pastor, Rev. D. A. Schultz, Jan. 13. We had very good weather for the job and, except for having to unload most of the first five-ton truckload to be able to drive away from the creek and then reloading it, all went well and everyone enjoyed the work.—Correspondent.

— The Missionary Association of the Eastern District has agreed to donate $300 toward the purchase of a mechanical refrigerator for the use of Drs. Bawman in their hospital work at Champa, India. They have also decided to give $350 toward defraying the expenses of the return passage to India of Missionary S. T. Moyers, or for any purpose which the couple might designate.

— From the Cheyenne and Arapaho Messenger. — "According to a recent letter, Mrs. G. A. Linscheid is still quite ill with liver trouble and intestinal flu. The doctor told her that she retired none too soon, else something serious would have happened. Let us pray, that if it be His will, there might be a speedy recovery.

— Valued Suggestions for Church Members to follow in the new year: To attend religious services more regularly; to bring any offerings more sacrificially; to participate in organizational activities more faithfully; to pray to God more earnestly; to follow Christ more closely; to win at least one person to the Church of Christ in 1939.—"The Messenger," Second Ch. Phila.

— First Church, Bluffton, O. — The principal officers for 1939 are: Deacons, John Tosh, E. J. Hirschler, J. S. Schulz; Trustees, Samuel Bixel, Ed Steiner, Harvey Beidler; Correspondents, for Mennonite, Mrs. Paul Stauffer; for Bundesbote, Mrs. S. K. Mosiman

— Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa. — Our gain in membership for 1938 was 35, 26 by baptism, 5 by letter, 4 by confession of faith. We lost 6 by death and 12 by letter. That means a total loss of 18 and a net gain of 17 members, leaving a membership of 483. The Sunday School enrollment is 536. The budget for the year 1939 is $4268.00.

— Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D. — Partial list of officers elected at annual meeting: Deacon, Jacob M. Waldner; Trustee, John K. Hofer; Secretary, Joe A. Wollman; Correspondent, for Mennonite, Joe. A. A. Wollman; for Bundesbote, Benj. Waltner. The pastor, L. H. Linscheid, was elected for one year.

— Bluffton College. — A special committee of the College announces a big booster banquet to be held in Ropp Hall Dining room, Friday, Feb. 3 at 6:30 p. m. The purpose of the banquet is: 1. A good will gesture toward the new president; 2. A new kind of publicity for Bluffton College in the form of "hands across the table."—The cost of the banquet will be $3.00 per plate or two plates for $5.00. The banquet is to be made an annual event.

— Wiss Wilhelmina Kuyf Getting Better.— Word has been received by Rev. P. H. Richert, For. Mission Secr., that Miss Kuyf, missionary in China, who had been reported seriously ill with pneumonia, is on the road to recovery.

— Year Book or Church Directory. — Last year we received copies of such booklets from quite a number of churches. They were appreciated. So far this year we have 1939 copies from First Church, Upland, Calif., and Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa. We hope to get others.

— Sunday Bulletins or Programs. — A goodly number of churches send in copies of these. They are also much appreciated, for from them we get news for the JOTTINGS. Such helps as these two assist the editor in getting more intimately acquainted with the churches, and that means a great deal.

— A Secret Anti-Nazi Party in Germany. — Among the organizations working underground to free Germany from the Nazi grip, is the German Freedom Party. . . . It started a year ago. Today a sound organization, working steadily throughout the empire, stands behind that handful of men. Rich and poor work in it, sacrificing their persons and property . . . .—World Events.

EDITORIAL

SUGGESTIONS AND WORDS OF CAUTION COMING TO THE EDITOR

This editor always welcomes constructive criticism, for by heeding such the paper can be improved. A good many readers expect him to bring editorials on current world problems where religious trends are involved. But there is such a cleavage among the members of our churches in their attitude to what is going on in Germany and other parts of Europe, that it is almost impossible to say anything without treading on somebody's toes. The fact is, our American Mennonites pretty generally share the intolerant American attitude against Germany and Italy too, for that matter, because of their fascistic governments and persecution of the Jews, while brethren of our German-English churches cannot see it entirely that way. As a matter of fact our Mennonite kin in Canada are pretty much lined up on the side of Germany, because of the fact that the German government has so kindly advanced large sums of money to help thousands of our brethren out of the Russian inferno to Paraguay and Brazil, South America, and has now cancelled the largest part of these financial obligations. It may interest at least some of the readers to note some of the suggestions, words of caution and reminders that come to our notice. Here are a few:

From a leading brother in the Western District we have this: "We are reading the German Methodist Apologete. In it we often read articles by Bishops Neals in Germany and Nuelson in Switzerland that are so good. We need such men in America. God pity our country! Where are we drifting?" He encloses this clipping: "Bishop Nuelson in an address at Cincinnati says that men like Martin Niemoeller are not in any way persecuted for their religious views or utterances, but for attacking the state. They belong to the state church which is entirely and adequately supported by the state.—Of the free churches, such as the Baptists, Methodists and others, these churches carry on their work without any interference from the government. They are free to evangelize, to instruct the children in their Sunday Schools, to carry on their conferences unhindered."

Here is a word of caution from a brother in Oklahoma: "Would like to add a word of criticism and protest to several editorials in the MENNONITE. I don't like the pro-Nazi and intolerant attitude as expressed in several issues during the past months. Feel this intolerant attitude should have no place in a church, especially a Mennonite paper. Can't feel that our people as a whole endorse it and wish to protest against its continuance." (This came by way of our Berne business office.)

To a report of a solicitor for our church papers, in one of the Middle-District churches, this note is added at the close of a subscription list: "Some people complained about articles by Fosdick being in the MENNONITE, some about John Miller's, some about articles concerning the Jews, some about the price." (This last fault is natural, but how about the others? The readers will judge).

A paragraph from a highly respected, leading brother in Canada: "How mighty the press is was manifested during the late war and today is showing its power again. When many thousand Christians were slaughtered in Russia and countless churches were requisitioned for "Kinos" and theaters, then the press was silent and your President recognized the murderers of Christians in Russia and even now congratulates this criminal government further upon its progress. But, when in Germany the rights of Jews are being abridged and the mob, not the government, burns a few synagogues, the press cries in horror and the government rattles with the sword. How important it is that we should have a press that will influence the reader in a Christian spirit!"

This last statement with its suggestion points out the course that we as editors of Christian papers should take. But we must also tell the truth and there is where views are apt to diverge. What our country, what all countries need, is men like John the Baptist and Jesus, to tell the truth, which hits so hard that it leads to repentance and a change of the heart.

TRUE RELIGION is not what men see and admire; it is what God sees and loves; the faith which clings to Jesus in the darkest hour; the humility which lies low at the feet of the Redeemer, and washes them with tears; the love which welcomes every sacrifice; the cheerful consecration of all the powers of the soul; the worship which, rising above all outward forms, ascends to God in the sweetest, dearest communion.—Richard Fuller.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

We are in receipt of lovely letters with holiday greetings from our missionaries in China, the Pannabecker and Voth families, for which we truly thank them. This week we shall bring the gist of letters from the former and perhaps next week from the latter.

The Pannabeckers say that home has never seemed so attractive to them as now, when after a year of wanderings they are again united in Kaichow. Even the children who had more privileges at Kikungshau near Hankow were happy to come back home. Dr. and Mrs. Llyod Pannabecker's boys, Richard and Robert, are in an American school at Tungchow, not far from Peking, while their little daughter Alice Ruth and Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Pannabecker's Betty Jane is going to school with Mrs. F. Pannabecker. Donnie, Betty's 2 year old brother, is reported to be the liveliest of the lively.

A year ago after Christmas at Kikungshau they separated, the mothers with the children going to Hongkong to spend four months in the British colony, while the two fathers went back north to the war stricken field for six months, to face the problems brought about by flood, war, famine and banditry. In June the mothers and children moved north to Peitaiho, in North China, where they were much closer to Kaichow. At Peitaihow, on the seashore, the families enjoyed a month's reunion, together with friends. The trips in each case were hazardous because of military operations and banditry, and disheartening because of the sight of distressing poverty.

After Sept. 1, Tungchow near Peking, offered a suitable domicile for the families and a good school for the children. They with the Voth family lived for a time in an unused dormitory which the American Board Mission opened for them. Meanwhile the husbands (fathers) had their first experience with the cholera epidemic at Kaichow. In October it was felt that the enforced separation was no longer necessary. Kaichow, under Chinese administration, was peaceful, with no immediate prospect of upheaval, travel was possible and weather favorable. "So here we are and do we enjoy being together again?!"

"Evangelistic, school and hospital work are all going on full-blast, with record attendance at the Bible School and Hospital. We would like to tell more about our year's work, instruction classes at 12 places, 102 baptisms, poor relief for hundreds, building repair and construction, etc. . . . but space forbids. In a short time we hope to put out and send each of you a calendar for 1939 with pictures of this year's work, and a little later the first issue of a monthly sheet, telling more about our mission work. We feel that God has been good to us in spite of seperations and war experiences. We have appreciated your prayers and interest during these times and wish all of you God's best during the coming year."

The Pannabecker families.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

WORK IN WINNIPEG, MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Manitoba has recently become quite a Mennonite center. The Girls Home is located here and near by is the organized Mennonite Church. We make a modest contribution toward the monthly rent of the Girls home and furnish the salary of the efficient Matron, Helena Epp. A small amount is also contributed toward the support of Rev. John P. Klaassen, the Elder. The membership of the Church is composed of Mennonite families that live in the city.

For a long time it has been the deep concern of the leaders in that city that a goodly number of Mennonite families have so to say "lost themselves" in the large city. The task of finding these scattered ones and visiting them regularly was too much for the aged Rev. Klaassen, who has not been well for some time.

Finally Rev. Benjamin Ewert, for many years Traveling Minister in Canada, was engaged to search for such who had not affiliated themselves with the church there. Almost 100 such unattached individuals were found, and Rev. Ewert writes that every day when he goes out to visit he hears of others who also need to be found and contacted.

Recently a call came to Rev. J. H. Enns, also of Winnipeg, who does itinerant work as well as conduct the devotions in the Girls Home, to conduct a series of Bible studies for the Nurses of the Mennonite Hospital: "Concordia." Rev. Enns writes: "We are encouraged by the 16 sisters who work in the Hospital, who take a keen interest in the study of the Gospel of Luke. These services are held on Wednesday evening, 8:00 to 9:00, and this gives me an opportunity to visit those who are patients in the hospital, and direct them to Christ, the Great Sufferer, who by His suffering has won for us Eternal Life."

—What are American Young People Reading?—Blood and thunder, mystery detective stories, 1,580,000 copies monthly; sex magazines, 15,000,000 copies monthly, more than 350 different issues. They say that there is an average of two to four readers to each copy. Therefore nearly 7,000,000 young people read the horror magazines and between 30 and 60 million the sex magazines.—Herald of Holiness.

A Good Book to Read

The influence of Christian missionary service and the functioning of the Mennonite peace principles under fire—these are the vital themes of "Prisoner of War 31, 163, Bedros M. Sharian" by Ernest Pye. (New York, Fleming H. Revel Co., 1938. $1.50)

Bedros M. Sharian (formerly spelled Kurkyasharian) was one of the persecuted race of Armenians. In his boyhood he was taken into an orphanage at Hadjin by some Mennonite missionaries, where he became an ardent Christian and a sincere opponent of the violence and war so prevalent in his native land. The coming of the World war drove out the missionaries and scattered the Armenians. Bedros and his companions were drafted into the Turkish army, where they were hated almost as much as was the enemy. Bedros believed that a Christian could not take up the sword, so he was forced to work in a hospital unit. At Gallipoli he helped to bury 3,000 Turkish dead during a nine hour truce; on the Mount of Olives he was captured by the British and later interned in Egypt where he was made an interpreter for the British.

Through his friends, the Mennonite missionaries, he entered America after passing through many trials and temptations. He enrolled at Bluffton College where he receievd his A. B. degree. Since that time he has continued his education and established a Christian home at 320 Drexel Ave., Decatur, Georgia.

"Prisoner of War 31,163" is written from the "War Journal" of Mr. Sharian by one of his former teachers. It is not only a mission of love, it is also a testimony to the reality of a non-resistant life. Bedros hopes his story may help others who are facing difficulties, and that it may help point the way to a happier day for our troubled world. In the concluding chapter of the book are these words from the "Journal":

> "Christ is the hope of nations as of individuals. There never was a time more cut off from Christ than ours, not one which needed Him more greatly. To know Christ, to accept Him as a personal Savior from childhood is the safest pathway to life. The redeemed homes will establish a redeemed nation, and a redeemed nation will redeem the world."

All persons interested in Christian peace, and especially Mennonites through whom Mr. Sharian found Christ as a Savior and a Way of Life, will wish to read "Prisoner of War 31,163." It may be ordered through the Mennonite Book Concern, from Mr. Sharian at the above address, or directly from the publishers.—E. L. H.

Since the editor of THE MENNONITE also had a chance to read this book depicting the experiences of Bedros Sharian, he feels constrained to tell our Mennonite people that a reading of it will be immensely worth while. The book has eighteen chapters, 202 pages, and is somewhat illustrated. It is dedicated "to the Wife and Little Sons of a Christian Soldier and to the Young Men and Women of Responsible Leadership of a Suffering but Succeeding Race." It is this thread of undaunted faith in Christ and the ultimate victory of his cause, which is running through the book, that grips the Christian reader. Here are a people that have been persecuted and slaughtered by the Turks and Arabs, almost to the point of extinction, and yet this young representative has the faith to say, "The remnant will rise again and once more will be a light in the Near East, if the purpose of God in their life prevails . . . Armenia will rise again. Only she needs a sheltered place in which destruction that creates suffering and want is shut out, and opportunity to live prevails."—J. R. T.

Kind reader, order this book. You will be a better Christian after reading it, and your faith in the ultimate victory of righteousness will be strengthened. Our young people, by all means, should read it. The price is $1.50 at the MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, INDIANA.

Educational News

From the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America

The following article contains many things that may serve as a lesson and encouragement to the Mennonites:

IF THE APPORTIONMENT GOAL WERE REACHED

The Baltimore Convention of the United Lutheran Church in America approved the resolution of the Lutheran Laymen's Movement for Stewardship "to urge the agreement of all the synodical bodies to constitute a campaign among the congregations for the years 1939 and 1940, to raise 100 per cent of the apportionment." If the laymen are "in dead earnest," as we believe they are, and if the pastors support the laymen in being interested in the whole program of the whole Church with the result that the two million dollar apportionment is reached, it is proper to ask: How would the money be spent? According to the present distribution of the apportionment the Board of Education would then receive annually $180,000. The Board of Education answers.

1.	To support the department of Bible and Religious education in each college, ----	$ 42,000
2.	To assist colleges not fully accredited in reaching greater efficiency and higher standards	36,000
3.	To assist theological seminaries in producing a more effective ministry --------------	50,000
4.	To support Christian work with students in non-Lutheran colleges and universities	39,000
5.	To promotion and research: conferences, printing -------------------------------	6,000
6.	To administration (less than 4%) ---	7,000
	Total ------------------------	$180,000

But this sum is not enough. This Board ought to aid each year a number of young men and women to prepare themselves for positions of leadership in the church. This Board ought to be assisting professors and pastors with scholarly ability in the writing and translating of books. This Board needs more than the above $6,000 for promotion and research. This Board needs several thousand dollars each year for special emergency situations occuring in seminaries, colleges and student work. This Board ought to aid in even larger sums than the above our seminaries, colleges and student work. This Board needs up to $300,000 annual income for the program of higher education in the United Lutheran Church in America.

STEWARDSHIP AND EDUCATION

At the National Stewardship Convention recently held in Chicago a speaker declared that the reason the American people do not develop the sense of their stewardship lies in the training received in schools where the students are separated from the most significant values of life. Students in the schools must be taught that God is the owner of all and that the goods of the earth are for the subsistence and enjoyment of all people. The positive obligation to share goods with those who are less fortunate and who do not have sufficient goods for their own needs must be taught continuously to all people from childhood through adulthood. These principles of stewardship were thought to be valuable safeguards of our American institutions and ideals, and ultimately the means of saving the world from the present threatening forces of destruction.

This means that, if stewardship is to be prominent on the consciousness of the American people, these educational institutions—Christian colleges and seminaries—must be maintained and supported in a far larger degree. Judson, the famous missionary recognized this and declared if he were to have $100 he would give it to a Christian college in America where the seed-corn of the ages is raised. A prominent layman in North Dakota saw this truth and declared: "I doubt that our means can be put to better use than to support that important branch of the work of the Master's kingdom—Christian Education."

President F. H. Knubel, a few years ago wrote: "The Church in America can not thrive, can not live strongly without colleges and seminaries. The present educational tendencies in the secular and state institutions are so frequently antagonistic to faith that the religion of youth is subjected to strains for which it naturally is not yet prepared. He who believes at all in the principles of religious education must believe in the Church college. Such a conclusion is inescapable. Furthermore, because of our desire for and joy in an educated ministry we know that only the best institutions of learning will satisfy us."

Appeal for Peace Books

Have you any books on Christian Peace which you would be willing to donate to our Western District Loan Library?

The Peace Committee is anxious to help in the gathering of an adequate supply of good literature on the subject of Christian Peace to be made available for loan to our churches.

Please send books or lists of materials to: The Western District Peace Committee, Walter H. Dyck, Secretary, Burrton, Kansas.

—The City of Menno, So. Dak. was named after the Mennonites, but it had to wait 63 years to get a Mennonite church. Menno never had more than one or two Mennonite families, but now about a dozen have found their way there. Evangelist John S. Mendel of St. Paul has accepted a call and will move to Menno. They will use the old Baptist church as their house of worship.—Freeman Courier.

A Brief Review of E. Stanley Jones' Latest Book "The Choice Before Us"

By P. H. Richert

The leading question of this book is: "How shall a world catastrophe be avoided? By Naziism, or Fascism, or Communism, or Capitalism?" His answer in a word is, "No, not by these isms but by the Kingdom of God on earth." And he puts emphasis on "on earth."

It is, as all his books are, very ably written and there is so much truth in the book that one hesitates to point out any weak spots and false statements. This is all the more difficult because he speaks with such zeal and fire, that one hates to say anything that might be like pouring cold water on it.

So one of the best things in his book is the fire and zeal with which he writes about this greatest of all subjects (aside from God Himself), namely the Kingdom of God, its importance and blessings. Any one who reads the book will pray the Lord's prayer more fervently, especially the first part of it, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." He writes as if he were obsessed by this idea. And when a bishop accused him of being "obsessed with the idea of the kingdom of God on earth," Jones says that he cried out inwardly, "Would to God that I were!" With this wish he begins and closes his book.

While this zeal is the strength of the book, it is also its weakness. As we know, that is usually the case with men, their points of strength are also their points of weakness. Jones is so afire with this idea, that he even oversteps the bounds of scriptural teaching and truth to make his point. If it were not for this, the book would be one of the strongest influences against the four isms mentioned above, including communism. As it is, the edge against communism is somewhat dulled. Any one who has read his other book on communism would, of course, expect this. Dr. Jones quotes, e.g., Plowright approvingly praises the Soviet method as "Good will expressing itself in service." Just the opposite is true: Hate expressing itself in coercion and slavery. This element in communism Dr. Jones partially condones, because he thinks that the aim is well being for all, although he admits that there is hate temporarily, and also admits that hate cannot but end in hate. How he can then say almost in the same breath, "There is very close kinship between Christianity and Communism," is a mystery to me. My only explanation is his overzealousness, and his willingness to set the scriptures aside where it seems to oppose his zeal for material blessings. Without hesitation, e. g., he criticises the 12 apostles for their zeal for preaching and prayer as expressed in Acts 6:2-4: "Then the twelve . . . said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God and serve tables . . . But we will give ourselves continually to prayer and to the ministry of the word." This saying pleased the whole multitude, but it does not please Dr. Jones, because it so emphatically puts spiritual food above physical food, and gives the physical care over to newly elected deacons.

This over-emphasis on the physical needs one feels all through the book. Jesus also emphasises the physical needs, but is very careful never to leave the impression that it is equal to the spiritual. In fact he makes it very plain that the healing miracles are chiefly important in proving His deity, which is a very spiritual matter. John 20:31. Dr. Jones has the audacity to directly deny this spiritual purpose of Jesus' healings. But if it had not been for this, God could easily have sent a prophet with healing power and thus relieve suffering as Jesus did, if such relief would have been the chief purpose. It was only one purpose, and not even the chief one. Reading this book makes the impression that it leaves very little room for such statements of Christ as this: "Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do." Luke 12:4.

This unscriptural emphasis on the physical welfare leads to what amounts to a misquotation of Christ. On page 36 he quotes the fine passage in Luke 4:18 where Jesus reads his life program from Isaiah 61:1. This verse contains six points one of which expresses the very heart of his program, but Jones omits it, namely this: "To heal the broken hearted." Why does he omit this? Not because he does not believe in it, but he does not want to put it in the very center of all other healing. The other healings are interpreted as first of all pointing to physical help. "To preach the gospel to the poor," he says, means first of all the physically poor. But Matthew 5:3 shows that Christ means first of all the "poor in spirit." Only at the close of Jones' exposition of this passage does he also mention the spiritual healing, although nowhere does he quote the heart of this text. In principle Jones admits that no other healing is a real healing unless the heart is healed, but in practice the book does not exemplify this sufficiently.

This also leads to unfairness in his comparisons between the different isms. From the Nazi and Fascist books he quotes at length, and picks out the worst passages. Not so from the Communist writings. Or does he know what the Commisar of Education of the Russian Soviet Republic writes? Here is a part of it:

"We hate Christians. Even the best of them must be regarded our enemies. They preach love of one's neighbor which is contrary to our principles. Christian love is a hindrance to the development of the revolution. Down with love for one's neighbor. What we want is hatred. We must know how to hate, for only at this price can we conquer the universe. We have done with the kings of the earth; let us now deal with kings of the skies. All religion is poison.

A fight to the death must be declared upon all religion. Our task is to destroy all kinds of religion, all kinds of morality." There is not a word or even a sign here of the final aim being love. Dr. Jones asserts (page 121) "Both of them (Christianity and Communism) would try to embody the second commandment, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' and both would define neighbor as apart from race and birth and color and class . . . . This is a very profound agreement and must not be lost sight of in the unwelcome business of discussing disagreements." Who is right, Jones or that Commissar of Education? The latter ought to know, being at the head of the schools.

In arguing for communism, Jones points to the first church in Jerusalem as an example. But he constantly falls into the error of using the word community for church. It was not the community that had everything in common but the church. And there were good reasons for that. This identifying church and community is very confusing and misleading in his book.

He has a very fine chapter on peace, but even here he disregards reality. He claims that justice would bring peace. But while it would aid peace, it cannot guarantee it. Abel was a just brother, but that did not keep Cain from killing him, just because Abel was so just. I John 3:12.

Jones admits that competition is good, if it is of the right kind, namely a competition about who can do the most good to the world with his talents and money. Yes, that would be scriptural competition, and would be more scriptural than communism, even pure communism. It is hoped that Jones' next book will be on the right kind of competition.

Dr. Jones claims that Russian communism is cooperation, which makes it akin to Christianity. But forced cooperation is a dead thing, a machine, and machines have no real cooperation. Real cooperation implies a common purpose and sympathy.

He says, it is folly to change the individual and leave him in an unchanged, selfish, corporate life. But that is exactly where Paul left his churches. Phil. 2:15, and yet expects them to be "blameless and harmless, and without rebuke in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation."

He never mentions the return of Christ, "whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of the holy prophets since the world began." Acts 3:21.

There are some more unscriptural teachings in the book, but time and space does not permit to mention all.

All this shows that even a good book like this can confuse the reader, unless he sticks closely to the Scriptures and to facts.

With this warning I would recommend this book to the riper class of readers.

Publication

In the MENNONITE of January 17th we announced that after Jan. 15th all the business connected with the publication of the General Conference periodicals would be concentrated in Newton, Kans., and requested that following that date all orders and renewals for these publications, as well as all payments for same, be sent to Newton and addressed to MENNONITE BOOK ONCERN, 131 B West 6th St., Newton, Kansas.

This address has now been changed to: MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE, NEWTON, KANSAS. READERS PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!

It is gratifying to note the large number of subscriptions and payments that have been received at the Newton Office, since the announcement was made. It shows that subscribers really read our conference periodicals. But due to similarity in names, some confusion has arisen in the minds of not a few, concerning our main office at Berne, Ind., and the branch office at Newton. For this reason it has been deemed advisable to change the name of the Newton office, making it shorter and simpler.

Western District Conf. Loan Library

Twenty-five persons or churches have so far called for books, and the Committee feels greatly encouraged with the results and in a desire to do more. Our problem is the need of money to buy more books. While the library contains more than 800 books, many of them are either in German or otherwise left unwanted. If all churches would take and send us a collection now, as a few have, we could do a great deal of good in furnishing the right kind of reading material. A. J. Regier, Secr. Education Committee

ANNOUNCEMENT

It may not be known to all mission friends, that Bro. Missionary P. J. Wiens has now so to say finished his itinerary through the churches in the interest of missions. They now live in Newton, and are free for other services in the churches.

Mrs. Wien's health is not yet strong enough for them to return to the field this year, and may not be strong enough at all. But while they are waiting they are willing to accept a call, at least temporarily, to some church that is without a pastor. Before they went back to India the last time, they served the Hutchinson church for a while. All this experience will be valuable for further service.

Peter Heals a Lame Man

Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12

Topic: What Christians Have to Share

The Lame Beggar vs 1-3

Peter and John, formerly partners in the fishing business, are now close associates in Christian work. They still regard themselves as Jews and being men of prayer, they went regularly to the temple, to them the house of prayer. At the ninth hour—the hour of the evening sacrifice (Ex. 29:39)—the very hour at which Jesus died—they went to the temple (v 1). Here they could pray in God's house undisturbed. Perhaps we would do well to have our houses of worship open at all hours of the day for those wishing to meditate and pray there quietly.

A case of extreme need, a real opportunity to help presented itself to them at the temple entrance (v 2). Utterly helpless, this man was carried there daily, expecting alms from the worshippers. He asked Peter and John (v 3) expecting nothing unusual from them, but he was to receive the greatest joy of his life. Beneath his poverty and helplessness, Peter saw the heart, the longings, the soul of a man—not just a poor beggar.

The Man Healed vs 4-10

Peter and John looked earnestly on him (v 4) and demanded his attention, arousing expectancy (v 5). Peter could not give to him the much desired alms (v 6), instead he offered to share with him in the name and through the power of Jesus Christ, that which was infinitely more desirable. He bade him to do, in Jesus' name, the very thing he had never been able to do. That which is naturally impossible, is possible "in the name of Christ." Peter took him by the hand, helped him, and the power resident in Christ's mighty name came into his impotent feet as he believed and sought to obey (v 7, v 16). Peter had learned the value of the helping hand (Mk. 1:31) and we need to learn it too. Peter shared his faith with the lame man, brought him into touch with Christ's saving power. The man rightly gave God the praise (v 8) and in his own strength went into God's house praising Him. He was fully healed and he knew it. The people were amazed at the unmistakable cure (v 10) and many were converted (4:4). The miracle gave the gospel message a ready hearing (vs 12-26). A similar occurrence would cause equal excitement today.

Peter's Reply to the Sanhedrin 4:8-12

Opposition by the Jewish leaders to the preaching of the gospel of salvation through the risen Jesus, now began (4:1-7). Peter and John were arrested and brought before the Sanhedrin. The question, "By what power, or by what name have ye done this?", gave Peter—now bold and fearless—the opportunity for his remarkable and forceful answer (vs 8-12). The Spirit directed him (v 8) in his reply. Peter, the accused, has become the accuser (v 10). The man was healed in the name of the risen Christ. He drives home his charge with the heavy Scripture blow (v 11. Ps. 118:22) and appeals to them to accept Christ for salvation (v 12). He alone can save from sin to a new life, from bondage into freedom.

What Christians Have to Share

Peter's words (v 6) suggest the question, what have we that we can share with the needy world? We can support organized charities to relieve distress and need or do this by personal touch. There are, in addition, other things than money needed. The value of the personal touch must not be underestimated. Some are starving for sympathy or for real friendship. Many hearts are aching for the comfort and sympathetic understanding. As Christians and as friends we may cheer some hearts by genuine sympathy and interest. There are those whose paths cross ours, to whom we can bring courage and inspiration. Good Christianity prompts us to develop our spiritual life and also to think of others. This is our Christian duty.

FORUM

HINTS ON OUR PUBLICATIONS

In the December 20 number of THE MENNONITE a kind, well-intentioned brother gave the Board of Publication some valuable pointers as to the attitude the people take concerning our publications. The main suggestions which he had gathered from contact with our people were: 1. Reduce the subscription price. 2. Take on good, clean advertisements. 3. Run a continuous story in the papers. 4. Give THE MENNONITE a new name, with less distinctive exclusiveness.

Below we have the opinion of a wide-awake, young sister which we gladly bring here. And if any others would like to say a word, they are welcome. Only we must be brief and to the point. Here is the letter:

Wichita, Kansas, Jan. 18, 1939

Dear Brother Thierstein: I always look forward to the coming of THE MENNONITE. I read it with a great interest. In the December 20 MENNONITE I found a letter to which I would like to give my personal viewpoint. I am not offering criticism to the brother from F . . . ., but only my opinion. First he says the renewal subscription price is too high. I am wondering if we ever sit down to figure out just how much it costs? $1.50 a year or 50 weeks means that one paper (16 large pages) costs us only three cents. In modern parley one might say, "What do you expect for a nickel?" This is good reading for only three cents a week. It's a grand paper.

Advertisements! One sees them everyday, everywhere. Why have them in a church paper? At our conference at Saskatoon someone made the statement, that daddy was always willing to go to the gas station to pay the charge that had been made by his youngsters. But when he was asked to get them (the young folks) the church paper, then, "Oh no! No! That costs too much." But why should the Mennonite subscription suffer? In a home where there are young people the "youth paper" and the MENNONITE should enter "hand in hand". It will unite and not divide us!

A Continuous Story, with healthy and spiritual uplift, would be interesting in both THE MENNONITE and the "youth paper."

A New Name? Here I do not know just what to say. I do really think, though, THE MENNONITE is rather a nice name for our church paper.

Many blessings to you as editor of the MENNONITE. I am hopefully looking forward to the early publication of our "youth paper".

Esther Hiebert.

The Cruelty of Atheism

from "The Link," published by Russian Miss. Society

"In one prison there was a woman with me accused of some crime of which she was not even aware. The examiner decided that her refusal to acknowledge it was stubborness, and decided to 'get it out of her.' Once she was examined without intermission, for 48 hours. She was not even permitted to sit. When her feet could no longer hold her up, or she would be falling into sleep after two sleepless nights, special methods were used to bring her up from the floor. The purpose of such treatment was to exhaust her to such an extent that she would be unable to resist any longer and would confess and sign anything. Finally she was released, and practically carried back to our cell. We tried to help her by undressing her, but her feet, legs, and almost all her body were swollen to such an extent that we had to cut her shoes, stockings and even her dress to give her some relief.

"Some of those Examiners know the Bible, and sometimes use it during the questioning. This is done to meet us, so to say, on our ground. In some cases, they purposely torture in order to find out whether the person is a real Christian or pretends to be one. The firmness of the believers, which they usually call 'stubborness," baffles them, angers and sometimes fills them with rage."

"If they hate the believers so much, why do they not kill them straight off?" we wondered.

"Putting to death is not sufficient. Christians are criminals not only because they are believers, but because they dare to be, and dare to persist in it," she answered.

MENNONITE CHURCH, PULASKI, IOWA

I desire to merely make mention of three very interesting and inspiring letters I received recently from China. I wish the letters could be read by all Mennonite readers. They were from the Pannabeckers, Sister Aganetha Fast, and the Voth family. The letters were so encouraging and uplifting spiritually that I felt urged to make mention of it here. One of them says that it is great to be a missionary. We certainly agree. When we see what noble and brave activities are being put forth in the winning of precious souls, in a war stricken country, where their very lives are jeopardized, amidst shot and shell for a year or more. A year has passed and things are better beyond expectation. At Taming attendance was never better; offerings unusually large. 850 children in the daily Bible schools, 1174 attended instruction classes. 102 baptized, etc. Some of these letters will be read, in part at least, at our Women's Missionary meetings. May the good work continue to grow and prosper in China. May God continue to bless you with an inflowing of souls into the kingdom, and may all of this encourage the church at home to give and pray as never before. — W.W.M.

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by the Young People's
Committee of the General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.

William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Because of added duties at the college, Prof. B. Bargen has asked to be relieved as editor of "Our Youth Says." We have found an able successor in Mr. Reynold Weinbrenner, a graduate of Bethel College in 1936 and at present teaching at Lehigh, Kansas. Our prayers go with him as he takes up this work, and we expect young people to help him in every way possible to make these pages what God wants them to be.

Olin A. Krehbiel, Pres., Y. P. U.

Our Aim

In order to inform the readers of "Our Youth Says" of what we are trying to do in these pages and to assure those who have offered suggestions that their suggestions are being given thoughtful consideration, we publish the following statement of purpose.

Our motto remains as before: "A United Mennonite Youth in Christ." We shall strive to realize the following three main points. (1) To get more souls to know God more fully through His Son, Jesus Christ. To achieve this aim we shall promote the following sub-points. a. Missions, foreign and home; b. Peace; c. C. E. work; d. Education; e. Mennonite history and principles; f. Concrete knowledge of how the General Conference functions. In handling this material the editor shall try to bear in mind the suggestions offered by Miss Emma Ruth at the last General Conference session and the results yielded by the Questionnaire in "Our Youth Says." (2) To get more young people to read "Our Youth Says." For this we request the help of faithful readers. (3) To publish news and helpful material gathered from the various districts.

In this work for Christ and His Kingdom we need YOUR help. As editor I request your prayerful support.—R. W.

Every man stamps his value on himself. The price we challenge for ourselves is given us. There does not live on earth the man, be his station what it may, that I despise myself compared with him. Man is made great or little by his own will.—Schiller.

What Choice Shall I Make?

By Ed Hirstine

We Mennonites are a unique religious group only because we hold certain beliefs, which to many others seem insignificant, foolish, or even "dangerous."

It is my conviction that Mennonites ought to be, and could be, leaders in the field of Peace and International Relations. However, like the Pharisees in the time of Christ, we insist on the insignificant things, allowing the weightier and worthwhile duties to remain undone. If we are to be true followers of Christ, then let us not be content with anything less than that for which Christ stood. We who have accepted him as the very highest in life, upon us rests the responsibility to carry on his work. For is this not what he expects us to do?

There are many different fields of work which are in need of Christian workers. One of these which today appears as overshadowing all others, and upon which the fate of mankind itself seems to hang is that of Peace. The idea of non-resistance, the belief that war is contrary to the doctrine of Christ, has been the one thing which all Mennonites have agreed from the beginning of their existence on through the years to this day. (With the exception of present European Mennonites). Yet, really we have never made full use of this doctrine. There have been too many petty ideas which have been retarding progress, and because of this most Mennonites themselves fail to understand the real significance of this doctrine of non-resistance; to say nothing of the world at large.

The world is again moving toward war. Aside from the fact that we have done little or nothing to combat the causes of war, we also have done little to clarify our own position, should this country be drawn into war. What type of non-resistance if any are we Mennonites willing to adopt? Just what stand will the boys take who come in under the draft? Isn't this the time to give such important matters some thought and preparation, so when the time really comes we can meet the situation more intelligently and more effectively? The least we can do for those who must face this situation is to prepare them for it as far as possible. Most of us must realize the seriousness of what the boy will be called upon to face. The better we are prepared, and the more united we are in our opposition to participating in war, the better we will be prepared to pay the price demanded of those who stand for peace and against war.

We should do everything possible to prepare our young people for whatever stand they decide to take. They will meet severe opposition and they will need real preparation to meet the test.

There are three choices which they can make:

1. Accepting the draft without opposition.
2 Willingness to do certain type of work other than drilling with guns.
3. Complete non-resistance.

Let us analyze these choices so as to determine just which we wish to accept. The first need hardly be discussed as it is entirely contrary to Mennonite doctrine and would in itself be an endorsement of war.

The second choice is the one which many Mennonites seem to favor. This is a sort of compromise with the military in that it does not come out in bold opposition, but is willing to do certain things if more objectionable things will not be required. It is registering a sort of objection to an evil, at the same time assisting the accomplishment of that evil without doing the evil itself. It may be that a good many things can be said in favor of this choice. Perhaps a compromise can accomplish more in the long run than deliberate opposition. Perhaps through education enough people will finally be convinced of the futility of war so that war cannot be declared. There are those who believe that war is an integral part of this world and that we as human beings can do nothing to change it, so the only course to be taken is to make the best of things. Isn't this merely trying to meet these conditions the easiest way so as not to make any greater sacrifices than necessary? If Christ would have chosen to do likewise would he have been nailed to the cross?

The third choice, complete non-resistance, is the severest choice to make. To refuse to take any part whatsoever in war will make us the worst type of enemy of the militarists. Such a stand against war will mean opposition to the government in its war activities, and such opposition will bring suffering, imprisonment, and even death. But why should we hesitate to make these sacrifices for so great a cause? While others are sacrificing their lives on the battlefield, killing others and being killed, which is in itself evil, and creates and intensifies evil, should we not be willing to suffer and give our lives for that which we know is right? Can we as Christians do otherwise? As we face Christ and as we try to learn more fully just what Christ would want us to do we cannot escape making certain choices. Let us choose not that which appears to be the easier, but that which will bring about the greatest amount of good. Let us meet the problems of this world today as Christ met them in his day.—The Plowshare.

Hands Across Racial Barriers

Suggested Hymns

"O, Zion Haste," "More About Jesus"

"Just today we chanced to meet,
Man to man, upon the street;
And I questioned, "Tell me true,
Are you Christian, or a Jew?
Are you English, German, Russian,
French, Italian, Turk, or Prussian?"

" 'Ere you pass upon your way,
What's your native land, I pray?
Then he gave me his reply,
With his head uplifted high:
What I am by race or birth
Matters not one whit on earth;
For at heart I am no other
Than to every man—a brother."

Suggested Topics:

1. Do the Jewish people deserve the persecution they receive? Why? 2. What attitude did the Jews of Jesus' day hold toward other races? 3. How did Peter meet the problem of race relations? 4. What does the Bible teach about the way races should get along with each other? 5. Is all discrimination essentially unwise and unjust? 5. How do International Houses create better feelings toward the races? 7. What contributions are made and what problems are presented to our civilization by each of the following: a. The white race, b. The Jewish race, c. The negro, d. The Oriental people, e. The Mexicans? 8. Race prejudice the fruit of selfishness, egotism, and ignorance. 9. Love, the antidote of selfishness.

Lesson Discussion.

Today is Race Relations Sunday and it is well to examine the Christian attitude of one race toward another. Race prejudice stands as one of the searching tests of the spirit of genuine religion. This problem is one of the biggest facing the Christian world today, and it lies directly in the path of the onward march of Christianity.

Our own tendency to race prejudice is due to the fact that we overlook the contribution of the different races and nations to the progress of civilization. Italy has given us world-famed artists and sculptors. France and Germany have made their contribution of statesmen, authors, artists and scientists. Africa gave the world Booker T. Washington. Gandhi speaks from India. Greece was the home of the great Socrates. Young America has produced a Lincoln and a Lindberg and the ancient Jewish race gave the world its Savior, Jesus Christ. E. Stanley Jones, Sherwood Eddy, Kagawa, Grenfell, Albert Schweitzer and many others are helping men and nations to know each other better and to more fully appreciate and respect one another.

The essential requirements in the solution of the race problem are: 1. Give due credit to the different races for their contribution to the ongoing of civilization. 2. Give all races and individuals the privilege of controlling increasingly the current of their own lives. 3. Recognize that God made all people in his own image and consider the part that superiority of opportunity has had in the relative advancement of the races. 4. Realize that we do not need to destroy race differences in order to solve the problem. (This would be a good outline for a longer talk).

The individual loses his prejudices to the extent that he will "do justly, and love mercy, and walk humbly with his God." Every time a white man is constructively helpful to one of another race, he loses some of his prejudices. "Bear ye one another's burdens," "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise," "Love one another as I have loved you," are simple statements but far reaching and revolutionary if applied to this problem of race relations.

If question No. 5, of the suggested topics is used it should be given to five persons for short talks, perhaps, two-minutes each. It is the purpose of the writer of this column to merely suggest ideas for thought as lack of space prohibits the giving of much material for talks.

Pray God (1) for an enlarged vision of spiritual life; (2) for a genuine desire to help those of other races find their highest selves; (3) for His blessings upon all mankind, that they may live together in harmony and peace.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Those in Need

Intermediate Christian Endeavor, Feb. 19, 1939

For Daily Reading

Feb. 13. Refusing dues. Prov. 3:27-29
Feb. 14. Indifference. Luke 16:19-26
Feb. 15. Considering the poor. Ruth 2:2-12
Feb. 16. Lending to the Lord. Prov. 19:17
Feb. 17. The royal law. James 2:8-17
Feb. 18. Acceptable service. Isa. 58:6-12
Feb. 19. Topic—Our neighbors who are in need. Matt. 25:34-46; Luke 10:30-37

Practical Christian Endeavor

Much is done for needy people at Christmas. We say then that this spirit should be carried through the year. That is true. It does something to us. For that reason you should not miss the opportunity of planning something for your society in connection with the discussion of this topic. It might be a basket of food, a bucket of coal, or cutting wood for a needy family or showing underprivileged children a good time in some way.

A Suggested Program

I. Select songs of service and love for your opening. Have your society announcements during this part the program.

II. Quiet Worship. (Announce your topic before you begin this part of the program. Have an outline of your worship service on the blackboard, so that further announcements are unnecessary. Quietness stimulates worship) Song: "Brightly Beams"

1) Scripture reading and talk: Matt. 25:34-46. Bring out how many different kinds of needs people may have. What are some of the causes of the needs mentioned? How does Jesus look upon our ministering to these needs? Song: "Where Cross the Crowded Ways"

2) Scripture reading and talk: Luke 10:30-37 The Samaritan asks no questions. The fact that a man is in need is a call to him to serve. What did it cost the Samaritan in time? in service? in money? in ignoring class and race barriers?

Sentence prayers, closing with "Let the Beauty of Jesus"

Offering prayer song:

III. Topic Presentation

1. What the Bible Teaches (short talks)
   - a. A Practice in Bible Days. Ruth 2:2-12. How did they treat the poor? Do we show consideration equal to this?
   - b. Lending to the Lord. Prov. 19:17. How does the Lord repay those who lend to Him this way?
   - c. Paying our dues. Prov. 3:27-29. Why is it wrong to withhold the good we can do to another?
   - d. The Royal law. James 2:8-17. How does our attitude toward the poor prove the reality of our faith?
   - e. Indifference. Luke 16:19-26. In what way was the rich man poorer than Lazarus? Some one has said:

"A man is poor—
If he has a guilty conscience.
If he is selfish, uncharitable, cruel.
If his soul has been neglected.
If making money has crowded out the cultivation of his spiritual life.
If all his investments and possessions are laid up on earth and he has no treasures in Heaven."

2. For Discussion
   a. What are some of the causes of poverty in your community? In the world?
   b. What efforts are being made to relieve this poverty in your community? What is the best cure? In connection with this topic it might be interesting to read what one of our churches is doing to relieve poverty in the MENNONITE —Jan. 10, '39, "Work by West. Dist. Mission Church." Why does the Bible say, "Blessed is he that Considereth the poor?"
   c. Why is spiritual poverty more serious than physical? Why do spiritual and physical poverty often go hand in hand? The condition in our own United States in a recent survey is reported as follows: Protestants 6; Catholics 4; Jews 1; Not affiliated 14. Each figure representing a million people. What can we do to relieve this spiritual poverty? Miss Burkhalter reports the following conditions in India in a recent letter: 15,000 are being baptized each month. Nearly 7 million are Christians, but there are 345 million without Christ, or about 94 per cent. This is more or less typical of many so called heathen nations.

"Shall we, whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high,
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?

IV. Closing Moments

Poem: "Herein is love, to strip the shoulders bare,
If need be, that a frailer one may wear
A mantle to protect it from the storm;
To bear the frost-king's breath so one may be warm;
To crush the tears it would be sweet to shed,
And smile so others may have joy instead."

Song: "Love Thyself Last" Mennonite Hymnal (265)

Benediction verse: Ps. 19:14

JUNIOR CORNER

February 19, 1939

"Come Ye to the Waters"

I. Call to service — Prelude

II. Quiet music — Pianist plays introduction to the opening hymn "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling."

All rise and speak in unison: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

Silent Prayer: All heads bowed while piano plays the refrain of the song very softly.

Sing verses 1 and 3 of the song.

Be seated.

Responsive Reading: Psalm 103 v. 1 - 5 and 10 - 12.

Leader's prayer.

Song of month. Verse 1—"Jesus Loves Even Me"

III. Mission Minutes

Two Juniors report on Mission News. One report should be on India, the other on China. (Sources for material: our church papers, Mennonite, Bundesbote, Mission News and Notes).

IV. Class Period. Aim: To create in the junior a desire to have the "Living Water" and help him to respond to Christ's gracious, "Come."

Leader's Heart talk: The leader should have a potted plant that is wilted and dying from lack of water. Should also have a large picture of "Christ at the Well." (Picture Roll).

Draw attention to the plant. Conversion with juniors brings out its need of water. We too need the living water for our spiritual life. We all want to be happy. This is the thirst which is in our souls. God wants us to be holy and happy, and for this purpose He gives to us the water of life and invites us to "come and take." The water of life is something that no one can give but God alone. He has given it in giving us His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, so that if we come to Christ, we may have the living water, the water that gives life to the soul. But we must respond to the invitation. Let us read the gracious invitations given to us by our Heavenly Father and our Lord Jesus Christ.

Let juniors find and read reverently: Isaiah 55:1; John 7:37; Rev. 21:6; Rev. 22:17.

We will now hear the story of some one who heard this invitation and accepted it.

Have a junior who is a good story teller tell the story of "Christ at the Well." After the story has been told, again draw attention to John 4:10. John 4:14, and the Samaritan woman's prayer. "Give me this water."—John 4:15. Let that be the junior's prayer. Sing with heads bowed very softly, "Into My Heart."

V. Poem by Junior.

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
"Behold, I freely give
The living water, thirsty one,
Stoop down and drink and live."

I came to Jesus and I drank
Of that life-giving stream
My soul revived
And now I live in Him."

Closing Song: "Beautiful Stream."

Leader's closing prayer .

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, ALLENTOWN, PA.

Greetings: Just a word to the readers of the "Mennonite" about the great blessings which our church has enjoyed during 1938. The Lord has indeed smiled upon us during the past year, for at the end of our Sunday School year, Oct. 1, 1938, we had an increase of 37 per cent in attendance, our enrollment having been raised from 144 to 194. Then at the annual congregational meeting reports revealed that the finances of the church were better than ever, and the missionary offerings were increased $100 over any other year. Our pastor, the Reverend Howard G. Nyce, was unanimously elected for another three year term.

To start the New Year right we were blessed with the presence of Dr. Max Reich, who held a series of six meetings in our church under the auspices of the "Friends of Israel." The great teacher, a converted Jew, brought us inspiring messages, his subjects including "The Mystery, Romance, and Problems of Israel", "The Quest of Israel", and a helpful exhortation on Psalm 84.

Since "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights", we say with all our hearts "thanks be to God."—Sincerely, the Correspondent.

EBENEZER MENN. CHURCH, GOTEBO, OLKA.

Due to the fact that we did not have a regular correspondent, our church has not been heard from during the last two years. But our congregation, east of Gotebo, has been in active service all that time.—During the past year we have had messages of inspiration and blessings from missionary H. J. Brown, the Bethel College quartette at Easter, Rev. Fred Johnson of the Arizona mission, and Rev. P. P. Wedel, president of the W. D. Conference. During August we had one week of special meetings, conducted by Rev. P. H. Unruh, at which time we also partook of the Lord's supper.

On Dec. 24, the Christmas story, so old but ever new, was worshipfully rendered by the various Sunday School classes. And as is customary in our church, a mission collection was taken. The S. S. later voted to send one-half of the proceeds to the war orphans in China and the other half to Elizabeth Foth's mission in New York.

The annual business meeting was held Dec. 30, at which time Mr. Hege, our pastor, announced that he had accepted a call of the Carnegie Church, to serve them two Sundays each month. He will continue to serve our church every other Sunday, also every fifth Sunday and on special holidays.—On January 5, Rev. Frey of the O.B.A., accompanied by the Menno gospel quartette, rendered a much appreciated program in song and sermons. Mr. Frey gave an illustrated talk on heart pictures and Marvin Eck, one of the group, showed marked ability as a future minister in an inspiring sermonette. — Mrs. Oscar Schmidt, Corr.

In Memoriam

JOSEPH MAST, son of David and Magdalena (Wenger) Mast was born May 19, 1862, at Orrville, Wayne County, Ohio.

In May, 1864 he came with his parents to Iowa and settled in the Noble community, where he lived with them on their farm. In the year 1891 he founded his store in Noble, Iowa, where he remained in business till his departure.

He was united in marriage to Elizabeth Rittler, September 2, 1886, who passed away May 23, 1887. This loss was replaced when on April 14, 1897, he was married to Elizabeth Wenger, who survives him.

Upon his confession of faith in Jesus Christ as his Lord and Savior he was baptized by the Rev. S. M. Musselman and taken into the fellowship of the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church in 1916, where he remained an active and faithful member until the time of his death. He served the congregation faithfully for many years as a member of the Board of Trustees and the Board of Deacons.

A little more than a week ago he became ill, which proved fatal. On Thursday evening January 12, 1939 he was called to his eternal abode at the age of 76 years, 7 months and 24 days.—Mrs. D. E. W.

JACOB STAUFFER, son of Peter and Katharena Stauffer was born at St. Louis, Alsace-Lorraine, on March 15, 1860 and passed away in his home east of Salem, on January 3, at the age of 78 years.

Early in his life he accepted Christ as his Savior and was baptized by Rev. Jacob Zimmerman and united with the Mennonite Church at Basel, Switzerland.

He came to the United States in 1880 and settled in Wayne County, Ohio, then in the year 1890 he came to Oregon and settled in the community east of Salem where he lived as a progressive farmer until his departure.

He united with the Emmanuel Mennonite Church near Pratum, Oregon, in the year 1892 and was a very faithful and devoted Christian for all these years. For many years he served as a member of the church board; also as Sunday School teacher. Even this past year, when his health began to fail, he missed only four Sundays, so loyal and devoted was he to the work of the Lord and the church.

He was united in marriage with Josephine Gerig in 1892, and this union was blessed with seven children.

His departure is deeply mourned by his devoted wife, three sons, Joseph of Albany, Oregon; Daniel of Salem, Oregon; Jacob of Chicago, Ill. Four daughters, Mrs. Adam Hofstetter, Mrs. Gilbert Haury, Mrs. Fred Hersch, Miss Alma Stauffer, all of Salem, Oregon, ten grandchildren, and a large host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Franz, his pastor, and assisted by Rev. O. W. Whitman of the Methodist church. Internment in the Mennonite church cemetery east of Pratum, Ore.

The following, mostly self-composed obituary of J. W. Krehbiel appears here in somewhat abbreviated form.—Editor.

"I, JOHN WM. KREHBIEL, was born in Summerfield, Ill., August 10, 1860. My age at this writing is 70 years and 8 months. Having reached the biblical 'three score years and ten' and with my dearly beloved wife, Mary Kruse Krehbiel, having answered God's call to her heavenly home, I feel that the sunset of my terrestial life is near. I therefore briefly note these memoranda which may be helpful in the final rites given me.

"My father was Rev. Christian Krehbiel, originally of Summerfield, Ill., and later of Halstead, Kansas. My mother was Susanna A. Ruth Krehbiel. Their devout and consecrated lives had a deep influence upon me.

"When I was fourteen, on my confession of faith in Jesus Christ as my Savior, I was baptized by my father and became a member of the Mennonite Church.

"When I was 16 years old my father sent me to Kansas with one Jacob Schmitt. He gave me three horses and sent me by train and told me to break prairie on land he had purchased near Halstead. The following spring my younger brother, Henry, joined me and together we broke prairie on the land that was to become my father's future home. This farm was later called 'Krehbiel Town' and had an extended history through the philanthropic work of my parents. In 1880 they established an Indian Mission and Industrial School on this farm. When the government took over the education of the Indian wards, my father and mother then converted this institution into an orphanage, at which for many years they cared and provided for from thirty to forty orphans. The memory of these years still lingers in my mind.

"I was married to Mary E. Kruse of Halstead, October 19, 1884. We moved on a farm adjoining my father's. This union was blessed with three children, Celia, Carl, and Nelson.

"In March, 1887, I moved to Moundridge, where I entered the grain business. And in a few months joined my uncle, Jacob Galle, and others in the Moundridge Milling Company. I was made manager of this company in 1889 and following the death of my father, I became president. To date I have been with the Moundridge Milling Company 44 years. (Note: Mr. Krehbiel actually served this company 51 years).

"The following are some of the offices in which I have been privileged to serve: City Councilman; director of the Board of Education; president of the Bank of Moundridge; secretary of the Kansas Millers' Club; deacon of the West Zion church; treasurer of the Leisy Orphan and Aid Society; member of the Bethel College Board; chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Western Dist. Conference.

"On October 24, 1930, my wife, Mary, was called to her heavenly home. I thank God for the gracious gift of 46 years with my dearly beloved wife. She was divinely kind and helpful to me.

June 12, 1931. (Signed) J. W. Krehbiel.

Since then, Mr. Krehbiel has lost his only grandson, Clark Curtis Krehbiel, and two weeks later, June 12, 1937, his elder son, Carl Clifford Krehbiel.

The departed was called to his final reward January 6, 1939, at the Bethel Home for the Aged at Newton, Kansas, at the age of 78 years, 4 months and 16 days. He leaves to mourn his departure one daughter, Celia, and her husband, Orlando Goerz, of Los Angeles, Calif.; one son, Nelson W. Krehbiel and his wife, Gladys; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Walter Dyck, all of Moundridge; five granddaughters, six brothers, Henry P., Christian E., and Bernard P., all of Newton, Edward B. of New York City, Paul G. and Lucas P. of Halstead, and two sisters, Mrs. H. H. Ewert and Mrs. R. A. Goerz of Newton.

MRS. F. F. JANTZEN, NEE ANNA WIEBE, was born in the village of Lysanderhoeh, near Saratov, Russia, March 18, 1875, the daughter of Rev. Aaron J. and Maria Wiebe. She was brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. All the schooling that she received was in the little village school near her home. After receiving catechetical instruction from her elder, she gave herself to the Lord and was baptized in the Mennonite church at Orloff, Russia.

At the age of fifteen her dear mother died and she had to take care of the household and her younger brothers and sisters. The responsibility was great. In 1893 her father married a second time. In 1896 her father with his whole family moved, first to Beatrice, Nebraska, and then in 1897 to California. They settled in the place known as Adelaida, west of Paso Robles.

On January 15, 1903, she was united in marriage with Mr. F. F. Jantzen, and lived with him for nearly thirty-six years. She was a true, faithful and loving wife, and a wise, loving and giving mother for the ten children that the Lord gave them—giving herself entirely to the Lord and to her loved ones. She guided the house with a strong and firm hand, and raised the children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, so that one of her sons, on the occasion of his ordination as a missionary, could humbly say he received the first impulse for such a service from his dear mother and one of his Sunday School teachers. She performed all her service in a quiet and unassuming way, hiding herself, if possible, so as to remain unnoticed. Her busy life came to a sudden close on Sunday, January 8, 1939. We arose that morning at the usual time, all well, and after a short prayer, we resumed our various duties. At about seven o'clock that morning, she received a stroke of paralysis while at work in the yard. She spoke a few words yet. The doctor, who was quickly called, could not do anything for her anymore. At about eleven o'clock her heart stopped and her breath ceased.

She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, ten children, one son-in-law, four daughters-in-law, four grandchildren, one sister, two brothers, one stepbrother. These latter all with their families, and many other relatives and friends. Two sons are in the mission fields in the Orient.

She is now at home with the Lord. We rejoice in the sure hope of seeing her again in glory. "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Her body was laid to rest in our cemetery at Paso Robles, Wednesday, Jan. 11. Rev. C. Hege, Paso Robles, and Rev. H. B. Dirks, Los Angeles, spoke words of comfort. Two quartets and a trio sang appropriate and comforting songs.

The bereaved herewith express their sincere thanks to all who have expressed their sympathy and prayed for them. May the Lord bless them!

—From the Directory of First Church, Upland, Calif. we gather that the church was organized on January 4, 1903, that it has 18 charter members, a present membership of 339, that the present church edifice was dedicated Nov. 15, 1925, and that the following ministers have served it: M. M. Horsch, 1903-1915 and 1918-1926; A. S. Shelly, 1915-1918; Albert Penner (Supply) summers 1926-27; Lester Hostettler, 1927-29 and 1933——, and A. J. Neuenschwander, 1929-1933.

—First Church, Allentown, Pa.—The treasurer's report showed that the congregation had raised almost a $1000.00 more than the regular budget called for. This was our best financial year. All bills for improvement, repairs and painting are paid with a cash balance of $61.11. The White Christmas gifts by the various classes totalled $138.75 in cash, besides there came in canned goods and groceries.—The Friends of Israel held a week of services in this church, with Dr. Max I. Reich as speaker.

—ARE YOU READING A PAID MENNONITE. It costs the Board of Publication a large sum annually to publish and mail its periodicals. Every paid-up subscriber helps to meet this expense and to make it possible to send out these Christian papers into thousands of Mennonite homes. Readers whose subscriptions are in arrears are therefore kindly asked to pay to date or, better yet, a year in advance. Will you not do this?—J. M. S.

—Bluffton College.—Don Smucker, '36, recently gave his address on "Gains and Losses in Europe." He gathered his material on a summer tour as a member of a party led by Jerome Davis of Yale University. His pleasing and informal presentation completely captivated his audience. Mr. Smucker subsequently expects to compile a book for a leading publishing house. On his tour of Europe with other young people, Mr. Smucker made the acquaintance of a very fine young lady, Barbara Claassen, daughter of Banker C. W. Claassen and granddaughter of C. F. Claassen, Newton, Kans. and the couple was married Jan. 20 in the palatial home of the bride. Hearty congratulations for a long, happy and useful life!

—A Thought-starter for the New Year.—Life is as a slowly drawn circle, with some the circle is completed in old age, with some it is left only half drawn. No matter how far the circle of your life is drawn it must have a centre—a pivotal point from which the circle is circumscribed. That center must be firm and immovable or else it will not be a perfect circle. What is your centre, the object of your life? Is it to adore and glorify God each day of your life? Then you have a firm objective and your circle of life circumscribed about this point will be perfectly drawn. "Be ye perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.—Matthew 5:48.—Bethany Messenger, Freeman, S. D.

—Bethel College is offering 90 courses the second semester, among which are these new ones: General Epistles, History and Expansion of Christianity, and Basic Christian Convictions.—On January 25 the enrollment had reached 265. Quite a number of students had to quit, mainly for financial reasons, but eight new ones have come in.—A faculty delegation recently visited Berea College, Kentucky, to study the setup and plan of operation of that predominently industrial school. The earnings from a ten million dollar endowment fund pay the faculty salaries, but each industry must be self-supporting. Only students who have to work their way through school are admitted. They are being paid from 9 to 18 cents per hour for their work. There are no tuition charges.

—Rev. Paul Mouttet of the Brudertal, Kans. church, had to undergo an operation the fore part of January, but is satisfactorily convalescing, so that he could move from the hospital to his children on the farm.

—From a Kind Aged Sister.— Milford Square, Pa.: "Dear Brother: Enclosed you will find $1.50 for renewal of THE MENNONITEE for 1939. I am 88 years old and enjoy reading it.—Yours truly, Mrs. A. Q. Rosenberger."

—From Another Kind Sister, who sends in $4.50 for subscriptions. "I take great pleasure in congratulating you for the remarkable improvement and growth THE MENNONITE has put on this last year. May we all continue to pray for each succeeding issue, so that it may reach the homes of many more this new year. Miss Mildred Fretz."
Note: We are truly and heartily grateful for the appreciation these sisters express and for the encouragement it gives us.—Editor.

—Berne, Indiana.—An overflow crowd attended the final meeting conducted by Dr. Harry Rimmer, union meeting speaker during the last two weeks, at the Mennonite church last evening. He showed thousands of feet of movies of Egypt and the Holy Land, taken during his travels and archeological expeditions. —C. L. Habegger, manager of the Berne Manufacturing Co., has been elected head of the Berne Chamber of Commerce—At the annual meeting of the First Menn. Church, Robert L. Sprunger was elected to serve on the Board of Deacons with E. W. Baumgartner, Ben. Sprunger, Jerry Lichti and E. A. Luginbill. —Berne Witness.

—Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Pastoral Message. "Now FAITH" according to Hebrews 11:1, "means that we are confident of what we hope for, convinced of what we do not see." (Moffat Transl.) Conversely that already possessed or that clearly seen does not involve the faculty of faith. In its plans for 1939 Second Mennonite has undertaken great and unusual things. It has thus demonstrated a great faith in a great God, and faith that works will never be "put to shame."—The Pastor.

—Rev. W. S. Gottshall, who had been seriously ill a few days recently, is much better. Cards from friends will do much to cheer him up at: Mennonite Home, Frederick, Pa.

—Mountain Lake, Minn.— The Bible Conference closed Sunday. Many blessings have been received through Dr. P. R. Schroeder's lectures and the music conducted by Benjamin Horsch.

—The Pastor's Report of the Menn. Church at Hutchinson, Kans. shows a membership of 114, pupils in S. EDITORIALS

GIVING TO MISSIONS.—In an article on Missions, one of our exchanges tries to answer an argument by a certain reader, "that by giving to foreign missions we neglect our home responsibilities." The answer makes use of Horace Bushnell's famous list of individuals who should be excused to give to foreign missions. The conclusion the writer draws from these statements and other factors is, "I have never yet known a church that gives largely to foreign missions that neglected the home field. I have known hurches that give largely to home activities and neglect the foreign field." This caused the editor to make a little survey regarding the proportionate giving of our churches to the two fields. If the reader will turn to the statistical tables of the Mennonite Year Book he can verify the findings here given. The four conferences whose reports are listed, gave a yearly total f $87,362 to foreign and $36,235 to home missions. In per cent that makes 70% plus for foreign and 30% minus for home missions. For the E. D. the accounts seem to be about 50 to 50; the M. D. For. iss., 71%, Ho. Miss., 29%; the N. D., For. Miss. %, Ho. Miss., 35%; the W. D., For. Miss., 75%, Ho. Miss., 25%. Though the W. D. ratio on home nission appears rather low, it has given more than wice as much for this cause than the other three conferences together; its totals being $73,362 for foreign nd $25,102 for home missions, grand total for the ear, $98,372. The reasons why this conference is onsiderably higher in its giving for foreign missions, nay be partly attributed to the fact that the presi ts and three other members of the Board of For- Missions have for years been residents of that rict. This is not in the nature of a criticism, but the res would seem to indicate that the churches of the st. and Mid. Dist. might remember the Home Mis on treasuries a little more liberally.

AND JESUS LOOKING UPON HIM LOVED HIM.—Outwardly he must have been a handsome, ovable, well-mannered young man who came to Jesus n search of eternal life; yet, what a poor speciman f a real image of God, chained as he was to his possessions. He was one of those vacillating individuals hat do not know what they want, nor really want what they know. They resemble the boatsmen in Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress that are rowing toward one shore while looking at the other. How pitiable such an attitude! It seems as though it should have called forth Jesus' censure. Yet, he looked at the youth lovingly. Does this not help prove the fact that Jesus also sees us in our spiritual depravity and yet loves us? What Jesus loves in us is the image of God which he so sincerely desires to reveal, to bring out and make shine, so that it might continually glorify the Father in heaven, the very thing He kept on doing all his life.

A NEEDY MISSION FIELD.—Our field Secretary and the Board of Home Missions keenly sense the fact that the western part of Canada, where so many small, isolated groups of our people have found their abode, is in need of more helpful attention by our General Conference. Because of distances and lack of facilities for regular worship, many of these scattered flocks do not get the spiritual nurture and encouragement that they should have. The older folks find that need partly supplied by the "Briefe an mein Volk," graciously furnished by Rev. J. H. Janzen. But how about the young folks, the hope of the future of our church? We find it somewhat of a task to keep them going religiously, when they have preaching service, Sunday School, Y.P.C.E., etc., weekly or nearly so. Self-activity is a strong urge in younger blood. Keeping their mind and bodies occupied with good things is a necessity. It has been suggested that perhaps consolidation could be effected in some cases, but there would be difficulties. The help that will count is more pastoral workers or evangelists for the field. Why not use as a partial remedy, our college students who have inclination for religious work and service with young people? A good many would be glad to serve during vacation, others for longer periods. Such work would require the sanction of leaders and groups there, which would likely be gladly forthcoming. We have lost so many young people as they scatter out. We need to do more shepherding among such. Efforts and expenditures made in this direction would bring rich eternal rewards. "So then, as we have opportunity let us work that which is good toward all men, and especially toward them that are of the household of faith."—Gal. 6:10.

IS THE UNITED STATES SLIPPING INTO THE NEXT EUROPEAN WAR?—The news that our President as commander-in-chief of our military forces is making use of his prerogative and proposes to sanction the sale of large numbers of war planes to France and England, is stirring up a great deal of opposing sentiment the country over and, particularly, in the Senate, while in Europe there is both jubilation and condemnation over the news. This action and its consequences tend to involve the United States directly in the threatening affairs of Europe. It sounds even more dangerous when one reads that the nation's Executive has remarked to the Senate Committee of Military Affairs "that, in the event of a European war, he held that America had nothing to lose and everything to gain by a policy of cooperating with the democracies." That looks very much as though, in case of such a war, the United States would be definitely in it, unless the miracle should happen that our people would positively refuse to lend themselves to such an undertaking. Fortunately we know that God is still alive and directs affairs. May He have mercy on us that we do not repeat the blunder of 1917-18. May He, supported by the fervent prayers of all true Christians, rise in His power to avert the worst world war catastrophe now apparently looming.

Announcements With Requests For Prayers

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS is to be held on Febr. 1 in Newton. As usual, a number of weighty decisions will have to be made, and we need the prayers of our mission friends.

China asks for from four to six new workers, and India the same. That makes twelve workers asked for. We will not be able to send them all this year, but we wish to send as many as we can. How many can we send? Both fields ask for another doctor, but so far we have no medical applicant. Others we have perhaps as many as we can send this year. "Pray the Lord of harvest that he send laborers into His harvest."

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

CALL FOR PRAYER.—On February 9-11 the Home Mission Board will hold the Annual Meeting in Chicago, Illinois. The Opening Session will be held in the Wabash Avenue Y.M.C.A. on Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, the Lord willing.

In view of the importance of the work, we kindly invite the friends to remember the Board in your intercessory prayers.

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Taming, Hopei, China, 11-24-38

Editor's Note: Last week we brought excerpts of holiday greetings and reports from the Pannabecker families; this week it is from the Wm. C. Voth family. The letter is superscribed with this beautiful quotation:

"The dawn is not distant, nor is the night starless; Love is eternal; God is still God, and his faith shall not fail us; Christ is eternal!"

The letter continues, "Together with you we praise Him who brought Christmas joy into this needy world. We are glad that many Chinese Christians join us in this Christmas praise."

In April a group of Nazarine mission friends, Miss Kuyf and I, says Bro. Voth, returned to Taming. With the mission compound full of war refugees the evangelists had opened instruction classes. The Christians seemed real glad to see us, because of the bond of spiritual kinship. Their belonging to Christ and the church was to them a solace and security while passing through the time of uncertainty and danger.

"The 1937 flood added much to the suffering of the people. Much relief was needed. At Taming south suburb and Schaochuar new chapels were built and at Shwangtsing and P'ien Ts'un the old chapels were remodeled with relief labor. Scores of women received cotton to spin and weave into cloth. In the Nanlo and Tsinfeng compounds wells were dug. The respective congregations warmly thank the many donors of these gifts.

"God was gracious and gave a good harvest. This year unoccupied land on the Taming mission compound was rented to the local church. So wheat harvest found school children, laymen, workers and missionaries out singing, 'Bringing in the Sheaves,' to the swing of the scythe and the beat of the flail. Then the church arranged for a harvest festival. It was a joy to see the Christians bring grain, vegetables and money, the total value amounting to $70.00 double that of last year. On the whole interest in the Gospel is deeper than ever. This is reflected in the many requests for instruction classes and Bible schools."—Here closes Mr. Voth's report.

Mrs. Voth goes on in expressing her happiness to be at home again with the family, after a fifteen month's absence from the field, adding, "The Lord has done great things for us: whereof we are glad;" and that during the time of separation, refugeeing and illness of son Stanley she found much solace in such passages as "the Lord is our dwelling place," Psalm 90.—"A father of the fatherless . . . is God in his holy habitation," Psalm 68:5.

A good deal of her view of the experiences whil away from the Mission runs parallel to that of the Pannabecker sisters, but she adds this charming paragraph in closing that period: "On memory's walls are pictures of peculiar beauty when these fifteen months pass in review. Summer wildflowers and winter snow scenes on Kikungshan mountains, gorgeous sunsets beyond Lan Tau Peak from our island near Hongkong, thousands of lighted fishing boats on the waters at night and at last our large ship sailing slowly out of the beautiful harbor one night in June. Then there were the blue sea and mountains at Peitaiho, autumn, red ivy-colored walls at Tungchow, sunrise on dewy plains dotted with waving willows and best of all fluffy chrysanthemums in our own home in Tmaingfu."

At Tsingfeng we were told that "the Women's Auxiliary had given birth to a child"—The Widows' Society. Mrs. Lü, the Bible woman there, had been fasting Sunday mornings for seven years. She figured up the total value of those meals and adding some made a total of $28.00. Praying about it she felt this should be used for a Widows' Home. She asked other workers to pray about it for a week. It was brought before the Women's Auxiliary who received the plan with great enthusiasm and immediately pledged gifts of money, grain, trees for lumber or whatever they had for the building of a home. When we came through Tsingfeng last week the women had been carrying bricks from the city wall which was being torn down by the Chinese. The plan is to use these in the erection of a Home for needy widows in the church. All through the disturbances last fall Mrs. Lü stayed at her work.

Because of the wide open doors we are glad for the return of Rev. and Mrs. Brown and the coming of Rev. and Mrs. Albert Jantzen and Miss Davis. May God bless their labor in China!

HOME MISSIONS

DISTRICT VISITATION AND EVANGELISTIC WORK

At the Saskatoon Conference, the Home Mission Board asked for the privilege of engaging a worker, whose task should be to look up small Mennonite settlements and help them get their church life established. This was granted.

Instead of having one man travel over the entire length and breadth of the United States, the Board in cooperation with the District Evangelistic Committee, worked out a system whereby someone in that particular District would do this work. Advantages are two-fold, first traveling expense is thus reduced, second, those in the District know the conditions better than an outsider and consequently can do more effective work.

An illustration of this plan:

Late in October and early in November, Rev. J. M. Franz, Pratum, Oregon was sent out by the Evangelistic Committee of the Pacific Dist. Conference to visit and hold Evangelistic meetings in the newly and partially organized churches at Deer Park and at Newport, Washington.

In one of these churches, no doubt largely because of a lack of spiritual leadership, some division crept into the small group. Rev. Franz first visited each home in the church, and thus by personal contact was able to have them all come to the Evangelistic meetings. The Lord gave a real revival and regular worship was also completed.

In the other place the meetings resulted in several souls accepting Christ as Savior and others yielded themselves more fully to the Lord. At this place the church organization could be completed and also satisfactory arrangements could be made for regular Sunday preaching.

Are there not other places where District Evangelistic Committees could cooperate with the Home Mission Board and thus help needy small churches?

Something About Our Relief Work

by Rev. David Toews, Rosthern, Saskatchewan

Through the kindness and cooperation of so many friends in the United States we have again been able to do a good deal of relief work among our needy people in Canada. During the last fall and winter we have received 17,772 pounds of clothing which has been distributed among 646 families.

In order to show that some of the kind people who are sending us help are poor themselves and making sacrifices in order to be able to help others, I am quoting a letter recently received.

"I am sending you a box of clothing for some of the people of your district. Some of the clothing is second hand, the winter underwear is new. I hope that this clothing will be of some benefit.

"I am sorry that I could not send it sooner. But, we ourselves being poor people, I did not have the money. Then the Lord laid it upon our heart to use our tithing money for this cause. So that is where the money came from. God is so good, He is faithful. Since we started to tithe, He has been blessing spiritually as well as materially. I want all that God has for me, so please pray for me and my loved ones that we will be drawn closer, that He will stay close to us and help us to overcome the trials and temptations of this life, to be real overcomers until His early coming, for we know it cannot be long. From one who loves the Lord."

Then I would also quote a few letters from recipients of clothing so as to show our friends in the United States how much their help is being appreciated and how much comfort and joy has been brought into many hearts and homes through their help.

Watrous, Sask.

1. "On November 19th we received the clothing for which accept our sincerest thanks. We wish and pray to the Lord He may help us so that we may be able to get along without outside help and also be in the position to repay our indebtedness."

Scottsburgh, Sask.

2. "Today we received the parcel of clothing containing two coats we had asked for; also a nice comforter. We wish to thank you very much for this fine Christmas gift.

"We thank you for your trouble and would also ask you to convey our appreciation to the kind people in the United States who have sent the clothing. May the Lord bless them."

Amber Valley, Alta.

3. "We acknowledge receipt of a sack of clothing which was sent to us by the Canadian Mennonite Board of Colonization and arrived here in good condition. We would like to express our heartiest thanks to all who have been willing to make contributions on behalf of those who under present circumstances were unable to provide clothing for themselves. We also thank our heavenly Father for granting our prayers. May the Lord bless all who have made contributions also those who have forwarded same."

Sonningdale, Sask.

4. "Please accept our sincerest thanks for the donation of clothing which is of great help to us. May the Lord reward all the kind donors. This again proves to us that our Heavenly Father does not forget the least among us, He provides for our needs in due time. May we always throw our cares upon Him, Who cares for us."

Glenbush, Sask.

5. "With great thanks I would acknowledge receipt of the clothing. The help arrived here at a time when my heart was heavy with sorrow and anxiety, since my husband was in the hospital severely ill after an operation. Then the Lord showed me that gold and silver are His, and that He leads the hearts of men like the rivers of water. My confidence and faith have been greatly strengthened.

"Every article of clothing received can well be used, and I am particularly grateful for the many things sent for my 11 months old twins. My heartiest thanks and God's blessing to all kind givers.

"Through the Grace of God my husband is now on his way to recovery."

6. "We have received the parcel of clothing in good condition and wish to thank you very much for same, it certainly proves a great help to us. May the Lord reward all who have made contributions. We would much rather give than take help, but due the depression, drouth and grasshoppers, we have not been able to buy any new clothing for some five years. Many thanks for everything."

From the above letters you will see that a donation of clothing in many cases means much more than just supplying an immediate need, it means a great encouragement in life's hard struggle.

In conclusion I would express our sincerest thanks to all the kind people who have again been willing to support us in our endeavor to help the many needy among our people in Canada. May the Lord reward you all.

The World Day of Prayer

February 24, 1939

THEME: "Let Us Put Our Love Into Deeds—and Make It Real."

This program for 1939 was prepared by a group of young women of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. who meet together monthly for the preparation of helps for the development of the spiritual life. It is suggested:

1. That those who take part in the service on February 24th should meet ahead of time for prayer and pray the program through at least three times.

2. That you invite all nationalities, encouraging them to pray in their own languages.

3. That you have a young people's and a children's meeting.

For a number of years the offerings from the interdenominational World Day of Prayer services have helped in a large measure in the development of the four interdenominational missionary projects—Women's Union Christian Colleges in the Orient, Directors of Religious Work in United States Indian Schools, Christian Literature for use in mission areas and the Christian Services in Migrant Labor Camps in the United States. Send offerings either to the Council of Women for Home Missions, 297 Fourth Avenue, New York City, or to the Foreign Missions Conference, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Both organizations divide gifts equally among the four projects, unless otherwise designated. Additional literature about the four projects is available at above addresses.

SUPPLIES. The Call to Prayer, free; Poster (11 x 17) 5 cents; Adult Program, "Let Us Put Our Love Into Deeds—and Make It Real," 2 cents each, $2.00 per 100; Young People's Program, 2 cents each, $2.00 per 100; Children's Program, 1 cent each, $1.00 per 100. Wheel card to show time of observances around the world, 5 cents each. Account of 1938 observance, single copies free, in quantity $1.00 per 100. Supplies should be ordered from denominational Missions Boards. One address: Central Distributing Dept., Mission Boards, Presbyterian Church, 8 South Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Walk Worthy of Me

You promised to love me; Oh, don't you remember?
You promised to serve and walk worthy of me.
I recall very plainly the day you surrendered
And vowed with your heart ever faithful to be;
And you were so eager—and you were so bubbling
With praise and devotion! 'Twas precious to see!

And then you grew cool and forgot all the blessings!
FORGOT how we walked and had talked—just we two.
(You told me of heartaches you suffered for my sake;
I beamed down in love—my delight in you grew.)
And then you departed. Oh, why did you do it!
You vowed to walk worthy—what else could you do?

I grieved, for I loved you. All Heaven was saddened
Because you had left us—had wandered astray;
I searched in my churches, but you were not present;
I looked in the missions, but you were away.
I constantly sought you—and GUESS where I found you!
Indulging in pleasures in Satan's array!

The Father is provoked and wishes you punished
And thrown into darkness and torment and heat;
And Satan is laughing with cruel satisfaction
To think he succeeded to sift you as wheat.
But I am up here interceding and praying,
Reminding our God you once bowed at My feet.

I told Him again of the time He had sent Me
To earth as a babe as the poorest of men;
How I lived and obeyed each command of His choosing
And permitted myself to be bruised for man's sin.
I told Him how he had promised to heed Me
And let My blood cover the Saved Child's sin.

The Father forgives you, because I so love you—
And Heaven is waiting to welcome you, too.
The Angels are ready with harps and with music—
ALL GLORYLAND PLEADS: To your Saviour be true.
On, Wanderer, hasten. Your choice will decide it.
My arms are outstretched. I stand waiting for YOU.

He rejects with indignant contempt the theory that Jews are enemies of society by whatever terms of opprobrium such enemies are designated. An Appeal to Real Christians by the American Committee for Non-Participation in Japanese Agression

8 West 40th Street, New York, N. Y.

America is indignant at the aggressive war in China with its cruelties to helpless civilians, but Americans—through lack of knowledge or indifference—go on ignoring the fact we are supplying the Japanese aggressors with the sinews of war: scrap iron, oil, steel, trucks—all more necessary to her than manufactured munitions.

With one hand we supply the essential materials to the Japanese military machine, giving it mobility with trucks and fuel, and allowing our scrap iron and machinery to be translated into death-dealing armaments. With our other hand we spend billions for armaments which will protect us against the mounting threat of aggressor nations. It does not make sense.

President Roosevelt, addressing Congress, has forcibly stated the case for democracies. He points out that they "cannot forever let pass without effective protest acts of aggression against sister nations—acts which automatically undermine all of us." And he has pointed to methods not involving use of arms to fight aggression.

This Committee, supported by the counsel of such eminent leaders and students of foreign affairs as former Secretary of State Stimson, A. Lawrence Lowell, President Emeritus of Harvard, Robert E. Speer, former President of the Federal Council of Churches, and William Allen White, distinguished editor, is organized to oppose aggression with these other peaceful methods. It proposes a program—to inform the American public of the part we are playing in Japanese aggression, and to translate American disapproval into action for stopping this aid to Japanese militarism.

A minimum of $50,000 is needed to wage an immediate nation-wide campaign against further American participation in Japanese aggression. Careful plans have been made for the use of such media as newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, radio, speakers. You will agree that such a sum is small for the carrying out of so large and urgent an objective.

Your gift, sent today, whether it be for one or more dollars, will help stimulate the growth of a demand for intelligent legislation to "STOP WAR SUPPLIES FOR JAPAN." Such action is overdue, but there is yet time to move for a reestablishment of international justice and peace in the Pacific, and for the ultimate preservation of our own democracy.

Roger S. Green, Chairman.

Beverage Alcohol and Its Social Perils

(A Social Aspect of the Liquor Problem)

Amos 6:1-6; 1 Peter 2:11, 12; 4:1-5.

Introduction

Amos was a preacher of righteousness. In his soul was a deep sense of the need of justice and godliness. Israel held a position of responsibility having reached her highest point of territorial expansion and prosperity under Jereboam II. Amos was sent to them with a message which is also applicable to our day. It is deeply spiritual (cf 5:5, 14).

A Warning to the Indifferent. Amos 6:1-6

Amos in his day saw the luxury of the rich and the suffering of the poor. There was corruption in high places. Judges took bribes and injustice was measured out to the poor and needy. There was much dishonesty in business, even the leaders of Israel thought most of getting gain. There was much of worship and sacrifice, but it was mostly empty form. The wrong of it deeply distressed Amos. He loved his people. He saw they were hastening to a fall. They lived in ease and fancied security in Jerusalem and Samaria, both considered impregnable against all foes (v 1). Israel and Judah, God's chosen people, were highly favored, having the teachings of the prophets and God's law. More was to be expected of them. Privilege always brings with it responsibility. Amos saw they were no better than the neighboring cities (v 2) which fell before the Assyrians a few years later. God expects more of us, a favored nation and people.

Israel was altogether indifferent as to the inevitable result (v 3). The self-indulgences, extravagences, and heartlessness of the rich, while the poor lived in poverty (v 4, 5) deeply distressed Amos. God was against it then and is just as much grieved with it now. The same conditions are only too common in our nation today. The leaders of their people loved wine (v 5) and drank it from bowls—in large quantities—instead of from cups. Truly this is a dark picture. Alcohol does enslave people. The conscience of Israel was deadened. Ease, indifference, indulgence controlled the corrupt hearts of the leaders of the people. Amos pronounced his woe against all this. He brought God's message. Hearts had become so hardened that the leaders were not troubled at all because of the existing conditions. Satan does blind eyes and harden hearts.

Christian Behavior in the World. 1 Peter 2:11, 12

Fleshly lusts, such as were common in the days of Amos and are common today "war against the soul" (v 11). They destroy Christian character and will lead the soul into eternal death. The Christian manner of life "conversation," (v 12) is to be such that our fellowmen will be impressed with its godliness and glorify God. The influence of a Christian life is beyond all human measure.

Christ our Example 4:1-5.

One is a Christian in so far as he has the mind of Christ, lives on the same plane on which He lived, according to God's will. It was His mind to serve, even to suffer for others, to abstain from all fleshly indulgences (v 2). The sins commonly practiced by the heathen (v 3) must be renounced by the Christian as being wholly out of place in his life. These things he will refuse to do, will definitely stand against them. Our lesson has special reference to the Christian's attitude toward the beverage use of intoxicating drinks. He must—if he would be consistent—definitely abstain from using them.

The four temperance lessons for the year dwell upon the social phase of the liquor problem. If all drinkers could be so isolated that ALL the effects of their drinking could be confined to each one alone, the problem would be far less serious. As it is however, drinking brings untold suffering and misery upon the innocent ones. Under the laws of God, the drinker has no right to bring suffering upon others. The State and Nation have no moral right to legalize intoxicating liquors.

What Has Happened to the Pacifist?

by Rev. Albert Penner, until Feb. 1 pastor of Jonathan Edwards Church, Northampton, Mass., now at Second Congregational Church, Holyoke, Mass.

For 15 years after the close of the world war Christian pacifism rode high. Especially in the Anglo-Saxon countries there was a wave of optimism for the future. The Kingdom of God did not seem so very far away. The Democratic powers had won the war,—this final end to all wars—and now the world was being organized for an enduring peace. No serious war clouds were anywhere on the horizon. The military machine of Germany had been crushed. In its place there was a republic. Except for Communism, which had destroyed the Czarist autocracy, and which to the liberal was not a serious peace menace, there were no new and threatening ideologies. It was not only easy to be a pacifist—it was almost inevitable. Pacifism was the only attitude which seemed to fit the new world that was visibly coming into being.

That optimistic picture of the future of the world has been completely demolished by the events of the past five years. Weakened by its unholy alliance with the Treaty of Versailles, the League of Nations and the elaborate post-war peace machinery has bogged down. The magnificient new League of Nations palace in Geneva is today but a glittering, empty symbol of man's once glorious, but now shattered, hopes. Disarmament has not only failed; it has given place to the greatest armaments race in all history. Fascism—hungry, grasping, aggressive—which a few years ago appeared as an unimportant cloud "as small as a man's hand," has now filled the whole sky. It has been marching fast through China, Ethiopia, Spain, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia. The whole world wonders what it will attempt to do next. Democratic superiority in Europe is an exploded myth. France has already lost her dominant position on the continent, and Britain has retreated from the continent altogether. Waves of racial intolerance are sweeping over the whole earth. It is not easy to be a pacifist. It seems to be the only attitude which does not fit the new world which has been coming into being during the past five years.

The dilemma of the pacifist, in the situation in which we are today, is certainly a very real one. He is faced by such questions as these: if fascism is by nature aggressive, and essentially destructive of freedom and peace, can it be stopped except by counter force? Are we going to let fascism have its triumphs, and do nothing in the face of the dismemberment of China, Spain, Czecho-slovakia, and whatever other countries are still to be carved up? Shall we do nothing to resist the waves of medieval barbarity? Must we not fight to protect civilization, culture, democracy? The dilemma of the pacifist is a very real one. Is pacifism still possible for the Christian?

There is no way of knowing the extent to which the pacifist position has been given up by those who held it a few years ago. A number of prominent Christian leaders who were in the van of the pacifist movement a few years ago have apparently given up their unqualified stand under the pressure of recent historic events. They now favor the use of force in the struggle against fascism. But so far as I know there has been no wide-spread defection from Christian pacifist ranks.

What has happened to the pacifist is that he is being forced to rethink his position more fundamentally than ever before. Now he must be sure of the faith that is in him. The pacifist who once was a very cock-sure, noisy person, has become grave and quiet. He knows that the solution is not an easy one; that if he maintains his position he is exposing himself to ridicule and persecution.

For the pacifist the world situation has changed for the worse, as it has for everyone else, but the basis for his Christian pacifism is still the same. No matter what is happening on this unhappy planet, God is still the father of all mankind, all men are still brothers, and the Kingdom of God is still the goal of our human hopes and prayers. Nothing has happened, nothing can happen, to change this fundamental Christian fact. It would still be a fact if the whole world went fascist.

Furthermore, the anti-Christian nature of war is still the same. In the emphatic words of the Oxford Conference, "War involves compulsory enmity, diabolical outrage against human personality, and a wanton distortion of the truth. War is a particular demonstration of the power of sin in this world and a defiance of the righteousness of God as revealed in Jesus Christ and him crucified." In a war there may be more justice on one side than on the other, by no war is ever holy, just, righteous, or Christian. War is a denial of everything that Christianity stands for. This fact still stands.

The Christian pacifist has also on his side the very strong probability that war is an utterly futile method. Many of us are convinced, not only that the end does not justify the means, but also that means and ends must coincide. War will not produce peace, it will produce more war. If we want to have peace we must support and advance the things that make for peace. It is not likely that war will ever be the means of saving democracy or of preserving liberty. The reverse is likely to be true. War seems to be the one sure way of destroying democracy, and the liberty that we have come to associate with it.

Finally Christianity is the religion of the cross, and the pacifist, by his witness, declares thereby that he believes in the power of the cross. For Christians the cross of Christ was the darkest page in history. All the light had gone out. The friends of righteousness despaired. Force and aggression were triumphant. It looked like the end; like an utter defeat. Yet this historic act, which was "to the Jews a stumbling block, and to the Greeks foolishness," has proved to be "the power and wisdom of God." For this, we believe, is the way in which God works. He seeks to overcome evil with good,—the only way in which evil can really be overcome.

Today we have also arrived at a dark page of history. Force and aggression are everywhere triumphant, and perhaps they will continue to be triumphant for a time longer. Perhaps for more years we shall have to "suffer the armed men." But we are still to look at the cross and believe in its ultimate power to overcome the world's evil.

If pacifism is merely the by-product of favorable circumstances then of course it will vanish when circumstances become unfavorable. But Christian pacifism is not born out of a passing mood. It springs from a very deep conviction that war—all war—is absolutely contrary to everything that Jesus lived and died for, and that the Christian must be true to his Lord though he be called traitor to every other authority. Nothing has happened to the pacifist whose feet stand upon this rock, for that is a rock which cannot be shaken.

SERMON SKETCH

I RESOLVE—New Year's Day Meditation.

Neh. 2:18, Ps. 90:12, Phil. 3:13, 14

A. S. Bechtel

The mention of New Year's resolutions frequently arouses a smile. We do well to keep in mind that the road to heaven is paved with good resolutions and also that the year 1939 will not be any different for us unless we highly resolve to make it better by the help of God. The first Sunday of the year, the first day of the year, is a good time for each of us to take a good look at self. Have we grown mentally, spiritually, morally, in interest, in the best things during the past year? It is useless for us to criticize our past unless we really intend to do something about changing that which should be improved upon.

We do not need more wisdom for this, for scarcely any of us use all of the wisdom we now possess. Those who during the past year followed the wrong path, did it knowingly and willfully, not ignorantly. We all know some things we should do, know better than we do, know that we are not doing our best. A good New Year's resolution for each one is—I resolve to do my best. There are three lines along which we can all make progress, along which we have more wisdom, truth than we generally use.

I resolve to live one day at a time and enjoy it. This does not mean an entire unconcern about the days, years ahead of us and consequent listless, careless living. Most of our anxiety comes from regret for yesterday and worry over tomorrow. God alone can help us overcome this. We shall find in each day probably pretty much what we look for. They have become accustomed to look for the dark spots. We can learn to control self, passions, temperament, emotions and will, one day at a time.

I resolve to take time for the things which generally are really the most worthwhile. In our age of rush, hurry, speed—almost a mania for saving time—and then scarcely knowing what to do with the time saved, we so easily lose sight of the truly worthwhile things. In our land of hurry, short work day for so many, we should have abundant time for everything that is truly worthwhile. Many are like the squirrel in the revolving cage, going very rapidly, becoming tired and worn out in going nowhere—no time to cultivate an acquaintance with the best things. It is really high time that people decide what is really most worthwhile.

I resolve to give God a better chance at my life. I am His. He created and sustains me sent His Son for my redemption and has promised an eternal home to me. He is anxious that I grow to be the real man or woman that He wishes me to be I am His investment. I can not live without Him. The New Year is in our hands like a clean white page and each one is his own biographer, writing his own story for the year. The New Year is like an open door—a golden opportunity—open door of faith, hope, love. The New Year is like a problem in life-arithmetic. The chief problem for each one is that of living a life in its largest and best sense—not merely making a living, not merely "making good," but building a Christian character, making a straight line from January 1 to December 31st—the line of the "straight and narrow way."

God is giving to each of us another opportunity. We must decide what we shall do with it.

'THE LAST DAYS'

Are these not the last days, filled as they are with wars and rumors of wars, persecution of the Jews and utter disregard for the rights of the weak?

I do not know. My concern is to be awake and about my Master's business, doing my bit and best to help make a better world. Then if these are not the last days, what matters it? Men have said for something like two thousand years—"These are the last days." The disciples believed that they were living in the last days, and there are Scriptural statements that justified them in their belief. The fact remains that people have been getting ready for an early ascension since the Ascension Morning of Jesus Christ Himself.

These are sad and terrible times. We did not dream a generation ago that we would live to see the events that are all about us, the unspeakable horrors that are being perpetrated upon helpless populations. No, I do not know whether these are the last days. I do know that these are sad and terrible days. I do know that short of the truth and grace, the changing power that is at the heart of the Christian testimony, we are undone, that these might well be for us the last days.—Dan Poling in "Christian Herald."

"And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever."

What Kind of a Program of Mennonite Follow-Up Will Meet Our Needs

In considering the problem we have stated that many have left our ranks never to return. It may be stated with a good deal of fairness that what is needed is a renewed emphasis of the values and principles upon which our forefathers established this church, for this would keep many people "good Mennonites" even if they move 10,000 miles away from home. It may be asked by some, "What of it if we lose our young people?" Such an attitude brings the prompt and possible proper reflection that there is a definite dearth of understanding of the principles of the historic Mennonite Church without which there obviously can be no appreciation of the Mennonite heritage.

The proposed follow-up system should and must be one spoke in the wheel. To be sure there are other spokes also. An added emphasis of the historic principles of our church is such a one. Were financial means available, a Mennonite seminary would help materially to keep our young men. Our purpose. however, is not to discuss these other spokes. Let us, therefore, limit ourselves to a follow-up system; we may then discover that it is a practical and integrating factor. Let us prayerfully attempt to consider such a one.

The Saskatoon resolution at best suggests the aim; it does not give or even suggest what the means to the end is. The resolution reads:

Resolved, that a system (be devised) whereby young people leaving their home for school or work be placed in contact with Mennonites in their new locality.

At this point let us introduce two general principles that must be provided for in a follow-up. The first is that it must be wide in scope. Merely to include one church, one community of churches, or one district is not enough. To argue this point would be entirely out of place. It may be trite to say that we need to make every effort to include all of our young people, but it is none-the-less fundamental.

The second principle is that it must be personal. The importance of this feature appears at once, but, its significance grows when one scratches below the surface. The matter of keeping in touch with a friend that has moved away is largely a personal and private matter. It is also true that when a stranger comes into a community, his acceptance into the new community will very largely depend upon the general spirit of hospitality there. To improve upon this spirit of hospitality is the job of individuals.

A very vital factor in personal follow-up must be taken by the Church and pastor. It would probably be correct to say that follow-up is as much the problem of the home church and pastor, as it is of the new community. If the home pastor really ministers to the needs of his members, there is little reason for his members to discontinue membership in the Mennonite fellowship when they move away. This makes the minister's assignment a tremendous one. He it is that must give his members something to do. He it is that must keep the fire burning under the boiler of endeavor. He it is that receives the blame if the church life becomes stagnant. He it is that should extend a personal invitation to new members of the community. He must do this without offense. For the good that is done, he seldom receives credit.

So it is expected that ministers would be the first to welcome a helpful follow-up program.

Are You Promoting War or Peace?

War is a Juggernaut standing on an inclined plane and only held back by those actively working for peace with the help of God. Either you oppose war or you help it along. There can be no such being as a non-active believer in peace. What are you as an individual or as a Young People's Union doing?

Resolution No. 10, adopted at the Young People's Session of the General Conference reads: "Whereas our war-torn world is threatening the stability of our peace heritage, be it resolved that our young people's groups be encouraged in the establishment of definite and discussion courses emphasizing the principle of non-resistance and be it resolved further that the executive committee suggest ways by which the Y. P. Union can express positively and practically their peace contention."

Two excellent booklets, written by Mennonites and highly useful for such courses as mentioned above, are: CHRISTIAN PEACE, according to the New Testament Teachings outside the Gospels, by Ernest J. Bohn, and CHRISTIAN PEACE, Teachings and Practices as Held by the Mennonites for the Past Four Centuries, by Dr. C. Henry Smith. You can order these from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Ind. They are 20 cents each.

In regard to the last point of the resolution let us not be idle in waiting. As a Young People's Union why not declare your position on peace in a manner similar to that of the Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa.? (See Mennonite, Jan. 17, 1939, p. 5).

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men" cannot be achieved without heroic service for the Prince of Peace.—R. W.

Looking at Politics Through Christian Eyes

Matt. 5:13-20

Young People's Topic for February 19, 1939

Meditations:

M Feb. 13. Jew and Gentile, one in Christ. Eph. 2:14-18
T. Feb. 14. Tribute to whom due. Matt. 22:15-21
W. Feb. 15. Jesus, a victim of intrigue. Luke 22:1-6
T. Feb. 16. Worthy citizens. Luke 11:39-44
F. Feb. 17. An unfailing rule. Matt. 7:12
S. Feb. 18. Christian conduct, the criterion. 1 Pet. 2:9-20.

Suggested Hymns:

"Bringing in the Sheaves," "America the Beautiful," "America."

"If selfish and cunning men have a deciding influence in politics, it is because wise and good men have neglected their duties as citizens, and the neglected duties must be bravely undertaken for God and humanity."—Rev. Edward Tead.

Points for sentence prayer:

1. Thank God for the democratic traditions of America.
2. Thank God for the religious freedom which has been our heritage.
3. Ask God to inspire us with an interest in good government.
4. Ask God to help us keep our church high as a moral and spiritual leader of all people.

Suggested Topics:

Advice from the Bible for Christian citizens.
The Citizen Whom I Admire.
Why is Citizenship a Christian Matter?
Has the Christian Any Right to Deal with Politics?
What are Some Abuses for Which Politicians are to Blame?
In What Way Does Point of View Determine a Man's Way of Regarding Laws, Good or Bad? (see Lesson Discussion).

Lesson Discussion:

A Christian is never justified in using religion as an excuse for having nothing to do with politics. On the contrary, his religion carries with it the obligation of having a Christian point of view in politics and of exercising his citizenship in the interest of the common good.

Political mismanagement and deceiving propaganda are two of the scourges of democracy. Because of them there are nations in other parts of the world which have lost faith in democracy and have turned to dictatorships. Our nation was founded by men who professed faith in God and adhered to Christian principles. Similar moral grants are needed today; men who will regard their public office as a trust to be guarded in the interest of the people. This can be accomplished only by bringing Christian principles into politics. The people of the churches must inspect their politicians and demand honesty and other Christian virtues. They must demand facts and not propaganda. They must demand Christianity in government. If they do, they will get it.

What is right and what is wrong in the way things are done by those who run the government? The answer depends upon the point of view of each person. What satisfies one group may be unsatisfactory to another group. So let us take a few groups and see how they feel about politics. (See question six). Five persons could give short talks in answer to this quetion, representing the following: (a) the capitalist; (b) the laborer; (c) the farmer; (d) the business man; (e) the factory worker. The capitalist wants laws that help him make more money. Such a law is not usually satisfactory to the laborer who desires laws that will give him higher wages and shorter working hours. Thus we see that whether a law is good or not depends upon whether it benefits you or the other fellow. The farmer must take what he can get for his products. He usually sells at a low price and buys at a high price. If a uniform price is fixed he regards that as a good law. This law will not suit the business man or factory worker who lives in the city and must buy what the farmer raises. No one law will satisfy all groups.

Politicians are not to blame for such a state of affairs. But they are to blame for the way they often abuse the trust that is put in them. This is done through grafting and political bargaining or the trading of votes.

What then is the Christian to do about these many abuses? No definite program can be laid down, but the following are some general principles of action: (a) Proper education regarding the true facts in political issues. (b) The right of each man to vote according to his native convictions. (c) Insistence upon personal and official morality on the part of office holders.

"Are there any rivers you think are impassable,
Are there any mountains you cannot tunnel through?
God specializes in the wholly impossible,
Doing the things which man cannot do."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

What Causes Crime?

Intermediate C. E. Topic, February 26, 1939

For Daily Study

Feb. 20. Lack of religious training. Judges 17:6
Feb. 21. Neglect of home religion. Deut. 6:4-12
Feb. 22. Lack of family discipline. 1 Sam. 3:11-14
Feb. 23. Bad examples in high places. 1 Sam. 2:12, 17, 22-25
Feb. 24. Bad associates. Prov. 1:10-19
Feb 25. Lack of respect for authority. Deut. 17:8-13; Mark 7:36
Feb. 26. Topic—What causes crime in our nation? Prov. 14:34; 2 Tim. 3:1-15

A Panel Discussion

This topic will lend itself well to the panel type of discussion if you want something that is different. Select a leader, preferably outside of the group, such as a Christian high school teacher or attorney, to have charge of the discussion. Assign phases of the topic for study and investigation to five or six interested and capable members. The platform can be arranged to represent a schoolroom, office or home, where these members with the leader gather informally to discuss the causes of crime. Questions are asked by members of the group, to which each one is prepared to make a contribution. After the assignments have been studied the group should meet with the leader and plan roughly the order to be followed. To be successful it must be informal and yet with a very real and deep interest on the part of each one participating.

Suggested Songs: "Take the Name of Jesus," "Yield Not To Temptation," "I Need Thee Every Hour."

A Worship Service

Instrumental prelude: "Faith of Our Fathers"

Call to worship: "Righteousness exalteth a nation;
But sin is a reproach to any people"

Song: "Dare to Be Brave"

Scripture reading and remarks: II Tim. 3:1-15

Call attention to the fact that methods of crime may have changed in the last 1900 years, but that the causes are still the same. Show how the causes listed in verses 2-7 are an outgrowth of a selfish life, while the way Paul recommends to Timothy is one of self-denial for Christ's sake.

Prayer, by superintendent

Poem: "To every man there openeth
A Way, and Ways, and a Way.
And the Low Soul gropes the Low;
And in between on the misty flats,
The rest drift to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A High Way and a Low,
And every man decideth
The Way his soul shall go."

Song: "My Soul, Be On Thy Guard"

Panel Discussion

1. Information. Ask those participating in the discussion to inform themselves on the following points and present their findings when they fit into the discussion. a. What religious training your mother or your grandmother had in her home. b. What a judge or attorney thinks are the chief causes of crime today. a pastor, an educator. c. Try to determine the cause of a recent crime in your community. in our nation.

2. Opening the Discussion.

a. Comments by members

We are told that one third of the crimes of our nation are committed by young men and women under 21 years of age.

Since that concerns our own age particularly, we are interested to know what the causes are of so much crime today. Are the young people to blame or is it the environment in which they live?

One can't help but wonder about that. Every newspaper you pick up is filled with stories of crimes. What can be done about it?

b. The leader

Crime is a very serious problem today, because there are more cases of it today than ever before in our nation, and more especially because the average age of the criminal is so much lower than formerly.

To know what to do about a thing that is wrong, you must first know what causes it. Once a doctor discovers what causes a temperature in his patient he can usually bring it down by removing or curing the cause. Crime is the result of an infected, a diseased condition in human society.

Society has changed a good deal in the last 2000 years. We live an entirely different life than the people did then. But in spite of all the modern improvements with which we are surrounded, crime still continues and stranger still, the causes have not changed very much. As Christians we are interested to turn to the Bible and see what it has to say about the causes of crime. If they cover the cases of today we will also know where to turn for the cure for crime.

3. Causes of Crime

a. Religion in the Home. Deut. 6:4-12. What is the modern attitude? No time. No interest. No living example in the parents. Broken homes cause more juvenile crimes than any other. What elements in a broken home would encourage crime?

b. Lack of discipline. 1 Sam. 3:11-14. Who is to blame for the spoiled child? A proverb says, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." The rod is unpopular today. The method is optional. The important point is that the child learns habits of obedience, self-control, consideration for others, respect for authority, etc. Why are so many parents careless today about the actions of their children?

c. Lack of Religious Training. Judges 17:6. Schools were first started in this country by the church. Training of mind and heart went hand in hand. Today thousands of young people are educated without any religious training. A trained mind without a converted heart is dangerous. How does the verse in Proverbs apply to our day.

d. Bad examples in high places. 1 Sam. 2:12, 17, 22-25. We need not look far today to find examples of drinking, divorce and bribery in high places. What effect does this have upon those in lower station?

e. Bad associates. Prov. 1:10-19. Bad associates are responsible for a great deal of crime. A boy will learn from a group what he never would think of doing alone. Movies and vile literature have their part in stirring the imagination. Crimes are depicted as the height of adventure and the methods are suggested.

f. Love of money. 1 Tim. 6:10

g. Drunkenness. Prov. 23:29-32

Closing Moments

Song, "True-Hearted, Whole-Hearted"

Benediction.

JUNIOR CORNER

"I will make mention of the Loving-Kindness of the Lord"—Isaiah 63:7.

For the leader: Prayer.

"Let me come closer to Thee
O closer day by day,
Let me lean harder on Thee
Yes, harder all the way.

Let me show forth Thy beauty
Like sunshine on the hills,
O let my lips pour forth Thy sweetness
In joyous, sparkling rills.

Yes, like a fountain, precious Jesus,
Make me and let me be;
Keep me, and use me daily,
For Thee, for only Thee.

In all my heart and will, O Jesus,
Be altogether King;
Make me a loyal subject,
To Thee in everything."

Sunday School Builder.

Our Junior Corner Editor suggested in the outline for the month that this be the "Annual Fellowship night."

Could the Juniors of one church visit the Juniors of another church? Or, if that is not possible, would it not be a good plan to invite the Senior or Intermediate C. E. to be the guests of the Juniors? Having decided as to who the guests should be, several committees should be appoined. One to write and deliver the invitations. Another whose duty it is to prepare the room. Make it especially attractive with candles, pictures or plants. Arrange the chairs and see that there are enough song books, so that the guests can join in the singing. Another committee is the welcoming committee. They should get to the church early, meet and greet each guest. Introduce the guests and help them to feel at home and find seats for them. It might be possible to have a refreshment committee. If it is not possible for this committee to get together to bake a simple cookie, it could serve graham crackers. Of course this committee would want to decorate the napkins that will be used. The most important committee is the program committee. All Juniors should have a responsibility in this "Fellowship Night."

Give each child who has a part on the program a printed program so that he knows just when he comes in. There will then be no uncertainty or confusion.

I. Worship Period
   Call to worship by quiet music
   A word of greeting to guests
   Song—All Standing—"Holy, Holy, Holy"
   Leader's Prayer
   Read responsively verses 1-9 of Psalm 136 R. V. The leader reads the first part of the verse and all join in the refrain, "For His loving-kindness endureth forever."
   Song—Verse one of "Love Divine, All Love Excelling."

II. Bible Drill. Six Juniors with Bibles stand in a row in front. Another Junior names the reference. When all have found it, read verse in concert. Ps. 17:7; Ps. 63:3; Jer. 31:3; Isa. 63:7; Ps. 92:1, 2; Ps. 36:7.

III. Special music. A Junior girl sings as a solo the song of the month, "Jesus Loves Even Me."

IV. This might be followed by two stories from the Old Testament, showing God's loving-kindness; two stories from the New Testament, showing Jesus loving-kindness; a mission story that speaks of the loving-kindness of our God. Five different Juniors telling the stories.

V. Song by all. "I Love to Tell the Story."

VI Leader. Our verse (pointing to the verse which is written on the blackboard) says, "I will make mention of the loving-kindness of the Lord." Let each of us name a "loving-kindness," something that we want to thank God for. The Juniors respond by naming some blessing they receive.

Closing Song. "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"

Closing Prayer. Mrs. J. E. Entz

LETTER

Hartford, Connecticut, January 9, 1939

Dear Editor:

Recently there has been a renewal of interest in oppressed minorities the world over. Very briefly I should like to voice the opinion (which I believe to be quite representative) of a "minority" within the Mennonite Church. I refer to those of us who are attending "non-Mennonite" seminaries. The chief "oppression" we suffer is that of a rather continual verbal and literary bombardment of our tribe by fellow Mennonites.

There can be no question that there is basis for some of the "bombardment." It is well known that one who finds himself aligned against his former companions is often most bitter and unreasonable in his criticism of those with whom he was formerly associated. Mussolini, for example, was an ardent foe of fascism as a journalist before he came to power. But by no means should one generalize from notorious examples and argue that all those who have parted fellowship in a formal manner are therefore enemies. On the contrary they are often close allies.

I note a similarity in the way in which some speak of "un-Mennonite" ideas and activities and the way super-patriots speak of "un-American" ideas—as if anyone had a monopoly on the truth. Is it not a part of the genius of our historic relation to political states that we demand the right to differ with them in the matter of bearing arms? Why, then, should we not be equally generous in permitting even those of our own fellowship to differ with us on points in which their consciences decree that they must differ?

Furthermore, if we believe that our position is the truly Christian one, why is it supposed that a Mennonite, trained in a non-Mennonite church is in any way unfaithful to that faith for which our forefathers died? On the contrary, many are permitted to spread the gospel of good-will for which the Mennonite church stands into even wider areas. Would it not be better for us to be justly proud of any contribution which our fellows make to the Kingdom of God regardless of the denomination in which they may serve, than to take the rather childish position that we "own" everyone who was ever within our fold.

One's testimony for peace is challenged in non-Mennonite institutions. On our own campus we find ourselves associated with a handful of Quakers and others who have come to the pacifist position by independent thinking and experience. If, with even this limited fellowship, we are unable to retain our pacifist position, it is doubtful that we would serve the Mennonite cause very well.

Finally, as Winfield Fretz pointed out in a letter to the "Mennonite" some time ago, more Mennonite theological students take non-Mennonite parishes because they are unable to find vacancies within their own denomination than for any other reason. Most of us would prefer to stay within the church but we must fulfill our calling even though we are not given the opportunity to do so among our own people.

I am enclosing a recent article by Albert Penner published in the December, 1938, number of the "Hartford Alumnus." I hope you may see fit to bring it in THE MENNONITE. (It appears in this issue. —Editor.)

My intention was to simply insert a note with the article. I beg your pardon for writing such a long letter. I have just relieved my brain of some of the things that occur to me as I read the "Mennonite" and talk with various people.

I remain, sincerely yours,
(signed) Hiram Hilty

CORRESPONDENCE

Friedensberg Mennonite Church, Avon, S. Dak.

The Prayer Conference was held in our church Thursday, Jan. 26. This conference is an interdenominational organization of the churches within twenty-five miles of here, which comes together the last Thursday every month for a day of conference and prayer. The noon hour is usually spent in fasting and prayer. But, due to the winter weather, it was deemed advisable to have a lunch at noon, so a jumble lunch was served. The theme for the conference was "Christian Unity." The sub-topics were 1. Christian Unity in Spirit, Eph. 4:3. 2. Christian Unity in Service, Mark 9:38-40. 3. True Source of Christian Unity.—A few of the thoughts brought out were: To have unity between ourselves, we must be in complete unity and harmony with God. We need less church creeds and doctrines and more Christianity. We must be of one mind to be at peace. The physical body is put together in such a way that it can accomplish something. So it should be with the spiritual body of believers.—Duets, quartets and choruses furnished ample music between the major numbers. In the prayer session jut before noon, prayers were offered in the English, German and Indian languages.—Albert Ratzlaff, Corr.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, HUTCHINSON, KANS.

As with the passing of each year comes a desire to work more wholeheartedly for the cause to which one is devoted, there is also considerable regret that the past was not as fully occupied as it might have been, and a deep longing for spiritual values that have not been fully realized.

During the past year we have been ministered unto, not only by our own pastor and his wife, but also by visiting ministers and missionaries. Among those who shared with us, are Rev. Abraham Warkentin, Rev. J. M. Regier, Rev. A. E. Kreider, Rev. E. J. Neuen-

—We penitently regret the omission of sympathetic mention of the fact that the beloved editor of "Junior Corner" in THE MENNONITE and leading editor of JUNIOR MESSENGER, Mrs. Joanna Andres, Newton, Kans. had to submit to an appendix operation at the Bethel Hospital, where she is confined since Jan. 23. She was quite seriously ill at first. But many have been praying for her recovery and the Great Physician, in whom she lives and has her being, with the help of the good sisters, is bringing her through.

—The Ministerial Association of Freeman, So. Dak. and vicinity held its January meeting at the home of Rev. L. H. Linscheid. The theme was "Fulfilled Prophecies of the Bible" and was discussed by Rev. Linscheid.

—The Institute for Pastors and Christian Workers held at Bethel College last week had splendid attendance, being helped by the finest kind of weather throughout. The principal sources of attraction were, of course, the gripping Bible Hours by Dr. Max Reich and the splendid addresses and discussions of pastoral subjects by Dr. Rufus Bowman. Both of these men of God have permanently endeared themselves to the large audiences. But the local assistants, who helped to fill out the program each day, also acquitted themselves creditably. Hence, one hears remarks from all sides that this has been one of the very best, if not the most worthwhile, Bible week held at the College. Much of the success of the Institute, from the human side, must be placed to the credit of the untiring efforts and sympathetic foresight of Prof. A. E. Kreider, Director of Religious Life at Bethel. Following are some of the ministers and workers from a distance that attended: Rev. and Mrs. H. Albert Claassen, Freeman, S. D.; Rev. J. F. Sawatzky and P. A. Regier, Madrid, Nebr.; Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Schmidt, Council Grove, Kans.; Rev. Menno H. Kliewer and Ernest F. Schmidt, Cordell, Okla.; Clarence Deckert, Freeman, S. D.; Rev. Rudolf Schmidt, Liberal, Kans.; Rev. J. B. A SELF-CENTERED CHRISTENDOM IN A WORLD OF SUFFERING.—We hear a great deal of criticism about the weakness and insufficiency of the Christian Church, and also a great deal in her defense. One thing is sure, the Christian Church (or rather the people that claim membership in it) has scarcely touched its material resources in an earnest endeavor to help a needy world, those who are struggling for existence, the poor, maimed, crippled, naked, hungry, the imprisoned, and the sick, those whom the Lord of Christendom expects his followers to take care of. It is a fact that the wealth of the civilized world is largely in the hands of Christians. Yet, how little have they done to alleviate the suffering and want that is continually the lot of parts of the human race, as at present particularly in China and Spain. The well-to-do and wealthy members have scarcely scratched their accumulations of wealth. Prophets and reformers have always censured the people of God for the sin of using their material possessions for their own good and benefit. The prophet, Amos, charges the people of his race that they are living in houses of hewn stone, in summer houses, winter houses; that they are resting on couches of ivory and gold, that they revel in feasts with wine and loud song, and turn aside from the needy in their gates. How history repeats itself! Where Amos mentions a half dozen things in the line of luxuries that the well-to-do of his people had, two to three dozen could be mentioned today, not to forget air-conditioned homes and trailer houses. If all well-to-do or wealthy Christians of today would follow the lead of their Master seriously, they could pretty well wipe out the physical and to a large extent the mental and spiritual sufferings of the human race in a comparatively short time. But alas! they are chiefly concerned with Number One and forget Number Two. "Whoso hath the world's goods, and beholdeth his brother in need, and shutteth up his compassion for him, how doth the love of God abide in him?" I John 3:17.

GOD WORKING FOR US.—"My father worketh hitherto and I work."—John 5:17.—How comforting for faithful, hardworking Christians that God, the Father, and His Son, our Savior, work ceaselessly, all to one purpose, to make each human being happy for time and eternity. God created the world, "And he saw that it was good." What was good? Everything he made for man. Thus, back in the beginning God worked for us, and He is still at it. He provides for our wants. He gives us wholesome air, sunshine, rain, harvests, prospers our labors, does everything to woo our love and affection. Christ is at his side, interceding for us and trying, with the help of the Holy Spirit, to come into our lives that we may abide in His love. How encouraging! God, His Son, ever active in their endless endeavors to remake fallen man. Should we not be happy in having a share in the great work that they are doing, in being their loyal coworkers? What wonderful privileges we Christians have!

DIES, A REAL PATRIOT.—One of the truly brave and honest men in our country is Representative Dies. With his committee, charged with the task of ferreting out and investigating un-American activities in this country, he has already done a piece of work for which the American people owe him a debt of gratitude. Fortunately he has succeeded in obtaining the continuence of the work of his committee with a sufficint appropriation. In a recent address he declared that the W.P.A. literary and theatrical projects are promoting class hatred which is the beginning of dictatorship. He attacked communism and fascism founded on intolerance, saying, among other good things, "I believe the greatest contribution we can make to the cause of democracy is to stay on our own shores, mind our own business, and make democracy work within the framework of the constitution."

HUNGER, THE BASIC URGE IN MAN. — Stripped to its elements, life has only one basic principle — hunger; only one need to be supplied — HUNGER. In his soul man hungers after God; in his mind for freedom; in his body for food and shelter; in all, for PEACE. No other country in the world makes it so easy for man to satisfy himself in all things, as does America. Look: The right to worship God as one chooses was the rock upon which this country was established. Some big nations make it rather difficult for their people to do that; one, at least, has gone so far as to declare that there is no God, that worship is a sort of opiate devised to keep people meek and humble. Our rock still stands, un-assailed and unassailable. With freedom of worship established, this country demanded political freedom; these two are the hungers that cannot be satisfied with substitutes. In many countries political freedom is non-existent—even the hope of it has little substance to feed upon. But we—never were we more free to talk and vote as we think, to choose how we shall be governed.—"The Alabama Baptist," 12-15-38.

History Views the Jewish Persecutions

by E. L. Harshbarger

NOTE: Requested by the editor to write an article occasionally, on some of the weighty world problems, Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, professor of history at Bethel College, has kindly prepared a series of essays on "HISTORY VIEWS OF JEWISH PERSECUTION." We bring the first of the series today. The next one will be on Antisemitism before the World War. The writer says, "My sole purpose is to furnish from history sufficient materials to give Christians a little perspective on the question regardless of their present belief. My own view as a Christian will be given in the last of the series."

1. WHY JEWISH PERSECUTIONS?

A knowledge of the record of history does not always determine a just settlement of our world's disputes, but certainly such a settlement is impossible without taking into consideration the historical facts. The Jewish persecutions of today call for some such comment. Regardless of personal feelings on the matter, what does history say about anti-semitism?

The first and most important question which arises when the Jew is discussed is, why is he persecuted? To this question history has given a number of answers, their character depending always upon the point of view of the author and the times in which he lived. The orthodox Jew views his persecution as a result of his dispersion which, in turn, was caused by his sins. Liberal Jews say it is the result of clashing national cultures and the outcome of atavistic tendencies which will disappear with increasing enlightenment and humanity. Socialists say anti-semitism is a means adopted by those in power to divert "the fury of the impoverished classes from their real enemies." Thus laborers and small merchants are encouraged to hate the Jewish capitalist, while capitalists are taught to fear the Jewish "communist." Not always logical, but effective.

Another view is that hatred of the Jew arises out of "a sense of inferiority with regard to the Jewish competitor, who is hated for his cleverness, and therefore slandered and abused." This may be partly the case in Germany where 600,000 Jews were supposed to be ready to wrest power from 60,000,000 Germans. To others, like the Coudenhove-Kalergis, the chief cause of anti-semitism is religious fanaticism, which may be illustrated by the differences of attitude toward Jesus, a Jew, and towards "certain Jews" who have been labeled as murderers of Jesus.

Still another widely held modern view is that Jew-baiting grows out of a feeling of hostility inherent in every group toward other groups fundamentally different. Closely related to this group difference is that tendency to hate and persecute others to cover up one's sense of guilt or weakness. This is shown in the political field by the case of Germany. During the war the Germans cried "Gott strafe England," but this fury broke down in the defeat of Germany. The next object of German hate was the French who placed upon them the yoke of bondage—the unfair Versailles Treaty. But here again the fury found no successful means of expression. Finally, in desperation from a number of causes the Nazis turned on the Jewish minority, which was universally despised and unable to successfully resist. German weakness found compensation in humilation of Jews; "the victorious powers had chastised the Germans with whips, now the Germans chastised the Jews with scorpions."

No doubt there is truth in all these contentions, but it is equally certain that no one of them contains the whole truth. At one time religion, at another business rivalry, and again nationalism has caused anti-semitism. But one common feature seems to be found in all the suggested causes, namely, a difference in cultures. Anti-semitism has always been some form of hatred of the foreigners, the person who doesn't fit into our ideals and plans, the person who is stubbornly different. This is the basis of anti-semitism whatever its immediate and local causes may be.

FROM "THE PASTOR'S CHAT"

We are glad that so many of our members are readers of our church papers. But we wish there were still more. THE MENNONITE or BUNDESBOTE or both should be in every household. We are more than an individual church; we are members in a fellowship of churches. Our brethren in the faith are scattered far and wide over the United States and Canada and many foreign countries. Our interests in building the Kingdom include first of all our own community but they extend to the ends of the earth. The church papers are the ties that bind us together. They keep us in touch with others. They help us see our larger tasks. If you are not interested in other churches in your denomination, you miss something important to your own religious life. The MENNONITE costs $1.50 per year. It is worth all of that and much more.—Lester Hostetler in "The Herald" —Missionary W. F. Unruh and family arrived in Newton, Ks., Feb. 4, safely and apparently in good spirits. For the present they are making their home with Mrs. Unruh's folks. Rev. J. B. Schmidt, at Pawnee, Rock, Kansas.

The Human and Divine in Christian Work

A Sermon by Rev. J. J. Balzer

Text: Matth. 14:19, "He gave the loaves to the disciples and the disciples to the multitude."

Introduction:

Jesus seemed to have reached great popularity at this junction. The people could not hear and learn enough of His teaching, nor see enough of His works. They flocked to Him from every quarter. Thousands gathered about Him, eager to see more of His miraculous doings and hear more of His wonderful teaching, for He taught as one of authority. He always expounded some truth about the Kingdom of God, which they never before had heard.

Doubtless most of this present multitude were Jerusalem-Pilgrims, for the annual Passover Feast was near. That wonderful feast which, with its ritual, so vividly pointed to their great history of the past, when their forefathers were in bondage of slavery in Egypt and were delivered by the outstretched arm of Jehovah and chosen by Almighty God to be the firstborn son among all nations. To remind themselves of the passing by of the Angel of Wrath who slew every firstborn in all Egypt from the King's to the lowest peasant's, while Israel was safe behind the blood of the Lamb at their door-posts.—And then to celebrate that greater Delivery to which the feast was pointing in the future: "That greatest of History when all Israel would be gathered and saved by the coming of Messiah, their King, our Christ Jesus." To this end they gladly left their homes and wandered to Jerusalem to commemorate these wonderful historic events: past and future.

At the shores of blue Tiberias Lake they met Jesus and His group of twelve disciples. He began to teach and spoke all the day long, and still they were eagerly listening. The day was fast wearing away. The minds of the disciples began to be uneasy as to what was to be done with this great company of 5,000 men, not counting women and children.

The food necessary to supply so many is not at hand. "What is to be done?" They suggest that the multitude be sent away to buy bread in the nearest towns. This seemed but a reasonable course to pursue. Their mistake was simply this, that they put the needs of the people, and the insufficient supply at their command between them and their master, instead of putting the unlimited power of Christ between them and the needs of the people. It is ever thus. Elijah on Mount Carmel, with the consciousness of God's presence, works wonders and puts to confusion the multitude of Baal's worshipers. But Elijah, turned away from God, flees before a viscious woman, Queen Jezebel. David, the shepherd lad, with a sling and a smooth stone in his hand, is able, through trust in God, to achieve more than the armies of Israel. It is the same today. God can take the smallest gift or talent, and make it mighty in His hand.

What we need most, is not great faith, but faith in a great God. A farmer sows 1½ bushels of wheat into an acre of land and often harvests 20-40 bushels; 3 of oats and reaps 50-70 and even more bushels. God stands by and multiplies. An American economist had it figured out, that the breakfast of the world would cost all the riches of France; at noon all the resources of England would pay the dinner bill, and for supper all the moneys of the U. S. A. would be needed to pay the bill. How wonderful that through 6000 years God has always multiplied the harvests of the world to keep feeding the world for 16 months, and the world has never seen a surplus of grain much beyond that period. If you can show me a surplus bushel, it must be found in the elevators of the speculators who hide it away for better prices, while some parts of the multitude will suffer starvation.

Up to this time the disciples show the human side; the hungry multitude, with only five barley loaves and two small fishes as their store of supply. "But Man's Extremity is God's Opportunity." The Master said, there is no need of sending them away to buy food. "Give ye them to eat!" is His direction. This command seemed extravagant to them. It made them feel how insufficient they were, with the little they had to obey it. "Bring them to me," said the Master. These loaves and fishes were just what the people needed. He accepts their gifts, and then manifests His power through that which they gave Him. He does not command that the supply be increased before He accepts it. What then is the lesson for us?

1. Our first condition of usefulness is to bring what little we have to Christ. By so doing we shall always find, that that which is blessed by Him is equal to all the present demands. "Doctor," said the Housemother of the orphanage of Herman Franke, shortly before noon, "There is no bread for dinner for the 500 children in care." "Well," said the Doctor, "that's a sure sign that the Lord is on the way to supply our need, for my father always bought me a pair of new boots when the old ones were torn." And while he said this, there was a knock at the door and the mail carrier brought a letter which contained 500 gold ducats to buy bread and more than twelve baskets full were left over.

Oh, if we only knew how to trust Him and give Him what little we have! The disciples' part was to do what they were bidden and He assumes the responsibility of failure, if failure is to follow. But He blessed it and that made all the difference. What at most could feed a few was sufficient to feed the multitude of probably ten to fifteen thousand.

Our first duty, therefore, is to bring our resources to Christ and put them into His hands. Without His blessing the greatest ability will fail. Christ can do nothing with us until we have really given ourselves into His hands. But if our life is yielded to God we will never fail to accomplish great things. Our life is an utter failure otherwise. This has been proven a thousand times.

11. But we have been looking mostly at the Divine side of the miracle. Christ always uses human instrumentalities, as far as the human will reach. He gave the loaves to the disciples and the disciples to the multitude. The broken loaves pass through the hands of the disciples. God never gave us anything to keep for ourselves but to pass it on to others, to those in need. He gave us the blessed gospel with the command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to all nations!" We are but His stewards. So with our material possessions. "If you have two coats, give one unto him who has none, and if you have meat do likewise." "I have been naked and ye have clothed me, an hungered and ye have fed me," is the verdict of the King at His judgment.

In our thought of dependance on the divine power, we are too much overlooking the human part in Christian work. One day when Dr. August Herman Franke received five ducats from a friend, he weighed it in his hand and said: "I can do great things with that; I shall build an orphanage." He bought some stone, sand, and lime, hired a mason and began to build a great orphanage. A master carpenter who passed by, asked the mason: "What are you going to do with that heap of stone and mortar?" "I am to build an orphanage, a home for poor children that have none." "If that wall is ever to get high enough, I shall hang myself on it," was the foolish answer. And when that wall became eight feet high—for God provided material as it was needed from day to day—this infidel carpenter fled for his life to another part of Germany, for fear he would have to hang himself. The home for children was not only completed, but if you go to Halle in Germany, you find house after house for nine hundred feet on both sides of the street, built from gifts received from the hand of God, given to His disciples who passed them on to Dr. Franke for those in need, and thousands were received and educated for a noble and worthy occupation.

When God would reveal His will He spoke through human lips, and the present generation will only know God in so far as we, the Christian Church, are diligently passing on the Gospel of Christ, obeying His great commission: "Go and preach the Gospel to all nations!" May the Lord help us.

LETTER

521 20th Street, Santa Monica, Calif., Jan., 1939

Friends of Katherine and Edward Franz:

We have felt impelled to write a news letter of the past year to quite a few of our friends, and this "annual letter" is our solution.

The beginning of the year 1938 found Katherine and me living in our home-made house trailer in a hilltop trailer camp in this city. We had rented our home at Santa Monica to two splendid retired people and moved into our trailer in order to save money for a trip to Europe in the summer. The credit for the idea, and the courage as well, to live in the trailer during the year, including the winter months, all goes to Katherine. Once established, it was fun to live in such limited quarters knowing that a trip to Europe would be well worth what little sacrifice trailer living entailed.

We finally decided to see France, Switzerland, and Italy with an "International Relations Tour" led by Dr. Wesley Gewehr of American University, Washington, D. C., and Germany, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Denmark and England, with a tour conducted by Dr. Hubert Phillips of Fresno State College, Fresno, Calif. We left Dr. Gewehr immediately upon arrival at Munich and joined Dr. Phillips at Prague. To both of our leaders we offer a warm vote of appreciation. These tours were sponsored by "The Open Road" of New York City.

As a last act before leaving Santa Monica, we purchased an 8 mm. motion picture camera which proved a very valuable part of our equipment. Our one hour movie of the trip is a very happy reminder of the scenes we visited and the fine people we learned to know—both the "natives" and our fellow travelers. The pictures also afford a splendid means of sharing our trip with our friends. Though there is nothing professional nor necessarily artistic about these pictures, they do have the human interest which is often lacking in advertising films.

Katherine announced before we left that she wanted more than anything else to learn to know the people, and I to see what I could see. Though our stay in each country was limited, we cherish the cultured people of the various countries. The hosts with which the International Study and Hospitality Association (ISHA) furnished us in every country visited were very helpful in every way to make our experience a worthwhile and rounded one. In Paris we heard a lecture on French security and German equality. In Geneva we listened to discussions on the work of the League of Nations. In Rome we heard several lectures on Fascism. In Florence we heard an able lecture on Italian art in the home of our hostess for Italy. In Berlin we heard a lecture by a man who was on the general staff of the German army during the World War. In Stockholm we were addressed on cooperatives in the "PUB," the large cooperative department store. At Elsinore, near Copenhagen, we listened to Mr. Peter Manniche tell us about the Danish Folk High School. In Copenhagen we were addressed by a Mr. Larsen in the fine new cooperative wholesale store.

Of course we saw many historic and beautiful sights, but the above experiences helped us to understand the people, their present problems, and their aspirations for the future. Needless to say, the outlook in a number of countries seemed rather dark and some of the subsequent events apparently have not made the situation any more hopeful. Yet, there were some bright spots. In Sweden and Denmark we found the problems of housing, of social security, of health being solved in a thorough and democratic way. In their schools they teach cooperative methods and, being a very practical people, they are not afraid to teach and put into practice the new ideas which they find to be sound.

Returning, we arrived in New York on August 28 and immediately left by train for Lind, Washington, where both Katherine's and my families live. A few days of visiting and showing our pictures was followed by hurrying back to Santa Monica in order to arrive in time for the opening of the junior college.

Not finding a suitable apartment immediately we temporarily moved into our trailer again and parked at a trailer camp at the beach. When our tenants left on Dec. 1 on a three months trip, we moved back to our home. We were glad to be in our home again, because we wanted to welcome our "little bundle from heaven" there. She, Mary Louise, came on December 26 at 1:51 a. m., after Katherine and I had both sung in the choir at the local Presbyterian church at the morning service and the afternoon musical vesper service on Christmas day. Now we are all three very happy together. Mary Louise is steadily growing and we are trying to keep, besides other records, a pictorial record of her progress by means of snapshots and motions pictures.

And now to wish not only our friends a happy and prosperous year, but also to breathe the wish—and the hope—that somehow the world will soon learn to cure its ills, solve its problems, no matter how involved or deep-seated, so that human suffering may be reduced to a minimum and that happiness and genuine and lasting well-being may be enjoyed by all.

Sincerely
Katherine and Edward Franz, interested readers of the Mennonite.

EXPLANATION FROM EDITOR OF THE YEAR BOOK

The editor of the Year Book wishes to correct a regrettable omission which was made in some unaccountable manner. The copy for this omission was sent in with the rest of the copy. In the list of the organization of the Pacific District Conference on page 45, the following Committees were inadvertently omitted—

Business Committee—Rev. Lester Hostetler, Mr. Homer Leisy, Rev. Philip A. Wedel.

Education Committee—Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, Rev. Lester Hostetler, Rev. Edmund Miller

Evangelization Committee—Rev. J. M. Frantz, Rev. S. S. Baumgartner, Rev. Harley King, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter.

Trustees of the Conference.—H. C. Wiebe, Aberdeen, Idaho, Reinhold Ewy, Reedly, Calif., Carl Waltner, Colfax, Wash., Ed. Leisy, Portland, Oregon, Elmer Widmer Albany, Oregon.

The editor's attention has been called to that fact that among the oldest of our Missionaries in years of active service should have been included Mrs. Rodolphe Petter, Lame Deer, Montana. She has been in continuous service in our Indian Mission work in Oklahoma and Montana since a few months after her graduation from Wittenberg College in Ohio, in 1896. She has been in active service for almost forty three years.

The editor was entirely unaware of this at the time of securing the sketches that appear in the Year Book. He sincerely regrets his not being aware of this and the omission which should not have been made. —A. S. Bechtel, Editor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

Acts 10:30-48

Topic: A Faith That Breaks Down Racial Barriers

Cornelius Eager to Learn the Truth vs 30-33

This lesson tells us much of God's way of revealing Himself to people. Cornelius was a Roman army officer, a devout and praying man, a seeker after God's truth (vs. 2, 30). God gave to him a vision and spake to him (19:3-7). He sent men to Joppa, as directed, and now eagerly awaited the coming of Peter and hearing his message. His prayer was answered. God recognized his devout life. God answers the sincere prayers of the seeking soul. Cornelius called in his kinsmen and friends (v24) to hear the inspired message. Peter had come when summoned, without questioning (v20). Cornelius meets him and brings him into his house and tells him why he sent for him (vs 30-32). Cornelius acted immediately after God spoke to him. His praying prepared the way for action. We must not make praying a substitute for doing what we can do, not make it an alibi for inaction. Now all were together "before God" to hear and learn (v33). Peter had an ideal congregation in this first Gentile evangelistic service; they desired "to hear all things commanded of God."

Gentiles Believe, Receive Baptism of Holy Spirit 34-48

Verses 34-43 record the first sermon preached to Gentiles. Peter was convinced by his vision (vs 11-16) that God set no distinction between Jew and Gentile (vs 34, 35). He saw God's leading clearly. He is convinced that God does not show favoritism to the Jews. He begins with this great truth that God will accept ALL who have a reverent regard for Him and His will, in every nation. Then Peter proceeds to preach salvation through faith in Christ. He proclaimed the great truths about Jesus so that his hearers could know what they ought to do (vs 6, 43). Peace with God is through Jesus; He is Lord of all (v36). God anointed Him with the Holy Ghost and power to do a great work (v38).

Peter spoke as a witness of the things Jesus did and said and he could speak with authority (v39). Jesus was crucified and God raised Him from the dead—an actual fact—the supreme evidence that He is the Christ. Peter declares that he and the other Apostles were commanded to preach and testify that Jesus is to be the Judge of all (v42) and through His name all who believe in Him shall receive the forgiveness of sins (v43). This last statement clearly opened the way of salvation to his Gentile hearers. All are one before Christ.

Peter's hearers believed, were spiritually prepared to receive the Holy Ghost (v44), they received Christ into their hearts and were saved and God set his seal upon them. This amazed Peter's companions who had come with him (vs 23, 11:12). Peter was fully convinced that these who so evidently had God's Spirit imparted to them, were fully ready in heart to receive baptism (vs 47, 48). The doors of the early Church were here opened to the Gentiles.

Christian Faith That Breaks Down Barriers

Christianity is the only effective force in breaking down racial barriers. Human prejudices are persistently slow in giving way, even to our day. It was some years after Pentecost before Peter came to understand this great truth. He experienced three stages—his vision upon the house top, his hearing Cornelius relating his vision and third, the Holy Ghost falling on his hearers. This was positive proof that the gospel was for the Gentiles also. Jewish prejudice was very pronounced. They had received special promises, to them, a special favor from God. This spirit lingers today among many non-Jews. In Germany the Nazis promote a nationalistic crusade in which the Arayan race is glorified and the Semitic treated with contempt. In America many whites believe themselves to be the favorites of God. From Christ's standpoint ALL are one in Christ Jesus and there can not be any racial barriers in true Christianity.

EVANGELISM

By Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, Pastor of East Swamp Mennonite Church

"Evangelism is the imperative of the Christian ministry. Take Evangelism out, and you have nothing left." A. C. Dixon, in comparing Evangelical to Evangelism said, "Evangelical is truth on ice, but Evangelism is truth on fire."

During the first three centuries, the church at large was evangelistically minded. But after the conversion of Constantine, and the popularizing of Christianity in the Empire, the spirit of Evangelism died down.

Someone has well said, that the devil has a double barrel shotgun. The one barrel is power, the second, corruption. During the Martyr period we saw how the first barrel was used, but rather than destroying the evangelistic fervor of the converts, it spread them out over the countryside, and with that the Gospel was spread. The devil being defeated with his first barrel makes attempts with his second—namely corruption. This he tried under the reign of Constantine, and did succeed in corrupting the church from the inside, and is still doing it today. May God help us to return to the Evangelistic fervor of the first century.

The minister who desires to emphasize God's program of Evangelism today, is realizing as never before, that he must be willing to stand alone. He will not be popular with the world. But more valuable to him than being popular, is to know that he is pleasing God.

Evangelism is the supreme business of the Church. The Lord Jesus during His earthly ministry was always busy as an Evangelist, always welcoming sinners. "HE CAME NOT TO SAVE THE RIGHTEOUS, BUT TO BRING SINNERS TO REPENTENCE." If we as ministers and Christian workers could realize this we would have our "PEACE" problem solved. For we can never expect to have peace between man and man, until we bring peace between God and man. Paul, in the opening of his Epistles always greeted the people in the following way, "GRACE AND PEACE." This is always the Divine order. We can therefore never expect to bring peace, without first bringing the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ to man, and Evangelism is the method we can use to do it.

As Christ contacted lost mankind, He always saw individuals who were without peace. (Isa. 57:20, 21). in each individual He also saw a potential saint, no matter how far into sin he had fallen. If we would therefore do constructive work in Evangelism, we must see man as Jesus did.

"People saw Simon the fisherman, Jesus saw the Pentecostal preacher. Jerusalem saw Saul the murderer. Jesus saw Paul, the Evangelist to the Gentiles. Men saw one uneducated, working in a boot shop, Jesus saw D. L. Moody, the man who rocked two continents for God."

May the Lord give us a vision of lost humanity. Men and women, boys and girls without Christ, but for whom Christ died. May we see these people as Jesus sees them. People who when saved, will become the future bulwarks of the Mennonite Church.

The world today is in a critical position. Thank God, we as God's people have the message that will solve all problems, the message of Christ. But it's not Christ as a great example who will do this, nor Christ as a great teacher, nor merely the principles of Jesus, but Christ the crucified and risen Savior. If Jesus Christ had returned to His home in Glory after living a spotless life on earth below, He could never have atoned for sin, and man would still be without hope of Salvation. It was only because of His death and resurrection that salvation is available to ,,Whosover will," today. "FOR WITHOUT THE SHEDDING OF BLOOD THERE IS NO REMISSION."

Jesus Christ is the central message in the program of Evangelism. In order to be successful in carrying out this program, we ourselves need to have the love of Christ in our hearts. We must have faith in God's Word. May we permit the Holy Spirit to make our ministry more Evangelistic. It is the need of the day.

The Christian Conscience Against War

by John Horsch

I

"The Mennonite Conscience Against War" is the title of an article by a writer of Mennonite ancestry which appeared recently in a religious weekly. Objection to war, according to this writer, is a peculiarity of the Mennonite conscience. Most Christians, he observes, do not have scruples of this sort.

Indeed, Mennonites—unless they be Mennonites in name only—have a conscience against war. For their convictions on this point they have no apology to offer. They believe that war is the very opposite of what Scripture enjoins upon Christian believers—that war is sin.

Sin, but No Conscience Against It

It is in this connection of particular interest to notice that in various sections of Christendom it is freely admitted that war is sin, and yet there is no conscience against it or against participation in it. Following are a number of citations taken from the writings of prominent Protestant theologians who freely concede that war is contrary to Christ's teaching—that it is sin—and neverthless defend participation in it by Christian believers.

The late Professor C. F. Paulus, of Baldwin University, in his work on Christian Ethics, says, war is the most appalling manifestation of sin in the world. Professor Karl Kunkmann, in his book, "War and the Disciples of Christ," wrote, "War is the open outbreak of the hatred and sin which reign in this world." Professor Paul Feine, in his work, "The Gospel, War, and World Peace," says: "The principles of ethics, laid down in the Sermon on the Mount, preclude all war." Dr. Otto Borchert, in his book, "War with a Good Conscience," speaks of war as the outbreak of the hatred which animates the world; "war is the terrible manifestation of the actual condition of the world." These prominent Christian writers, together with others who have expressed similar views, nevertheless defend participation in war by the Christian.

"A Demonstration of the Power of Sin"

The Oxford Conference, a general conference, in which most of the Christian churches of many countries were represented (July 1937), has gone on record with this strong condemnation of war:

"War involves compulsory enmity, diabolical outrage against human personality, and a wanton distortion of the truth. War is a particular demonstration of the power of sin in this world and a defiance of the righteousness of God as revealed in Jesus Christ and Him crucified. No attempted justification of war must be allowed to conceal or minimize this fact."

In spite of this declaration the Oxford Conference expressly approved of military service.

A special committee, appointed by the Church of Scotland, said in a report which was approved by the General Assembly of the same church in 1937:

"All are agreed that war in its effects on individuals is an unspeakable outrage on human personality. War raises more problems and more serious problems than those it seeks to settle; and the experience of the world in the last war has taught us that for its successful prosecution it relies on massed suggestion and on campaigns of lies and deceit."

The Federal Council of Churches, a federation of twenty-two Christian denominations, has made the follownig statement: "War is the greatest collective sin of mankind." While this federation cannot speak authoritatively on doctrine, it represents in its general statement a large proportion of its constituency.

"A Flat Denial of the Christian Faith"

Surprising, as it is, that these and many other prominent church leaders admit that war is sin, and yet are of the opinion that it is permissible to the Christian, there is another pertinent fact that is, if possible, even more surprising. The fact we have in mind is stated by Charles E. Raven, Professor of Theology in the University of Cambridge, England, in his recent work, "War and the Christian." He says:

"War is evil and for the Christian a flat denial of his faith. This is, I am convinced, the belief of every thinking person outside the churches. They realize more clearly than we (the church people) do, that by no ingenuity of exegesis can the teaching and life of Jesus be reconciled with war as it is today, and they are amazed that we who profess discipleship have not made that discovery long ago. Why is it that we have been so slow to acknowledge it?"

The question raised by Prof. Raven is obviously an important one. Why has Christendom been so slow to recognize the fact that war is utterly irreconcilable with Christian principles? Why is it that war and participation in it is condoned and excused, even though it is admitted to be sin? We shall not attempt an answer to this question. And yet Prof Raven's statement that very many thinking persons outside the churches believe that war is a flat denial of the Christian faith is undoubtedly correct. The outside world is surprised that in large sections of the church there is no conscience against war, not even where war is frankly admitted to be sin.

"Warriors' Doubts"

To express the opinion that war is sin and yet is permitted the Christian, is equivalent to saying that in war sin is not to be reckoned as sin. That is, in war transgressing a divine command is permissible. This has been actually and literally asserted in various books published during and after the World War. Among the books advancing this claim, is the work "Warriors' Doubts," by Superintendent (bishop) Robert Falke, of one of the Protestant state churches of Germany. The author of this book freely admits that war is altogether contrary to Christ's command of love. He fully concedes this, but makes the assertion that this command of Christ is not valid or binding during the hours of battle. He says:

"So long as the battle rages, Jesus' command of love is completely abolished . . . For us during an engagement on the field of battle the command to love has no longer any meaning. The less consideration we use in wielding our weapons, the more merciful it is, for the sooner the war is ended. The killing is no sin in this case, but a Christian duty, yes, a service to God. The waging of war (and transgressing the command of love) becomes a Christian duty, yes, an act of love. . . . Therefore, away with all conscientious scruples."

An Ungentle Awakening of Conscience

This book at the same time furnishes unanswerable proof that many soldiers, who had been taught that participation in war is in the final analysis but the exercise of Christian love, have experienced an ungentle awakening of conscience when they acted on this principle. As indicated by the title of the book, bishop Falke writes about the doubts arising in the soldiers' minds as to the consistency of war with the Christian faith. "Such doubt," he says, "is creeping through the trenches and stealing into the hearts of the warriors, namely, religious doubt. It makes the heart sick and paralyzes the arm."

The author then continues: "This war has become a gruesome murder. Millions of Christians have been buried in the ground. Frightful distress has come over the peoples.

"When the German warrior meets the Frechman, the Englishman, the Russian in close combat, he runs the cold bayonet through his body or shatters his head with the gun barrel. How does such murdering agree with the command to love one's enemy?

"Those are warrior's doubts! They have arisen mightily in the course of the long duration of the war, and disturb the mind of many a brave man. Soldiers have written us from the trenches and have begged us to help them in their distress."

A Notorious Insinuation

By certain recent German (Russian) Mennonite writers the opinion was expressed that the responsibility for the fact of Christendom at large approving of war is to be referred back to God, on the ground, so it is argued, that it would be a small matter for Him to give Christendom another understanding on this point. In this insinuation certain outstanding facts are ignored, some of which were referred to above. The book "Warriors' Doubts," and other sources establish the fact beyond the possibility of a doubt that a great many Christian warriors are fully aware that participation in war is contrary to Christ's teaching. What of the fact that hosts of Christian professors who admit that war is sin, have no conscience against it? And what of the further pertinent fact indicated in the above quotation from the book of Prof. C. E. Raven?

"A Counsel, not a Precept"

Curious indeed is the argumentation by which some of the largest ecclesiastical bodies have defended their approval of warfare. Precisely in Roman Catholic theology the fact of Jesus' teaching against warfare is recognized. The Roman Catholic approval of war is founded on a flimsy excuse, namely on the supposition that Jesus taught love toward enemies and nonresistance merely as a counsel, not as a precept or command; and to disregard a mere counsel of Christ, it is said, is not a sin. (See Hastings, "Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics" under "Counsels.")

Martin Luther, the father of Protestantism, originally defended the principle of non-resistance. When after the first period of his reformatory labors he approved of warfare, he in theory continued to stand for this principle. He permitted warfare on the strange supposition that a Christian going to war does so as a citizen, not as a Christian. As if a Christian could lay aside his religion like a garment while he is engaged in war, to take it up again afterwards. Also, Ulrich Zwingli, the founder of the Reformed Church, always recognized the fact that Christ has forbidden both war and the oath.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, BERNE, IND.

On Sunday, February 5, our newly elected deacon, Robert L. Sprunger, was installed into office. The retiring deacon is D. J. Sprunger, who faithfully served the church in this capacity over a period of many years. In connection with the installation service the Pastor, Dr. C. H. Suckau, preached a sermon basing his text on Rev. 1:16, "And he had in his right hand seven stars," together with the interpretation in verse 20, "The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches," —the leaders of the churches. Before giving the charge to the new deacon, Dr. Suckau also gave a charge to the congregation. In his exhortation he used the words in 1 Chron. 16:22, "Touch not mine anointed and do my prophets no harm." It was a solemn emphasis upon the duty and responsibility of the congregation towards the Board of Deacons.

In the evening of the same Sunday, the Women's Missionary Society of the church held their annual meeting. The Rev. George Dick of Lima, Ohio, was the speaker on this occasion. He gave an earnest message on the question "Am I my brother's keeper?" He asks the prayers of God's people upon the work at Lima which he represents. This is a new work in the struggling stages of its infant years, and at times not altogether too encouraging.

On Sunday, Feb. 12, the Rev. Mel Trotter, world-famed evangelist and city rescue mission worker, is to be the special speaker at the Christian Temperance Union in the church. He is also to occupy the pulpit as preacher that morning.

In our mid-week prayer and Bible study, we have entered upon the study of the book of The Revelation. We find this intensely interesting and of great blessing, especially at the present time.—Martha Gilliom, Corr.

But a month of the new year is past and many are the blessings, spiritual and otherwise, we have received. We observed the prayer week the first week of January, different members of the church serving with topics.

As is customary in our church, we have election for deacon on New Year's day. This year, two were elected, as it was thought wise to have three in the place of two. Brother P. A. Pankratz and Dr. A. K. Ratzlaff were elected. January 15, these were installed in their new offices. Brother L. J. Thomas was installed as deacon last summer, to fill a vacancy. We are all grateful to our heavenly Father that he has made these men willing to serve our church in this capacity. We were very glad to have Rev. Abr. Ratzlaff, the grandfather of Dr. Ratzlaff and father-in-law of our pastor, Rev. J. H. Epp, with us for this service. It was a real joy for him to be present, too. He offered the closing prayer.

February 1, the whole church gathered for a fellowship supper as a surprise for our pastor. After the supper a program in honor of his birthday as well as his twenty-five years of service as our Elder, was given in the church. The Rev. Walter Gering was the guest speaker. A small gift was tendered the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Epp. Everyone felt that the evening was well spent.—Mrs. John Bartel, Corr.

"Have-Nots" and Splinters

Jesus said, And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me cast out the mote out of thine eye; and lo, the beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

These words suggest a method of dealing with human behavior. That method is designed to draw out the good in the other person. Self-righteousness and hypocricy in the accuser begets anger, disgust, retaliation and hatred in the detected sinner. Let the accuser acknowledge the beam in his own eye and the violent emotions of the accused subside. Let the former pull out the beam in his eye and the latter finds it easier to pluck the splinter. This method worked in the days of Jesus; it works today. It works not only in personal relationships but also in those of nations.

"Sinners and splinters," screams the press of England, France, and the United States as Germany reaches for more territory and persecutes the Jews, and as Japan enlarges its empire and Italy her's. With a great gusto of righteousness does it berate these doers of evil.

Harken! The muffled voice of history speaks. It must be heard, even though many would "remember not past years."

France has marched across the earth to gain raw materials and markets. In Asia it has a foothold. In Africa it controls territory larger than the area of the United States. The black and brown inhabitants of her empire have little to say about, and little to derive from, the exploitation of the natural resources of their fatherland. Which does this approximate most closely, racial appreciation or racial persecution? France, behold the beam in thine own eye!

England looked upon the face of the earth and saw that much of it was fair to behold. Resolutely she spread her hungry hand over India, Australia—a land as large as the United States,—islands of the Pacific, and over more than one-third of Africa, the second largest continent. Although some of these territories have won their freedom, they afford economic advantages to England. Did the voice of true democracy command that this should be England's course of action? England, behold the beam in thine own eye!

The United States promoted its growth partly by conquest. Because of our land-hungry pioneers many an Indian died, while bravely defending his fatherland. We gained Texas and the Southwest by war against Mexico. We, by war, gained control over the Philippines and Cuba, and forcefully took Hawaii.

The United States made democracy largely a monopoly of the white man. We shoved the Indians into reservations and then moved the reservations. We imported negroes as though they were cattle. As a growing democracy we kept thousands of our black brothers in slavery for over half a century. Today the negro has only a minute part in our political democracy and a pitiful part in what should be economic democracy. (See Survey Graphic, Feb. 1939, pp. 109-112). Today negroes are still lynched and "honorable" senators filibuster against an anti-lynching bill. At a recent mixed conference in Birmingham, Alabama, policemen enforced a city regulation prohibiting white man and black from sitting together. United States, behold the beam in thine own eye!

The United States, France, and England, cannot claim to be converted sinners as long as they do not make amends for the sins enumerated above and the sins incurred through the Treaty of Versailles. Zacchaeus did not repent and then retain all his unfairly collected tax money. He repented and acted. Reformation demands restitution.

Being a sinner nation we should beware of trying to pull the splinter out of the eyes of the "Have-nots," without first improving our vision. Even though the latter were accomplished we should beware of trying to pull out those splinters with the cruel, awkward, clenched fist of armed force. Let us rather try it with the open hand of good-will. Let good-will be the expression of that nation in which over half of the inhabitants in some way bear allegiance to the Church of the Prince of Peace.

Let France, England, and the United States be converted and make restitution and then, perhaps, the "Jean Valjean" nations will not have to steal loaves of raw materials and markets and thereby provoke the denunciation of a world which unfairly withholds these vital necessities. Such a good life for the United States would cost, but it would not cost as much as a life of sin which would entail another world holocaust.

As we young people read the front pages of newspapers let us remember that the monster, force, once tried to make the world safe for democracy and failed. Let us at such times consecrate anew our hearts and minds to the method of good-will.—R. W.

Where Are Our Modern Frontiers?

Num. 13:17-21, 25, 30-35

Young People's Topic for Feb. 26, 1939

Meditations:

M. Feb. 20. Possessing the land. Josh. 1:10-18
T. Feb. 21. Restoring Jehovah worship. 2 Kings 23:21-25
W. Feb. 22. Purifying God's house. Matt. 21:12-17

F. Feb. 24. The obligation of the rich. 1 Tim. 6:17-19
S. Feb. 25. Impartiality enjoined. Jas. 2:1-9

Suggested Hymns: "There is Power in the Blood;" "Rescue the Perishing;" "Beneath the Cross of Jesus."

Questions for discussion:

What is the nature of our modern frontiers? What can be done about religious illiteracy? What pioneering is still to be done in inter-racial relationships?

On what basis must economic justice be built? Do the poverty-ridden areas of American life represent a frontier of Christian action? What must young people do about crime prevention?

What is our great weakness in modern public education?

Is it possible for young people to do anything about bad politics?

What are the means of evangelism to be used today? What will young people have to do in order to create wholesome amusements?

Points for prayer:

Thank God for the courageous faith of those who pioneered in spreading the Christian faith in early days. Thank God for the opportunity to dare and to do new things for Christ. Ask God to help us be faithful pioneers in our day in any way we can. Ask God to open our eyes to the right and give us strength to follow it.

Leader's Talk:

Many people today think that the frontiers are all gone. They regret the passing of the old frontier days. The frontiers of a century ago were geographical. and it is true that they have been pushed out. The advice of Horace Greeley to go west in search of fame and fortune no longer has the same meaning. Today our frontiers are moral and spiritual. Large areas of life need to be seized and conquered in Christ's name. These frontiers are no more easily conquered and defended than were the old geographical frontiers. This lesson presents a stirring challenge to all Christian young people who are courageous and seeking adventure for Christ's sake. Let us give heed to the opportunities which beg for our time and attention in our modern civilization and thus help to establish His Kingdom upon earth.

Inter-racial relationships cry out for the attention of young America. If the spirit of Christ is to be shown in this world, discrimination against any race or creed must be abolished. This does not mean that different races should mingle as one race and intermarry. Each member of each race should have the privilege and opportunity of making the most of his life and talents without any more handicaps than a member of the white race in a similar situation.

Economic justice is one of the ticklish problems of our day. Communism and socialism are each being tried and found wanting in various parts of the world. There can be no economic justice as long as people are going hungry, without shelter and clothing.

Is there need for pioneering in the direction of crime prevention? The young people of America will have to take a more active interest in law enforcement if our country is to be civilized. Consider the extent to which murder, racketeering and kidnapping continue to exact their frightful toll from Americans. Crime exists because it is profitable and protected by the politicians.

The field of public education is being well cultivated but is still full of weeds. During the past few years there has been an alarming increase of atheistic materialism. Of everything in life we ask "Does it pay?" We have lowered our ideals to the point of financial returns. In our public education we must pioneer a way back to His kingdom and His righteousness.

The day of intensive personal evangelism is here. Young people need to think and talk of Christ as much as they do of other things. We must begin to give time to the things which are eternal.

Young people have a great opportunity to succeed in the field of wholesome amusements. At present all amusements are sponsored and administered by adults. Young people with Christian convictions could be real pioneers in this direction.

Topic Presentation

I. For the Leader. Jesus was always battling against evil when he was here upon earth. For forty days he was severely tempted in the wilderness and came out victorious. Again and again we find him in conflict with the forces of evil until finally sin nailed him to the cross. But it was only a temporary victory, for he arose triumphantly from the grave on the third day.

Since then the battle has been continued through his believers. Wherever Christ enters in, evil must go out. The two cannot abide in the same place any more than darkness and light can be in the same place. The church that is filled with the spirit of the living Christ will continue the battle for righteousness. What is the church doing to win this battle? What more could it do? What could our church do? These are questions that should concern us as Christians.

II. What the Church is Doing

1. Preaching the Gospel

a. Christ the good news. John 3:16. What is the good news? What evidence is there that the world needs it today. It is being preached from the pulpit, on the radio, through the printed page. The Bible recently passed its 1000th translation, and still new ones are being added.

b. Christ the example. Matt. 28:19, 20. "Teaching them to observe all things." Bring out the importance of this phase of the work. We must teach by our lives as well as words. One of our missionaries was dragged through the streets of the village where he was working amid scoffing and ridicule. He bore it patiently as a Christian. This made a deep impression and eventually broke down opposition.

c. Christ the power. Matt. 1:21; Rom. 1:16. "A poor old negro was once a hopeless drunkard and tried again and again to get free, and others tried to help him, but he could not get rid of his drunkenness until he was converted. Then there was a wonderful change, and someone said, 'So you have got the mastery of the devil at last?' 'No,' said he, 'But I have got the Master of the devil.' " Christ can be victorious over sin in our lives if we give Him a chance.

2. Upholding High Standards. Rom. 13:1, 10, 13-14.

a. Obedience to law. Paul said we must obey God rather than man. When are we justified in disobeying the law, if ever? Along what lines are Christians tempted to disobey the law of our land today?

b. Low standard Movies. Authorities agree that much juvenile crime today is a result of what children see on the screen. Too many movies are on the level of the standard of the actors and not the Christian standards. The church must stand against that which tears down Christian character. What have churches done about this problem?

c. Liquor traffic. Liquor is the cause of more crimes than any other one single thing. Can the Christian attitude be anything but "Total abstinence from everything harmful to the human body?" Once a quarter the Sunday School devotes a full period to teach the harmfulness of alcohol. What else is being done?

3. Building Character. 1 Tim. 4:12

a. Looking after Poor and Needy. A certain church sees to it that none of its members are on relief. How does your church look after its poor?

b. Providing Supervised Recreation for Children. Mennonite young people have largely escaped the temptation of wrong associates in leisure time, because they have been a rural people. Are there children in your community who need the influence of a midweek club or playtime? How do worthwhile hobbies build character?

c. Vacation and Week Day Bible Schools. Why is there greater need for this training today than when our parents were young. What more could your church do along this line?

Song: "O Master Let Me Walk with Thee."

JUNIOR CORNER

The leader's meditation:

The brick layers have come this morning. I can see them from this hospital window. The nurse has pushed aside the curtains. There is nothing in the way. I can watch them laying brick on brick. It seems a slow process. Will they ever get through? In thirty days, they say, the large hospital addition shall stand completely clothed. Can it be? I see them measuring, mixing the mortar, doing their work well. The wall must stand through storm and time.

And then I thought:

Isn't it like the Kingdom of God and our part in it? Aren't we, that love Him, bricklayers? The bricks are His. He buys them with His precious blood but it is our privilege in helping the Master put brick on brick, in helping with the walls of the Kingdom of God. Sometimes the work seems so very slow to us, but the Master builds sure for the ages of Eternity. What a joy should flood our soul that we may have a part, even a small, hopeless part, in the structure for Eternity. Someday, around the great white throne, we shall see that grand edifice in its completion and our hearts will flood with a deep satisfaction that it was our privilege to share in its building.

So let us return to our Juniors with a new tenderness, for the Master longs also for them to be added to His great structure. His lips still speak the words: "Suffer them to come unto me; for of such is the Kingdom of heaven."

Take me, Master take me,
Time and strength and all;
Use me for Thy Kingdom,
That shall never fall.

Weak I am and helpless,
Lord, I flee to Thee;
Make of me a builder
For eternity.

Suggestive Outline for March 1939
Heart Lessons from Jeremiah

March 5: "Ye Shall Call Me My Father." Jer. 3:19
March 12: "Walk Ye in All the Ways That I Command You." Jer. 7:23
March 19: "As the Clay in the Potter's Hand." Jer. 18:6
March 26: "Set Thee Up Waymarks, Make Thee Guide-posts." Jer. 31:21

Verse for March: "Walk ye in all the way that I command you, that it may be well with you." Jer. 7:23.

Song for March: "Jesus Loves Even Me"

Program for March 5, 1939
Ye Shall Call Me, My Father

Quiet music calling the group to service

Opening service

1. Five minute sing-song of songs chosen by the juniors.
2. "Our Father." At this time the juniors read or recite verses that have been distributed to them or which they have found themselves that have the word "Father" in them.
3. Sing in unison: "The Child of a King." Verses 1 and 2 singing the chorus, "Am I a child of the King?"
4. Read in unison the portion of Jer. 3:19, saying: "Ye shall call me My Father, and shall not turn away from following me."
5. Leader's prayer of thanksgiving that we may become children of God, the Father.

Mission minutes: Extracts from mission news. Why not make a mission poster for March and display it. The juniors would bring the contributions of maps or drawings showing the stations, pictures and current news from the fields.

Study period. Aim: To stimulate the consciousness of a Heavenly Father.

1. Introduction of evening's study by a talk given by a junior telling of what our earthly fathers do for us.
2. Our Heavenly Father: Blackboard study, leader with group. Let the juniors help to find these thoughts:
   a. The Heavenly Father wants us. Jer. 3:12
   b. The Heavenly Father is merciful. Jer. 3:12
   c. The Heavenly Father wants us to confess our sins. Jer. 3:13
   d. The Heavenly Father wants us to obey his voice. Jer. 3:13
   e. The Heavenly Father will provide for us. Jer. 3:15
3. Special music: "His Eye Is On the Sparrow"
4. Is God MY Heavenly Father? Heart-talk by leader or guest speaker using Jer. 2:22, "Though thou wash thee with lye, and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before me."
   a. In our sin we cannot come to God.
   b. We, ourselves, cannot make ourselves clean.
   c. Jesus is the way to the Father. John 14:6.
   d. The blood of Jesus cleanses from all sin. I John 1:7.
   e. Through Jesus, God becomes our Father.
5. The Heavenly Father's Longing: Let the chairman ask the group to read again the theme verse for the evening, "Ye shall call me my Father, and shall not turn away from following me." Jer. 3:19. Repeat also verse for month.
6. Sing in unison: "Jesus Loves Even Me."
7. Leader's closing prayer of Thanksgiving for Jesus through whom we can become children of a Heavenly Father.

Note of appreciation: Mrs. H. J. Andres, editor of the Junior Corner, as well as the editor of THE MENNONITE, herewith desire to thank Mrs. J. E. Entz, who so kindly edited the Junior section the last two issues, while Mrs. Andres was confined in the hospital.

In Memoriam

HERMAN PAUL REGIER came to bless our home December 3, 1937. For almost fourteen months much joy was found, although, God hath not promised skies always blue; flower-strewn pathways all our lives through. God hath not promised sun without rain, joy without sorrow, peace without pain. But God hath promised strength for the day, rest for the laborer, light on the way; grace for the trial, help from above, unfailing sympathy, undying love.

January 17, 1939, we realized that the Lord was speaking strongly to us through the great suffering that our innocent sonny did bear. On January 30, 1939, at (12:04) noon, Jesus called him home quietly and peacefully. May his suffering and passing away cause each one of us to pause and thank our Heavenly Father for His divine, guiding hand which leads us through dark hours. Then He finally leads us into the glorious land beyond.

"Safe in the arms of Jesus
Safe on His gentle breast,
There by His love o'er shaded Sweetly my soul shall rest."

Funeral services were held in the home of the parents, southeast of Newton, Kansas. Rev. J. E. Entz spoke on Job 1:21 and Rev. H. J. Dyck on Isa. 40:11. The congregation sang, "Zeuch hin, mein Kind," a mixed chorus sang, "Weil ich Jesu Schaeflein bin," and "Asleep in Jesus." Interment was made in Greenwood Cemetary.—The parents, Gustav H. and Linda Regier.

ALBERT E. BAER, son of Christian and Katherine Baer, was born at Summerfield, Ill., on March 8, 1874, and departed this earthly life January 13, 1939. He was baptized upon the confession of faith on May 13, 1888, by Elder Jacob Krehbiel and was received into the Summerfield Mennonite church. Upon coming to Kansas he became a member of the Halstead Mennonite church.

In 1899, on May 11th, he was united in marriage to Lydia Auernheimer by the Rev. C. H. van der Smissen. They came to Kansas in 1902. To this union were born two children, Alice McElwain, now of Burrton, Kansas, and Wilbert, who died at the age of two months.

He leaves to mourn his early departure his wife, Lydia; one daughter, Alice McElwain, one son-in-law, Iryl McElwain; three grandchildren, four brothers, and three sisters. One sister, Mrs. Lizzie Ewert, preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held at the Halstead Mennonite church, the pastor, Rev. David C. Wedel, officiating.

—Rev. J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake, Minn., writes: Am sending you a contribution for the Mennonite. Often I am being encouraged, in letters to write more for our papers, and this is something I can do in my declining years. In my leisure hours I am preparing a series of twelve sermons on the book "Exodus." It will likely be spring by the time I can finish the work." —We call attention to Brother Balzer's latest article, "The Human and Divine in Christian Work."

—Married.—Miss Kathrine A. Martin and Mr. Earl E. Barber were married on the afternoon of January 28, by Rev. J. J. Plenert of the First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

— ATTENTION READERS, YOUNG AND OLD! Be sure to read the two articles under "OUR YOUTH SAYS": The first, entitled "Have-Nots and Splinters," by Raymond Weinbrenner, the new leading editor of the Youth Pages. The second, the Senior C. E. lesson outline on "Our Modern Frontiers." Both have much food for thought. Be sure to note in the latter the many opportunities that our often impatient young people may find for work in extending the frontiers of God's kingdom.

— Elam Suter, a deacon of the Grace Mennonite Church of Pandora, Ohio, was signally honored by the School of Agriculture of Ohio State University, in being chosen as one of the four Master Farmers of Ohio for 1938. At a colorful and largely attended gathering at the University Auditorium, on Jan. 31, 1939, the four men were honored by receiving the degree of Master Farmer and a medal in testimony of same. Following this a film was shown in which the four farmers, their families, their homes, the chief features of their farm activities were featured. Mr. Suter excells in the raising of hybrid corn and the feeding and exhibiting of cattle. He won first premium on a car load of fat cattle. He won first prein 1933 and 1938, and never fails to take high rank among the winners.

— Bluffton College. — The enrollment for the second semester was 188 full time students February 1.—Dr. M. C. Lehman, noted lecturer and Professor of Philosophy at Goshen College, spoke at a recent vesper service on, "Modern Theological Trends and the World's Needs."—The A Capella choir, directed by Prof. R. A. Lantz, will make a concert tour of the East during the first two weeks of April.

— From the Church Messenger, Schwenksville, Pa.: Brother W. S. Gottshall of Frederick is not enjoying the best of health. We pray that he and his companion may be strengthened.—Rev. Allen M. Fretz has resigned the pastorate of the Springfield congregation.—Mr. D. W. Bixler, assisting in the financial reorganization of Bluffton College, was in the East collecting money on back pledges.

— Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Hanston, Kans. writes, among other things, "I think Mr. Hilty (in his letter in the last Mennonite) says a few things that well deserve being said. Some of our Mennonite ministers are rather free to criticize our Mennonite young men who take up pastorates in other denominations, when no opportunity is given them to serve as pastors in our Mennonite churches . . . Too many of our congregations have been running for distinctly Bible School men and have left our college and seminary trained men "sit out in the cold." I have been deeply impressed by a paragraph on p. 31 in Dr. C. H. Smith's pamphlet on "Christian Peace," in which he speaks of the "subtle influence of certain short cut Bible schools on the Mennonite church through ministers in our church who have come from these schools."

— Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas, the place where now all subscriptions to General Conference publications are to be ordered and paid for, has been quite busy from the start. Rev. J. M. Suderman, manager, has taken in nearly $400.00 in subscription money the first two weeks. Our people seem to appreciate the accommodation.

— Bethel College, North Newton, Kans. — During the first semester the Infirmary, in charge of Miss Ella Wiebe, has had 932 office calls and 61 students were admitted for care. Recently 165 students received tuberculin tests. Soon the small pox vaccination will be given.—The Men's "Cooperative," a student group of 40 members who board themselves, prepared and served a regular "co-op meal" to 124 Newton Rotarians.—Bethel Fellowships, of which there are 46 in the Western District, held their annual meeting Sunday, Feb. 5.

— Elder H. H. Schmidt of the Friedenstal church, Tampa, Kansas, has succumbed to a heart disease. He was 65 years old. Rev. P. H. Unruh conducted the funeral, which was held Friday afternoon, Feb. 10. May God comfort the bereaved ones!

— "Bethelite" — Bethel Light is the name of a neat little Sunday program folder, sent us by Rev. Jacob Unruh of the Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo. The Unruhs are finishing the second year of service in that church and are planning to make a trip to Pennsylvania, to help his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Unruh, celebrate their golden wedding.

— First Church, Allentown, Pa. — Feb. 13 the pastor, Rev. H. G. Nyce, leaves for the west, as he is scheduled to visit the Mission field in Arizona, where J. P. Sudermans, Daniel Schirmers and Fred Johnsons are laboring among the Indians. This will be prior to the annual meeting of the Foreign Mission Board. The following will occupy his pulpit during his absence: Mr. John Unruh, Lansdale, Mrs. P. J. Boehr, and Rev. Freeman H. Swartz.

— J. B. Epp, Alsen, North Dakota, who is in charge of a Bible School there, writes: Next month the school here will come to a close, then we will return to Beatrice, Nebr. The winter here is longer and more severe than in Nebraska, but it has not been bad thus far this year—only 36 degrees below zero.

— Brother O. K. Galle. live member of the Lorraine Ave. Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kans., recently brought in eight new subscriptions for the Mennonite which he had solicited with the help of willing girls of the church.—Many thanks to the group for doing this piece of missionary work.

— United in Marriage. — On Sunday morning, Jan. 29, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, Robert M. Landis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Landis, was united in marriage to Marie Gerhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gerhart, at the East Swamp church, by Rev. Harold Burkholder.

NO ROOM IN THE INN

Nearly two thousand years ago a babe was born in a stable of the little town of Bethlehem in Judea, because there was no room in the inn for him and his parents. Today, in Germany, many babies are born to the kin of that Jewish family, and the government there says, there is no room for these Jewish children, their fathers and mothers and relatives, about 700,000, as the report goes. It was a very sad event when the Jews of that long bygone time provided no room for Him whose coming as the Savior of the world had been heralded for centuries. It spelled tragedy for the Jewish race when they nailed their best friend, the only true and lasting friend of all the world, to the cruel cross. It brought on the destruction of their holy city and temple and the dispersion of the nation into all parts of the world.—No true Christians can condone the treatment of the Jews by the German government. It is a sad chapter in the history of the land of Luther. But why the American people are so badly worked up over this, and at the same time look calmly on, while their government is furnishing Japan with a large part of the sinews of war against China, with which that country has been killing millions of Chinese, just as innocent as many of the German Jews, some people cannot quite understand. Who knows but what this sad event, now going on in Germany, might not be a link in the plan of God almighty for his chosen people. The Holy Land was promised to Abraham and all his race. And some day his descendents, who have been persecuted and chased from one country to another, will be returned there. It has been proposed that they be settled on the lost German colonies or islands, or North Australia, South America, British Guiana, Lower California, or even Alaska. But it stands to reason that the Almighty has something to say about this. Despite the Arabs and the Five Power Committee on Refugees, it is Zion and Jerusalem, foretold again and again by the prophets, to which the Jews are to return—But, granting that God has no design in Germany's treatment of the race, which we grant is unnecessarily severe, and that she does it for purely selfish reasons, she will some day have to square herself with God, the ruler of all nations. Several chapters in the Book of Isaiah plainly show how God punished heathen nations for hurting his chosen race beyond measure.—In chapter 47:1, we read: "Come down and sit in the dust, O virgin Babylon, sit on the ground . . . Take thy millstones, and grind meal: uncover thy locks . . . thy nakedness shall be uncovered, yea, thy shame shall be seen. I will take vengeance . . . I was wroth with my people . . . and (have) given them into thine hand: thou didst shew them no mercy, upon the ancient hast thou very heavily laid thy yoke."

GOD IS OUR FATHER and we are his children. We have learned to know Him. We trust Him and we love Him. But is He the Father of all mankind, including such as never knew Him and unrepentant sinners who turn their faces against Him? Yes, in the sense that He created all, and loves all, and sent His Son to save all. A father's love pursues his children even though they wander away. But a child is not a true child unless it has some kinship with the father's nature and shares in some measure his purposes. In this sense the worldling and the heathen are children of the evil one, and cannot call God their Father. Those who despise God, who disobey His Word and dishonor his Church are not the children of light but of darkness.

We are indeed the children of God, members of the divine family. We are therefore brethren, though we do not always treat each other as if we were. Our high calling should sober us and keep us humble. The blessing we receive in the divine household are not given us to keep, but to pass on to others. Strangely enough, the more we share them, the more we have left for ourselves. We are the children of God only as we share his purposes as revealed with Him in bringing light to those now sitting in darkness.—Lester Hostetler.

HAPPY IN AFFLICTION. — There is Job brooding on the ruins of his former prosperous estate. He tears his garments and pulls his hair. But slowly, yet surely, there is reverting to his memory the wanted grace of God. And out of all the confusion of feelings of complaint and mourning there emerges this confession of his faith: "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." He thus sets a wonderful example before all Christians. For, scarcely did any man ever suffer such losses and ruination as Job did. A certain man of God once said: "When God shakes the tree of our life so that the leaves fly about, what else does he aim at than that we may see the blue sky more clearly through the barren branches." This was Job's experience and this is the attitude it behooves Christians to take.—A beautiful story is told from the life of Countess Elizabeth of Thuringia. This woman of God, a benefactress of all the poor and distressed round about, was mercilessly thrust out of the Wartburg after the death of her husband. Her brother-in-law even sent out notice that anyone who would furnish her with an abode would not be doing him a favor. Finally, she found shelter in a wretched, filthy inn. At midnight when she heard the toll of the bell of prayer at the Franciscan cloister which she had founded, she hastened there to attend mass. Then she begged the monks to sing her the hymn, "Herr Gott, dich loben wir." (Lord God, to Thee We Sing Praises). That is another fine example of the attitude a real Christian should take when in affliction.

The Praying Spirit

Christine Miller, Portland, Oregon

Everyone seeks real satisfaction in life. Some get temporary enjoyment on a low, brute plane. Others know a higher joy which comes from an appreciation of good music, fine art, solid reading.

But the highest is spiritual . . . COMMUNION WITH GOD. How sad that so many are satisfied with cheap and fleeting pleasure. How sad that so many of us, well-meaning Christians though we be, let material things filch from us our spirituality! Tangible things appeal to us. We can see our bodies but not our souls; earth but not heaven; matter but not God. We can hear the noisy voices of this world which crowd out the soft whispers of the next. We even let Christ's work out of our Christ! It is surely true that "outward work often may cost us our spiritual insight."

How can we guard against this subtle peril? By living in a STATE OF PRAYER . . . not spasmodic, but continuous communion with God. "Pray without ceasing." (1 Thess. 5:17.)

This PRAYING SPIRIT breaks the spell of materialism. It spiritualizes common tasks. It dethrones self and enthrones Christ. It tranquilizes life, raising us to God's atmosphere and bringing down His peace that passeth understanding. It brings real satisfaction.

In practice it is a continuous . . . "Spirit of worship. Spirit of humility. Spirit of sacrifice. Spirit of forgiveness. Spirit of faithfulness. Spirit of faith in God. Spirit of solicitude for the souls of men. Spirit of care for the prosperity of the church."

God help us . . . God help ME . . . to live in a state of prayer.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

K O S

By P. A. Penner

This is not to be confused with S O S. This means danger, hurry, and perhaps death. The former means a happy heart and joy. But while S O S is never overheard and ignored, K O S is not always given the attention that it is worthy of receiving, particularly when adverse winds blow. What under the sun is P. A. talking about anyway? Listen: A number of years ago, we had a most welcome visitor in our Leper Home. None other than the Rev. F. A. Crawshaw, Secretary Mission to Lepers for Australia. He is a man of about 50 years of age, with a smile that is a benediction and a winning way that is catching. He spoke to our lepers one day on K O S. First of all, he taught our whole bunch, 600 of them, to repeat after him K O S. This wasn't easy. Most of them said K O Yes. But perseverence brought the looked for result. All or most of the lepers could finally say K O S. Then he went on to explain the meaning of these letters. He told them that they stood for KEEP ON SMILING. He further advised our lepers to K O S in spite of all the adversities that leprosy and its attending hardships brought into their lives. He said: "I know that it hurts to be separated from loved ones; that people call you unclean; that you at times have to suffer intense pain . . . but if you have Christ in your heart, then it will be natural to smile." The lepers got the point and for days and even now, some lepers greet me every morning with: "K O S Sahib." Well, God bless them, He knows that I need cheer sometimes. But only "sometimes." As a rule there is so much to ge grateful for in life, home and work that it would be ingratitude not to smile. I want to tell you of two incidents, however, and then ask you whether you, in my place, would K O S. A poor man came to our Leper Home. He was a Brahman, the highest caste of India, but,—— a leper. He was taken into the Home, received intensive treatment of the latest remedies, and after two years was discharged as symptom-free. During his stay, I frequently asked him to accept the Lord Jesus Christ and live for him alone. He persistantly refused, though he did say that he would study the life of our Lord and if he found that Jesus is the true guru (Religious preceptor) he would accept Him. He worked with other lepers in a stone quarry. When he left he was still a Hindu. He went to his village. About six months later, he applied for readmission. His leprosy had not advanced, but his left arm was paralyzed. Because he could not earn his daily bread and because he had no near relatives he returned for readmission just to get his food. Of course, he could not be admitted into the Home for this reason. Moreover the Home was over-crowded. Daily for a matter of two weeks he begged for admission which I had to refuse firmly. One night, he went to the nearest railroad track and as a freight train was approaching, he stood near the track, with his right hand saluted the engineer and then, with his right hand put his left arm on the rail and had it severed from the body. He was hurried to our operating room in the Leper Home, where Mrs. Penner and I saw him on the operating table, conscious but weak from shock and the loss of blood. He died on the table. Do you think that I could just then say: K O S? That night I questioned myself over and over again, whether I did wrong in refusing admittance to this man? Would you have K O S?

Another incident that is repeated daily, yes daily. From 10 to 20 patients lie before me in the dust begging for admission. To grant this is impossible unless there is a vacancy caused by a death, a discharge or an absconding. Not only is this impossible for the lack of room, but also because this Home, according to present orders is not to accommodate more than 600 or at most 615 patients. As they lie before me shivering, destitute, often homeless and almost friendless, can I,——ought I to K O S?

But notice, please, that above I said: "Sometimes." As a whole I believe in and K O S. The last year among our lepers has been a glorious year. Our S. S., numbering about 450 patients, are divided into 14 classes and all with one or two exceptions are taught either by lepers or such as have leprous heritage. The superintendent, the vice superintendents, the secretary, the treasurer, the ushers, the librarians, all are lepers. You cannot imagine what joy it brings to a missionary as he MUST see what the Lord is doing for the poorest of the poor. Recently the church elected two deacons and two deaconesses, who are devoted Christians. Eternity will reveal their zeal in endeavoring to bring others to a saving knowledge of the Lord. Recently, I baptized some that have been won by these workers. Our partially trained Indian leper nurses, too, are doing fairly good work. One of them recently told me of a woman whom she had won for the Lord. How rich our lives are! K O S? Yes, a thousand times yes.

I am wondering whether this K O S might not be practiced everywhere, especially in view of the fact that the lives of our Mennonites "are fallen in pleasant places" at least none are lepers. Let's try it.

—The Mennonite Hymn Book Revision Committee in Session.— Rev. L. Hostetler has arrived from California and join the members of the Committee on the Bethel campus in the work of finishing their labors as far as they can. Prof. Russell Lantz is not yet here and it is doubtful if he can come.

History Views the Jewish Persecution

by E. L. Harshbarger

2. ANTISEMITISM BEFORE THE WORLD WAR

Antisemitism is probably first mentioned in the world's literature when Haman, in the book of Esther, addressed the following words to the Persian king: "There is a certain people scattered abroad, and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of thy kingdom; and their laws are diverse from all people, neither keep they the king's laws: therefore it is not for the king's profit to suffer them."

This quotation shows the cause of Antisemitism in ancient times. It was most severe in Egypt, but the Romans are usually thought of as the nation which finally dispersed Jews over the known world. These ancient Jews were mostly agricultural and for the most part poor. They were despised chiefly because they would not become hellenized or Romanized. There seems to have been no general widespread persecution of the Jews as a people, even in the day when the Christians were persecuted and blamed for the burning of Rome and other disasters.

Interestingly enough when Christianity became the dominant Roman religion the isolation of Jews from the non-Jewish world began in earnest, massacres of Jews began on a large scale, when the Crusaders set out for Palestine. They felt that Christ's Jewish enemies in the West must be exterminated as well as the infidel Turks in the East. The medieval antisemitism was essentially religious, a prolonged heresey hunt. Jewish congregations were broken up, debts cancelled, compulsory baptism instituted and massacres inaugurated. In the 13th century the popes demanded separation of Jews and Christians. Special yellow badges had to be worn making Jews objects of contempt and oppression. Ghettos were formed in every large town. Jews were excluded from nearly all occupations. The only source of livelihood seemed to be as petty tradesmen or usurers. The Crusades and building of cathedrals demanded large sums of money. Thus the Jew became the money lender of medieval Europe. Having no other form of livelihood, the Jew often returned hate for hate. They drove sharp bargains, and profited from the misfortunes of others. Out of this situation comes the still common idea of the Jew's unquenchable thirst for wealth.

Martin Luther was friendly to Jews until they declined to accept Lutheranism, then he denounced them vehemently, saying that they "poisoned wells, comitted ritual murder, practiced black arts, reviled Christianity, conspired with the Turks against Christendom." Other Protestants were inclined to be a little more tolerant, although the Jew was still a marked man.

Violent antisemitism found expression in the work of the Hudelbery profession Eisennenger: Entdecktes

Judentum or Jewry Unmasked. The atrocities which he attributed to the Jews were parralleled in Poland where all the misfortunes of that unhappy country were blamed on Jews. The business men and artisans saw in the Jew a successful competitor, while the common folk hated them as tools of the aristocracy.

The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries saw a change in the position of the Jew. Hated by the church and common people, his wealth began to appeal to those statesmen interested in mercantilism—the doctrine that a nation is well off if it has large amounts of capital. Jews driven from Spain and Portugal brought wealth and influence to Amsterdam, Hamburg, Antwerp, and other cities. These Jews kept in contact with each other and were of great value to any statesman wishing to expand his trade. Jewish contractors, bankers, and brokers began to do much of the business of Europe. Jewish capital was used by state enterprises and trade. Thus, although still segregated by law and hated by many, the Jews took on a new material value and persecutions diminished.

To further enhance this new relationship the Jew tried to adapt himself to the culture about him. The 18th century is the age of Jewish emancipation or assimilation. Moses Mendelssohn, an employee of a silk manufacturer, became a close friend of Lessing, who immortalized the former in Nathan der Weise. The philosophy of Kant and the literary masterpieces of Goethe and Schiller became fashionable in Jewish intellectual circles. The rise of the enlightenment stressing as it did the "natural rights" of man (including Jews) tended to give the Jew a chance to become German, French or Austrian. In 1781 Christian Wilhelm von Dohn, friend of Moses Mendelssohn, in a celebrated book, demanded gradual emancipation of the Jews, pointing out that their corruption was the result of cruel treatment at the hands of Christians. Frederick the Great hated Jews, but after his death a royal commission drew up suitable measures for improving the conditions of Jews.

The American Declaration of Independence marked the real beginning of Jewish emancipation, but revolutionary France was the first European state to enact emancipation. During the last few years of the 18th and first fifteen years of the 19th centurity emancipation, often included only certain economic privileges, spread over western Europe, reaching Prussia in 1814 and Denmark in 1815.

After the close of the Napoleonic wars which left central Europe in shambles, antisemitism broke out in full force and destroyed all Jewish emancipation, especially in Germany. German professors warned against Jewish corruption and advocated restoration of medieval ghettos or even sterner measures, however, this wave of persecution soon vanished in the spread of democratic liberalism between 1830 and 1865. This same liberalism was considered very dangerous in Russia, where violent Jewish programs were planned and executed. Persecution was somewhat retarded by the more tolerant Tsar Alexander II, but the Jew was still economically and culturally isolated.

In the fifty years preceding the World War the most significant Jewish persecutions were in Germany and Russia. In Germany the Jew was hated by the aristocracy because he was a middle-class liberal, by the middle class as a capitalistic competitor, and by the academic world because of the increasing number of Jews entering the professions. The intellectuals denounced by the Jews as "by nature" radical, and dangerous because they were "international." The historian Treitschke coined the popular phrase: "The Jews are our misfortune." After 1871 the economic slump in Germany and the Church troubles were all blamed on the Jew. Professor Dühring foreshadowed Nazism with his insistence that race was the determining factor and his rejection of the Old Testament and Christianity. Theodore Fritsch, who lived to see rise of Hitler, carried on incessant antisemitic propaganda, and his Handbuch der Judenfrage, filled with the wildest antisemitic stories, sold over 100,000 copies. This excess of antisemitism was not without its opponents. Many intellectuals and Christian leaders like Mommsen, Droysen, and Virchow warned against it. Eugen Richter warned: "Do not wake the wild beast in man, for then it will stop at nothing."

Antisemitism flared up in France as the result of the notorious Dreyfus case and in other European countries but the most inhumane Jewish persecution was in Russia. Beginning in 1881 in Elizavetgrad and continuing intermittently into the 20th century, organized massacres of Jews were carried on with Tsarist sympathy, sometimes by Tsarist order. Masses of Jews were maimed, blinded, tortured, murdered, women were ravished, children thrown from windows to be torn to shreds, families were separated and homes destroyed. Yet in spite of these programs Russian Jews took the lead in Jewish intellectual life of the world and in the Zionist movement.

ANNOUNCEMENT

It may be of interest to some of the pastors or other readers of our church papers to learn that there is now available a film entitled "The Fight for Peace." This film is a reproduction of actual news reels and actual scenes of the world conflicts raging in various parts of the world during the last few years—China, Spain, etc.

This film is being shown by Glenn McMurry, a student at Bethel College, with his own portable sound equipment in various churches and community centers after March 1, on the basis of a free-will offering.

While the picture is gruesome in places, it is, after all, realistic and contains a powerful message which everyone who is interested in peace should be glad to get. We understand that anyone desiring this sound film may get in touch with Mr. Glenn McMurry, North Newton, Kansas, for information or a possible appointment.

NOTE: The film is quite accurate historically, but may easily leave a wrong impression with the person unable to see the events filmed in historical perspective. For example, it is a fact that at present the Fascist powers are resorting to war and threat of force more than the other nations. This the picture shows clearly. What is not so clear is that the Fascist use of force is but the natural result of similar tactics by other nations in an earlier era. The viewer must remember that the enemy portrayed is war itself, not necessarily the Fascist powers.

Filmed some months ago, the scenes have been changed slightly by recent events. These can be easily detected.—E. L. Harshbarger and others.

Acceptable in the Sight of God

by John Lichti

To be acceptable in the sight of God. On this statement I wish to give a few thoughts. In Paul's letter to Timothy, 1 Tim. 2:1-4, we read the exhortation of prayer and thanks for all. "I exhort therefore. that, first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men: for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, who will have all men to be saved, and come unto knowledge of the truth."—In these verses we read for whom we should pray.

1. For all men, the saints, Christians, heathen, Jews, yes even pray for the worst sinner and criminal, for many in the last hour find Jesus as their Savior, as in Luke 23:42. One of the malefactors said to Jesus: "Lord remember me when thou comest in thy kingdom." Jesus said to him: "Verily today shalt thou be with me in paradise." He was saved.

2. For kings and for all that are in authority (Obrigkeit). We shall pray for all men, kings and governments. My motto, as Minister of the Gospel for over 40 years, has been to pray for all men—good and bad; for kings and all government of the Christian and heathen nations. I pray today for our govments, the English, the French, yes for all, including ments, the English, the French, yes for all including the German, the Italian, the Russian, the Japanese and all others. I pray that God may lead them all by His Spirit. Dear reader: I hope that it is acceptable in the sight of God, that I do this. How are your prayers? Can you pray as Paul exhorts? Let us examine ourselves.

The Minister as a Citizen of His Country

Paper read before the Ministerial Conference of the Western District, by Rev. Walter Dyck at Enid, Okla., October 19, 1938

The relation of a minister to his country is essentially the same as that of the Christian layman. The apparent importance of the minister's position comes by virtue of his calling. In regard to his duties as a private citizen the minister is but one out of the the blessings of organized government. But having masses who senses his duty as an individual enjoying the purpose and effect of the ministry in view, it is undoubtedly more important that a minister of the gospel be a true Christian patriot.

Sensing the unique opportunities which we, the ministers of the gospel have in the work of educating Christian citizenship, we shall divide our discussion into the following two general phases of the minister's life and activity.

1. The minister as a citizen in his own personal life.
2. The minister as one who advises others in matters of citizenship.

I. The Minister—An Exemplary Citizen

In the moulding of a life which is to be worthy of imitation, a minister must have his own Example—Jesus Christ—ever in view. What was Jesus' attitude toward the secular state? In an address at the "Mennonite Conference on War and Peace," Goshen, Indiana, February 16. 1935, Edward Yoder, gave the following answer to our question:

"Jesus had contacts with three governments of his day, the Roman imperial government, the government of Herod Antipas in Galilee, and the government of the Jewish Sanhedrin at Jerusalem. He recognized these as legitimate, at least by implication. When He cleansed the leper He directed him to comply with the legal requirement connected with his purification, by presenting himself to the priest with an offering. The ministrations of Jesus, His service and help, were given to government officials and their families on a personal basis, as to all other persons. We think, for instance, of His contacts with centurians, with the nobleman and others. As to Herod Antipas, although this ruler imprisoned and killed John the Baptist, His kinsman, friend and forerunner, in a wicked and unjust manner, yet no word of criticism one way or another do we read in which Jesus commented upon the ruler's deed. Confronted with the question of paying tribute to Rome, the third government, He replied that to the Emporer is to be given what belongs to him. In His final trial before Pilate, the only reference Jesus makes to political matters is to acknowledge the title, 'King of the Jews,' but even then not as a temporal ruler in the world. - - - His kingdom was not of this world, as He explained to Pontius Pilate, but it is spiritual, other-worldly dominion. It appears then that Jesus approved, or took for granted the benevolent activities of the state, but He disapproved its crimes and abuses."

The consuming passion in the life of our Lord was "to seek and save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10), or as He said on another occasion, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

A minister of the gospel, following in the steps of His Master, will be consistently present spiritual regeneration as the key to a fullness of life. The apostle Paul reminds his hearers frequently that he is called to "preach - - the unsearchable riches of Christ" (Eph. 3:8), "to make known the mystery of the gospel" (Eph. 6:19), or to call believers to a life of separation, "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers" (2 Cor. 6:14). The minister is the servant of God in the realm of the spiritual while civil government, also ministers of God, have authority in the sphere of the temporal.

What, then, is the personal relation of a minister to his country? Is it one of indifference to each other or a cooperation in so far as this is possible? With the basic axim in mind, that the church and state are each invested with supreme authority in their respective fields, the minister, and in this case each individual Christian, is confronted with a problem, the solution of which has never been generally adopted.

Having this problem before us let us briefly sum up Biblical revelation on this subject. In Prov. 20:22 we read. "Say not thou, I will recompense evil; but wait on the Lord, and he shall save thee." Evidently a government, being a minister of God, has the delegated authority to be a "terror to the evil," "a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil" "for he beareth not the sword in vain." (Rom. 13:3-4) The state is not to be resisted as a power in its field: men must needs be subject to it. It offers protection, liberty, and justice; a justice which it is in duty bound to administer justly. "Rulers are not a terror to good works - - do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same." For the administration of these functions it needs tribute money and, according to words of Jesus, it is entitled to it.

The Christian living as a citizen of a state is also reminded on the other hand, that he is but a pilgrim and a stranger here. Though living in a material world at present, he is actually and predominantly a citizen of heaven. (Phil. 3:20, R. V.) He is not as interested in the temporal well-being of organizational government as in his supreme allegiance to God. Whereas the state uses carnal weapons, he sees the Word of God as being more powerful. (Heb. 4:12) When Peter was commanded by Jesus to put up the sword, he was also told that His kingdom was not of the earth. (John 18:36) The Christian is gladly subject to the state and obedient to its decrees, unless such action violates a greater loyalty. Bearing a penalty is subjection even though it may not be obedience. He will never "resist him that is evil" (Matth. 5:39, R. V.) but will rather "flee" as his Lord commanded. (Matt. 10:23) When thus persecuted he blesses the oppressor thus tending to break down opposition.

In regard to the war activities of his government he says with Peter, "We must obey God rather than men." (Acts 5:29) To be more like Jesus means loving enemies. His Master taught the value of human life. Life dare not be sacrificed for any cause which does not love humanity. Only love, good will, and sacrificial service elevates mankind. War is sin. Its methods are wrong. Its results are destructive. A Christian owes primary allegiance to God.

"We are proud of our citizenship - - but we are not so proud of certain conditions within our country," writes Lester Hostetler, in "The Mennonite" of September 20, 1938. He continues, "Would to God there were less drunkenness, fewer automobile accidents, fewer divorces, kidnappings, lynchings, immoral movies, less racketeering, and less of the salacious in books and magazines offered the public. We also wish it were possible for a peace-maker to become a citizen of our great country. The Sermon on the Mount calls the peace-makers blessed. Despite that, the Supreme Court has ruled, five to four, that one may not become a citizen unless he is willing to shoulder a gun and kill. Men are asked to sacrifice for their country even life, if need be. But the business of the soldier is not to sacrifice his life, rather to take others' lives; not to die for his country, but to kill, to kill as many as possible. - - - The real patriots are not those who are ready to fight and shed their blood to defend the constitution; rather those who live quiet, peaceable, and useful lives; who conduct their business in an honest manner; who pay fair wages and give honest labor; who refuse bribes, and stand for honesty in public life; who believe in God and the Bible, the home and the church, and who seek to bring the spirit of the Prince of Peace into the community life. - - - Our country sorely needs people of that character and we wish the law of the land permitted them to become citizens."

II. The Minister — An Advisor in Matters of Citizenship

The advice a conscientious minister has to give to his people will tally with the Christian convictions which he possesses. His instruction, whether in the pulpit, in the Bible Class, or in private interview will be an expression which betrays the degree of his intimacy with the Master.

What are some of the practical ways in which the minister will aim to influence others? His life, first of all, is or at least should be a consistent manifestation of Christian love and peace by deeds of kindness, mercy, neighborliness, and all forms of legitimate charity in the church, in the community and in the world at large, regardless of creed or profession. Then, he should spare no effort preaching and teaching effectively; delivering peace sermons at stated and definite times or as occasion demands. His goal in all this should be the establishment in every believer of an unwavering conscience against war; and for Christian non-resistance.

In his teaching the minister should be careful not to present non-resistance as a "peculiar" doctrine which we can never expect others to take seriously. Neither must we permit the idea to prevail that Mennonites cannot be as thoroughly patriotic as others. We love our country and will make any sacrifice which will be for its highest welfare. But in our love to those at home, Christians cannot hate those beyond the ocean. Our concept of patriotism is: (quote) "We feel that we are true patriots because we build upon the eternal principles of right which are the only foundation of stable government in our world community."

We also have a responsibility toward our rulers to let them know our conscientious position. When Paul exhorts Christians "to offer supplications, prayers, and intercessions for all men - - that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty," he means to say that rulers have something to do with the creating of conditions of environment which are conducive to peace and godliness or violence, crime, strife, and war. Can we pray for rulers unless we have informed them about our needs? Are we informing our congressmen "what the church in the light of the word of God considers as wholesome conditions which will permit and promote peace and godliness?" (H. S. Bender)

Here is where the minister is tempted to express his positiveness with pressure methods. The reason many have taken a hand in the actual running of the government, according to Fred Eastman, in "The Ministers and Politics," is, 1st: "They despair of the ineffectiveness and impotence of the churches in correcting the major social evils of our day. They have plunged into the political arena in the hope that they can accomplish more immediate good there.—2nd: They see themselves following in the footsteps of other spiritual leaders in generations past. Amos, Jeremiah, Isaiah, Cromwell in England, Henry Ward Beecher in America—these are but a few of the prophets and saints who in the name of religion invaded the political field and did battle for their Lord.—3rd: They feel that the world is in the throes of a major social revolution. The lives and characters of hundreds of millions are going to be influenced by its outcome . . . . Confronted with such an outlook these ministers ask us how any of us with energy and courage and social sympathy can restrain ourselves from taking a hand in political struggles." The same author continues as he gives reason for non-interference in politics. "First, there is the peril that the minister will only make a fool of himself." He cites an instance in which a young pastor asked his people to bow in silent prayer for the defeat of Upton Sinclair for the governorship of California.

The 2nd peril, Mr. Eastman continues is: "That the minister will drive out of his congregation not only those of all other political faiths but those who want something deeper than politics. Political issues are important, but there are troubles in human life the politics—even the best—can never touch. 3rd: But the greatest peril is that you will only help to ally your church with some political order instead of with a timeless fellowship which is above and beyond any political order." The minister must protest against harmful policies but never should he seek to compel the state to do what the Christian may feel ought to be done. "The church should not 'lobby' nor attempt to coerce any official of the state or any state body. When a Christian bears witness to the truth of God with all the persuasiveness and power which Divine Grace can work through him, his work is done. Any non-violent coersion, even the highly praised passive resistance of Gandhi, is still coercion and must be resolutely renounced by the Christian. The Christian must repose his confidence solely in the power of the truth of God, and God Himself, and having given his testimony, must await the further course of events as one who knows that his Father will care for him and that He over-rules all things and makes even the wrath of men to praise him. The non-resistant Christian must use non-resistant methods in giving his testimony."

Finally, the minister should advise others in the matter of the non-swearing of the oath, and in the swearing of the oath promising to defend the constitution by force of arms. Without going further into these questions it is hoped that Brother Richert's question may bring on a profitable period of discussion. We must face the facts. There has been a tendency toward deserting our fundamental position. Members in our churches have sworn that they will defend our country violently. We have members in the Legion ranks. We have those taking military training. What can we do as ministers of the gospel which will be of positive influence?

Peter Delivered from Prison

Acts 12:5-17

TOPIC :The Power of United Prayer

Peter Imprisoned, The Church Praying vs 5, 6

The hand of persecution was now seizing the leaders of the church (vs 1-3). A crisis was threatening the Church in Jerusalem. Peter had been seized, securely locked in a Roman prison (v4) guarded by sixteen soldiers to be tried and likely put to death after the Passover festivities. The situation appeared very serious. The Church kept praying, even though up to the last night before he was to have been martyred, there was no answer to their prayers. Peter's enemies made a fatal mistake, they left God out of their plans. So frequently men make this same error today.

The Church was praying and Peter was sleeping (v6), confidently entrusting himself entirely into God's hands. The Church prayed "unto God," directly to Him. The Church prayed unitedly. There is multiplied power in such prayer. They prayed "for him," did not wander from Alpha to Omega, but concentrated their prayer on Peter for his deliverance from the death sentence, sought God's help for him.

Prayer Answered, Peter Freed vs 7-11

God sent an angel (v7) in answer to their prayers. His angels are most likely to appear in times of greatest need. A heavenly light illumined the gloomy cell—a light not seen by the soldiers, not intended for them. The angel smote the soundly sleeping Peter, aroused him and the chains fell from his hands without awakening the guards. Peter must do for himself as much as he was able to do (v 8). We should not expect God, nor the government to do for us what we can do for ourselves. Peter followed the bidding of the angel without questioning (v9). Had he been like many of us, he would have hesitated and asked the angel how they could get through the iron gate. God apparently closed the eyes and ears of the guards as Peter passed by them (v10) and the last barrier "opened of his own accord" when they came to it. If we fully obey and trust God, many difficulties will disappear THEN WE GET TO THEM. We do not need to cross any bridge until we get to it. Peter, now fully in control of his senses (v11), could well take care of himself and was fully convinced that the Lord had taken a hand and sent his angel to deliver him.

Peter's Friends Incredulous vs 12-17

Peter came at once to the house of Mary where many had gathered for prayer (v12). Likely they gathered here frequently. God sent the answer to their prayers to their place of meeting. They were completely bewildered when Peter's voice was recognized and his presence at the gate reported by the damsel, Rhoda. They were sure it could not be Peter (v15). If Rhoda were not mistaken, then it must be his angel, disembodied spirit, not Peter himself. When they saw Peter (v16) they believed with astonishment. Such supernatural deliverance was beyond their hope and expectations. They did not expect deliverance to come in this manner. Do we always expect enough in our prayers?

Power of United Prayer

There is a special effectiveness in united, earnest petitions. Some say the idea of receiving benefit from any source outside of us is an illusion. Peter was in prison, in chains, guarded by soldiers, locked doors, iron gate—no illusion about this. Peter stood knocking on the door of Mary's house and spoke to those assembled there—no illusion about his release. Very convincing and real was his deliverance. God answered and still answers prayer. No government can destroy the Christian Church so long as the Church prays.

The Christian Conscience Against War

by John Horsch

II

The Mennonite Church from its inception has taught and practiced the principle of non-resistance. The earliest leaders in the Protestant Reformation movement, Luther and Zwingli, originally also defended this principle. (See "The Principle of Non-Resistance as Held by the Mennonite Church," Second edition, p. 12.) Within a short period, however, these reformers consented to a close union of the church with the state. This meant that church membership was made compulsory for the whole population, and that the decisions of the church were enforced by the state. The principle of non-resistance was discarded. Under the state church system the Protestant Church partook of the nature of a political party, a worldly institution. A conspicuous example to the point is that of the Huguenots, the Protestants of France. They constituted a political party in very fact. A number of bloody wars were waged between them and the Roman Catholic party.

Non-resistance and Persecution

Under the state church system, such as was then in vogue, there naturally ensued bloody persecution of the dissenters, the non-resistant Christians. It is of particular interest to observe the close connection between their adherence to the principle of non-resistance and a disposition of conscientiousness and constancy in faith. On the other hand, with the approval of a union of the church with the state by the leading reformers there came in the state churches the manifestation of a pronounced tendency to tacitly recognize the state as a religious authority and to obey it, not only in civil matters but in carrying out its religious orders as well. The masses were not sufficiently interested in religion to endure persecution for their religious views. They simply professed the faith prescribed by the state, whether Roman, Catholic, Lutheran, or Reformed.

It is a conspicuous fact that state church Protestantism in Germany has scarcely any martyrs at all. In not a few instances the population of certain states and cities changed their faith repeatedly upon orders from the government, in consequence of a change in the personnel of the rulers. "Not less than seven times within a few decades," says J. E. Dieterich, "the population of Oppenheim changed their religious profession, being compelled to do so." The claim was generally made that a change of faith was not the people's but the ruler's responsibility. The membership of the state churches in Germany and other countries had scarcely any scruples about this sort of thing.

"A Church of Martyrs"

The fathers of the Mennonite Church were men who took the matter of conformity to God's Word seriously. Their conscience asserted itself persistently against that which was recognized as sin, and against making conformity to the Word a secondary matter. The afore cited views of modern writers, who speak of war as sin and yet defend military service, would have been gravely offensive to them. It was their conscientiousness that accounts for the fact of the large number of Mennonite martyr's.

The early Mennonites, then, differed from state church Protestantism on the principle of non-resistance and the separation of church and state. Being a conscientious people, it became their lot to suffer the severest persecution. Ernst Müller, pastor of the Reformed state church at Langnau, Switzerland, author of one of the most important books on Mennonite history, made the statement that the early Mennonite Church was a church of martyrs. To repeat this statement here might smack of egotism, were it not for the fact that Ernst Müller does of course not say this of the Mennonite Church of today.

The Christian Conscience Opposed to Sin

The assertion that objection to war is a peculiarity of the Mennonite conscience is unacceptable. The fact that many Christians in various denominations recognize war as sin, as already pointed out, indicates the contrary. Many of them, it is true, have nevertheless no scruples against going to war. This simply means that the Christian conscience has not been permitted to assert itself in this matter. To say that war is sin can not have any other meaning but that the Christian conscience is opposed to war. There is, as a matter of fact, always the possibility of an inactive, or torpid, or "seared" conscience on some particular point (II Tim. 4:2); we are speaking of the normal Christian conscience which permits itself to be attuned to the Word of God, and which consequently condemns all sin.

Conscientious Objection to War in Various Denomination

The Conscientious Objectors in the United States, who in the late war refused to join the army under any consideration, number 1060. Only about one half of this number were Mennonites. The Quakers and Dunkers among the Conscientious Objectors together number 117. The great majority of the rest were members of churches which did not officially teach the principle of non-resistance. Present indications point in the direction that in case of another war the number of Conscientious Objectors will be far larger than in the World War. In Canada the Mennonites have full military exemption.

In Christendom in general the Christian conscience against war has not been permitted to assert itself; the number of Conscientious Objectors is comparatively small. Nor can the further spread of the Christian religion under existing conditions be expected to make for peace among nations, except in the remote case that those who decide upon peace and war are personally converted to Christ and have conscientious objections to war. Even in the so-called Christian countries the statesmen deciding for or against war are often not free from sinister motives and notorious prejudices.

Probably no war has ever been waged that was not claimed to be of a defensive nature. The fact that two nations going to war with each other cannot both be engaged in defensive warfare was always ignored. Precisely regarding the great warrior Napolean Bonaparte the claim was made that all his wars were of a defensive nature.

A Conscience Against Refusal to Participate in War

Not only is a conscience against war lacking in Christendom in general, but the very contrary is the fact. There is a conscience against the refusal to participate in war. The church, in consequence, in the case of war, furnishes soldiers to carry on war. In the so-called Christian countries those who decide upon war can count on the church to support the war and supply the soldiers. Some of the greatest wars in the history of the world were wars of so-called Christian nations against each other with the approval of the churches.

The conscience against war is not a Mennonite peculiarity; it is the Christian conscience. To speak of it as the Mennonite conscience may be permissible if meant in the sense that among the denominations which teach the principle of non-resistance the Mennonites are the oldest and have been in the front ranks among those who permitted their Christian conscience against war to assert itself.

Our Youth Says

A Follow-Up For Our Youth

William Juhnke

(In answer to preceding articles discussing Y. P. resolution VIII, "Resolved, that a system 'be devised' whereby young people leaving their home for school or work be placed in contact with Mennonites in their new locality," we now give to our readers a method of keeping an up-to-date record of the whereabout of Mennonite young people.)

There is thus a need for an effective follow-up system, especially for a method that is wide in scope and one that recognizes that the problem is essentially personal in nature. It is in consequence of a discussion of the matter at a recent meeting of the Board of Education and the Young People's Committee that this plan is now being proposed.

How to Include All Young Mennonites

The plan is to get the names and addresses of all young Mennonites between the ages of 15-30. These lists are to be collected by each C. E. society, and the names then sent to some centrally located place where modern indexing facilities are available. The young people's commmittee is to supply each district organization, that is, the Northern, Middle, Pacific, Eastern, etc., with form sheets and instructions for collecting the names. Thus in addition to having names for a follow-up, a list is compiled that can be made to serve other useful purposes.

How the Follow-up Works When One Moves from One Mennonite Community into Another

When a church or C. E. sends in its list of names between the ages given above, or some other age that is agreed upon, the addressograph department prepares metal plates giving the name and address of each person. These plates are filed away, according to churches. The church or C. E., in turn, receives a complete list of all the young people which it submitted. Each name appears on a separate double postcard which becomes the possession of the local church or C. E. and will cost about two cents per name. The data on these double cards is so arranged that when a young person moves away from church A to church B, the pastor goes through his files, selects the duplicate cards with the name of the mover and sends the following of the cards to the new pastor at church B.

Young People's Follow-up Index

Miss N. E. Youngblood 29

Dear Pastor:

The above person, until now a member of our church, has just moved to your community. Will you make efforts to welcome him to your church, and minister to his spiritual needs? Any courtesy which you may show him, in His name, will be appreciated, I assure you.

Pastor: ________________________

Church: ________________________

The above card permits invitations without danger of offense to former churches or pastors, a problem previously mentioned. The other card, sent to the secretary of the young people's union, finds its way to the addressograph department where new double-cards are sent to pastor B.

This system would include the largest number of Mennonite movers.

How It Works When One Moves Out of A Mennonite Community

The pastor goes through his files as before but rather than sending the first card to pastor B, who in this case does not exist, he sends the card to the young people's district representative who is nearest to him. It will then be up to this representative to establish contacts. Each pastor would be informed who the district representative of each district is.

Plan Is Not A Short-Cut

Such a plan that is wide in scope can not be a short-cut plan. To collect the names is a task of the highest order. In order to put it across there would have to be joint cooperation of union, districts and local units. The expense of the plan is not great and could easily be taken care of by the participating groups.

Through the above follow-up the Y. P. Union would become of definite service to its member young people's groups, as it should.

Some such follow-up, to say the least, ought to open a big field for personal and collective Christian action.

(Editor—This is a very vital matter. Send your comments to Mr. Juhnke. We shall try to print some of them.)

Urban America -- A New Frontier

Gen. 18:20-23; 19:24, 25

Young People's Topic for March 5, 1939

Meditations:

M. Feb. 27. Requirements of Jehovah. Micah 6:6-9
T. Feb. 28. Teaching in the Cities. Luke 13:22-30
W. Mar. 1. Healing the City's Blind. Mk. 10:46-52
T. Mar. 2. A City that Rejected Christ. Luke 13:34, 35
F. Mar. 3. Doom of Ingratitude. Matt. 11:20-24
S. Mar. 4. Meeting the Cities' Need. Luke 10:1-12

Suggested Hymns:

"What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Bringing in the Sheaves."

Questions for Discussion:

1. Is there any pioneering to be done in the public schools?
2. Can we afford to neglect home life?
3. What can be done about social life?
4. Can one Christianize culture?
5. What readjustments should be made in business life?
6. Can Christian youth do anything about unwholesome amusements?
7. How can the press and the radio best be cleansed?
8. What is our own denomination doing about city mission work?

Points for Prayer:

1. Thank God for the church, the Bible, the Word of God.
2. Thank God for the opportunity to witness for Him.
3. Ask God for strength to make the church mighty among men.
4. Ask God to help us consecrate ourselves to the task of Christianizing our country.

Leader's Talk:

More than 50 per cent of our American population lives in the urban areas. Our cities largely control "National thinking and feeling through the newspapers and radio. Crime flourishes in the large cities where tenement areas are largely inhabited by poverty-stricken and low-income populations. Congested areas breed criminals. Political dictators find it easy to sway people who are massed together, and thus corrupt government is encouraged.

Churches need to continue and enlarge their work among the tenement dwellers. Extensive apartment-house areas challenge the church in many of our largest cities. The task here is difficult because of the unstable population. Many long-established churches are hard pressed to keep going. In many cities denominational bodies are setting up departments of church conservation.

Lesson Discussion:

In order to search out ways in which we may work to Christianize the city, let us give special attention to the following divisions: 1. Public Schools. Education has been glorified in our day, and new and better methods of teaching and learning have been discovered, but some people may question whether we have not lost our touch with real learning. Education must mean a deep cultivation of the intellect and soul, and not a mere polishing on the outside. There seems to be too large an emphasis on extra-curricular activities. An education which really enables people to think about real things instead of trivialities would be a great help in solving any problem.

2. Home life stands equal in importance to education. Many children become juvenile delinquents, because they do not have home ties that mean something. A child must be trained from his very first days. Christian parents should bring back the family altar. They also should guide their children into creative activities which consume the child's energy and build mind and body at the same time.

3. Social life is due for a good cleaning. Too much of our social life is based upon dissipation. We want to kill time by doing something. We shall have to learn the art of relaxation. We should cultivate the art of conversation. Social life should afford us not only a good time, but life enrichment.

4. Culture must be Christianized. Art and music should be centered in the spiritual things of life. The trend should be away from swing music and futuristic art. God and the soul must be put at the heart of culture.

5. Business life, economic stability and amusements were considered in connection with last Sunday's lesson.

6. Church life must also be pioneered for a new day. Christian people will truly have to go back to the spirit of the early Christians and pioneer a way of life that is centered in Christ.

Finally, press and radio must be converted if the city is to be saved.

NORTHERN DISTRICT NEWS

The two Mennonite churches of Butterfield and north of Butterfield of which the Rev. A. Schultz and the Rev. Victor Sawatzky are the pastors, were hosts to a Y. P. Rally on Feb. 5th. Services throughout the day were held in the H. S. Auditorium in Butterfield.

The Rev. Ivan Bactill and the Rev. Victor Sawatzky were the speakers in the afternoon services and spoke on the subjects, "The Assurance of Our Faith," and "The Cross." Music was rendered by a negro quartet, the Junior Choir of the Butterfield church, the Esau sisters of Mt. Lake, and by a chorus from the Mt. Lake Bible School, the latter being directed by the Rev. C. Wall.

A lovely time of fellowship was enjoyed by about one hundred young people in an in-between service. Light refreshments were served by the two churches sponsoring the rally.

In the evening the Rev. S. Anderson of Westbrook, Minn., spoke on, "Are You Interested in Jesus Christ?" The negro quartet sang several spirituals and the Esau sisters sang "After." A number by the Junior Choir of Butterfield and a duet by two young ladies of the North Butterfield church completed the evening service.

Preprayer Circle

Read 1 Sam. 12:19-25 to show what the prayers of a good man meant to the people of a nation. Our nation today needs praying citizens. Are we willing to take that responsibility?

Appropriate Songs

"This is My Fathers World" "For the Beauty of the Earth" "Jesus Shall Reign"

For Your Worship Service

Instrumental prelude: "America the Beautiful"

Leader: Announce your topic. It is interesting to know that the hymn just played, "America the Beautiful," is being sung by other nations today. In Canada it is sung with the refrain, "O Canada," and in Mexico with "Mi Mejico." We need citizens today that realize that our responsibility extends beyond the borders of our own nation. As we sing this song let us make it a prayer with the larger meaning.

Sing: "America the Beautiful"

Scripture reading: 2 Sam. 10:12; Mark 10:17-21

Reading:

America First

Not merely in matters material, but in things of the spirit.
Not merely in science, inventions, motors, and skyscrapers, but also in ideals, principles, character.
Not merely in the calm of assertion of rights, but in the glad assumption of duties.
Not in flaunting her strength as a giant, but bending in helpfulness over a sick and wounded world like a Good Samaritan.
Not in splendid isolation, but in courageous cooperation.
Not in pride, arrogance, and disdain of other races and peoples, but in sympathy love and understanding.
Not in treading again the old, worn, bloody pathway which ends inevitably in chaos and disaster, but in blazing a new trail, along which if it please God, other nations will follow, into the new Jerusalem where wars shall be no more.
Some day some nation must take that path—unless we are to lapse once again into utter barbarism—and that honor I covet for my beloved America.
And so, in that spirit and with these hopes, I say with all my heart and soul, "America First."
(Bishop G. Ashton Oldham)

Prayer for our country: thanksgiving and petition

Sing: "Dare to Be Brave, Dare to Be True"

Thoughts on the Topic

The Best Citizens

1. Law abiding. I Pet. 2:13-17. One of the finest marks of a Christian citizen is obedience to law. In what respects are people tempted today to disobey the laws of our land? What is the effect when some people obey the laws and others do not, or when they claim the right to choose which laws they will obey. Keeping God's laws will be a sure path to keeping the laws of our country.

2. Respect for the things of others. Phil. 2:1-6. (1) Public and private property should be respected as we would our own. How are young people tempted to harm that which belongs to another or to the public? (2) Rights of others must be respected. How should a good citizen respect the rights of others on the road? Alcohol is one of the greatest enemies of good citizenship, because it leads to disregard for the other person in every way. (3) We need to respect the beliefs of others. I cannot expect the other person to believe as I do, unless I live so that he will want to. A great change in belief does not come by compulsion.

3. Serving our country. 1 Sam. 12:1-5. (1) By living a righteous life we serve our country. We must be honest, clean of speech, kind and charitable. The student in the schools who is industrious and gives his best attention honors the country that gives him the privilege of an education. What is the general attitude of young people in your school towards this privilege? (2) A man can and should serve his country by training himself so that he may produce something for the common good of all. What is wrong with the attitude that "My country owes me a living?" (3) As good citizens we need to do our part in voting when the time comes? Why do so many people neglect this responsibility?

4. Putting God first. Acts 4:18-21. As Christians we can promote respect for religion, for the Bible, and for the Lord's Day. In what ways can Intermediates do this? We are doing a service both to God and to our country when we stand up for our convictions, and honor Him in all our ways.

Closing Moments

This meeting may be closed with the Christian and the American flag salute. After the Christian flag salute has been given the following might be inserted before giving the American flag salute.

"Our flag symbolizes for us all the beauty and charm and high ideals of our homeland.
Its red stands for courage, moral as well as physical.
Its white is symbolic of purity, which cannot flourish amidst hate and fear and prejudice.
Its blue stands for truth and loyalty.
Let us then pledge allegiance to our flag, with a renewed sense of being loyal every day of our lives."

Benediction.

JUNIOR CORNER

"Walk ye in all the ways that I command you." Jer. 7:23

For the Leader:

In a vision I saw before me
A form of exquisite grace.
With a look of tenderest interest
And a smile upon His face.
"My Lord! My Master!"
And bending nearer,
He asked as I bowed my head,
"My child, do you love me dearly?"
And with tears in my eyes I said "Yes, Lord."
"And do you love my commandments
And study them day by day,
Seeking to know them fully,
And then with joy obey?"—The Bethel Witness

Dear Junior leader: Can we answer this last question with a joyful "Yes, Lord." And is not one of the Master's commandments, "Feed my lambs." May the work with the Juniors become ever more precious to us.

1. Aim: To arouse a desire to learn and to do that which our Father wants us to do.

2. Introduction of evening's study. Heart talk: Our Father loves us. He says in Jer. 7:23, "That it might be well with you"—The King's highway (and our Father is the King of Kings) leads to the supreme joys of life. If we walk in all the ways that He commands us, we shall find that we have a safe walk, a pleasant walk, an eternal walk. Rev. 3:4. "And they shall walk with me in white, for they are worthy." We want to walk in all the ways that our father commands us, because we love Him.

3. Let the Juniors find the references for the following:
  a. "If ye love me keep my commandments."
  b. "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me."
  c. "If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love."

4. Let the Juniors discuss the following ways that our "Father" commands us to walk in:
  a. Walk in the ways of love, John 15:12, 17; 13:34, 35
  b. Walk in the ways of kindness, Eph. 4:32.
  C. Walk in the ways of obedience, Eph. 6:1; Col. 3:20
  d. Walk in the ways of remembrance—The Sabbath day, Ex. 20:8; The Creator, Ecc. 12:1; The Words of Christ, Acts 20:35.

5. Closing verse—"Lord, obediently now we go,
Gladly leaving all below
Only Thou our Leader be,
And we still will follow Thee"

6. Closing Song—"All The Way My Savior Leads Me"

7. Leader's closing prayer

ALCOHOL.— People say Alcohol does not concern them; till perhaps some friend or neighbor gets injured by some drunken driver; people say it does not hurt them, they only drink beer; but the weakest kind has a tablespoonful or more of straight varnish alcohol in every drink or bottle. Its effect is ALWAYS to make drunken at least a little; keeping one's faculties from acting normally and making them act slower or not at all till the harm is done. We have no right to poison ourselves at all; and alcohol is always a poison and depressant, not a stimulant. Look up the passages about wine and strong drink in the Bible and see what they say!

Publication

INTERMEDITE SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

Some weeks ago samples of this new quarterly were sent to Church or Sunday School leaders of our churches or examination for the purpose of getting expressions and to induce orders for them.

Due to some helpful suggestions and constructive criticisms that were received, the Quarterly has been considerably altered. It will have a smaller format, larger type, more pages, some illustrations, and changes in the literary make-up. Samples of it will shortly be sent to the churches again and we fervently hope that our people will like it so well, that the orders for it will measure up to those for the Senior Quarterly, which now numbers nearly 14,000.

JUNIOR MESSENGER

The new Junior Messenger, successor to Kinderbote-Junior Messenger, is finding favor. Practically all of the subscribers of the former bi-lingual paper are continuing to take the new paper, and a goodly number of new orders have come in.

But orders from the churches of the Eastern, Middle and Pacific Conferences do not come in as we had hoped for. It was to accommodate them, largely, that the change to the English was made. To make the best use of this fine little paper is for Sunday Schools to order it for their families.

Send orders for the INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY AND JUNIOR MESSENGER

In Memoriam

HELENA SCHMIDT THIESEN, daughter of Jacob A. and Anna Unruh Schmidt, was born January 4, 1875, near Goessel, Kansas, and departed this life on January 22, 1939, at her home, making her 64 years and 18 days of age. On May 14, 1894 she was baptized by Elder Jacob Buller and received into the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church. In the year 1908, as the Tabor Church was organized, she transferred her membership and has remained a faithful member until the end. On January 13, 1898 she was joined in holy matrimony with Jacob B. Thiesen. Four children were born. Later two foster daughters were adopted, Agnes and Marie Dirksen, Eight grandchildren were born.

Mrs. Thiesen was a true and faithful mother and was loved by everyone. She brought up her children in the fear of the Lord. As long as she was able she attended the church services regularly. She loved to sing especially the songs she had learned in her youth.

In September, 1936, she became sick and never really regained her full health. On Thursday, January 19, she became suddenly worse and the doctor diagnosed pneumonia. After so much suffering, we grant her the rest, even if it gives us tears and pain. She passed away to be with Jesus and we await a reunion in eternity.

All is over, hands are folded
On a quiet, peaceful breast;
All her toils and trials ended
And dear Mother is at rest.

She leaves to mourn her husband, three sons, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Thiesen, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Thiesen, and Mr. Paul Thiesen; one daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Dyck; fourth brothers, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. S. Schmidt, Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt, Aberdeen, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Schmidt, Walton, and Mr. and Mrs. John U. Schmidt, Hutchinson; also one sister, Miss Maria A. Schmidt, Newton.

Funeral services were conducted on January 25, at the Tabor church, with the Rev. P. H. Richert in charge. His text—II Cor. 4:7. Rev. Peter Buller, in German—text, II Cor. 5:8. Rev. C. Frey spoke at the grave. Laid to rest in Tabor Cemetery.

Abraham B. Boese was born in Russia, March 24, 1850. He was baptized by Bishop Tobias A. Unruh and joined church in his youth. He came to America in 1874. In 1882 he was united in marriage to Helen Buller. To this union eleven children were born, all of them are still living. Funeral services were held in the Friedenberg church. Speakers were Revs. Schultz and Unruh from this church, and Rev. Eschliman from Wagner.—Correspondent.

—Second Menn. Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—"Praise God from whom all blessings flow." The Trustees report that through the sale of bonds among members and friends of the church it has been possible to pay off the mortgage held against the church building. —Liberal donations have been coming in for the Memorial Organ Fund, but many more are needed.

— THE SEASON OF LENT IS ON. — This year it begins on February 22 and ends with Easter. Its opening day is known as Ash Wednesday which comes 46 days before Easter. It is a season of penitence, and effort to draw nigh unto God, symbolized by Christ's forty days of fasting, prayer and meditation in the desert. It is a beautiful custom which all true Christians should take heed to follow. Ash Wednesday, following Sunday "Estomihi," is the first and great fast day, so called by the Catholic Church, due to a custom of sprinkling the head with ashes as a sign of penitence, similar to a custom used in Old Testament times when people doing penitence sat in or sprinkled dust or ashes on their heads: II Sam. 13:19; Esther 4: 1 and 3; Ez. 27:30.

— Grace Mennonite Church, Dallas Oregon. — The C. E. Society elected for 1939: Guy Rempel, Pres.; Alfred Rupp, Vice Pres.; Herman Schrag, Sec.-Treas.; Geo. Toevs, Chm. of Progr. Com. The Society again adopted the Big Four Plan, which has been a big success the last few years. One item of interest is that for some time we have worked in some surprises on our C. E. which have been a blessing to all who attended.—Phil. 4:19.—Correspondent.

— From Rev. J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake, Minn., Feb. 12, '39. "Brr____! this we hear folks uttering today and yesterday. About ten inches of snow fell Thursday and in the evening the wind veered to the northwest, and then the blizzard was on. Friday morning I had to overcome a four-foot drift to the barn to get a shovel to remove it. The 500 feet of walk I had cleared. The street has been cleared with the snow plow. Until this change the weather was quite fair, but now the thermometer has shown 14 degrees below of mornings."—That is some winter, but the people in that state are prepared for it.

— Zion Church, Souderton, Pa. — On Good Friday we will again expect to receive members into the church by baptism, by letter and right hand of fellowship.—The Brotherhood will sponsor the evening service Sunday, Feb. 26. The Conference Year Books are here. They contain much useful information.

— Mrs. H. J. Andres, editor of the Junior Messenger and Junior Corner in the Mennonite, has experienced the joy of her return home from the Bethel Hospital. God be praised for His help. Not any too strong physically, besides being the mother of two small children and an ardent helpmate of her husband, who is business manager of the Bethel Hospital, she feels compelled to give up the Junior Corner work. The Juniors and their sponsors will greatly miss her splendid contributions, but we hope that Mrs. J. E. Entz, who is now efficiently serving as a substitute, will consent to continue the work.

— Bethel College Fellowships. — The report of these organizations, taken from the exhibits presented at the recent annual meetings, shows that a total of $25,879 has flowed into the College treasury through their efforts. It was suggested that this should be raised to $30,000 in 1939. Since $15,000 are required to balance this year's college budget by July 31, it is urgent that the fellowships of the churches have their canvass early to help raise this amount.

— Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak. — Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Linscheid presented their church letters and were received as members Sunday morning. Bro. J. C. Neufeld, a deacon, officiated.—The pastor had the privilege of bringing a short message to the students at the College recently. It was an inspiration to look into the faces of so fine a group of young people getting ready to shoulder life's tasks. And certainly Freeman Junior College has splendid facilities to prepare them for Christian service.

— First Menn. Church, Bluffton, O. — The attendance at the meetings of the College Bible week indicated that the messages of Dr. Walker met a need in the minds and hearts of our people. The meetings were well supported financially. Not until the last day of the meetings it became known that Dr. Walker was donating his services. So it was decided that the offerings should be used to buy books or equipment for the College Bible department.

— We are Getting into It Deeper and Deeper. — France, Great Britain have now placed orders for more than 1,200 war planes with the United States. Such dealings by our government cannot help but stir up enmity with other powers of Europe, seeing that we are taking sides preparatory to a possible war.

— The National Anti-War Youth Congress held in Columbus, O. at the turn of the year, numbered 250 young people, representing 2,700,000 members of the organization. Among other things they decided to renew their efforts to stop the ROTC and the militarization of the NYA and CCC.

— Rev. P. E. Whitmer of the Grace Church, Pandora, O. is one of those thoughtful pastors who has remembered us with a copy of their YEAR BOOK, which we duly appreciate. From it we glean that the church now has a membership of 390, with a loss of only 11 against a gain of 19. The 1939 budget calls for $3,100.00, which is essentially the same as that of the Bethel College Church, both as to the total and the different items. The church dues are 25 cents per week for men of twenty-one and over, and ten cents for all other members. Any deficiency is made up by voluntary contributions.

— Bankers too are Reaching out For Extended Service to the Community. — E. W. Baumgartner, cashier of the First Bank of Berne, has announced a new service, called "bank money orders," just inaugurated at the bank. The orders are described as safe, convenient and economical in transmitting money.—

ROAD MAKING FOR OTHERS.— It is said of Pastor Johann Oberlin of Waldersbach, in the Steintal of the Vosges Mountains, a man known for his simple, practical philanthropy in promoting horticulture, agriculture, roadbuilding and better living conditions generally, that he started his work of improving roads by picking up armfuls of rock and dropping them in holes in the road, when out walking. At first some of the people made light of his efforts. But in due time he got his farmer church members interested to the extent that they helped him build better roads and bridges in the valley and up into the mountains. Today road making has become a wonderful art. Any thinking person who travels over our magnificent, hard-surfaced highways, clipping off mile after mile in astonishing rapidity, has much to marvel at the skill and ingenuity of the engineers, how they have managed to make low places high, high places low, and crooked places straight, by blasting away rocks or building bridges over chasms.—This brings to mind Jesus, THE WAY, the highway, if we please, in the spiritual realm. He is our chosen way, but he has left the task of leading others to it, as well as preparing it so that others may travel it, to us Christians. This is partly by telling others of the Jesus way and by traveling it as it behooves true followers of His. We can truly prepare the way for Jesus by dealing honorably in all of our life contacts. People don't like to be jolted and jarred as they travel over a road. Dishonorable dealings with them on the part of Christians are apt to make the road rough for them. Travel is made unpleasant by rough, stormy weather. Lack of courtesy, fault finding, lack of understanding and sympathy, seen in Christians do not invite others to go the Jesus way. Lack of faith on our part does not beget faith in others. And sometimes Christians make the Jesus way so narrow that their fellow men prefer to go their own way. Christians have a serious responsibility in making the Jesus way inviting to their fellowmen. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight."—Matt. 3:3b.—"Prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up the standard for the people."—Is. 62:10.—"Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God."—Is. 40:3.

The Better of Two Methods

In contrast with President Roosevelt's policy of strengthening democracy by defending non-Fascist countries by every method short of war, even to arming them from here, Dr. Bjarne Braatoy, a Norwegian economist, living in London, has suggested a constructive method which is said to be gaining increased support in trade unions and peace circles. He holds that primitive sanctions are "out," and that new world economic conferences are imperative.

"Let us then bring pressure," he says, "for a series of conferences among the democratic countries—not too dramatic so that early failures induce too great a disillusionment. Rather, these conferences should be kept going one after another. What would they do? They would seek to bring about a strengthening of democracy's economic life through more common action."

In an article in the London Daily Herald Dr. Braatoy asserts that certain specific topics could, among others, be profitably explored: Securing and making available information on production and needs throughout the democratic world on a scale not hitherto attempted. Centralization of financial control. Establishment of an international investment board, which would prevent overlapping in the development of the world's resources and undermine economic barriers between nations. "Distressed areas in the international scene would come under the searchlight and the horror of abundance in one corner of the earth while starvation reigns in another would be avoided by the guidance of slupplies from one to the other." Finally, "the common front necessary to meet aggressor nations would have its wherewithal, mutual solidarity among the members of that front."

But Dr. Braatoy is insistent, in correspondence with the Nofrontier News Service, that international economic conferences are worthwhile chiefly, perhaps only, as they are grouped around organization. Rather than try to re-create the League of Nations around sanctions which are definitely dead, why not, seek to build an effective machinery around Article 19, which provides, even if inadequately, for peaceful changes in the status quo? This program should satisfy those who really want to keep from war while wishing to safeguard democracy through something more than concessions extorted by threats of force.

Such policies could not guarantee peace. But they go to the root of the world's chief international difficulties. Mr. Roosevelt's program, on the contrary is more certain to promote war than it is to promote defense. No peaceful program will do any good if we must allow a powerful Chief Executive, with virtually unchecked power, to follow a method, from 3,000 miles away, closer to war than the very democratic Powers—with whom we appear to have consummated a secret military alliance—are willing to go themselves. —Partly from "World Events."

WHY?—As long as the human race exists its representatives have been trying to find answers to questions such as: Why so much woe and suffering, and so little happiness? Why all this evil and corruption in this poor world? Why so much power given to Satan? Probably none of us would venture to give an adequate answer to these queries. But we can take comfort and find a partial reply in Job's answer when Satan's power had been turned loose upon him: "Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?" And we should be able to make this confession more readily than Job, for we have Him who had to endure such extreme measures of calumny, hatred and suffering that he had to cry out, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Did the Master then waver in His faith in the Father? No, He knew that He was in the Father's hands to take Him safely through this dark hour, when Satan and all his host were turned loose against Him. As for us, the Christian's faith is not a guarantee against accidents, injury or misfortune. He has not been assured that he is immune from the trickeries of evil men or the temptations and assaults of the evil one. He has no charter of exemption from such things. But Christ with His cross and resurrection gives him the assurance, that beyond all this are the Father's providence and protecting arms who will see him through all the turmoil and mutations life, so that he too can safely say, much like the Master, "Father into thy hands I commit myself."

INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

Some weeks ago samples of this new quarterly were sent to Church or Sunday School leaders of our churches for examination for the purpose of getting expressions and to induce orders for them.

Due to some helpful suggestions and constructive criticisms that were received, the Quarterly has been considerably altered. It will have a smaller format, larger type, more pages, some ilustrations, and changes in the literary make-up. Samples of it will shortly be sent to the churches again and we fervently hope that our people will like it so well, that the orders for it will measure up to those for the Senior Quarterly,, which now numbers nearly 14,000.

The new Junior Messenger, successor to Kinderbote-Junior Messenger, is finding favor. Practically all of the subscribers of the former bi-lingual paper are contining to take the new paper, and a goodly number of new orders have come in.

But orders from the churches of the Eastern, Middle, and Pacific Conference do not come in as we had hoped for. It was to accommodate them, largely, that the change to the English was made. To make the best use of this fine little paper is for Sunday Schools to order it for their families.

Send orders for the INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY and JUNIOR MESSENGER

History View the Jewish Persecution

by Dr. E. L. Harshbarger

3. THE WORLD WAR AND ITS AFTERMATH

The coming of the World War brought one of the greatest catastrophes to the Jewish people. Western European Jews supported the war as patriotic Germans, English or French. Eastern Jews, however, were not a part of the Russian state, and were suspected of being pro-German because of their language. Upon slightest suspicion Russian Jews were executed and Jewish communities dispersed. Early defeats of the Russian armies were blamed on the Jews. Pogroms followed, Jewish newspapers were suppressed, and hundreds of Jews were driven into the Pale of Settlement in the interior where conditions were deplorable. The March Revolution of 1917 brought complete emancipation and rejoicing to Russian Jews, the majority of whom were liberal, bourgeois radicals or social democrats. Their fond hopes were dashed to pieces by the Communist revolt in October, for the Communists looked upon the majority of Jews as hated capitalist. Communists who participated in pogroms of the Jews were in some cases punished by the Communist leaders, but Jewish suffering was still great. At the same time the White Russian generals, contending that the Jews were responsible for the Communist revolution, turned their soldiery loose on Jewish communities. The resulting horror and butchery is too horrible to describe. Suffice it to say that one scholar estimates that between December, 1918 and April, 1921, at least 60,000 Jews were killed by one side or the other.

In Poland where nationalist sentiment grew during the war, the Jew was persecuted as a Russian Communist and an opponent of the Polish nation. In Rumania Jews were organized into special army units and sent to the most exposed military positions. Hungarian Jews fought valiantly in the war and 10,000 gave their lives on the battlefield, but this did not prevent the Communist Jew, Bela Kun, from seizing control and killing many Jewish capitalists, nor did it prevent the anti-semitic bands of Admiral Horthy from persecuting all Jews as Communists after the overthrow of Bela Kun. In Austria, home of 250,000 Jews, anti-semitism was not carried to excess, but the academic world hated them, and even the Jewish leaders of the Socialist party which came into power in 1917 did little to oppose the anti-semitics. In other European countries, aside from Germany, anti-semitism, although always present, was of little importance.

In the United States hatred of the Jew flared up following the war due to the activities of the Ku Klux Klan, the campaign of Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent, and the dissemination of The International Jew, a book based on the forged "Protocols of the Elders of Zion." But anti-semitism in America has never taken on political color as it has in Europe.

With the opening of the World War the German Jew joined the colors with other Germans. Ten thousand volunteered, 50,000 were drafted, and 80,000 served at the front before the end of the war. But in spite of the fact that 12,000 Jews lost their lives, that over 30,000 received some kind of honorable mention for war services, anti-semitism raised its ugly head again, and Jews were accused of not performing their "normal" share of war duties. Furthermore, Jews, being mostly liberal and middle class in their training and interests, took a leading part in the erection of the Weimar Republic at the close of the war. One of their number, Hugo Preuss, was the author of the Weimar constitution. There were also many Jews among the radical leftist groups. The short-lived Bavarian Soviet Republic was piloted largely by Jews. When the Bavarian prime minister, Kurt Eisner, tried to blame Imperial Germany for starting the war, Germany naturally became indignant, used his methods to condemn all of German Jewry, and Eisner, himself, was assassinated.

Another reason for German anti-semitism after the war was the influx of eastern Jews from Russia and Poland. Germans heard of hundreds of thousands of Jews who were allowed by the Jewish-controlled Weimar government to enter impoverished Germany. Figures show that only some 90,000 came in, and even Nazi figures show that only 12,000 were naturalized between 1919-33. These eastern Jews like many other groups, even Aryans, had among them some notorious swindlers and other disreputable characters who became cases in point for the anti-semitics.

Furthermore, the Republic repealed the law which denied Jews access to permanent offices of state, and consequently many Jews took state positions. As economic distress grew, more and more abuse was heaped upon the Jew. All distress in Germany was blamed on him. Numerous popular leagues with anti-semitic tendencies arose. The most famous of these was the violently anti-semitic National Socialist German Labor Party founded by Adolph Hitler, in 1920, with the watchword, "Deutschland erwache, Juda verrecke." This rather violent form of anti-semitism was supplemented by a more moderate variety which didn't believe many of the popular myths about Jewish rascality, but insisted that the Jew was dangerous because he was fundamentally different from Germans, and because he exerted an influence out of proportion to his numbers.

As a result of these views, even before the advent of Hitler, the Jews were more and more isolated socially and economically. Fashionable German society closed its doors to them. Thousands of Jews were unemployed and many were on relief. New anti-semitic books were published and old ones resurrected—all tracing every known evil directly to the Jew. A few writers like Friedrich Delitzsch questioned whether or not the Old Testament could have any ethical or moral value for Germans. Political parties became more anti-semitic. As one writer summarizes:

> "Even before Hitler came into power, German Jewry, which was supposed to control the Weimar Republic, was an oppressed, baited and to a large extent ruined body. Victorious National Socialism had only to complete the work."

The fate of the Jews under the Hitler regime has been discussed so much in the press that only a brief summary need be given here. History records that practically all of the methods used by the Nazis against Jews had been used before. The Nazis made anti-semitism a national program, hence the persecution was more widespread and intense. Jewish property was no longer given full protection of the law; boycotts, more or less severe, were laid against Jewish business; Jewish judges were driven from the courts after the burning of the Reichstag; Jewish professional men were discharged outright or placed under restrictions which slowly drove them from their positions; all Jewish citizenship rights were withdrawn; families were broken up by a rigid application of the race theory; medieval ghetto districts and the famous yellow badge reappeared; and all educational institutions were ocmpelled to teach a race theory which stamps the Aryan as superior and brands the Jew as inferior. Much controversy is raging now as to the justification of Hitler's actions and as to the extent of Jewish persecutions. History leaves no room for doubt as to the methods used, nor as to the aim of the Nazi leaders to get rid of all Jews as soon as possible.

An Appeal for Funds to Western District Churches

Not long ago your Committee on School and Education sent a letter to the ministers of our churches asking for funds for the support of the several activities being carried on by this committee. Very few churches have responded. As a result, your committee is in immediate need of funds.

The projects which merit our support are the following: the loan library, the radio broadcasts over KFH, Wichita, Kansas, the missionary work in the slum district of Wichita, and several others. The loan library has proved popular, and the need for additional new books is urgent.

Will those churches that have not already recently sent a contribution to this committee kindly do so in the near future, if at all possible, in order that these activities need not be discontinued?

J. J. Voth, Treasurer.

The Christian Attitude Toward War

We Mennonites have been much pleased to see other church bodies take more or less definite stands against war. But this is still a problem with some of them. In the Winter Number of "CHRISTIANITY TODAY," a splendid Christian Journal published by the Presbyterian Church, there is a highly instructive article on "The Christian Attitude Toward War," containing an exhaustive analysis of what the Bible and other sources have to say upon this subject. In ten chapters entitled: Introduction, The Proposed Amendment, What the Scriptures Teach Concerning War, Historical Aspects, War Caused by Sin, Military and Police Force Based on the Same Principle. Not to Obey the Government Blindly, Pacifist Pledges, Modern Pacifist Movement Allied with Radicalism, Conclusion. Dr. Loraine Boetner, the writer, very interestingly unfolds his findings and ideas on this all important topic.

The main purpose of the article is to enlighten the members of the various Presbyteries of the church upon the fundamental principles of the problem, so that they may intelligently and prayerfully take their stand on a proposed amendment to the "Confession of Faith." The old Confession says, "It is lawful for Christians to accept and execute the office of a magistrate . . . . especially to maintain piety, justice and peace, according to the wholesome laws of each commonwealth; so, for that end, they may lawfully now under the New Testament wage war upon just and necessary occasion."

The proposed amendment reads, "War, wherever it appears, is a manifestation of the power of sin in the world. It defies the righteousness of God, disputes His world wide family, and outrages the human personalities which Christ came to redeem. Even when war is waged with a sincere purpose to restrain evil, it tends to produce greater evils than those against which it is directed. The Church, which is the body of Christ, set in the world to preach the Gospel of Peace, must ever bear witness to this character of war."

In commenting on this the writer of the article says, "We want to be neither pacifists nor militarists . . . .A pacifist is one who will not sanction nor take part in any war . . . . one who is for peace at any price. A militarist is one who favors heavy military armaments, primarily for the purpose of aggression against other nations. We believe that the position which should be taken by one who is a true Christian and also a loyal citizen lies somewhere between the two extremes . . . . We desire peace, but not the kind that is found in the cemetery. It is true, Christ came as the Prince of Peace, and his followers should strive to promote peace by all legitimate means . . . . But the pacifist movement is not a necessary or legitimate part of the evangelical Christian program."

"Nor is it true that all wars cause greater evils than those which they seek to correct." As an example of this is cited the Mohamedan invasion of Europe which if not checked, would have stamped out Christianity; also the war of the Protestants against the Catholic persecutions which threatened to destroy the new-found faith. "Furthermore, what is the purpose in saying that war, wherever it appears, is a manifestation of the power of sin in the world? Of course war is a manifestation of the power of sin, but what of it? Such statement is beside the point. The same can be said of a great many other things which are nevertheless all right in their places; e. g. our civil government with its many laws to prevent crime, our courts, police systems, jails and penitentiaries, etc.—yes even the cross of Christ and the preaching of the Gospel, for had it not been for the power of sin, these would not have been necessary. But that does not mean that each of these things is sinful. If the amendment meant to state the thoroughgoing pacifist position that all war is sin, sin for the defenders as well as for the agressors, why does it not say so plainly and honestly?———Why attempt to state the creed of the church in such ambiguous language?"

Thus, after having been given, in the introductory chapter, the objection to the amendment on the grounds of ambiguity and support of the doctrine of pacifism, one has the impression that the adoption of the measure is doubtful. And as the author goes on, examining the Scriptures and other sources, one is quite prepared for his conclusion at the close of the article, which is,

"Having thus surveyed the whole problem as to what the attitude of the Church toward war should be, we conclude that the immediate duty of the Church is not the obstruction of the necessary functions of civil government through the installation of a pacifist psychology in the minds of the people, or a campaign for the abolition of our national military protection, but the promotion of the only permanently constructive policy of peace, the presentation of the Gospel of redemption to individual souls. As individuals are thus changed, the nations will be changed and the causes which lead to war will be removed. There is no other way. The pacifist does not face up to the realities of life. He has no methods of dealing with unprovoked agression; and to apply prematurely his principles of non-resistance is but to invite a backward reaction and postpone the real day of peace."

The article is interesting and illuminating and valuable for comparison with our views and beliefs. The magazine containing it may be obtained by addressing:

"CHRISTIANITY TODAY," 525 Locust Street, Philadelphia, Pa. and asking for the 1938-1939 Winter Number of the magazine. The advertised price is 35 cents.—J. R. T.

The Jewish Brothers

The late Dr. Capadose, a converted Israelite and Christian minister in Holland, used to relate the following touching incident:

"My worthy grandfather was a very affectionate but passionate man. He had a brother for whom he felt a tender love. They had once fallen into a dispute with each other and had returned to their respective homes in rage. This happened on a Friday. At the close of the day, when it began to grow dark, my good grandmother, like another Martha, began to make all things ready for the Sabbath. She called out, 'My beloved Joseph, it is already dark; come and light up the Sabbath lamp.' But he, sunk in profound sadness, paced the room backwards and forwards, to the increasing anxiety of the good woman, who exclaimed, 'See! the stars are already in the firmament, and our Sabbath lamp is still dark.' My grandfather then took his hat and staff, and with visible perturbation hurried out of the house; but in a few minutes he returned with tears of joy in his eyes. 'Now, my beloved Rebecca,' cries he, 'now I am ready.' He offered up the prayer, and with evident feelings of delight kindled the lamp. He afterwards made known his dispute, adding, 'It was not possible for me to offer up the prayer and light the lamp before I was reconciled with Isaac.'

" 'But how came it to pass that you returned so quickly?'

" 'Why,' said he, 'Isaac, like me, could not rest,—it was with him as it was with me,—he also could not enter upon the Sabbath without being reconciled. We met each other in the street,—he was coming to me, I was going to him,—we fell into each other's arms weeping.'

"When, many years after, I first read in the gospel of our Lord the words: 'Therefore if thou bring gifts to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.' This event which had affected me when a child, presented itself anew to my mind, and I thanked God that He had still left such indications of life amid so much death in that people who are my flesh and bones."

—Bethel College.—The American Friends Service Committee at Philadelphia has sent a call to Dr. Warkentin for refugee workers in Germany. This committee has permission from the German government to come into Germany to help the Jews. Naturally the men to be sent there must have a working knowledge of German. The Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference has selected five candidates from Bethel. They are: Paul Becker, Elmer Ediger, Erwin Goering, Milford Heidebrecht, and Henry Buller. Their applications have been forwarded to the Friends Committee.

God's Call to Service

by Wm. McCarrell

God's service call is imparted to God's willing servants in various ways. Though often occurring in ways and at times unknown or unexpected by men, God's call is nevertheless right in every detail. God called Moses after a long period of testing and training and while he was submissive and faithfully plodding on. His service call occurred during the regular routine of life. A Christian mother was dressed in modern fashion to attend a dance. While kissing her little one good-bye, the child asked in substance, "Mother, are you not going to put on a dress?" This innocent, surprising question was the beginning of the mother's call to Christian service. She wondrously led many fallen women to Christ and established shelters for them.

God's will fulfilled regarding service is next in importance to salvation. Disaster in time and eternity result from failure to properly discern or obey God's call. Many religious systems have deceived numberless souls because individuals wrongly believed God called them to teach certain things.

God's service is always preceded by preparatory spiritual fellowship. Fellowship thus strengthens faith, convinces of God's reality and power, enlightens about God's purpose and will, and brings the servant to end of self through realizing personal unworthiness and inability. It makes Christ so precious as to strengthen desire to go on in complete obedience to His will. A talented young couple with religious background attended this church while in charge of the prominent school of musical instruction in Cicero, Illinois. They accepted Christ as Savior. Fellowship with Christ proved so precious that they went to teach music in a Christian college in Korea. Fellowship with Christ so continually deepened that they aim to devote full time to personal evangelism and are training many Korean Christians to do the same. Their service is marked by remarkable results.

God's service call is clear, definite, personal, and authoritative. It assures that the omnipotent, omniscient and sufficient Caller will assist the one called in unchanging faithfulness. It assures that response is possible. It is dependent upon the obedience of the one called. A chisel is a lifeless piece of steel, but controlled by the hand of the sculptor, it can aid in producing wondrous statuary. Who can estimate the blessing caused mankind because of yielded obedience to Christ's call by Peter, James, John, Paul, Luther, Livingstone, Carey, Hudson Taylor, Moody and a host of others? Who can estimate the catastrophe to all concerned had they not obeyed?

God's service calls—test faith. God's sufficient grace is always available for the task, despite any sense of unworthiness or inability upon the part of the servant. Ann Hasseltine, considered by many the most popular young women in New England, married Adoniram Judson against advice by well-meaning friends. Fourteen days later they sailed for Burma. Her suffering and heroism with her husband is history. They labored six years without a visible convert. When Judson died, there were 63 churches and 7,000 Christians in Burma—From "The Sunday School Superintendent."

Philosophy and the Christian

One of the popular books of recent years was "The Story of Philosophy," by Will Durant. It could never have had such success unless there had been a good deal of interest in the subject. Every thoughtful person is to some extent a philosopher, for each one works out for himself a plan of thinking and living, though he may not analyze it and express it in words. Most people would shrink from the thought that they are philosophers, and think of the subject with awe and as something far removed from everyday life.

An unusual series of four articles on the subject of "Philosophy and the Christian" is now being published in The Sunday School Times (Philadelphia) beginning with the issue of February 18. These are by Professor William Hazer Wrighton, M. A., D. D., in charge of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Georgia. Dr. Wrighton does not write in the technical language of the classroom, but in plain and simple terms that any thoughtful layman can understand. In these four articles he discusses: "What Is Meant by the Study of Philosophy Today," "Why All Human Philosophy Is A Failure," "What New Testament or Christian Philosophy Really Is," and "Reaching Students for Christ in Philosophy Classes."

Dr. Wrighton shows that philosophy considers such questions as: What is the origin of the universe and of life? Do natural laws make miracles impossible? Is the universe the result of mechanism or purpose? What is the significance of the problems of evil, of God, of freedom, of immortality? How may we know the truth? He quotes definitions of philosophy given by some of the greatest philosophers from Socrates to William James, and tells of many great thinkers who have at the same time been humble believers in God.

As a professor of philosophy Dr. Wrighton is unusual, for he accepts the Bible as the inspired Word of God and aims to strengthen the faith of his students at the University of Georgia. It will be encouraging to Christian parents, in this day of lawlessness and unbelief in our land, to know of such a university teacher, whose principal aim in life is to bring his students into such a personal relationship to Jesus Christ that they will believe in Him as their Savior and grow into strong Christian men and women.—The Sunday School Times.

GIVING RICHLY REWARDED

"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me" (Matt. 25:40). Baron James de Rothschild once sat for a beggar to Ary Scheffer. While the great financier, attired in the rags of a beggar, was in his place in the estrade, I happened to enter the studio of the great artist, whose friend I had the honor to be. The baron was so perfectly disguised that I did not recognize him, and believing that a veritable beggar was before me, I went up to him and slipped a louis into his hand. The pretended model took the coin and put it in his pocket. Ten years later I received at my residence an order on the office in the Rue Lafitte for 10,000 francs, inclosed in the following letter: "Sir—You one day gave a louis to the Baron Rothschild in the studio of Ary Scheffer. He has employed it, and today sends you the little capital with which you entrusted him, together with the interest. A good action always brings good fortune. Baron James de Rothschild." On receipt of this order I sought the billionaire, who proved to me from the books before him that under his management my louis had actually fructified so as to have swelled to the large sum sent me. So Christ is walking through the world in the guise of a beggar—hungry, naked, and outcast. Blessed are we if we give to the Master in the person of these poor brethren, or take the gospel to those who have it not.

A LETTER

5802 Maryland Ave., Chicago, Ill., 2-14-39

Dear Editor:

I should like to offer my services to any Mennonites who are coming for either temporary or permanent residence in Chicago. I refer especially to such matters as finding desirable rooms in the better sections of the city, getting them in touch with our Mennonite Missions and Churches, helping them locate friends and acquaintances and generally feeling at home in their new environment.

Often Mennonites coming to the city for the first time have no idea where to find who, or what they want, nor where to locate. I have discovered a number of Mennonites who have been in Chicago a year or more before they knew that there were any Mennonite Missions here. There are any number of Mennonites here who have never visited any of the missions or churches.

It is for this reason that I offer my spare time to help any new folks who may be coming to Chicago for study or for work. The ministers in our churches throughout the country would be rendering an excellent service if they would notify their fellow-ministers whenever a member of one church moves from one parish into that of another. This applies to rural as well as urban ministers. Our country and town people moving into the cities could give a decided material and spiritual "lift" to Mennonite religious work in the cities.—Truly yours, J. Winfield Fretz.

IN MEMORIAM

ISAAC PANKRATZ, son of Rev. Peter Pankratz, was born in Alexanderwohl, Russia. When three years old he came to America with his parents. His birth date was August 3, 1881. Upon arriving in America his parents settled at Lehigh, Kansas. Later they moved to Cordell, Okla., where upon confession of his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Savior, he was received into the Sichar Mennonite Church by Rev. John Ratzlaff. On Jan. 3, 1905, he was united in the bonds of holy matrimony with Susanna Froese. To this union God sent ten children, five of whom have preceeded him into the heavenly abode. In 1914 the family moved to Montana. Here seven successive crop failures caused them to move to Oregon. From here he returned to Oklahoma. When his health began to fail he moved to Winton, Calif., in February 1938. His health did not improve, however, and an X-ray examination revealed the trouble to be cancer of the stomach. After suffering excruciating pains, he fell asleep in the Lord, very quietly, on the afternoon of Feb. 8, 1939. He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, three daughters, and two sons, eight grand-children, six brothers and three sisters, also a host of more distant relatives and friends. Interment was at Winton, California, Rev. Dillman B. Hess officiating, using 1 Corinthians 15:26.

JOHN G. KREHBIEL, son of John and Anna Galle Krehbiel, was born near Donnellson, Iowa, July 26, 1864, and passed away February 10, 1939, at the age of 74 years, 6 months and 15 days, at his home in Donnellson.

In the year of 1878 he was baptized by Reverend Christian Schowalter and joined Zion Mennonite Church. On February 26, 1893, he was united in marriage to Mary Schnebele who passed away May 8, 1898. To this union there were born three children: Katie, at home; Albert J., of Burlington, Iowa, and Ben J., of Weiser, Idaho, who survive him.

John was a resident of this community during his entire lifetime, with the exception of a period of 8 years—1909 to 1918—when he, with his children, lived on a farm near Nampa, Idaho. While living in Idaho he transferred his church membership to a nearby church. Upon his return to Iowa he again became affiliated with Zion Church and remained an active member until his death.

Besides his three children he is survived by a brother, Jacob G., of Donnellson, and a sister, Mary A., of Moundridge, Kansas, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were held February 13, at the Zion Mennonite Church.

IS THERE A TURN TOWARD RELIGION?

By Walter Temple

Scriptures Verses—Matthew 5:13-16.

The President, in his annual message to Congress, stated, "Storms from abroad directly challenge three institutions indispensable to America. The first is religion. It is the source of the other two– democracy and international good faith. Religion, by teaching man his relationship to God gives the individual a sense of his own dignity and teaches him to respect himself by respecting his neighbors——An ordering of society which regulates religion, democracy and good faith to the background can find no place within it for the ideals of the Prince of Peace. The United States rejects such an ordering and retains its ancient faith."

Colonel Samuel W. Fleming, Jr., recently said, "A sympathetic interest in the church may be the fundamental solution of our national difficulties."

Our first President once said, "Whatever can be conceded to the influence of education, national morality cannot prevail in the exclusion of religious principles."

Dr. Hutchinson, President of the University of Chicago recently wrote "Schools cannot take the place of the Church."

Dr. Carl Jung, an outstanding psycholist, states, "Among all my patients of over 35, there has not been one whose problem in the last resort was not that of finding a religious outlook on life. It is safe to say that every one of them fell ill because they had lost that which the living religions of every age have given to their followers. Not one of them has been really healed who did not regain his religious outlook."

The foregoing quotations, with one exception are all recent and show a trend of thought worthy of careful consideration by all thinking people. It is apparent that each of these leaders have recognized the value of religion and its teaching in the world. The world is looking to the church for leadership and guidance. The principles of Christianity are recognized as sound and practical today and men are taking them seriously.

The Church of Christ is in a position to become a real force in solving the problems of the world. Men are realizing that the principles and teachings of Christianity have stood the test of ages, and that these principles applied will settle the unrest of the individual and of the world.

Christians everywhere must prepare themselves to explain the principles for which they stand both by word of mouth and in their daily life. This preparation requires an awareness of our inward need for prayer, consecration, grace and a placing of our complete trust in Him who is able and willing to help us. A deepening of the spiritual life of all professing Christians.

The Christian Church must withdraw from the world in spirit, from dependence upon the world, and preach the teachings of its Founder. It must remain true to its principles and hold its light before men, who seeing Christ, will desire to apply His teachings in their personal lives.

As Christians, zealous of bringing the Gospel message to all men, we must hold to the teachings of Jesus in our daily living, that men with whom we associate may be drawn to Jesus Christ.

Questions for Discussion:

1. Would the teachings of Christ solve the economic and social problems facing us? If so, how?
2. Do we believe that a clearer conception of religion would help those who are not mentally healthy, worried, etc.? What can be done to furnish such a clearer understanding?
3. It has been said that the interest of people to correct the economic and social conditions is a selfish motive. Assuming that we are benefited by such improvement, would it be un-Christian in the light of the teachings of Christ?
4. Dr. Link has written that "Church-going families are happy families." Do you agree? Why are they?
5. Our nation is composed of numerous communities, which create national opinion and action. As laymen, how can we increase the value of Christian teachings in our section? How can we reach the unchurched?

LETTER

GOSPEL HALL, 415 E. 3d. St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

My dear Friends:

The ground is covered with snow. The wind whistles down the narrow streets. We turn into a pitch-dark hallway; up some tottering steps. Here is a family with three small children. No doors on the hinges. No gas. No electricity. No heating stove. A small coal cook-stove. But no coal or wood. The mother has put in a few old papers. The wind blows in through large cracks in the walls and floor. I shiver even in overcoat and rubbers. These children will hope to find on Christmas morning—not toys or delicious food—but a warm day!

Here is a mother who brings her children to the Mission and stays until we lock up. She says, "I know you have a fire. I want my children to get warm." The husband and one girl are sick. Only one tiny stove and it doesn't work. They bundle up in all the rags they can find, all day long. But how glad they are to have us come and pray with them and tell them of a Heavenly Home.

Here is an old woman in a cold room. No doors. She says, "it is so cold." That was last week. Yesterday I knocked at her door. No answer. A neighbor says indifferently, "We haven't seen her for several days." Perhaps somewhere on the icy streets, the frail body has given up. Poor forlorn ones. Nobody cares.

Here is a family with three children. A three-year old girl and a two-months-old baby. No gas or electricity. They cook on a camp stove—when they can get kerosene. A tiny coal stove. But no coal or wood. The snow drifts in through the cracks onto their bed. No food in the house. The man walks the snow-covered streets in canvas shoes with almost no soles, looking for work. We buy them a little food and tell them of Him who is able to supply all their need, especially that of the soul.

We stop in at one of the Hell-holes which abound in this district; a place called "Mum's." Many men have died literally overnight from drinking the poison liquor she makes and sells. The Lord really was present as I prayed and talked; He moved them deeply. People say "aren't you afraid to go into these places?" But He said "Go . . . and lo, I am with you, always."

One of the women who used to come to the Mission was taken to a hospital, where she died. Her husband got $160 insurance. His pals crowded around him and drank it up. The other day it was all gone, so he turned on the gas. Another fresh grave, dug by Sin, in Potters Field on Christmas morning.

How thankful I am for the privilege of keeping the Lighthouse shining in these dark surroundings; for the glorious opportunity of carrying the CHRIST-mas message to those whose "Christmas cheer" is a bit of a fire and a bite to eat. What a joy to see them kneeling at the altar, seeking at long last, the One who was "Wounded for our Transgressions." Here is a Russian who knows just enough English to understand that Christ died for him, and accepts in simple faith. Another man, hardened, under the influence of liquor when he came in, kneels seeking escape from Satan's bondage.

Where God is working, Satan is never idle. The other night one of the young "gangs" broke down the back door, to it, and what they could find loose, and built a big bon-fire. Then they went to the corner of the block and set an empty tenement house afire. But what else can be expected of boys whose fathers take them to stores and teach them to steal; whose parents are drunk most of the time; whose playground is this great vice-center! Many such a boy has been reached for the Lord at the children's meetings. How I Praise the Lord for these opportunities.

It is a source of constant wonder to me, how God from day to day, in entirely unforeseen ways, by speaking to His children here and there, keeps this work moving forward in the sin-cursed Red Hook. For your faithfulness in His Service, shown by your prayerful interest and gifts, I praise Him continually. May He grant you all a most joyful Christmas season and a New Year full of His most abundant Blessings.

Yours in His Glad Service,

Elizabeth Foth.

Note: Sister Foth is one of us. She was formerly a worker in our Altoona, Pa., mission, and is now doing rescue work in Brooklyn, New York. Any gifts sent her will be used to do "Jesus-work."—The above circular letter was written Christmas time.—Editor.

JAPAN POINTS WITH PRIDE

Official sources in Japan announce that "in the first year of the war etc., it was believed at the start that war the would be a thirty-day picnic." The resistance of China has amazed the world. Had the "neutral nations," including the United States, declined to supply Japan with raw materials, cotton and scrap iron for munitions, oil for her tanks, bombs and planes for her pitiless air raids, mowing down the civil population, demolishing hospitals, violating cemeteries and burning non-fortified towns and cities, China, despite her lack of preparation and help from nations who "guaranteed" her territorial integrity, the United States among them, would have won the war by now.

As Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, the Christian Mother of bleeding China, is reported to have said, "China can defeat Japan alone, but China cannot defeat Japan and the United States at the same time." The President has refused, under the neutrality act, even to recognize that a state of war exists in China, or between Japan and China, despite the sinking of the Panay, the refusal to allow our ships to sail in neutral waters or on rivers in foreign controlled zones, to carry food supplies to our beleaguered sailors, or to trade in conquered areas, and the threat of Japan to regard the Pacific Ocean as Japanese waters.

Any statesman with one eye would recognize that it is only a question of time when Japan will order the United States to haul down her flag in the Phillipines, if not Hawaii and Guam, and the United States will take it laying down, unless and until Japan takes California. A "state of war" will then be recognized. By then China will be "pacified," and her manpower wearing Japanese uniforms, if not extinct.—Progress.

Young People of Western District Join in Mission Drive

Societies Select Projects in Cooperation with W. D. C. Mission Campaign

McPherson, Kans., Feb. 27, 1939.—The young people of the Western District Convention have pledged the raising of $1,500 toward Mennonite foreign and home mission work. The most urgent of the mission needs at the present time according to information from the home and foreign mission boards are funds for native helpers in China, money for mass evangelism in South India and for worker's salaries at home.

The likelihood that strife will continue for a long time in North China between the Japanese military and the Chinese people makes it all the more necessary that more of the work be taken care of by Chinese Christians.

To meet this need some C. E. groups of the district are selecting individual missionaries and specific projects to support. It is hoped that on the WORLD DAY OF PRAYER, which was Friday, Feb. 24th, all young Mennonites remembered these mission needs in fervent prayer.

Sponser Mission Contest

In order to stimulate interest in missions one expense-paid retreat will be given to the C. E. that sends in most funds through our secretary-treasurer, Hilda Wiebe, Hyannis, Neb. Fifty, thirty and twenty dollar societies will receive mention at the annual meeting of the C. E. Convention this summer. There are only two rules in the contest. First, any C. E. in the district is eligible to enter. Second, money is to be sent to Hilda Wiebe, Hyannis, Neb. before July 20, 1939. Any individual or C. E. sending in remittances may earmark them for the purpose that is desired.

Some comments on this method of stimulating interest in missions are:

"Your plan should work and be profitable for the Church, both at home and abroad." B. B.

"The idea of a mission contest is a good one. It appeals to youth." M. S.

"The idea of combining the retreat scholarship reward with the already existing oratory scholarships is going to create double interest. We must give recognition, not only to individuals who excel in giving inspirational presentations, but also to groups who do most by sacrificial giving the message to others." W. D.

"It sounds very reasonable to me." H. S.

"It's a good idea and an excellent means of creating interest." H. W.

Finding Life

Jesus said, He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.

Too many people labor under the delusion that "finding one's life" is equivalent to the accumulation of money, houses, cars, expensive clothes, honor, and to the selfish enjoyment of such wholesome things as music, art, travel, friendship, and even religion. They are like unto a hungry pond that opens wide its mouth to fresh, pure, life-giving water and then keeps it standing stagnant, unused, and dead. They are always getting, never giving. They are all inlet. An inlet and no outlet makes for staleness, ineffectiveness, and death.

Permit that water to flow through an outlet and new life appears. Trees, grass, and flowers spring up because of it. It has become life-giving just because it has been kept flowing. We are all recipients of countless blessings from God. Dam them up and you die. Keep them flowing on to others and you live.

Mission work presents an opportunity to keep blessings flowing from the green pastures of Christianity to the barren sand of heathendom. We cannot all be missionaries, but we can all support mission work by prayer, interest, and money.

Two reasons for carrying on mission work are: (1) to help other souls to find life eternal, (2) to help one's own soul to find the life abundant.—R. W.

Rural America--A New Frontier

Prov. 24:27-32

Young People's Topic for March 12, 1939

Meditations:

M. Mar. 6. Messiah's earthly blessing. Ps. 72:1-8
T. Mar. 7. Sharing with God. Prov. 3:9, 10
W. Mar. 8. A lesson from lilies and birds. Matt. 6:25-34
T. Mar. 9. Fate of a rich farmer. Luke 12:16-21
F. Mar. 10. Parable of the sower. Matt. 13:1-9
S. Mar. 11. Spiritual sowing and reaping. Gal. 6:7, 8

Suggested Hymns:

"Praise Him! Praise Him!" "Where He Leads Me"

Points for Prayer:

1. Thank God for the inspiring beauty of the country; for the refreshment of body, mind and soul which the country affords.
2. Thank God for those sturdy Christians who have kept the rural spirit near to the gospel of Christ.
3. Ask God to help Christian young people to be examples of Christian living.
4. Ask God to keep the church strong and mighty in the lives of rural people.

Questions for discussion:

1. In what ways have rural people served the best interests of the nation?
2. Has economic and social life changed in the country? How? What has been the result?
3. Do we have any rural slums? How can they be cleared away?
4. How have country people always regarded religion?
5. What opportunities for Christian work are there in rural communities?

Lesson Discussion:

The lesson today is necessarily quite similar to that of last week, although the scene has changed. We Mennonites are largely a rural people. Is there any pioneering for us to do in the rural sections of our country?

Many of our national leaders were raised in the country. They inherited a certain solidity of character as a part of the country tradition. They owe much of their success to the stabilizing influence of the little one room country church. For many years everyone felt that the church was in good hands in the country; that the country would always remain true to the highest ideals and traditions. But rural America has entered a new era. Good roads, telephones, radios, magazines, and the movies have broken down the former isolation of the country people. They are now subject to practically the same temptations and difficulties that confront the city dweller.

Economic and social life in the country has changed. Farmers used to be self-sufficient, producing their food and clothing at home. Little cash was needed. Now the farmer raises certain crops for a cash income and buys practically everything he uses. This makes him dependent upon the town and gradually his life comes to center there. He begins to attend church in town. He more or less loses his contact with his neighbors. The independence of the farmer is rapidly reaching the vanishing point. This is a weakening factor.

There are slums in the country as well as in the city. These are found in those areas in the country which are in the worst economic condition. Conditions are particularly bad among the sharecroppers, migrant laborers, and even among the owners who live on land that just won't produce paying crops. Churches have long considered it important to assist struggling churches in the city slums. Just as important a missionary service could be rendered by helping churches in the rural slums.

Thousands of rural churches are facing the problem of survival. Easy access to city churches has accentuated this problem. The larger parish plan, which has taken hold in many rural regions, seems to be the answer to the problem. Under this plan, several rural churches unite to form a larger parish. A single staff of qualified workers maintain a program that covers the entire parish.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Jesus Doing Good

Intermediate C. E. Topic, March 19, 1939

For Daily Study

Mar. 13. Healing. Matt. 12: 15-21
Mar. 14. Care for bodily needs. Mark 8:1-9
Mar. 15. Thought for a neglected man. John 5:1-9
Mar. 16. Sympathy for a mourner. Luke 7:11-17
Mar. 17. Welcoming children. Mark. 10:13-16
Mar. 18. Praising a humble giver. Mark 12:41-44
Mar. 19. Topic—"He Went About Doing Good." Acts 10:34-38; Mark 3:1-5, 7-12; 7:37

Topics on Jesus

This is the first of a series of four topics on Jesus. The Supreme Courage of Jesus, The Complete Loyalty of Jesus, and Christ Liveth Forevermore, follow this one on the next three Sundays. A set of lovely pictures can be had for 50c from Charles Scribners, Fifth Avenue, New York, called "Christ in Modern Art." Each picture is accompanied by its story and the life of the artist. This will make a valuable contribution to your study.

Suggested Songs

"Tell Me the Story of Jesus," "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life," "Work for the Night Is Coming"

For Your Worship Service

Song: "More About Jesus"
Scripture reading: Acts 10:34-38; Mark 3:1-5, 7-12; 7:37
Leader talk: Known By What We Do
Poem: "He Walked the Highways"
Sentence prayers, closing with "Let the Beauty of Jesus"
Special music: "The Stranger of Galilee"
Topic discussion
Closing consecration song: "Something for Jesus"
Benediction.

For the Leader

People know what we are by what we do. In Prov. 20:11 we read, "Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right." Sometimes people think they can hide their real selves by talking. Someone has said, "What you do speaks so loud I cannot hear what you say." What Jesus did agreed with what he said, and that is why his words had such great power.

Jesus was known as one who "went about doing good." What kind of heart does such a reputation reveal? What motive was back of His acts of mercy?

Poem:

He Walked the Highways

He walked the highways—up small streets and down,
Or on the shore-roads by the glittering sea,
But whether in the country or the town
They sought him ceaselessly.
Men closed their shops—they left their plows to seek
The many roads he took beneath the sun;
The women, eager to see him— hear him speak—
Left their task undone,
Their little children stumbling at their side,
That all might see this Healer, Teacher, Guide.

That all might see him! Oh, I wish today
That he were here along some city street
Or country lane, and we could find the way
On eager stumbling feet:
Our men to leave their shops and plows to go—
Our women every household task to find
The One who had compassion long ago
Upon the deaf and blind.
We are so deaf and blind—Dear God I pray
That somewhere we shall find him on the way.

Jesus Doing Good

1. Healing the sick. Matt. 8:14-17. When we speak of Jesus doing good we think more often of his works of healing than anything else. Why did he heal the sick? What did he ask in return? How many kinds of bodily sickness did he heal?
2. Befriending sinners. John 4:27-30. Why is it difficult to be friendly to someone who is known to have gone wrong? How did Jesus suffer for it?
3. Teaching others. Matt. 5:1, 2. Why was it necessary for Jesus to teach? How did it help others? How did his "doing good" strengthen his teaching?
4. Welcoming children. Mark 10:13-16. Jesus' attitude toward children has made a difference for children wherever He is known. What does it show of Jesus' character?
5. Praising a humble giver. Mark 12:41-44. Why had other people not taken notice of this gift which Jesus said was greater than all others? By what do we judge the value of a gift?
6. Sympathy for the mourner. Luke 7:11-17. What does it mean to sympathize with others? How can we best express it?
7. Humble service to others. John 19:25-27. What did Jesus teach about true greatness? Do we use his standard today?
8. Thoughtfulness of others. John 19:25-27. What was remarkable about Jesus' thinking of others on the cross? Why is it difficult to think of others first? How does it help us?
9. How can you follow Jesus' example today? Make this a practical talk or discussion thinking of the different situations in which high school students find themselves.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program Suggestion for March 19

Theme Verse: "As the clay in the potter's hand." Jer. 18:6.

I. Opening Service:

1. Prelude—Instrumental music

2. Sing several songs that tell of our Savior's love, concluding with the song of the month: "Jesus Loves Even Me."

II. Worship Service:

1. Song of Praise: "We Praise Thee, O God, Our Redeemer, Creator. v. 1, 3.

2. Two Juniors, a boy and a girl read the following verses, or better still have them memorized and recite them.

Reader One: Ps. 100:3, "Know ye that the Lord, he is God, it is he that hath made us and not we ourselves. We are his people and the sheep of his pasture."

Reader Two: Psa. 139:14, "I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvelous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well."

Reader One: Ps. 119:73, "Thy hands have made me and fashioned me; give me understanding that I may learn thy commandments."

Reader Two: Isa. 46:8, "But now, O Lord, thou art our father; we are the clay and thou art our potter; and we all are the work of thy hand."

Reader One: Rom. 9:21, "Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor, and another unto dihonor?"

Reader Two: Jer. 18:6, "Behold, as the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in mine hand,"—saith the Lord.

Reader One: Eph. 2:10, "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them."

Reader Two: Acts 9:15, "But the Lord said, he is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles and kings, and the children of Israel."

3. Sing in unison, "Take My Life and Let It Be"—v. 1, 5, 6. M. H. B.

4. Leader's prayer of thanksgiving and consecration.

III. Mission Minutes: Continue work on the poster.

Make a short study of our mission work among the American Indians. Refer to Year Book of 1939 for information, as well as the "Mission News and Notes."

IV. Study Period. Aim: That the Juniors might fully yield themselves to their Lord and Master, Jesus Christ.

If possible the leader should have a useful bowl (bottery), a beautiful vase, or some other good pottery, and some clay that in the "Heart Talk" the formless, useless, unlovely clay can be contrasted with the useful bowl or the beautiful vase.

1. Introduction of the evening study with a talk given by a Junior who has visited a pottery, telling of the potter, the clay, the potter's wheel, for among all the human crafts there is none more wonderful than that of the potter.

2. A junior reads: Jeremiah 18:1-6.

3. Leader's heart-talk:—This bit of clay, shapeless, and ugly but plastic and yieldnig, does not look much like this beautiful vase or this useful bowl. Yet, could the finest bit of pottery speak it might truly say, "I was once but a piece of clay, but the skilful potter lifted me up. He fashioned me into what I now am. He planned that the clay should be moulded into this vessel. I can not boast, for I am nothing which I have not received. 'Tis he who has made me. He took the clay, he tempered, he moulded, and fired it and then put his mark upon it."

So God has a plan for our lives that we might be useful and beautiful for His glory. The great potter is God in Christ. We are the clay. "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus." And we are made for use. They are "vessels unto honor, sanctified, meet for the Master's use."

The clay needs the potter's hand, for unless the potter moulds it, it will always be a shapeless, useless mass of clay, just clay. But, if it yields to the potter, it can be moulded into beautiful vessels to the praise of the Maker's name, for it bears his mark.

The Lord has a plan—We are in His hand as the clay in the potters. Shall we willingly yield to the kind, wise hand of the great "Potter" and give in to the slightest, tenderest touch of His fingers that he might make of us, what is pleasing to Him, that we might bear this mark to His praise? Shall we think, just now each of us, "I want to yield to God.—I must be plastic in His hand, that He can make of me—what He wills."

God will never be through with your life until one glad day it shall have been shaped into the likeness of His own glorious image.

Song—Solo, with violin obligato. "Have Thine Own Way, Lord."

5. Poem, by a Junior girl—

"Thou art the Potter, we are the clay,
Morning and evening, day after day.
Thou twinest Thy wheel and our substance is wrought,
Into form at Thy will, into shape at Thy thought.
What matter to us, that the sensitive clay
Be beaten and moulded from day unto day
To answer not, question not, just to be still,
And know Thou art shaping us, into Thy will.
Thus, thus may we plead with our workman divine,
Press down on our substance some symbol of Thine.
Thy name and Thine image and let it be known
That thou dost acknowledge the work as Thine own."

6. Let three Juniors discuss the following:
   a. Useful for His Service.—John 15:5
   b. Beautiful for His Glory.—Rom. 12:1, 2.
   c. Bearing His Mark.—John 13:35.

7. Leader's closing prayer:

"I am yielded to Thee, O Christ.
Into Thy hands I give myself
That you may complete the work in my soul.
That I may be made, O gracious Lord
I, the clay,—a vessel to Thy honor and glory."

8. Closing Song. "I am Thine, O Lord." Verses 1, 2, 3.

—Sunday School Teachers' Courses at Yarrow, B. C. —Under the leadership of Rev. N. W. Bahnmann, Sardis, B. C., a series of Sunday School teachers courses is being given at Yarrow, beginning Feb. 25. They include studies of the child, methods, model and object lessons, Bible lessons, and other valuable features. We are glad that the brethren in Canada are doing this work. In the Western District in U. S. such courses unfortunately seem to have fallen into discard.

Report of the Annual Meeting of the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital Society, held at First Menn. Church, Newton, Kans.

The session was opened with a portion of Scripture reading from John 9 and prayer by Missionary G. A. Linscheid.

Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge gave the opening address, based on Luke 9:1-3. The speaker emphasized that Christ's words, "Heal the sick" also applies to us today. The Lord himself gives us the strength as well as the equipment. He works miracles today in answer to the prayer and the faith of his children. It is the power working through the skill of physicians and nurses and the healing qualities given to herbs and minerals. To heal the sick also requires sacrifice. "Freely ye have received, freely give." This spirit has been revealed in the building of our Hospital and Home for the Aged and the support of these institutions. In closing Bro. Wedel mentioned the need of care for those mentally sick as these different phases of work are included in Christ's commission to his disciples in preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

After several numbers by a male quartette of the Tabor Church, the President, Rev. J. E. Entz declared the meeting opened and ready for the business of the day. The minutes of the last Annual meeting were read and approved. The reports which followed showed a great deal of activity in our institutions, especially the Hospital.

Two members of the Society have passed on to their heavenly reward, while 28 new members have joined making a total membership of 327 representing 2067 votes.

In a marvelous way, the Lord has supplied the means as well as the workers to carry on his work. The introduction of the Bethel Clinic necessitated more room in connection with the main hospital building. For this purpose a friend had, some years ago, donated a large sum as a trust fund. The expansion of the work also called for room for student nurses. Donations of friends in our surrounding churches and gifts of others made possible the building of the two upper stories of the Student nurse's home, the basement of which, had been built over a decade ago.

One of the physicians, Dr. A. J. Wedel of Hesston, who has been on the staff for a number of years and whose services have been greatly appreciated, passed away on Christmas Day.

Brother H. J. Andres, who was called by the Board as Hospital administrator, assumed his duties Sept. 1 of last year. The sisterhood is composed of 32 sisters, two of which have retired from active service. 21 students are in training.

The Hospital cared for 1304 patients during the past year. The Home for the Aged had 51 residents for a longer or shorter period. Services here were held by the members of the Ministerial Alliance of the city of Newton.

Rev. H. Thiessen closed the morning session with prayer.

After the noon meal, which was served by the Women's Auxilliaries, in the basement of the Church, a short dedicatory service was held at the Student nurse's Home, at which Rev. A. J. Dyck, a member of the Board, gave the sermon, based on Isa. 61:4 and Rev. J. E. Entz offered the dedicatory prayer. The student nurses sang several appropriate numbers for the occasion.

Returning to the church, Rev. C. C. Wedel opened the afternoon session with reading of Psa. 100 and prayer.—The reports of the Board of Directors, the Administrator, the Home for the Aged, as well as that of the treasurers were discussed and adopted.

Now the Bethel College Quartette rendered several numbers, after which the Woman's Auxiliaries reported on their work for the Bethel institutions. The Senior Auxiliary reported a membership of 90, and the Junior, 47. After the customary report of the Resolutions Committee, the meeting adjourned, Rev. D. D. Unruh offering the closing prayer.

The following members of the Board were re-elected: A. J. Dyck, John Harder, J. E. Regier. The Board organized as follows: Pres. J. E. Entz; Vice-Pres. H. E. Suderman; Sec. H. J. Dyck; Treas. F. N. Funk.

—Dr. Rodolphe Petter, Nestor among Our Missionaries, a Linguist of Note.—Of the thousand languages and dialects into which the Scriptures have now been translated, according to the new "Book of a Thousand Tongues" published recently by the American Bible Society of New York City, Missionary Petter of Lame Deer can read fifty understandingly . . . It is also reported that the Cheyenne Indians show pardonable pride in seeing their own fine language in print in this new book, which will have a world-wide circulation. It gives John 3:9-19 in Cheyenne . . . Alas, there are comparatively few Indian tribes who have translated the Scriptures into their native tongue.

—First Church, Bluffton, O.—Organizations are being formed in the churches supporting the college, of those members interested in the educational phase of church activity. These are to be called Bluffton Associates or Co-workers. Their aim is to stimulate church people to remember Bluffton College in their prayers, to keep the members of the church informed of college affairs, to influence desirable young people to choose Bluffton as their college, and to provide a channel for financial support.—Bulletin, First Menn. Church.

— Hon. John J. Gering of Marion, So. Dak., writes from Pierre, the State Capitol: "Two years ago I served in the House of Representatives, but last November my county elected me to the State Senate. Mrs. Gering and our younger son are with me. We do light housekeeping and enjoy it a lot. Our older boy is a sophomore at the State University. The work here is heavy. Each senator has to serve on a lot of committees. But it is very educational and one gets to know some very fine people from all parts of the State. Weather is changeable as always in S. Dak. Yesterday the temperature went to nearly 50; today it is near zero. Our session closes March 3.

— Annual Pre-Easter Services at Grace Church, Pandora, O., will be held March 19-26 next, with Dr. Harold N. Geistweit, Minister at Ninth Street Baptist Church, Cincinnati, as speaker. The general theme is: "The Master." The themes for Monday to Friday are: His Radiant Ministry, His Method, How He Worked, How He lived, His Secret Victory. On Sunday, March 19, Rev. J. E. Amstutz will preach and on the following Sunday, Rev. W. S. Shelly.

— Emil Preheim, Freeman, South Dakota. — We enjoy reading the Mennonite very much . . . The topics are well chosen and ably presented. Sunday School Lessons are a great help. In short it is a well balanced paper that every Mennonite should get into their homes.

— Kansas Congressmen against Armaments. — Out of a total of fifteen votes cast against the first huge armament bill introduced in this Congress, five were cast by Kansas Congressmen. Only one Kansan, Mr. Guyer, voted for the bill. Here is a chance for peace-loving Mennonites to encourage worthy voting and reprove the vote for war. Write to your Congressman, better still to a number, telling them your sentiments on the matter. To insure a personal reply it is well to ask them a few specific questions, such as, since the armament program of 1915-16 led to war for the United States, what guarantee does the President offer that his program will not do the same today? Address your Congressman at the House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

— From the Annual Report of the Germantown Menn. Church, kindly sent us by its pastor, Rev. Howard T. Landes, we glean the following: Their number is still thirty-one, there was no gain nor loss in membership. The tenth anniversary of service of the pastor was observed Sept. 11, 1938. The pastor preached 47 sermons in the church and others outside. He urged that efforts be made to secure ten new members. The church raised $970.25 for all purposes and the Ladies' Aid Society $95,50, which is a very good showing for so small a group. The pastor is grateful for the fine support the members gave him.

— The Evangelistic Band of the Ebenezer, Ohio Church has invited the St. John Young People's Bible Class to be their guests at the Tuesday evening service.

— Dr. Herman Menge, translater of the greatly beloved and widely known "Menge Bibel" (German), passed away Jan. 8 in his 98th year. He had been a teacher in higher institutions of learning until he was in his sixties, when he retired to devote the rest of his life to research work pertaining to the Bible and its translation, which for freshness, originality, and clearness, probably has no equal.

Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak. — We rejoiced to see Mrs. S. P. Preheim and her husband come to church last Sunday after she had been so ill for several weeks. . . We trust that her strength will soon return so that she may serve Christ and His church with gladness as before.

— The Board of Foreign Missions was in session in Newton, Kansas, the past week, Feb. 21-23 inclusive. All members were present. As they will no doubt have a report for our papers soon, we shall not say more now than that Missionary August Ewert, who graduates from Bethel College in June, and family, are to return to their posts in China this summer. Rev. S. T., Mrs. Moyer and son Ted will return to India in June. Rev. John Thiessen and family are expected to be home on furlough this coming spring. Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Wiens, who are as yet unable to return to the India field because of Mrs. Wiens' health, will probably remain here another year.

— First Church, Philadelphia, Pa. — "Next Sunday, Feb. 26, is GO-TO-CHURCH-SUNDAY. — Everybody! Go to church! The churches of Philadelphia unite in observing the first Sunday of Lent as Go-to-Church-Sunday. In this year of 1939, when free worship, free religion and free churches are everywhere imperilled, and when there is a distinct move in certain quarters to imperil the separateness of State and Church, we as Protestants have an unusual responsibility." Bro. Walter Temple, field secretary of the Eastern District brought the morning message Sunday, Feb. 12.

— Bluffton College, from the Witmarsum. — In an address recently given before the Lima Kiwanis Club, Prof. R. A. Lantz said some very interesting things about music. "Jazz is sterile and nothing of value will ever come from it. I like to listen to jazz occasionally, just as I like to drink tea or some other beverage. But it's no good as a steady diet. There are between 600-800 Americans now writing music, but who will publish it? American music has been growing steadily since Colonial days, but it was not until after the World war, when it became difficult to study in Europe that we commenced to develop a type of our own . . . Our composers have often forgotten to strive for the composition of good music first and have put nationalism above quality. Who knows what will become of the American music of the future? Surely it will not be derived from Indian songs, hilly-billy airs or Negro spirituals. Nor will it come from jazz."

Repentance

Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."—Luke 13:3

Rev. Mr. Norton, in his missionary travel through the western part of New York, came to a village where there was a society of Univeralists, whose preacher was a man of great zeal. He tried various experiments to draw Mr. Norton into debate, but the latter avoided him. One day, however, they met by accident, and were introduced to each other. The Universalist would not let the opportunity slip. "Well, Mr. Norton," said he, "I am one of those who hold that all will be saved." "I am aware of it," said Mr. Norton. "And I think I can convince you that that the doctrine is true," said the Universalist. "I will hear you, sir," said Mr. Norton. The other then entered upon the usual arguments in support of such views, receiving an attentive hearing on the part of Mr. Norton, until he had said all he wished to say. "I have but one answer to make to all that," said Mr. Norton, looking him steadily in the face. "Well, sir, what is it?" said the Universalist. "Except you repent, you will perish." The reply sorely nonplussed the other. He complained that Mr. Norton had not met the case; but being assured by the latter that he had nothing else to say, he rallied, and put forth some other argument, being determined to draw him out if possible. Mr. Norton heard him quietly till he was through, and again said, "I have but one reply to make to all that." The other paused to hear what it would be, when Mr. Norton solemnly repeated the awful words, Except you repent, you will perish." "Why," said the wounded man, for the sword of the Spirit had pierced him deeply, "You will not argue at all." "I have nothing more to say," quietly observed Mr. Norton. After a short pause, the Universalist turned to leave the room. "Stop, my friend," said Mr. Norton, "I wish to say to you that there is one thing that you will not be able to forget." "What is it, sir?" he asked. "Except you repent, you will lose your soul." A bitter smile of incredulity was the only reply to this last remark. Mr. Norton saw nothing more of him that day. On the following day the Universalist called on Mr. Norton, and expressed a desire to have more conversation. "No," said the latter, "I do not wish any more conversation with you." "Oh, sir," said the other, "I have not come to argue with you. You were right yesterday, when you told me there was one thing I would not be able to forget. I feel that it is true, that except I repent I must perish; and I have come to ask you what I must do to be saved." "My dear friend," said Mr. Norton, "if that be the way, I shall be happy to talk with you as long as you please." And they did talk together, and the result was that the Universalist became a happy believer, and a preacher of the truth which he had previously labored to subvert and destroy.

THERE MUST BE AN OUTLET.—One of the fundamentals of good teaching is that "There is no impression without expression." While this is putting it a bit too strong, in the main, the adage is true. We can never be sure that a learner has grasped a certain lesson until he can give the substance of it in his own words, provided he has the vocabulary to do so. This maxim is found corroberated in many ways in nature and in life. An electrician who was replacing the carbon in the arc light, was asked by an observing boy, "What do you wear those rubber boots for? It doesn't look like rain." The workman replying good-naturedly said, "No, sonny, I wear them so as to be safe from electric shocks when I handle these lamps. Electricity can't go through rubber very well, and one of the funny things about electricity is that it can't get into a person unless it can get out again." So it is with other natural and also spiritual forces, they must have an outlet to function normally. The fresh, sparkling water of the Jordan river becomes stagnant and salty in the Dead Sea, because it has no outlet. Love, to function normally, must have an outlet, must find expression in one way or another. Money, riches kept in circulation can do great good, when hoarded they may, and often do, great harm. Truth kept under cover does no good, revealed it enlightens the world. Sound, new ideas, when hidden in a man's cranium, are of no avail, but properly applied they may revolutionize man's living conditions. In this connection we need only think of an Edison, a Roentgen, a Ford. The Word of God is a veritable wonder worker, when spread and planted in the hearts and minds of men; when kept chained up in cloister libraries, its disuse resulted in the dark ages. Christ has bidden his followers to take and preach his Word to all the world. Are we doing all we can to give it that outlet?

THE FELLOWSHIP of troubled souls is a large one. Sometimes we imagine that our trials are unique. We feel that other people's sorrows are not like our own. Our disappointments, our losses, our misfortunes seem to be different and heavier than theirs. Countless men and women in all ages and in all places have faced sickness and death and loss and misfortune just as we do. Other hearts have bled, others minds have been tormented, and others' plans have been completely frustrated. If the way of life seems to be going uphill all the while, if the morrow is hid in darkness and no ray of light shines through, take courage and comfort in the thought that others are going the same road. Jesus Himself suffered. He was tempted in all points like as we are. He knows every step of the way we take and offers His hand to help us over the rough places.—"Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal."—Lester Hostetler.

PALESTINE, HOLY LAND, CANAAN—No country in the world has been mentioned more often, by mouth or in print, than the one mentioned above. It is a tiny land, about the size of New Jersey, 15 miles long and 30 to 60 miles wide. It has four narrow strips running from north to south, the coastal plain, the hilly interior, the Jordan valley and the trans-Jordan uplands, fading into the desert. The Jordan valley is one of the wonders of the world. Rising on Mt. Lebanon and gathering in two small lakes, it passes through the Sea of Galilee, around whose shores Jesus performed most of his ministry. Then running rapidly south for 65 miles, this "descender" (meaning of Jordan) empties into the Dead Sea, 1300 feet below sea level. Jerusalem, a few miles west of the Jordan, stands on a small plateau of nearly a half mile elevation. Most of the 450,000 Jews in the land are settled on the coastal plain. Their new city Tel Aviv has a population of 100,000. $200,000,000 of American money has been invested in the development of this strip. The river is made to furnish electric power, the land is used for agriculture and horticulture and its productivity is enhanced by irrigation. Many parts look like a veritable garden. The Arabs, numbering a million, occupy the rest of the land. After the World War, Great Britain was given a mandate over Palestine, and Lord Balfour declared the land would be considered and reserved as the home of the Jews. There has been much friction, fighting and some bloodshed between the two races, and all Britain's efforts toward unification have failed so far. Now the latest report is that the British plan to end the mandate and replace it with a predominently Arab state. This the Jews will not accept and call the deal "Balfour Betrayal." A conference held in London to take care of the matter is dead-locked. The Jews decline to be relegatd to a minority status. They hold this will greatly curtail, if not stop Jewish immigration to the Holy Land, to which they hoped large numbers of the fugitives from Germany could and would go. Christians will do well to pray that God may so direct affairs that the Jews may be dealt with justly.

I KNOW.—The world is full of uncertainty, also of theories and speculation of how to reestablish stability. Theories of remedies are plentiful in the field of economics, politics, education and social life. One after another of proposed remedies is tried, only to be discarded for a supposedly better one. Observe our law-making bodies to see how true this is. How fortunate that it is different in the realm of spiritual life. A fine lady soloist electrified large audiences with her artistic and interpretative singing. One of her favorite selections was Fanny Crosby's poem, "Open the Gates of the Temple," with Mrs. Joseph F. Knapp's music. When the soloist came to the part, "I know . . . . that my Redeemer liveth," many of the audience felt that there was something lacking—force, conviction. In due time the lady experienced a change of heart. Then I know rang out into the air with such an exuberance of joy and conviction that her audiences felt like cheering. Yes, happy the person who can say with Paul, "For I know whom I have believed."—II Tim. 1:12.—In a world of unrest and instability it is the Christian's high privilege to dwell in an atmosphere of certainty. There are no "think so's," "hope so's," "if so,s." As we enter and move in the spiritual realm, we dismiss the spirit of indecision. We come to say, "I know." The stand and the language of the Christian is the language of certainty. He knows whereof he speaks. He knows he is saved. He knows that his Savior will do all things well. He knows that He shall appear and his children shall be like Him. He knows that the love of God to fallen, erring man is unbounded.

WHEN CHRISTIAN SERVICE INTERFERES.—Working for God is often much easier than doing God's will. Most of us would rather keep busy in Christian service than wait on the Lord. But really fruitful Christian service, really effective work for the Lord, demands abiding in Christ, and we can abide in him only as we "take time to be holy." A writer is quoted in the Keswick Calendar: "Beware of any work for God which enables you to evade concentration on Him. A great many Christian workers worship their work. The one concern of a worker should be concentration on God . . . . A worker without this solemn dominant note of concentration on God is apt to get spent out and crushed." In the Christian life, as in so much else, we can often "do more by doing less." "Looking away unto Jesus" is the secret of fruitfulness both in life and in service.—The Sunday School Times.

Publication

THE INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

This new publication, prepared by a competent editorial staff, appointed by the Conference Board of Education and published by the Board of Publication, will be ready for distribution before this article reaches our readers.

A sufficient number of copies is being sent to each church, resp. Sunday School, so that the pastors, members of Sunday School boards and interested teachers may examine them carefully. Inasmuch as the editors have done their very best, it is hoped that their work may be judged sympathetically, and that many Sunday Schools will decide to give the book a trial, which is after all the best test of the usefulness of a textbook.

Of course the book is not perfect. Christ alone did his work perfectly. So we hope to have criticisms as to where, how and in what respects improvement may be made. These criticisms should be sent to the editor-in-chief, Rev. Abraham Warkentin, North Newton, Kansas.

All orders for the book—and may we hope that there will be many—should be sent to:

THE REVISION OF THE MENNONITE HYMN BOOK

The Revision Committee, the brethren W. H. Hohmann, Lester Hostetler and C. E. Krehbiel—Bro. Russell Lantz's impaired health kept him at home in Bluffton—again had a two-weeks strenuous session on the Bethel campus. They worked hard each day and into the night, around tables piled with hymn books, and anybody who saw them at their task certainly got the impression that they are religiously devoted to their task. They have now made their selection of hymns as far as the committee can go. What still needs to be done in that line, some needed changes, substitutions or additions, can be done by correspondence. Further steps, such as getting permission to use copyrighted hymns, preparing the dummy, getting the plates, etc. are to follow as promptly as possible.

We are convinced that the brethren, with the help of God and the leading of the spirit, are going to give our Conference a hymn book that should answer all purposes of divine worship in church, Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, and the home.

Since Rev. Hostetler has consented to write a series of articles on the work of the committee, its aims, ideals and aspirations, we leave the readers in suspense until they hear from him.

ABOUT EDITORS ONCE MORE

Since regrettable errors have occured in the printed list of the editors of our publications in the following two groups, we give them once more, correctly:

Christian Sunday School Quarterly—Editorial Staff: Dr. A. Warkentin, North Newton, Kansas; Dr. S. K. Mosiman, Bluffton, Ohio; Prof. A. E. Kreider, North Newton, Kansas; Dr. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, South Dakota; Rev. Lester Hostetler, Upland, Calif.

Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly—Editorial Staff: D. A. Warkentin, North Newton, Kansas, editor-in-chief; Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, Reedley, Calif., Dr. P. E. Schellenberg, 1002 E. Broadway, Newton, Kansas; Miss Inga Sprunger, Berne, Indiana, the fifth member not yet definitely appointed.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

HOTEVILLA, ARIZONA

We are all well and happy in the Lord, and thankful that we can be out on His harvest field. Although we may not do outstanding demonstrations of what we can do before men, we are daily praying that the Lord may make us humble in His work, quietly going about as the Spirit of God works in the hearts of our people, and trying to keep the little foxes from fruits. It is the little foxes that spoil the tender vines from producing a bountiful crop of grapes.

Our people are all very busy in their mid-year ceremonial dances, and the women are spending their days in weaving baskets that are to be given to their "god-children," the children who have been initiated in the different "clan" ceremonies. The women who are in these various clans are called "mothers" and at a certain time the gifts are all given out to those who have been initiated. Some have expressed it as having their "Christmas" and the real parents give their own sons and daughters up into one of these clans for it is a law and no one can be excused from being initiated. The men are busy making hand carved wooden dolls called "ka-chi-nas" which are all painted with gay colors, while the boys are playing one of their games, and the smaller girls are grinding corn—this is the reason of poor attendance this last month. But still last Sunday for Sunday School at Hotevilla we had 41 children. It is a joy to see the children so faithful at Hotevilla, pray for them that Satan will not hinder the Lord's work.—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schirmer.

Dear Home Folks:

Herewith we would like to announce that the huge ocean liner Mariposa with many passengers, among whom we also must be numbered, anchored at 8 a. m. on Feb. 20, in the San Pedro Harbor. We could disembark after a considerably comfortable long voyage. The light vessel of 8,000 tons, Gorgon, from Java to Australia, rocked almost like a nutshell on the mighty waves. The first morning not a single passenger ventured to sit down at the table, all preferred to resign to the cabin, not only that, but to remain quiet in the berth. Even the captain was bothered with seasickness about which all were surprised, thinking him almost immune. When expressing amazement over the unruly briny deep, a number called our attention that the voyage around the southern border of Australia would undoubtedly have something worse in store. This prophecy proved untrue, all was so quiet and the huge ocean palace Oronsay smoothly sailed along disappointing the fishes underneath. The rest of the voyage could be spent more or less over a calm deep, even the Pacific, which frequently causes upset stomachs, behaved quite gently.

We had never anticipated such a reception at the harbour as became our lot to experience. A goodly number of the Immanuel church of Los Angeles anxiously awaited our arrival at the wharf. As soon as possible the handshakes could take place. We thought that many packages were to be found in our baggage, but before really becoming aware what transpired every bit was gone, there were more willing hands than could be occupied. Our hearts find nothing to duly express our appreciation for what all the dear friends had planned and minutely brought to a finish. May the Lord reward.

That our Master in these days does miracles is not to be doubted. If just a few months past someone would have tried to make us believe, to walk erect without the aid of some support would be our lot, unbelief would have been our reaction. All has been so visibly fulfilled unbelievably. To Him all praise. Our new address find above.

With hearty greetings and thanks to all who were burdened with prayer—P. W. and Mathilda Penner.

Notes About The Mission Project In Wichita

Through the initiative and efforts of Rev. and Mrs. Edw. D. Schmidt a mission field is being developed in the southwest section of the city of Wichita. And recently the Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church of which Rev. Schmidt is pastor, have agreed to assume a major share in mothering this mission project. Sunday School and church services are being held in a large garage. The Sunday School attendance varies from 55 to 80 and a good deal of interest is being manifested. Though the people that come are poor and needy, they voluntarily started to bring their gift-pennies, in appreciation of the help given them. On Saturdays Mrs. Phillips, instructor in home economics at Bethel College, and some of her girls have made visits to the home of destitute families, to learn the conditions in which they live and make helpful suggestions pointing to improved living. Then they cut material for comforters and dresses and show the women how to make them. These visits have had a very salutary effect on the people. On Saturday evening the college puts on programs of music and talks about healthful, clean living and social uplift, with the result that the people smell cleaner and look happier, and take a brighter outlook on life. In Sunday School, also, Bethel students considerably assist in the work. At first the people ran in and out during Sunday School and church services, because many of them never had been in church, but last Sunday no one left. They are cleaning up also.

A good many of our people visit the Sunday School and homes, and leave gifts with which to improve the physical and spiritual condition. A neat sum of money has been received from individuals mostly, and large quantities of clothing and some food. Recently the Alexanderwohl Church, or rather friends from that church have given the mission 87 Bibles. Among the visitors at the services have been the Reverends B. W. Harder, E. G. Kaufman, Sam J. Goering, A. P. Waltner, and Mr. Ellis Graber.—T.

A Question

Why have the Mennonites expanded so little in this country? Must a person be 'born a Mennonite' to be a good Mennoite? Have we emphasized Mennonite rather than Christian? Have we tried to build on our distinctive doctrines rather than on the great essentials and the fundamentals of the Christian faith? Is 'denominationalism' the answer? Or is the answer in the proper application of I Corinthians 3:4-6, 11, and Colossians 1:18?

If the name Mennonite is to have meaning in this generation of materialism, liberalism and unbelief we will have to match our distinctive teachings with a double emphasis of evangelical and Biblical loyalty, and with an evangelistic fervor that does not rest until we have given every sinner an opportunity to find forgiveness of sin and peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. II Cor. 5:19-21.—D. J. Unruh.

THE TRADE TREATIES.—Frequently have we mentioned Secretary Hull's trade agreements. And they deserve all the space we can give them. Isaiah postulated freedom of trade as fundamental to international friendships. Hitler claims that what the Germans desire most is equality of opportunity in reaching raw materials and bidding for the world markets. Commerce has power to knit land to land; silks and fruits and spices, clear of toll, as Tennyson pointed out a hundred years ago, enrich the traders of every nation; and ideas and understandings are exchanged along with good to the benefit of all mankind.—The Presbyterian.

History Views the Jewish Persecution

4. THE MOST COMMON ANTI-SEMITIC ARGUMENTS

Our discussion thus far has dealt with historical facts somewhat removed from the present scene. In this article we are to discuss some of the most common arguments used by anti-semitics. This article is likely, therefore, to be more controversial. These arguments will be weighed in the light of historical perspective, and if conclusions are contrary to ideas commonly accepted in some quarters we beg only Christian tolerance and an examination of the records of history.

Before discussing the arguments themselves it might be well to examine the fountain source of all anti-semitic tirades, "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion," which historians generally concede to be a forgery. What is the history of this influential work which has been responsible for the massacres of thousands, and which is still taken seriously in many circles?

The Protocols were first published as a supplementary chapter of a book written early in the twentieth century by a Russian monk, Serge Nilus. The book bore the title "The Great in the Little, or Antichrist an Imminent Possibility. The Confessions of an Orthodox Believer." Naturally, the last bulwarks against this Antichrist in the mind of the Russian priest were the Orthodox Greek Church and the absolute autocracy of the Tsar. The Protocols were supposed to contain the plans of the secret Jewish world-government for securing, with the aid of the Free-masons, complete hegemony over all the world. These Jews, said the priest, were introducing humane and liberal ideas into various countries in order to corrupt the youth and make Jewish conquest easier. Darwinism, Marxism, Nietzscheanism, economic crises, the French and other revolutions, and the World War itself were all parts of this insidious Jewish plot, according to the Protocols.

This plot was allegedly conceived in 929 B. C. by Solomon and other wise men of Zion, and the Protocols containing the plan were supposed to have been signed by Jewish representatives at the first Zionist Congress called at Basle, Switzerland, by Theodore Herzl (a Russian Jew) in 1897.

How did these Protocols come into Nilus' hands? He tells us conflicting stories and history is not quite certain whether they were written by Nilus himself or by members of the Russian secret police. History is more sure when it comes to the facts of the exposure of the Protocols as a clever forgery for Russian political purposes. Later they were adapted to the needs of the anti-semitics. In 1921, Philip Graves, Constantinople correspondent for The London Times, purchased a French novel from a former member of the Russian secret police. This novel was written by one Maurice Joly in 1868 and was entitled "A Dialogue in Hades with Machiavelli and Montesquieu. It was written in opposition to the Masons and the Bonapartists in France. Mr. Graves found, upon comparing it with the Protocols, that whole sentences, whole paragraphs and even whole pages were practically identical, except that the word "Jews" was substituted for "Masons" and "Bonapartists." The other source of materials used in the Protocols was a novel entitled "Biarritz" written by Hermann Goedsche under the pseudonym of Sir John Retcliffe. One chapter in this novel described the meeting, once in a century amid blue flames and the Devil, of the wise men of Zion in the famous old Jewish cemetery in Prague. All these facts were published in The Times, August 16, 17, 18, 1921, and they did much to undermine anti-semitism in England.

In America the Protocols were used by Henry Ford, who was persuaded that Wall Street opposition to him was a Jewish plot, as a basis for his book The International Jew, which was widely disseminated. His Dearborn Independent became the leading anti-semitic journal. When the Protocols were demonstrated to be a forgery Mr. Ford repudiated his charges against the Jews.

A few years ago the Protocols figured in a law suit in Switzerland between the Jewish congregations and the Swiss Nazi party, which had republished them as propaganda material. Anti-Bolshevist Russian exiles testified at the trial to the effect that the Protocols were the work of the Russian Ochrana. A politician named Vladimir Burzev declared that Nilus, whom he described as a fanatic and a forger, knew that the Protocols were spurious, but continues to use them. The Tsar, on the other hand, upon learning that they were a forgery, ordered their circulation prohibited, but they were secretly scattered about. This Swiss court (all Aryans) gave its judgment on May 19, 1935. The President of the court concluded with the words: "I am convinced that the Protocols are obscene literature and more than that, namely, ridiculous nonsense." With this court pronouncement historians are in agreement.

Now to a discussion of the anti-semitic arguments, first of all, the charge that the Jew is to blame for all of Germany's ills since the World War. Since the most vicious anti-semitic attacks come from the Nazi-controlled press, the historian is interested in examining the methods and ideals of Nazi propaganda. The textbook for these ideas is Hitler's Mein Kampf. In one chapter of that book he tells us that propaganda should be addressed only to the masses; that the greater the number of people it reaches, the lower should be its intellectual level; that one should never say anything good about the opponent; and that all propaganda should tend to produce a burning hatred of some object or people—in his case the "Jew," who furnished the most convenient and cheapest scapegoat for all of Germany's ills. For Hitler, who became anti-semitic in Vienna, the Jew is an inferior alien race, the controller of the socialist press, the propagator of Marxism, and a specialist in dissemination of obscene literature. The World War, says Hitler, found Jews profiteering, evading military service and worming their way into high government positions. Utter chaos was averted, continues Hitler, by the Nazi revolution which ended the "Jew Republic."

Let us now examine the extent of Jewish influence under the Weimar Republic. We have already mnioned that the author of the Weimar constitution was a liberal Jew named Hugo Preuss. Walter Rathenau, a power in the business world, was also Jewish, but aside from these two and six others of part Jewish blood, all the rest of the 250 cabinet ministers serving in the twenty cabinets from 1919 to 1933 were Aryan. Out of about 500 higher government officials in the Reich less than a score were Jewish, according to any figures but those of the Nazis.

Similar trends can be shown in business where the Jew did exert a great influence. Aryan metal firms increased 6.5% between 1913 and 1930 while Jewish firms decreased 13.3%. Between April 1, 1928 and April 1, 1930, non-Jewish private banks decreased by 8.6%, Jewish banks by 19.7%; the number of Jewish employees rose, while independent Jewish undertakings decreased. Thus, although the Jews were influential, their influence was by no means constantly increasing as the Nazis contend.

The story is much the same in Jewish attendance at universities where, in 1911, they made up 8% of the students, 5.08% in 1930, and 4.71% in 1932-3. Jews were also prominent in the cinema and in music and art, but their number decreased under the Weimar Republic. And how about the press? According to the Handbuch der Deutschen Tagepresse, in 1932 only about ten out of eighty-five of the most important newspapers were edited by Jews, and out of 4,703 political papers only 8.3% could be considered organs of the Left. In 1917 the Leftist papers made up 19.6% of the total, again showing some decrease under the republic. The most powerful news agency was that of Hugenberg, a German Nationalist and an Aryan.

Everywhere the story is the same. History and statistics leave no doubt that the Jews were powerful; they were more influential in public life in proportion to their population than were the Aryans; but it is equally clear from a study of history that all statistics, except those of the Nazis indicate that the Jews did not outstrip the Aryans in any field.

PETER EXHORTS TO CHRISTIAN LIVING

I Peter 3:8-18

TOPIC: Incentives to Christian Living

Introduction

Peter was well qualified to write on practical Christian living by reason of his very close association with Jesus in his three years' ministry. This letter was written to Christians being persecuted to some degree because of their religion. Peter is encouraging them to endure all with courage and patience and follow Christ's example. In our lesson he mentions motives which should impel us to Christian living.

United in Thought vs 8, 9

Believers in Christ, Christians should be united —"all of one mind" (v8). They should agree in the fundamental matters of faith and religion, being united in harmony in Christ, the only foundation (I Cor. 3:11). This is very pertinent to the present day Christian living. There should be a bond of sympathetic feeling with others, a tender love, pity for the weaker ones, courtesy, calm and forgiving under abuse (v9)— an utter absence of revengeful deeds and words. Christians should seek peace, live peaceably for they are called of God unto such living and the blessing is promised to them. Christ-dominated Christians will so live.

Seeing "Good Days" vs 10-14 . .

He who would live so that he may truly enjoy a life really worth living, needs to follow Peter's practical sugestions (vs 10-12 see Ps. 34:12-16). He will need to control his tongue, keep it from evil speaking. He will have to govern his conduct, turning away from evil and pursue peaceful ways of living. Lasting peace can come only through peaceful people. The Christian must meet the moral conflict of life. The eyes of the Lord are watching His own and His ears hear their prayers. He also is against the evil-doers. The Christian is under the protecting hand of God. He needs to watch his daily relation with his fellow-men. Even though he may suffer persecution at the hands of wicked and unreasonable men, the Christian can be happy in heart, knowing that his righteous life is pleasing to God.

Enthrone God in the Heart vs 15-18

"Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts," enthrone Him in the heart, in our secret nature. This is the secret of Christian living. Then we can give a definite reason for the hope we cherish. The Christian believer can always have a good conscience, knowing that in God's sight, his manner of life is as it should be. A good conscience is enlightened by the Holy Spirit. A godly Christian life will put to shame the false accusings of evil-minded men (v16).

One of our most troublesome questions is that of suffering. Why do people suffer so much? More particularly, why do so many suffer hardships, tribulations, persecutions who do not seem to deserve it at all, who are devoted children of God? Peter again mentions Christ as the supreme example of patient suffering. He, wholly righteous and just, suffered and died for unjust, sinful humanity. It was WHOLLY for others. Access to God is for us a sublime privilege purchased by His death on the Cross (v 18).

Incentives to Christian Living

The primarily important motive is God's call to such living—"ye are thereunto called." He calls us to holiness of life—Golden Text. He calls us to a life of love and good works. Sensing the reality of this call, there comes with it a high incentive to right living, a feeling of responsibility. The call to Christian living should be obeyed at all cost. Our truest welfare will be found in obedience to His commands. The life lived to glorify God brings to one the greatest blessings. Happiness and usefulness in life are joined together. The highest usefulness is attained only by truly Christian people, in Christian living.

Oldest Mennonite Church in Ohio Remodeled and Redecorated

On Sunday, February 19, the congregation of the First Mennonite Church at Wadsworth, had the joy of experiencing the rededication of their newly remodeled house of worship, with the following program:

The Prelude - - - and Holy, Holy, Holy Invocation and Response: Gloria Patri
Scripture Lesson, I Kings 8:22-30
The Pastoral Prayer—The Offering—The Anthem
The Sermon—Rev. P. E. Whitmer
Remarks by the Pastor
Hymn No. 383—"Now Thank We All Our God"
Benediction and Doxology.

In the evening the Young People gave the play, "The Challenge of the Cross;" good music was rendered and talks were given by the Reverends J. T. Keister and A. S. Rosenberger.

In an interesting letter Sister Mrs. Wm. Straiton briefly recounts the work of remodeling thus:

This work was begun last August by painting the walls. But we found the plaster was in such poor condition, it did not pay to paint. The walls and ceiling were then covered with Temlok, an interior decorating material with insulation value, too. We then found it was necessary to remove the old wainscoating and put on a hard insulation material in its place. With these improvements made, the old floor was just impossible. So a new white oak floor was put in, which has added more to the appearance of the church than any other improvement. New carpet was laid in the aisles and on the pulpit. The choir loft was changed and the pulpit was rearranged to much better advantage.

After having spent thirteen Sundays in a school auditorium, we felt a special service was in order to show our appreciation of being back in our own church. So Feb. 19th was set aside as rededication Sunday. The previous Sunday, our first in the church, we had what should have been our January communion.

We felt that Rev. P. E. Whitmer should deliver the rededication sermon, because of the part that he played in our securing our present pastor, Rev. Wilmer Shelly, who has now been with us twelve years. The attendance was good, so large for the evening service that we had to turn people away for lack of room.

When a church begins a project of this kind it takes a spirit of unity and cooperation to make it successful, and it was our happy experience to have these qualifications amongst our congregation. As long as we work together in this way we feel sure God will prosper us spiritually as well as he has materially.

From the Wadsworth paper we clip the following: Sunday morning the bell atop the Mennonite Church will summon the congregation to services that will rededicate the 109-year-old structure on college street as a house of worship. More than 85 years old, the Mennonite congregation moved to the present building in 1892, when it was purchased from the Congregational Church . . . . It would be a source of joy to many pioneers of Wadsworth who, if they were with us today, could learn that the Mennonite congregation, which they helped organize some 85 years ago, continues to be one of the leading church denominations in the community.

Those pioneers who aided in raising the frame of the church, the first in Wadsworth, more than a hundred years ago—"without the aid or hindrance of alcoholic beverages," too, might be happy to know that the structure is still used as a house of worship.

ECHO FROM WORLD MISSIONARY CONFER.

The recent World Missionary Conference held at Tambram, Madras, India, last December gives the church a new and fuller vision of its God-given tasks. One outstanding significance of this conference will be the lead it gives the church in evangelism. It is not enough to be "mission minded." The church must assume the responsibility to evangelize the "unchurched" of the neighborhood. The conference recommends to Christian people that a practical study of the essential features of the New Testament church be made to discover methods of how the church may carry on fruitful evangelism. This approach in a study of ACTS will be found very interesting and challenging.—W. F. U.

Letter From A Veteran Conference Leader

Reedley, California, Feb. 20, 1939.

There are several reasons why I feel impelled to write an article for The Mennonite. Some time ago a dear old friend from Ohio wrote me, saying that she always enjoyed to read what I wrote for our church papers and requested me to write again some time.

A few days ago looking for a certain paper among my documents, I found the diary I kept fifty years ago, and in it I read that while attending the seminary in St. Louis, Mo., in 1889, I wrote my first correspondence to the Bundesbote, and naturally I thought of the changes that have taken place in our churches and conference work in these 50 years.

Yesterday in a threefold service we dedicated the Reedley Hospital: and finally I am afraid that we are being led into a European war. I might write an article about each one of the items just mentioned. So in writing about all of them I shall have to be very brief in treating each, or this writing would become entirely too long to appear in the Mennonite.

First, then, in regard to the old friend in Ohio. If you do not know it, now, you will appreciate the fact when you are as old as I am that friendship grows more precious as the years go by. Prov. 27:10, "Thine own friend and thy father's friend forsake not."

Then the changes of the past fifty years. I will only mention a few of them and, no doubt, you will think of many more. At that time the language of our conference and our churches was German, and if some young man, like myself, would venture to make a remark in English, old Rev. Christian Schowalter of Iowa would get up and without asking permission of the chairman, point his index finger at the speaker and shout: "Sprich Deutch." Now our churches and our conference almost exclusively use the English language. I do not think our churches have suffered any serious loss by this change. On the contrary I am certain that if our churches had rigidly retained the German language exclusively that would have meant serious loss. I do not approve of the propaganda now made in our country against Germany, but on the other hand I thoroughly agree with what my Aunt Susan Ruth wrote in her diary after an extended visit to Germany, "I thank God that my dear parents emigrated to America." In other words I am glad that I do not have to live under Hitler's regime.

Think next of the great change in the line of education. Then we had no colleges, now we have several that are recognized in the educational world. Then we had no Ph. D.'s, or D. D.'s, now we have a host of them, so many indeed that we are donating some to other denominations. This too is a distinct gain, and I wish the time might come when we can give all of them employment in our own denomination. I shall not mention the progress in mission work, for this whole extensive field has been developed within this period of fifty years.

Now about the dedication of the Reedley Hospital. Reedley is exactly fifty years old, and in the last 35 years the Mennonites have played an important part in its development. In 1904 Uncle D. T. Eymann and his family, the first Mennonites, came to Reedley. A little later a few Mennonite Brethren came from Nebraska. Soon the Mennonites came like a swarm of bees when one has discovered honey and goes back to report it to the colony. Now we have four large Mennonite churches in Reedley and vicinity. Reedley grew otherwise, so that the High School had to be abandoned, a larger, new one was built, at a cost of $500,000.00, and two years ago a Junior College was added. The old High school buildings were standing empty, an eyesore to the community. A few years ago two Mennonite doctors bought these buildings and the grounds with the purpose of converting them into a community hospital. The city as such was not ready to cooperate, so they appealed to the Mennonite churches, and in a splendid and unselfish cooperation they came to the rescue, and when the people of Reedley saw that it would be a success, they were all willing to help.

Yesterday 2,000 people attended the dedicatory services and nearly that many inspected the hospital, which is up to date in every respect, and modern in all its appointments. We are especially fortunate to have secured a Mennonite nurse, Miss Ethel Kirchofer, of Dalton, Ohio, to manage the hospital, and today she reports that they have two patients.

While we have prepared to save lives and relieve suffering, I am afraid that our nation is preparing to slaughter thousands in the next European war which may begin soon. Twenty years ago we entered a European war to make the world safe for democracy, to end war. We did neither. Instead we lost 56,000 young men in Europe, spent $50,000,000,000 and loaned the Allies $12,000,000,000 which they have not repaid and never will. Why do I fear that we are being led into the next European war? Because our President in his address at Chicago last October spoke about quarentining aggressor nations." In his address to Congress on Jan. 4th, he said, "the defense of religion, democracy, and of good faith among nations is all the same fight. To save one we must make up our mind to save all." He also said, "God fearing democracies can not forever let pass, without effective protest, acts of aggression against sister nations," and then spoke about "Methods short of war, but stronger and more effective than words." In harmony with these statements he has asked congress to change or abolish the neutrality law; to appropriate $1,552,000,000 for military purposes for the next fiscal year, in order to build six more battleships, 60 other naval vessels, 5000 more airplanes, 41 air and submarine bases, one of them on the island of Guam 5,100 miles from our shores. Anyone can easily see that this is not all for defense. Then, he gave the French Airplane Commission the privilege of visiting our airplane factories, to examine and test our planes, of which the whole country would have known nothing, but for an accident in southern California, while testing a bombing plane, in which the pilot was killed and the French Commissioner injured.

As Mennonites and citizens of the U. S. what can we do about it? We can write to the President and tell him that we do not approve of his foreign policy. We can write to our senators and our congressman and tell them we want the Neutrality law retained, strengthened, and made mandatory. That we are unalterably determined to be neutral when the European war begins. When the secret in regard to the the French Commission had leaked out through the accident mentioned, and the President called the Military Affairs Committee of the Senate to a secret meeting at the White House, Senator Johnson arose in the Senate and said, "My God are our people being secretly led down the road to war?" I wrote him my congratulations and thanks. I have received two letters from him since. In one he says, he hopes that I will write him again, and "my only purpose is to keep the United States out of war." Now, as Mennonites we can write and talk. After our country has entered the European war we must remain silent or go to prison.

H. J. Krehbiel.

When the young people out of love for the Church voluntarily offer their talents and services for the betterment of the Church we should rejoice. We feel very confident that when the young and the old people of a church can cooperate and feel they have a common purpose of glorifying God, the future of the church need not be feared. We must all learn to consider one another, and by so doing we are giving heed to the Scriptural injunction of Hebrews 10:24, "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works."—Bethany Mess., Freeman, S. God Hears Prayer

If radio's slim fingers can pluck a melody
From night and toss it over a continent or sea;;
If the petaled white notes of a violin
Are blown across a mountain or a city's din;
If songs, like crimson roses, are culled from his blue air
Why should mortals wonder if God hears prayer?

—Ethel Romig Fuller

Convictions Become Actions!

Mennonite young people are rising to the need of the hour. From several Mennonite "corners" come reports of activity: (1) Central Conference young people sent a letter to the President, commending, what they felt to be dangerous policies of the administration. Individuals and groups ought increasingly to do that. That is "Democracy." (2) Dramas, with a peace message, have been given by several groups! Summerfield, Ill., young people presented "In the Vanguard"; Topeka, Ind., young people presented drama, and sent in balance (above expenses) to The Mennonite Peace Society; Donnellson, Iowa, young people also sent in a balance, which we understand was from a peace drama. (3) There is an "Hour-A-Week-For-Peace-Group," at Bluffton College, which is making plans to produce the play, "Let My People Go"; in addition to other community peace education. (4) Young people of several churches have expressed desires to have Peace Fellowships formed. Two have taken some definite action, which we hope will grow and merit worthwhile reports from time to time. "CONVICTIONS ARE BECOMING ACTIONS." May that continue.—The Plowshare.

"I Would Be True"

Deut. 5:19, 20; 1 Sam. 18:1-4; Ruth 1:16-18

Young People's Topic for Mar. 19, 1939

Meditations:

M. Mar. 13. True to her duty. Esther 4:12-5:2
T. Mar. 14. Respect for parents. Eph. 6:1-3
W. Mar. 15. True friendship. John 12:1-8
T. Mar. 16. Hearing and doing. James 1:22-25
F. Mar. 17. Love and good works. Rom. 12:9-16
S. Mar. 18. True to God's Will. Acts 4:18-21.

Suggested Hymns:

I Would Be True; I Need Thee Every Hour

Suggested Topics:

1. What is the great lesson we learn from the life of Ruth?

2.Did Jonathan do what one would expect a prince to do?

3. Jesus Christ as an example for every Christian. How were all the temptations of Jesus' life symbolized in the three temptations in the wilderness?

4. Will honest Christian practices work to the harm or the benefit of a business man? Why?

5. Explain how friendships require honesty and loyalty?

6. In what way does one's family require honesty and loyalty?

. Do honesty and loyalty have any effect upon the community? Upon the nation? Explain.

Points for Prayer:

1. Thank God for the good example of our parents

2. Thank God for the noble pattern of life given by Jesus Christ.

3. Ask God to open our eyes to the beauty of holiness.

4. Ask God to keep our feet in the path of righteousness.

"HONESTY and LOYALTY make people TRUST you."

Every person in the world wants to be respected and trusted. Trust is a great tribute and must be earned. The two great stepping-stones to trust are honesty and loyalty. Without either of these there can be no trust of you in the hearts of others. Two famous Bible characters are mentioned to us only because of their loyalty. Honesty and loyalty are two personal qualities to strive for, no matter at what sacrifice. The great heroes of our country gained their fame through being honest and loyal in the face of great temptation and danger.

Jesus Christ is the "Truth"; a worthy example for every Christian. All the temptations of His life are summed up and symbolized by the three temptations He endured in the wilderness. Jesus was tempted to make life easy for Himself by turning stones into bread. He chose a different way. He had it within his power to leap off the temple without being hurt. It would have been a short cut to fame. But He remained true to God and chose the Lord's way of the cross, because that was the way to save the world. Satan offered Him control of the world if He would bow down and worship Him. He could have done what many Christians are doing: He could have worshipped Satan with one-half of His heart while He worshipped God with the other. Jesus knew what was wrong and would have no part in it. Again He turned toward the cross as the only way to work out the will of God. Wise Christians will do well to follow His example.

Business dealings demand honesty and loyalty of Christians. Sometimes men are able to get away with dishonest practices because people trust them on account of their church activities. A Christian business man is morally bound to live up to every guarantee he makes or implies. He must regard honesty not only as the best policy, but as the only policy.

Friendships also require honesty and loyalty. Trust and respect are at the bottom of all friendships or they cannot endure. Family ties depend upon honesty and loyalty to an even more marked degree. There is no more heart-breaking sight than to see a family where distrust and suspicion hover in the home atmosphere.

"I Would Be Pure"

Matt. 23:23-28; Daniel 1:8-16

Young Peoples' Topic for March 26, 1939

Meditations:

M. Mar. 20. Purity of God's law. Ps. 19:7-10
T. Mar. 21. Purified lips. Isa. 6:1-8
W. Mar. 22. Purity of thought. Phil. 4:8, 9.
T. Mar. 23. Purity in conversation and conduct. Eph. 4:17-29.
F. Mar. 24. Purity in living. Titus 1:15, 16
S. Mar. 25. Purity as of Christ. I John 3:1-3

Suggested hymns:

Yield Not to Temptation; He's a Wonderful Savior to Me.

Suggested Topics:

1. What is the outstanding point in the story of Daniel as related in the first part of the book of Daniel?
2. Why did Jesus admonish the Pharisees? Matt. 23:23-28.
3. How must Christian young people keep themselves physically?
4. What should be the mental condition of Christian young people?
5. How must Christian young people direct their spiritual lives and beings?

Points for Prayer:

1. Thank God for life and health.
2. Thank God for the purifying influence of our mothers and fathers.
3. Thank God for the wonderful counsel and example of our Lord Jesus Christ.
4. Ask God to make us strong against temptation.
5. Ask God to open our eyes to the evil in useless dissipation of much of modern social life.

Lesson Discussion:

In a day when personal and moral laxity is increasing, we need a topic which checks us and causes us to examine our lives in the light of the gospel of Christ. In our lesson tonight we are challenged to exalt personal purity in body and mind, and also pure and sincere motives in life. Let us not only strive to make our own lives 100 per cent pure but to reach out and help the rest of the world onto the same clean level.

The finest story of high ideals and purity of life is that of Daniel and his associate as told in the first part of the book of Daniel. Religious convictions compelled them to act as they did in refusing the king's food. Their lives are another illustration of the fact that what God directs His people to do will work out to the best interests of those people.

In our Scripture lesson from Matthew we find the most direct indictment Jesus ever made against anyone. He scores the Pharisees in terrible language; four times He calls them hypocrites. These verses are worthy of study. They should sound a warning note lest we fall into the same errors.

Christian young people are called by their Lord to pure living. Physically we must be clean. "Cleanliness is next to godliness." No one is so poor that he cannot present a clean, neat appearance. The inside as well as the outside must be kept clean. This means that we cannot eat or drink that which defiles the body if others are to see the image of God reflected in us.

We must be pure in mind by keeping control over our thoughts. We will have to persistently and continually drive out evil thoughts and replace them with pure ones. This is not as easy as it was for our grandparents. Christian young people will have to clean their minds and keep filth from entering by being very careful of what they read and look at.

We must be pure in spirit. The spiritual realm includes the physical and mental. To be wholesome spiritually we must be sincere in our actions. Immorality is being so gilded in our day that Christian young people will have to take a definite stand for purity and morality. Impure thoughts lead to impure desires, and these often lead to impure actions. Destroy the seed and you will prevent the plant, which means that the fruit will never come. This process is necessary if purity is to extend into every department of life.

By the ancients, courage was regarded as practically the main part of virtue; by us, though I hope we are not less brave, purity is so regarded now. —J. C. Hare.

The Courage of Jesus

Intermediate C. E. Topic, March 26, 1939

For Daily Study

Mar. 20. In His home town. Luke 4:23-30
Mar. 21. Defying the priests. Mark 11:15-18
Mar. 22. Rebuking leading hypocrites. Matt. 23:29-36
Mar. 23. Before soldiers. John 18:1-9
Mar. 25. Before the courts. Mark 14:16-65
Mar. 26. Topic—The supreme courage of Jesus. Luke 9:51; John 19:10, 11

Preprayer Circle

Read Luke 22:39-43. It was the prayer that Jesus prayed in the garden, "Not my will but thine be done," that gave him the courage to face what was before him. Knowing that we are in God's will gives us courage. "If God be for us who can be against us?"

Songs of Courage

"Who Is on the Lord's Side," "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God"

For Quiet Worship

Announce your topic

Prelude: "Jesus Calls Us," played through softly, then ask the group to hum it and sing the first stanza.

Leader: "If any man would come after me let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me."

Sing: "Follow, I Will Follow Thee"

Scripture reading: Luke 9:51

Poem:

"Into the woods my Master went,
Clean forspent, forspent;
Into the woods my Master came,
Forspent with love and shame.
But the olives they were not blind to Him,
The little grey leaves were kind to Him,
The thorn-tree had a mind to Him,
When into the woods He came.

Out of the woods my Master went,
And He was well content;
Out of the woods my Master came,
Content with death and shame.
When death and shame would woo Him last,
From under the trees they drew Him last,
'Twas on a tree they slew Him last
When out of the woods He came."

Sidney Lanier

Scripture reading: John 19:10, 11

Song: "Dare to Be Brave, Dare to trust God more, to do the right and hate wrong, to do your best and be unafraid, to do the hard things in life. Pray for the mind of Christ, "Not my will, but Thine be done."

The Supreme Courage of Jesus

1. Courage in His Home Town. Luke 4:23-30. Why did it take courage for Jesus to speak in His home town? Why didn't he do any wonders there? What do home town folk often say when one of their number makes good?

2. Courage to defy the priests. Mark 11:15-18. Why did Jesus condemn what was going on in the temple? Why did the priests take exception to it? The priests were supposed to teach the people what was right and wrong. They spoke for God. By permitting the trading to go on in the temple they were giving their approval. To speak as Jesus spoke takes a deep conviction of what is right and wrong. Are there any evil practices in the church of our day? How can we have the courage to stand against any wrong that we see?

3. Courage to rebuke leading hypocrites. Matt. 23:29-36. What is a hypocrite? Of what did Jesus accuse them? Why did it take courage to speak against them?

4. Courage before the soldiers. John 18:1-9. How could Jesus give himself up to the soldiers as he did? How had he spent the preceding hours? What preparation can we make to meet danger?

5. Courage before the court. Mark 14:16-65. How did Jesus show courage before the court? It would have been easy for Jesus to defend himself, because they had nothing against Him. But that is not the way of love. Why did it take more courage to keep silent than to speak? There are times to speak and times to be silent? When does our silence show the greater courage?

For the Leader

What is courage? We are told that the word "courage" comes from the Latin cor, meaning heart. Courage is not a matter of the head but of the heart. Courage comes from a great love—love of some dear one, love of one's church, love of one's country or home, love of Christ. Give examples of these different kinds of courage. What great love did Christ have that gave Him such courage under all circumstances.

Closing Song

"True-Hearted, Whole-Hearted." Benediction.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program Suggestions for March 26, 1939

"Set Thee Up Waymarks, Make Thee Guide-posts."
Jer. 31:21

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude—Quiet music, while the Juniors take their places. Pianist plays introduction for opening hymn, Juniors stand at signal and remain standing through the—

2. Opening hymn, "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult" v. 1, 2, 3.

3. Scripture reading, Psalm 121

4. Leader's Prayer.

5. A Trio of girls sing the hymn of the month: "Jesus Loves Even Me." All Juniors joining in the last chorus.

6. Read responsively:

Leader: "Follow me," the Master said.
Juniors: "We will follow Jesus":
Leader: "By His word and spirit led,"
Juniors: "We will follow Jesus."
Leader: "On His promise we depend,
He will lead us and defend,
Help and keep us to the end,"
All: "We will follow Jesus."

7. Silent Prayer—All heads bowed.

II. Mission Minutes.

1. Complete the mission poster. Make use of it. Display it. Would it be possible to have a poster display at the District Conference Mission meetings? Why not send the posters to the District secretaries of the Junior and Intermediate department. You will find their names given in the "Missionary News and Notes."

2. Continue study of our mission work among the American Indians.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To strengthen the Juniors' determination to "follow Jesus" and to help him to realize that he can not do this in his own strength but needs help and guidance.

1. Introduction of evenings study: A short talk by an older person about road-signs, sign-posts and way marks found along the highways of our country. Illustrated if possible.

This should lead to the thought that we need guidance and help. This thought will be brought out by the leader's—

2. Heart Talk: We, too, are all on a highway leading to eternity. There are two ways, one the broad way and the other the narrow way. The narrow way leads to God. The cross of Christ is the great signpost at the parting of the ways. We must begin at the cross. There we must accept Jesus as our Savior and then let the Savior be our guide. If we will follow the way that Jesus has marked out and do as He has told us, it will be well with us.

3. All repeat in unison verse of month. Jeremiah 7:23: "Walk ye in all the way that I command you, that it may be well with you."

4. Short talks by Juniors:

a. Jesus says, "Follow Me"—Matt. 4:19.

b. Jesus says, "Love your enemies"—Matt. 5:44.

c. Jesus says, "After this manner therefore pray." Matt. 6:9.

d. Jesus says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself."—Luke 9:23.

5. Poem: "He died that we might be forgiven,
He died to make us good:
That we might go at last to heaven,
Saved by His precious blood.

6. Song: "Follow Me, the Master said," v. 3, 4. (M. H. B., No. 248).—Leader's Closing prayer.

Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother

The story of Joseph in our Bible is a very interesting and a very important story. It is part of our Bible that should be read and studied more than it is. We mention here only a small part of it.

Joseph was a highly honored man in Egypt. He was next to the king Pharaoh in power. His old father with his whole family and belongings had been invited by Joseph to come to Egypt to live. Joseph, in his high position in Egypt could have very quietly made arrangements for them to live there and say nothing or very little about it to Pharaoh. But we read in Genesis chapter 47 that Joseph brought his 130 year old father Jacob before Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Joseph's mother was dead.

We cannot help but admire Joseph for this and not being ashamed to take his old, and no doubt, long-bearded father to the king. Many sons and many daughters then and now in much lower positions than Joseph was would have been ashamed to do that.

We think of a young man who went off to College. His poor widowed mother worked hard and saved all the money she could to send to her son so he could get a good education. It was hard for her but she was glad to do it for her son. When her son was ready to graduate she sent him money for a new suit and wrote him how glad she was that she would be able to see him in the graduating class. Mother was getting ready to go for her son's graduation. Then a letter came from him thanking her for the money for the new suit and telling her she would not enjoy the graduation exercises and better not come. Old mother who had worked hard to make it possible for her son to finish school was not wanted by him at his graduation. He was ashamed of her. He was not like Joseph.

Then we think of one of the presidents of the United States. It is customary for the president and a number of high officials to have a banquet (feast) on his inauguration day. The invited guests were in their places but there was one vacant chair. All wondered what that meant. Then the door opened and they brought in an old woman and placed her in that vacant chair. The president arose and said: I want you to meet my mother. It is she who made it possible for me to be here today as president of the United States. That was like Joseph.

Some of us have fathers and mothers. Do we treat them like Joseph treated his father? "Honor thy father and mother that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on earth."—J. B. Ediger.

LETTER

Summerfield, Ill., Feb. 24, 1939

Dear Editor:

In one of your editorials in the last issue of the Mennonite, you make the statement that "The Holy Land was promised to Abraham and all his race. And some day his descendents, who have been persecuted and chased from one country to another will be returned there." One might ask, was not this promise fulfilled when Abraham and his descendants dwelt in the land of Canaan? Did not the descendants of Abraham again take possession of the Promised Land when the Israelites returned from Egypt? Was not the promise of the prophets fulfilled when the Jews returned from the Babylonian captivity and rebuilt Jerusalem?

What is more natural than that the Jewish people who have been suffering oppression and persecution during the past centuries, would like to have a country which they could call their own. After the close of the World War, England received a mandate over Palestine and did give some promises to the Jews. For some time it did seem as if the Zionist movement was gaining ground, but we must not forget that the Arabs had possession of most of the land and outnumbered the Jews about 6 to 1. This movement was largely financed by American Jews for their oppressed brethren in other lands. The Arabs at present are doing all they can to stop the movement and England has her hands full in keeping order.

As the elect and chosen people of Jehovah, the Jews have always indulged themselves in the hope that under the direct reign of the Almighty God they were to realize a kingdom of surpassing glory and power on the earth. One of the great fallacies with which Jesus always had to contend with, while he was upon earth, was the Jewish conception that their Messiah would establish an earthly kingdom and become their temporal ruler. Again and again, he had to remind them that his kingdom is not of this world, that his kingdom is a spiritual kingdom and does not come by outward observation. He predicted the destruction of Jerusalem and made it plain to them that they need not expect that Jerusalem would ever become the capital of the world and that he would some day sit upon the throne of David as a temporal ruler.

It is evident that the Hebrew prophecies concerning the advent of the Messiah were not literally fulfilled in the way the Jews had expected, and hence most of them rejected Christ when he appeared. It is my conviction that as the Jews were mistaken in interpreting the prophecies in literial terms at his first coming, so all those who are looking forward to a temporal reign of Christ on this earth, will be as severely disappointed as were the Jews two thousand years ago. If our Lord should return to earth while they are living, they would be as far astray as the Jews were, including our Lord's disciples, because Jesus failed at first coming to do the things which they confidently expected him to do.

Jesus lifted the notion of the kingdom above the Jewish plane, in substantially discarding the national connections by which it was bound in contemporary thought. He declared that many shall come from the east and the west and occupy a place in the kingdom which Israelites shall be found unworthy to occupy, and that as a people they shall be dispossessed of the Lord's vineyard and see it let out to other husbandmen. He commanded his disciples to preach the gospel of the kingdom to all nations, not simply within Jewish boundaries, for God is no respector of persons, there is neither Jew nor Greek to him. His kingdom is to be a universal kingdom in which no nation will enjoy special privileges.

Elmer Basinger.

Ships at sea can now get complete up-to-the-minute weather maps by radio, and several liners are equipped with apparatus for receiving such maps.

Statisticians have calculated that one hundred years ago the average person had just about 72 wants, of which 16 were necessities; whereas, the average person today has 484 wants, of which 94 are rated as necessities.

The heaviest material in the world is platinum, 21½ times as heavy as water.

Last year the automobiles of the United States consumed some fifteen billion gallons of gasoline—almost as much as the drinking water which passed down the throats of the people of this country.

There is evidence that the ancient custom of saying grace was observed as early as the third century.

An Atchison man, who is very religious and also very businesslike, starts his prayers in this manner: "This is Jones speaking."

The ancients believed there are only four elements—earth, air, fire and water. Now 92 elements are known.

It is a curious phenomenon that people of different races employ so many different colors as badges of bereavement. In this country and Europe the ordinary color for mourning is black, while in China it is white; the Turks wear blue or violet; the Egyptians, yellow; the Ethiopians, gray.—The Menn. CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, NEWTON, KANSAS

Dear Readers of the Mennonite: Since our editor does not like long correspondences and yet many things are happening in the First Church of Newton, we will write oftener and so try to make the correspondence shorter. Sunday, January 1, 1939, Dr. Warkentin preached on the story of the paralytic. Christ knew, that sin is the burden that crushes us. He says: "Thy sins are forgiven." The past is changed, the future is changed. Will we enter the new year with the load of our sins on us? Or will we enter it with our sins forgiven, consecrated to Christ?

Monday evening our yearly meeting took place. after the song, "Nun Danket Alle Gott," Rev. J. E. Entz read Psalm 100 and prayed. The very interesting report of the ministers was given. We have 555 members, a net gain of 141 members in 5 years. The reports of the different organizations were given and the necessary resolutions passed. The ladies served coffee, cake and cookies. Further good reports showed that our church debt is reduced to $1200. The meeting closed at about 11 o'clock with prayer.

This being the week of prayer, we had prayer meeting on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. Tuesday, Dr. Warkentin led the meeting according to the program. The chief subject was our relation to God. Thanksgiving, repentance, confession and prayer. Wednesday Rev. Entz was leader. Menno Schrag told of nations and their rulers, Mrs. G. A. Linscheid fromer missionary, spoke about missions. Friday evening the meeting was led by Rev. H. J. Kliewer. The writer spoke on the Christian home, Bro. P. Bartsch on Christian Education and Mrs. H. J. Andres on Home Mission and Christian benevolent institutions..

Sunday, January 8, Rev. G. A. Linscheid preached on 1 Peter 2:20. We must suffer with Christ. In Hebrews 1:1-9, we have a portrait of Christ. Men tried to find God, but God reveals himself unto men. Men have to listen when God speaks.—Feb. 1, Dr. Max Reich led the combined adult and young people's Bible class. He spoke very interestingly and earnestly on John 13 in English and especially good a few minutes in German.—Feb. 5, Rev. Kreider preached on Luke 18:1. His subject was: The Need and Power of Prayer.—In the evening the Bethel College volunteers gave a very good program.

On Tuesday, Feb. 14, the 35th yearly meeting of the Bethel Hospital and Home Society was held. Rev. P. P. Wedel preached on Luke 9:1-3, Mark 16. God commands to heal and gives the means to do what he commands. But a Christian institution seeks not only to heal the body, but also the soul. We preach not only healing, but we preach love. We have different methods but the same aim as the disciples. The spirit of sacrifice and self denial is necessary for the work. We have to try to help the poor patients.

February 19, the celebration of the Lord's supper was observed. Rev. J. Entz preached on John 6:35, "I am the bread of life," and other similar passages. Jesus Christ is the origin and continuation of our spiritual life. Daily we need and receive him. Before the serving of the Lord's supper, one lady was baptized and she and eight others were received into the congregation. The service was very well attended. —In the evening we had a musical program. The orchestra played nicely and the young people's choir sang heartily. Dr. Warkentin preached on the third commandment. We have in the Bible more than 10 names of God and more than 100 of Jesus Christ. Whenever a person experiences the love of God in Christ Jesus, he will use the name of God or Christ lovingly and reverently.—C. van der Smissen, Corr.

First Menn. Church, Summerfield, Ill.

On Friday evening, February 17, 1939, Lester W. Baer was married to Wylette F. Rule. The wedding was held at the home of the bride at Trenton, Ill. in the presence of near relatives and a few intimate friends. The single ring ceremony was used and Rev. E. Basinger received the vows.

On February 13, the pastor attended a Jewish Institute at St. Louis. Rabbi Isserman invited the protestant pastors of St. Louis and the surrounding territory to this Institute. The ladies of the synagogue served their guests with a fine free chicken dinner. From the discussions and addresses, it was evident that Jews and Christians have a common heritage and that they ought to cooperate in solving many of the problems which are confronting the world today. Several hundred were in attendance. In the evening the annual Convocation at Eden Seminary opened. This year Dr. Howard Thurman, professor of Christian Theology, Howard University, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Paul Lehman, Professor of Religion, Elmhurst College, Elmhurst, Ill.; Dr. E. Van Norman Emery, Professor of Psychiatry, Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.; and Dr. Thurman Douglass, Pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, St. Louis, Mo. were the lecturers. Several hundred Evangelical-Reformed ministers from various states, besides many ministers from St. Louis and surrounding communities, were in attendance. It was a very helpful and inspirational meeting.

On the evening of St. Valentine's Day, the Young Ladies' Bible Club of our church, sponsored a Mother and Daughter Banquet. The Banquet was held in the Evangelical Social House. The men did the serving. A fine program was given. About 50 mothers and daughters attended. Recently the young people of the church had a social gathering at the parsonage. Various games were played and the pastor conducted a true or false Biblical contest.—Elmer Basinger.

CHAMBERLAIN, CHAMPION OF APPEASEMENT

Not a great deal of publicity was made of Neville Chamberlain, British statesman, until he leaped into the limelight as premier of Great Britain. DeWitt Mackenzie, foreign affairs writer for the Associated Press, has recently given a brief characterization of the man, in which we feel our readers will be interested.

"First of all, a British prime minister is pretty much big boss of the country. The premier naturally is answerable to Parliament, but broadly speaking he is answerable after the event and not before it. That makes him a mighty powerful figure, at home and abroad.

One is accustomed to see great leaders endowed with striking personalities. Chamberlain is almost utterly lacking in any warmth or color—he is chief because of his magnificant brain. He inspires admiration but not affection. As an orator he sways his audiences by cold logic and not the spell of a Hitler or Mussolini. He speaks with meticulous precision.

He is intensely religious, and constantly seeks divine guidance in his direction of the affairs of state and beyond.

Chamberlain leads his followers with a strong hand. He keeps in intimate touch with all affairs of state, and knows where he is headed. Despite his three score years and ten, he works eighteen hours a day, and generally is at the helm when Commons is in session.

One suspects that hidden away under all the austerity and coldness there is a very warm Chamberlain. The breadth of his humanity bespeaks that. Also, he likes to go fishing and that means he has the attributes of a regular feller."

A NEW POPE IN ROME.—The whole Catholic Church has been in mourning. They had lost their spiritual head, Pope Pius XI. So the conclave of 62 cardinals met in Sistine Chapel, at the Vatican in Rome, to elect a new Pope. Custom has it: Two ballots are taken each morning and two each evening until some one receives a two-thirds majority. After each ballot, when there is no election, the votes are mixed with wet straw and burned, and the black smoke curling from the chimney tells the crowd that there is no election. If there is an election, the white smoke from the ballots burning without straw announces the happy event.—This time the election was the shortest for 300 years. Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary, was elected Pope on the third ballot and assumed the name Pius XII.

ATTENTION, CORRESPONDENTS AND CONTRIBUTORS

The editor of THE MENNONITE thankfully appreciates the contributions so many make to the paper. But he must insist that anyone who writes an article, poem, or news should give his address and name. Some weeks ago we received a narrative poem about David and Goliath by someone east of Chicago, without a name. An attempt to ascertain who the party is, has failed. We should be very glad to have him (her) report it to us. Recently a good, well written article from someone in or near Hillsboro Kansas, reached us. It is signed, "A Mennonite Correspondent. "We would like to have this writer reveal himself to us, too. A regular correspondent who does not want his name published only needs to indicate that.

—Salem Mennonite Church, near Feerman, South Dak.—The Literature Committee is in need of more library space and funds. Since so many books are being read, an assistant librarian is needed.

The money was used to buy books that should help us in our ministry.—The Mid-Week service has taken on new life since we are starting the "Through the Bible Study Course."—Church Messenger.

— Burrton (Kansas) Church Home Night. — The young people of the Burrton Mennonite Church again enjoyed Christian fellowship at the Home Night, Feb. 22. Forty-one were present. Our theme song was presented, which is composed by Rev. Walter Dyck and J. P. Kellar. We like to gather for we are always welcome to join in fellowship, friend with friend. Our open secret is: "Christian Joy Can Never End."

— Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas. — Rev. Walter Gering of Moundridge conducted a series of meetings in the Hebron Church from Feb. 12-17 inclusive. The meetings were well attended. He spoke on the following topics: 1. The Call to Discipleship; 2. The Call to Consecration; 3. Counting the Cost; 4. Barred Through Unbelief; 5. The Inevitable Price; 6. Our Land of Promise.

Rev. Fast, our field secretary, presented the "Conference Cause," Feb. 19-20. His messages were very interesting and just what we needed to know about our work.

Church of Los Angeles and relatives from Visalia and Reedley were at the harbor to welcome the P. W. Penners. They arrived on time and seemed greatly refreshed by their long sea voyage. There will be a reception for them at the church Sunday, February 26.—Mrs. A. J. R., Corr.

— A New Idea pushing itself to the front in our country is this, that peace can be secured only in selling as much war material as possible to England and France. — Berne, Indiana. — Carl T. Habegger, prominent business man of Berne and president of its Chamber of Commerce, recently addressed the organization and friends on the subject: "The Principles by Which We, the Members of a Community, Live as a Unit in a Good Society." In the development of his discourse he brought out a number of points of which we single out a few: All human beings must be reckoned with as personalities.—A free ruman being is the most important product of a government and its institutions.—The only freedom deserving the name is that of pursuing our own good, in our own way, so long as we do not deprive others of theirs.—A capitalistic democracy, providing freedom and equality for all, is the best form of government.

— Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio. — The Mennonite Pastors' Association of Northeastern Ohio, met at the home of Rev. A. S. Rosenberger recently.—The Woman's Missionary Society of the Salem Church met with Mrs. A. S. Rosenberger on Friday for an all day quilting.

— Professor J. D. Unruh, president of Freeman Jr. College, has finished the work for the doctor's degree, at the University of Texas, and has returned to his college by this time. We are very sorry that we failed to break this news last week. The Freeman Courier remarks: "Prof. Unruh has done more for the school during the depression than any other person we know. It is easy to be captain when the sea is quiet, but it took a very shrewd one to manage affairs during the storm we had."

Need of a Firm Hold on God. A sailor on one of Her Majesty's vessels tumbles out of the rigging; in his fall he caught with both hands a rope; and observers said: He is saved! But the rope itself had no fastening, and he fell further and faster as the rope payed out, till he struck the deck a mangled mass. A man may attempt to save himself by will-power; but what if the will itself have no hold on God!—Canon Wilberforce.

SELF WEIGHING US DOWN.—Self may puff us up until we are hardly ourselves any more, but it may also weigh us down until we are about to drown. In both cases God's arm or interference may be necessary to put us back where we belong. Self weighting us down is beautifullly illustrated in Peter's experience on the Sea of Galilee, when he and the other disciples were in a boat "tossed with waves for the winds were contrary." Then they saw Jesus walking toward them, uttering these sweet words, "Be of good cheer; it is I, be not afraid." Impulsive Peter then did a thing characteristic of him, by asking Jesus to bid him come to Him on the waves. Peter stepped out of the boat onto the water, but when he saw the wind lashing the waves, he was afraid. And, beginning to sink, he cried, "Lord save me." Why did Peter sink? Because of his own weight. Instead of fastening his eyes on Jesus in faith, he thought of himself and the waves. When he said, "Lord bid me come to Thee, he expressed a longing to be with Christ, but as his attention turned from Him, he began to sink. This experience of Peter has a lesson for us. In our lives, too, the waves sometimes go high. Difficulties, burdens threaten to engulf us and we are so despaired that it looks as if we may be crushed by them, when an upward look to Jesus and a cry for His help will save us. He will take our burdens from us, so that we can say, "Thanks be unto God who always causeth us to triumph in Christ."—2 Cor. 2:14.

TAKE HEED THEREFORE HOW YE HEAR.—What we actually hear when listening to a sermon or address depends on a great many things, such as familiarity with the language used, degree of learning, mental attitude or mood, hunger or satiation of the soul, and what not. So it comes that different people listening to the same sermon are likely to carry away varying impressions of the discourse which they have heard. The Pharisees, and Scribes on the one hand, and the common folk of Palestine on the other often listened to the same sermons preached by Jesus. In the one group these stirred up animosity, malice,, hatred and evil plottings against the Master. Though hearing they refused to understand. For Jesus says, "This people's heart is waxed hard, and their ears are dull of hearing." To many of the common people Jesus' talks were as healing balsam for their soul. Some people hear sermons with their physical ears, during worship in church, but their minds are so engrossed with thoughts of secular, everyday things that their souls hardly hear the truths being spoken. Some hearers like to have their ears tickled by the preacher with the fine things that they do or that are said about them. But when he as a true shepherd of souls finds it necessary to lay bare some faults or weakness they begin to imagine to whom the minister is alluding. A good Christian tells this story: "One Sunday our pastor in his usual faithful manner pointed out the sad effects of certain practices upon a church, until in his application he became so close that I was surprised, because there was a delightful harmony in that church. I soon began to persuade myself, however, that there was a Diotrephes there, but could not satisfy myself who it was. Finally I turned to an elder of the church with this question: 'Mr. L ——, whom does the minister mean?' 'You and me,' was the quick reply. I have never asked since, whom my minister meant, when he was delivering a message of his Master." The best preacher with the best possible sermon can do very little for the spiritual uplift of his people, unless they come to the service with praying hearts and souls intent on getting spiritual food.—"Take heed therefore how ye hear."—Luke 8:18.

Lo, Judas, One of the Twelve

G. A. Linscheid

At the time of lent, when our thoughts are occupied with matters which lead up to the cross, and with the characters which are inseparably connected with it, we cannot help but to pause at that most tragic character of all—Judas.

We realize, of course, that we have it to do here not only with the purely human—the natural,—but with a strong element of the supernatural; but—was that not the case with each one of the other eleven? And how about each one of us, do not we have that same supernatural element to contend with, besides what we might call, the human element more or less?

Can we, just for our own edification, point to some developments, or lack of developments, in the life of Judas that denote warning signals on a course that lead to such a tragic ending?

We notice for one thing that Judas must have been on a "dealing" footing with the enemies of the Lord. He appears to have ready and easy access to them and his offer is accepted without any misgivings on their part; the fact that there appears to be no surprise on the part of the enemies at Judas' action somehow impresses us that there must have been common ground between them. In other words Judas had not severed his connections with the enemies of the Lord entirely. Danger signal number one: "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord . . . . and I will receive you, and will be a father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."—A definite separation from the benefits of Christ. Danger signal number two: No doubt, all the disciples found it rather hard to readjust their anticipations from the temporal to the spiritual; but somehow we feel that Judas, who had charge of the "bag," failed to make the grade—he did not advance spiritually as he should have. "I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air: but I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."—A definite growth in Christ. Danger signal number three: Although the Lord had told the disciples very clearly that, though He would be put to death, He would rise again on the third day, nevertheless the cross loomed so large before them that they could not see the open grave beyond, nor its significance. We somehow or other feel that Judas reasoned in a natural, human way that he had better salvage what he could out of this hopeless affair. He failed to look unto Jesus as the author and finisher of faith; who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, in order to be set down at the right hand of the throne of God.—Inability to live in and to practice the spirit of lent.

A child was given a penny, she dropped this penny into a very expensive vase and then forced her little hand through the mouth of the vase to recover the penny. Clutching the penny in her hand she found it impossible to withdraw it from the vase. In the attempt to extract the hand the expensive vase was broken only to find that the child's unwillingness to even temporarily give up the penny had been the cause for breaking the expensive vase.—How many a precious undying soul is ruined for eternity because of some trivial, temporal apparent advantage;

Judas failed to live in the spirit of lent and the result was: remorse (Matth. 2:3-4); suicide (Matth. 2:5); and a place of his own (Acts 1:25).

Lent is the time of re-evaluation—a time of learning to sacrifice, not so much in our victuals as in our will—our selfish, earthbound will.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

KORBA, VIA CHAMPA, C. P. INDIA, 1-31-39

Our dear friends in Christ:

Greetings from the Korba missionaries!

"Bless the Lord, Oh my soul and forget not all His benefits." A backward glance over the happenings of the past year must indeed bring forth this word of praise to our Heavenly Father.

Personally He has been with us in illness, in trials, in separations, in labors, in failures, in joys, in victories, in many varied experiences. But in all, when we compare ourselves with our fellow-workers in China who have so bravely endured severe trials during the past year, then we must say that ours has been a pleasant year.

We rejoice in the strengthening of our hands by the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Aron Jantzen with us here in Korba. Though they are as yet unable to take an active part in the regular work, it is good to have them here and to see them eagerly preparing themselves, in splendid efforts to master the language. You will be interested to know that they are already reading simple Hindu stories and have begun reading the Gospel of John. In a few more months they will leave for the mountain station at Landour, where they will spend four months in language school.

Our Church activities in the local Church are moving forward in a gratifying way, and we trust in a way that may be acceptable to our Heavenly Father. Many of our young people show a new zeal and earnestness for the Kingdom of God. While we cannot as yet report many new additions to the church and there seems to be no immediate evidence of any mass movements in this area, yet we know that God is working and we confidently believe that the harvest time will come.

The winter touring season is at its height and we have a force of good workers out on the firing line. Two interested members of the Satnami caste have expressed their intention of holding counsel over the matter of becoming Christians with their caste fellows who are to gather in Hindu mela (festival) coming this full moon. May God enlighten them and lead them into His Glorious Church. The work, though fraught with many difficulties and problems, is yet most challenging in these increasingly restless times. Pray much for us that we may be faithful and true to Him and to you who have entrusted so much into our hands.

In Christian fellowship. Paul and Adah Wenger.

—Rev. Edgar Toevs of Aberdeen, Idaho, has been at Odessa, Wash. recently, where he held a series of meetings in the Mennonite settlement at that place.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

ALBERTA COMM. CHURCH, PORTLAND. ORE.

5520 N. E. 22nd Ave., March 6, 1939

Several busy months have passed since a report has come from Portland, but the work has been progressing just the same. It is not unusual, on entering the church on Sunday morning, to find something new which has been added during the week. One time we found four new pews. Another visit revealed a new altar rail, and a large palm and two ferns. The latest acquisition was three beautiful pulpit chairs presented by Rev. and Mrs. Baumgartner.

For over a year we have felt the need of a Sunday School library which would provide wholesome, Christian reading for our children, but interest in this project could not be aroused either locally or in the General Conference. The only response came from Berne, Indiana, until at Christmas time a money gift of $10.00 was received from the Primary Department and the first year Intermediate Boy's class of the Reedley, Calif. Church. This money was to be used for the Sunday School, so some fine new books were purchased with it and the much-needed Sunday School library was born, largely through the efforts of some little children in Reedley, California who contributed their pennies to help the little children in Portland. The youngsters have responded so enthusiastically that it seems that nearly every child has read every book for his age already and is clamoring for more. These books are not only helpful to the children but sometimes reach their parents when nothing else will.

From March 19th through the 26th, we are to have evangelistic meetings with Homer Leisy of Salem, Oregon as the special help. Mr. Leisy has a most unique method of presenting the gospel message and we trust that all of you reading of this will pray that he may be used mightily of God in this community which needs the gospel so much and yet is so stubbornly resistant to all things spiritual.

Our church has been saddened by the loss of Mrs. Lena Leisy, known to all of us as "Mother" Leisy. A charter member and faithful attendant at services to the very last, she is greatly missed in the church. May we pay tribute to this sweet-spirited, gentle Mother in Israel whose very presence was a benediction. We have lost one greatly beloved, but our loss is her gain. She has gone HOME.

Christine Miller, Corr.

LOVE is indeed heaven upon earth; since heaven above would not be heaven without it; for where there is not Love, there is fear; but, "Perfect Love casteth out fear." And yet we naturally fear most to offend what we most love.—William Penn.

"Please Pray"

A worker in one of our Home Mission Churches in Pennsylvania writes that he has a delicate problem to deal with.

"We have a case here that requires very careful thought, much prayer, and caution. There are two families here, one a Catholic father, Protestant mother and two children. The father is a very staunch man with little to say, I would say about 55 years old. He has been converted, and sent word to me, "would I baptize him and give him and his wife communion."

The other is a family of Zionists. The mother tells me that she was truly converted, while visiting a son in Ohio, and has been attending our services. We want these families for the Lord, but we dare not push. Please pray that God will use my life and tongue, that no mistake is made, or we might lose these for a long time."—A Mission Worker.

EVANGELIZING EATING

The book of Acts tells us that "the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved." It may be significant that just preceeding this statement of the growth in the churches we are told that the early Christians were "breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart." The dining of Christians should be made to contribute to the saving of people. It appears that dining may contribute to evangelism in two ways. When Christians dine together in happy fellowship it becomes very beautiful and attractive. Who would not like to join in such uplifting and congenial hospitality? The dining together of Christians should be such that non-Christians will wish they could belong to such society. Dining may contribute to evangelism in another way. When Christian people in an unassuming manner and with unmistakable friendship invite non-Christian friends to their table something may take place across the table that is from God. Love, good-will, and interest may very effectively be conveyed by a table. We may use the table to open the door to the hearts of people. The Lord Jesus says, "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake." A person who is not right with God will not like people who belong to the Lord. This wall must be broken down before our testimony can become effective. The Christian table may break it down. Who says he cannot help in the cause of evangelism?—W. F. Unruh.

—St. John Church, Pandora, O.—"Let us make Sunday, March 12, as a donation day for the workers at the Lima, Ohio, Mission. Canned goods, groceries and vegetables, or cash, will be appreciated. Members of the Ladies Bible Class go to the Ottawa County home today (March 5.)

Publication

ATTENTION, PASTORS, SOLICITORS, READERS! Occasionally the question is raised whether the special price to new subscribers of our church papers is still in force. Yes, it is and has come to be a standing offer. New subscribers to either CHRISTLICHER BUNDESBOTE or THE MENNONITE may have either one of these papers for $1.00 for one year. On renewals the price is $1.50, with a free copy of either BUNDESBOTE KALENDER or MENNONITE YEAR BOOK, which cost the Board of Publication a good deal to get them edited, printed and mailed.

FROM A LETTER BY REV. HOWARD G. NYCE, PASTOR OF ALLENTOWN AND UPPER MILFORD CHURCHES, PA. we quote the following in connection with the above: "Last evening at our Council meeting our Senior Deacon brought up the matter of having another solicitor for THE MENNONITE in our church, saying, 'The last several years it is so interesting, everybody ought to read it.' The men heartily agreed. Upon motion it was therefore decided that he should see every member of our church, to see if we cannot get THE MENNONITE into all our homes. Then the matter of price came up, whether it was $1.00 to new subscribers and $1.50 to the old."

The above note answers the question of the Allentown brethren and others as well. We hope that other church councils will follow their good example. The General Conference has at least twice, recently, voted that effort should be made to put one of the church papers into every home of our Conference. Two years ago the undersigned made a solicitation campaign of most of the churches by mail which resulted in a gain of 450 new subscribers to our papers. That meant a lot of extra work. To put a solicitor in the field is too expensive. So the best plan is for the churches to arouse themselves, to get their families to take and read the papers. FOR THE GREATEST BENEFIT REALLY GOES TO THE CHURCHES ANYWAY.

God Understands

It is sweet to know,
When we are tired, and when the hand of pain
Lies on our hearts, and when we look in vain
For human comfort, that the Heart Divine
Still understands these cares of yours and mine.
Not only understands, but day by day
Lives with us while we tread the earthly way,
Bears with us all our weariness, and feels
The shadow of the faintest cloud that steals
Across our sunshine, ever learns again
The depths and bitterness of human pain.
There is no sorrow that He will not share,
No cross, no burden, for our hearts to bear
Without his help, no care of ours too small
To cast on Jesus; let us tell Him all—
Lay at His feet the story of our woes,
And in His sympathy find sweet repose.

An Appeal for the Cause of Peace

The eyes of the world are focused today upon a number of sore spots. Spain! China! Cszechoslovakia! Guam! Names which tell us there is international anarchy, names which remind us only too forcefully of the terrors of battle, of innocent women and little children bombed into bits, names which emphasize the inescapable fact that the United States is a part of this world not apart from it, names which pointedly tell us in these days of crises intelligent action is imperative. As citizens of a powerful nation our decisions, our actions, and our attitudes can further, or thwart, the cause of peace, the cause of right. As Christians, as Mennonites we cannot, we dare not ignore the challenge of the forces of haste, greed, anarchy and immorality.

As Christians, as Mennonites we cannot approve war. War is a horrible compound of every evil and iniquity of which man can be guilty. War now means fascism, war now means regimentation, war now means conscription, war means terrific economic burdens, war means hatred, war means beastility, war now means destruction on a scale the World War never approached. War means slaughter, wholesale slaughter, war now means the participation of every citizen in its iniquities.

War is un-Christian. War corrupts even religion. War is completely antagonistic to the Christian way of life. War is the complete antithesis of all that Jesus is, of all that Christianity is. War is the concern of every Christian. This is no time for Christians to stay in their tents.

The General Conference Peace Committee is trying to consolidate and give solidarity to the Peace Program of our denomination but finds itself hampered not only by reason of lack of funds, but by acutal indebtedness. Churches and individuals are urged not to overlook the treasury of the Peace Committee lest it be forgotten. The Committee is united in the belief that it can perform a vital service, that our people must be aroused from apathy to action, but money is needed. All contributions for the General Conference Peace Committee are to be sent to the undersigned.

Pamphlets and booklets have been prepared for publication under the direction of the Peace Committee, designed to be used by groups of young people, adult classes and similar organizations for the study of the Peace Program of the Mennonites. They may be obtained in any quantity from the Mennonite Book Concern.

Another suggestion. Couldn't the officers of the General Conference set a day, a Sunday to be observed by every congregation in the entire denomination as Peace Sunday, a Day of Prayer for Peace? The imagination is stirred with the thought of an entire denomination spending one day together in prayer for peace with every individual member searching his own heart and rededicating himself to the cause of Christ and Peace.

A SPECIAL DAY OF PRAYER

It would hardly be practical to wait for the Conference Executive Committee to act as a whole as suggested in the contribution appearing in the previous article by a member of our Conference Peace Committee. Doubtless, without any suggestion from anywhere, many sincere prayers ascend daily from many homes for peace and justice.

In order to pray unitedly for Peace, how would it be if those Congregations that approve would do so on Sunday April 2 (Palm Sunday), thus commemorating the day on which the Prince of Peace made his entry into Jerusalem, and at the same time pleading that He might enter into and reign into the hearts of men everywhere?

A Question of Appreciation

Know ye what I have done unto you? John 13:12
(A synopsis of a recent sermon)

At his request the name of the writer of this article is withheld.—Editor.

Do we sometimes grow impatient with the slowness of heart of the disciples? They were quibbling about such petty things as to who should be the greatest when they gathered for the last evening together with Christ. With quiet dignity the Master rebukes them by washing their feet. Then he asks the question, "Know ye what I have done unto you?"

He had given them a lesson of humility to rebuke their pride and selfishness. None is too great to perform the simple needful tasks. A dull task may be made radiant; a small duty may be greatly performed. Tennyson speaks of "True humility the highest virtue, mother of them all."

He gave them an example of human equality. He treated all alike, even Judas. He treated all as friends and put them all on the same level. The disciples saw that none was to be considered better than another. Have we caught the lesson? If Judas, with a dark heart was treated friendly dare we think as inferior those having dark skins? All souls are of equal value before God.

He taught them a lesson on true greatness. Greatness is attained through humble service. Who in that day was the greater, the Roman Emperor or the Nazarene? Whom shall we count great today, emperors, war-loards, dictators, or such as Kagawa, Albert Schweitzer, Wilfred Grenfel?

The disciples needed these lessons. But suppose Jesus were to turn to us and ask "Know YE what I have done?" Perhaps we would spare the disciples of our criticisms and turn them full on us. We need to appreciate more the power and beauty of humility. We need to be reminded that God has equal interest in all souls. We need to catch again the beauty of sacrificial service.

In this Lenten season we may well consider in a larger sense what Christ has done for us. He has shown us God. Before His time the ideas of God were rather hazy. He showed us a Father that so loved the world that He gave His only Son to redeem the world. God is like Christ for if we have seen Christ we have seen the Father.

Christ has not only shown us the Father clearly but He has shown us the way to the Father. He has revealed to us the way of the Cross that leads to God. He has shown us forgiveness and redemption. He has offered us Himself. Do we appreciate what He has done for us?

Christ has shown us the value of a soul and the sacredness of personality. He has taught us that one soul is worth more than the whole world. Could we but grasp this, wars, race and class distinctions would end.

He has done so much for us. How can we be more appreciative? The first step is to stop! "Stand thou still awhile, that I may show thee the word of God." "Be still, and know that I am God." Leonardo de Vinci, standing by the hour before his unfinished picture "The Upper Room," remarked, "when I pause the longest, I make my most telling strokes." The Lenten season is a time to pause and in quietness and confidence renew our strength. We do not mean to neglect God and fail to appreciate what Christ has done for us. We are just too busy to give it careful consideration. As we stand still our souls reach Godward until waves of gratitude, love and faith sweep over us. Our hearts are strengthened, and our appreciation deepened.

Such quiet contemplation will blossom into faith and love. But it will also result in reconsecrated activity. We join ourselves with His cause and life takes on new meaning.

In a certain European church there is a window with the figure of Christ upon the cross. Underneath are these words:

"All this have I done for thee;
What hast thou done for me?"

Peter Interprets Christ's Suffering and Death

I Peter 1:17-23; 2:20-25

Topic: The Cost of Our Redemption

Redeemed by Christ. vs. 17-23

Peter, one whom the Lord redeemed, is well qualified to interpret His suffering and death. We saw in an earlier lesson, Jan. 8th, that he could not believe that Christ would be put to death. He witnessed the crucifixion and later was led to see that Christ's death was God's plan for the redemption of man. The Holy Spirit enriched Peter's life and understanding.

Peter is addressing believers (v 3) who are calling on the Father who judges all impartially according to their works (v 17). The believer has the right to pray, also the responsibility to do the right kind of works (L. 6:46). He, while sojourning here, is to live in godly fear of God who watches as a loving Father. Earthly wealth has not purchased the believer's redemption from "vain conversation," the bondage of sin (v 18). Heaven is not to be bought. Christ, the sinless, spotless one, poured out his life-blood, his very soul, in his death upon the cross. This, much more precious than silver and gold, was the price of our redemption (v 19). The value of His blood as the atoning sacrifice for man's sin, is beyond our power to conceive.

God's purpose to provide redemption through Christ was an eternal one (v 20) and now accomplished in Peter's day. God knew the end from the beginning and His plan has been constantly in process of fulfillment from the beginning of the race. There is no substitute. Redemption, provided for all, is of practical avail only to those who believe and accept it (v 21). Obedience to the trtuh enables the Spirit to do his purifying work in the soul (v 22). The power of the crucified and risen Christ transforms souls, fills them with "unfeigned love of the brethren." The work of "being born again" is the continuance of the new life nourished by God's Word.

The Suffering Christ. vs. 20-25

Peter explains a trait of patience and endurance acceptable to God. He knows that those he is addressing may have to suffer for doing right. If we suffer patiently because of our faults (v 20), we deserve no glory. But when we do the right and endure suffering in it, a strong faith is required, and we are assured that such patient suffering "is acceptable with God." God is with His suffering child. To well-doing and patient endurance we are called (v 21). In this Jesus is our example. His sufferings were altogether unjustly inflicted upon Him. They were vicarious and were meekly accepted that thereby we might be saved (vs 23, 24). His suffering was for all mankind. Christ endured on the cross, the stroke that would otherwise have come upon us. By His stripes we are healed, saved from sin's penalty and enabled to live the new life of righteousness (2 Cor. 5:21). Christ "bare our sins," that is the consequence of our sins. The sinless Savior took upon himself the guilt of man's sinful conduct. By His willing sacrifice we are emancipated from the power of sin. The cost of our redemption was the infinite sacrifice of God's only-begotten Son. God's love was equal to man's need (J. 3:16). Our response in accepting this proffered salvation should be gratefully whole-hearted and sincere. Christ suffered that He might bring us to God.

As the Interne Sees It

The following interesting article under this heading was written by Mr. Felix Schrag, a graduate of Bethel College, who spent sometime in the Hartford Theological Seminary, then served an interneship under the direction of Rev. Charles A. Sebold of Pasco, Washington. Mr. Schrag is this year back at the Seminary. He is a Mennonite and a member of the Salem Zion Church, Freeman, South Dakota. As we know Mr. Schrag, good things may be expected of him. This article is reprinted from the February 1939 number of "Advance," a Religious Monthly.—Editor.

My first two months were spent in study, observation, and so called "general preliminaries" at the church in Pasco. During this particular period I was recorded on the calendar of the above mentioned church as associate pastor, director of the church school, scoutmaster, cubmaster and director of Young People's work. An hour each morning, five days a week, was spent with the supervising pastor in consultation and discussion of problems which arose only too frequently. Besides the appointed duties, as already mentioned, I was doing regular parish calling, sitting in with the Pasco church board and finance committees, and especially, making contacts with other organizations outside the church. I have in mind here such groups as the Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce, Active Club, Grange, Social Welfare and many others too numerus to mention. It was really worth while training and experience to associate with and occasionally speak to these different organizations. I became an active member of the Kiwanis, a membership which I treasure very highly.

After these two months of preliminary training I was assigned to Riverview, an irrigation district five miles from the city of Pasco. A word about conditions in general in this district may help to picture this locality as ideal for such an experiment. It is a small truck farming district containing some 350 families. A large number of these people are from the drought-stricken areas of the South and Middle West. Some are amateurs, having resided in the district some five or six years, while only a very few are professionals, living there since 1925 or even longer. This indicates at once that the "turn-over" from year to year is great and also that the district has become a "melting-pot," as it were, for various denominations, customs and ways of living. This characteristic in particular was ideal for the interne arrangement in that it presented certain opportunities for experimentation which were not available in other communities. The farms were small, ten acres being perhaps the average. One room houses were quite common. Money was indeed scarce, due to the general depression and influx of drought-stricken people. Most of these people had never been associated with a church school or church services, much less had they ever belonged to a church or been baptized. The religious situation within the community was no doubt well expressed by one of the youngsters at our first church school meeting, when with the greatest of interest and spirit of cooperation, he looked up and asked, "What is a Sunday school? Do we play games and eat?"

It was into such a harbor that I steered my ship and threw out the anchor. I spent two weeks drawing up plans, making contacts with people as to the various possibilities and a so-called general survey of the community. Finally the opening date for our church school was announced. The place of meeting was in an old Grange building right within the heart of the district. Twenty-two youngsters answered the opening call. At the end of the term the church school record showed an enrollment of 75 with an average attendance of 55.

Due to the seeming success of the church school, parents of children attending asked about the possibility of preaching services, a request which I was patiently awaiting. Preaching services were begun January 9, 1938, with an average attendance of 35 at each service. The highest attendance for any given Sunday during the year occurred on Easter Sunday when 73 were present. At the end of the year of interneship the church had an actual membership of 36. Fifteen were baptized into the church while the rest entered either by Confession of Faith or by letter. A Ladies' Aid Society was formed and in two months reported a membership of 20. As is usually the case in the smaller rural churches this organization comprised the greatest source for church finances. In February the Young People's work was expanded when a Scouting program was introduced. This program consisted of a Cub Pack, Boy Scout troop and Girl Scout troup. Besides the regular meetings of church, church school and Scouts many other gatherings were held; such as Christmas and children day programs, pot-luck dinners and various other types of social functions.

A word regarding my reactions: Personally I feel that the value of such an interneship is too evident on the surface to require much elaboration. The very fact that we are today speculationg in methods, ways and means whereby we might have more practical training, seemingly suggests that within man's innate tendencies is found that plea for a "learn by doing" program. First and foremost, the student under such an arrangement is brought into contact with regular parish duties and problems. I would like to capitalize that which was constantly haunting and disturbing my beautiful dream of an easy-gliding interneship. I've become convinced more than ever as a result of this experience that good preaching in itself by no means makes for a successful ministry. To be able to preach is quite all right, and blessed is the man who can do it; but that seemingly is still a long way from the qualifications of a modern successful minister. I'm thinking here particularly of such items as, organizing a church or church school; coping with the financial program of a church; starting and operating a Scouting program, men's club, ladies' aid society; soliciting new members for the church; running a young peoples' organization; dealing with hunger and unemployment among your church members; creating interest in church work; lack of teachers; and many more pertaining to the function of the church.

As these problems came to me I was led to think of the different Seminary curriculums and as to what might be done in order to make them more suitable to the average American church. Among the many things which ran through my mind at the time, were the following: Instead of telling Seminary students how they should dress for pastoral calls, how about giving them a little information on how they might organize a church so that they may have someone to call on? Instead of telling them how and where to invest their salary, how about a word on what they might do in order to get a salary at all? Instead of using three years hammering away on types of sermons and ways of preaching, how about devoting one year, or at least one semester, to means and methods whereby they might secure Mr. Jones and Mr. Brown so that they may have someone to preach to? Instead of having students study and investigate what type of church school material would be most satisfactory, how about a little information as to what students might do in case they're placed into a community where both money and common lay teachers are as scarce as diamonds in the Sahara Desert? This is submitted not to detect faults of Seminaries, but rather to reflect personal difficulties as experienced and also to serve as a plea to Theological Seminaries to install in their curriculums a place for the smaller country and urban church.

It means much to me that after such a year of valuable observation and experience, under supervision, I have the opportunity of coming back to the Seminary for my last year and of selecting those courses which I feel the average church calls for.

Furthermore, as already implied, an arrangement of this type gives the ministerial candidate a chance to taste his field. As a result of it he will find himself suited or unsuited to the profession. If church leadership ability proves extremely disrupted and preaching onerous, the student can choose a new vocation while still young.

In closing let me say that, whatever name may be applied to me in future history because of my part in this "interne" experiment—whether it be guinea pig or white rat—I shall regardless feel proud and very much content. I believe wholeheartedly in this experiment and I am convinced that it is a great step forward in the field of theological training. I plead with Divinity Schools and Theological Seminaries to consider more closely such an arrangement.

Needless to say, I feel very much indebted and extremely grateful to my immediate Riverview Church where the experiment was conducted, to the Rev. Charles E. Sebold, the supervising pastor, to the Washington Congregational Conference, and to the Hartford Seminary Foundation for all their gracious efforts in helping me make most of my great opportunity. I'm also very happy to inform you that the Hartford Seminary is continuing the experiment in the person of William J. Hamilton, Jr., who is at present on the field of practice.

— TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF MISSION WORK IN THE BELGIAN CONGO, a 92-page book, published by the Congo Inland Mission Board of the Central and Defenseless Mennonite Conferences, has come to the editor's desk, for which we express our hearty appreciation. Rev. William B. Weaver of Danvers, Ill. and Rev. Harry Bertsche of Gridley, Ill., compiled the material and Rev. C. E. Rediger, Secr.-Treas. of Chicago is the editor. In 11 chapters the labors of the missionaries in the field and their supporters in the home land are interestingly depicted and partly illustrated. At present four stations are operated: The Charlesville, Kalamba, Nyanga, and Mukedi stations. Altogether 66 persons have been sent to the African field. Of these about one-third still seem to be in active service or on furlough, ready to return. One died, some resigned, some went to other fields. The Congo Mission Board is composed of: Albert Neuenschwander, Pres., Grabill, Ind.; Emmanuel Troyer, Vice Pres., Carlock, Ill.; R. L. Hartzler, Secr., Carlock, Ill.; C. E. Ediger, Secr.-Treas., Chicago, Ill. Other members are: E. M. Slagle of Ohio; N. J. Smucker and Allen Yoder of Indiana; W. B. Weaver, H. E. Bertsche, I. R. Detweiler and N. O. Hoover of Illinois.

The editor, Rev. C. E. Ediger, Congo Inland Mission, 7928 So. Harvard Ave., Chicago, writes, "Should you know of any friend who would appreciate a copy, we shall be glad to send them one, if you will send us the name and address."—The editor will be glad to do this service for any one who writes him that he wishes a copy.

History Views the Jewish Persecutions

4. THE MOST COMMON ANTI-SEMITIC ARGUMENTS (CONTINUED)

The next argument of the anti-semitics to be examined historically is the charge that the Jews dominate the finance of the world. This statement is also a part of the fictitious picture of Jewish world dominance portrayed in the forged "protocols of the Elders of Zion." Furthermore, it is always interesting to the historian to note that many people who hold this view will also tell you that the economic interpretation of history is false and dangerous.

The field of great international cartels or commercial concerns is practically free from Jews. The "Aryan" Hugo Stinnes steel interests of Germany did far more international business in munitions than did the "international Jew" Rathenau, who was often viciously attacked by the Nazi-controlled press. Some of the largest concerns like the Standard Oil Company, the Anglo-Dutch Royal Dutch Shell Company (Rothschilds are no longer a part of this company), the J. P. Morgan interests, the Ford Motor Company, and the Kreuger interests are almost entirely "Aryan;" Jewish interests are quite negligible. One notable exception to this general rule is the Ballin interest in the German shipping lines, the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyd.

In the field of banking Jewish influence is much stronger, and their influence is greater in proportion to their population than the Aryan influence. But even in this field Jewish power varies from country to country and by no means dominates the field. In England there are four large Jewish banking houses and many brokerage houses, but the governors of the Bank of England are non-Jewish and Aryan brokers are more numerous than Jewish. France has three great Jewish banking houses, with a number of Aryan banks of at least equal importance. Switzerland has very few Jewish bankers; but in Holland German Jews are very influential.

In America the Jews who have become financial experts are such men as Bernard Baruch, Paul Warburg, of the German-American Warburg interests and the real author of the Federal Reserve system, and the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. There are, of course, many Jews working in the financial realm, but most of the great banking houses like Chase National Bank, National City Bank, Guarantee Trust, and others are neither Jewishly owned or controlled. In other words, the historian is also aware of "sharp-trading Yankees" who have risen to power in many of our leading firms.

Jewish influence in Austria, Hungary and other Balkan states (excepting Greece) is very strong.

In Germany, Jews like the Warburgs, the Bleichröders, and the Mendelsshons were indeed very powerful, but their tendency to dominate has been exaggerated by the Nazi- controlled press and by those who receive their information from similar sources. A notable case of such exaggeration is the stressing of the international character of Jewish finance. With the exception of the Warburg interests, Jewish bankers were quite nationalistic and competed with each other as well as the Aryans. Jewish profits in Germany during the war are also exaggerated. In leather, textiles and some metal goods Jewish interests were large and profits were high; but in the "heavy" industries where most of the profits were made, Aryan interests were predominant. The greatest "inflation profiteer" was Hugo Stinnes, an Aryan, who banked his first billion in 1922. His assistant, Castiglioni, was a Jew, but he was engaged in economic struggle with an Austrian Jew, Bosel, thus showing that not all Jews worked together. Nazis also picture the Dawes and Young Plans as a part of the Jewish plot, but none of the leaders in either plan were Jewish, although some of the experts were Jews. Carl Melchior, a Jew of the house of Warburg, did participate in the negotiations and was on the board of the International Bank at Basle, but he always distinguished himself as a clever defender of German interests. Finally there is the currently popular idea, propagated by the anti-semitics, that Jews are immensely wealthy, far more so per capita than are the Aryans. The expression is frequently heard, "there never was a poor Jew." History shows that this too is exaggerated. The Jewish masses in Europe have lived in poverty and misery. Most American Jews are middle-class merchants of only moderate means. Our millionaire list contains only a relatively small number of Jewish names, the late Otto Kahn being the first and his name is ninth from the top. The great majority of our industrial magnates in railroads, oil and steel are non-Jewish. Our richest men, Ford and Rockefeller, are Aryan. In Europe the house of Rothschild is the most influential Jewish firm in history, but it is far weaker now than in the nineteenth century.

In summary then, what is the verdict of history relative to the dominance of the Jews in financial circles? Jewish influence is strong in banking, especially so in central Europe, but everywhere that influence is exaggerated by anti-semitics. There are many Jews in financial circles, but they are nearly always outnumbered by Aryans. The Jewish masses are poor, and there are no Jews as wealthy as Ford or Rockefeller. Due to strong nationalistic and competitive tendencies among Jews as well as among Aryans, the historian, on the basis of available data, must view the oft-publicized dominance of the world financial interests by "World Jewry" as a half truth supported by ill-informed people and the violent anti-semitics.

Clarification

I was just told that gossip is circulating the story that the $600.00 which the Lehigh Mennonite church borrowed some years ago from the Church Building Fund of the Western District Conference had not been paid back in full. I therefore looked up the official Minutes for 1928 to 1931 and find printed in the then Treasurers' reports as follows:

Page 1257: March 1, Lehigh Mennonite church paid off	$100.00

This shows clearly that the full amount of $600.00 was paid back to the Conference. On page 1387 (in 1931) the then Treasurer J.H.E. reports (Translated): "Church Building Treasury: In this treasury there are according to the book and old accounts $568.93. This is loaned to the General Fund and is included in the above account."

At that time I was chairman of said committee, and in order completely to separate the General Treasury of this committee from the Church Building Fund, the committee recommended and the conference session resolved (Res. 3, page 1388) "That in future the Church Building Fund of the Western District Conference be under the administration of the Conference Trustees instead of the Home Mission Committee." The revised Constitution of 1936, Art. XII, 2 now also provides for this.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, pastor of the Hanston, Kans. Church, out in the dust-bowl region writes, Feb. 28: "We have had a real west Kansas snow storm out here. Started snowing Sunday night and snowed and blew hard all day yesterday (Monday) and all night. Fortunately it was not very cold and the snow was quite wet. Visibility yesterday was very short, at times almost nothing. This has been snow shoveling day out here. The rural carriers could not get out at all. Much of the snow was blown from the fields to where it is not needed. Such is Kansas weather."

—Pastoral Message, from Second Church, Philadelphia: "Who suffers when you are absent from Church for even a single Sunday?—1. God does. He misses the awaited fellowship of communion with Him.—2. The Church does. Other members begin to invent alibis for "time off."—3. The minister does. It is discouraging to speak to empty pews.—4. You do. You miss the instruction and information intended for you.—5. The outsiders do. They consider you lax in Christian practice and thus may reject the religion which means so little to you.—Hebrew 10:25.

Purposeful Conversation

Conversation is one of the natural resources of the spirit. Like our physical natural resources it either can be used for the uplifting of human personalities or misused in the degrading of them. It can be effectively utilized or it can be neglected or squandered.

The Christian religion demands that the power in conversation be harnessed and that it be used for constructive ends. If conversation is to be dynamic, it must be centered around an all-pervasive purpose. For the Christian that all-pervasive purpose should be the enabling of all personalities to become more God-like.

To this end let us consecrate the thousands of words which we utter each day. Someone may object, "We'll all become preachy." You need not if in a true and humble way you seek to "minister" unto the needs of human personalities.

Several methods which facilitate the carrying out of this purpose are: Firstly, determine the most worthy ideals, interests, or ambitions of the other person and seek to build on those a conversation which may open new vistas to noble experiences. Secondly, if unacquainted utilize a noble subject to interest the other. Or again you may listen and learn much. Broader and more worthwhile interests may be born in the mind of someone. Thirdly, seek to enter into that conversational ectasy in which, through the exchange of ideas, there is a progressive clarifying of vital problems or enriching of gerat truths for all concerned. Be creative in seeking to carry out this purpose.

Some good tests for a conversation are: (1) Has it made me grow in God-like qualities? (2) Has it given me worthwhile facts of knowledge? (3) Has it focused my emotional energy on vital problems? (4) Has it given me a fuller, more sympathetic understanding of my fellowmen?

THANK YOU

We express our sincere appreciation and gratitude to Mrs. August Ewy of Moundridge, Kans., for having edited the Senior C. E. material for a period of months. The material was excellent and represented a mighty challenge to all young people.

Your Country Needs You

by Arthur Ponsonby, M. P.

Your country needs you
—alive and not dead!
Your healthy beating heart
—not your weak and shattered nerves!
Your full strength
—not your crippled body!
Your active spirit
—not your shell-shocked mind!
Your living self
—not your rotting corpse!

Young men and women, your country needs you to bend your energies and the ectasy of your quickened souls to the uplifting of humanity and the establishment of a civilization which will be a credit and not a disgrace to humanity!

Mission News

The Young People of the Eastern Dist. Conference have undertaken as their Mission Project for this year the contribution of $100 to the Young Men's Home in Winnipeg and $75 for the General Conference Peace Committee. Both actions are highly worthwhile.

The same group of Young People are to be congratulated on their past and present support of the Peace Committee. Might it not be possible for the Young People of other districts to share more in this work? Our nation is spending millions for a preparedness program. Support our Peace Committee and thereby help in the support of a "Mennonite Preparedness Program." Now is the time to prepare. the Peace Committee is much in need of funds. All contributions should be sent to the treasurer, L. J. Horsch, Upland, California.

Questionnaire Results

With this issue begins a series of articles on the above topic. One question from this questionnaire (See The Mennonite, Oct. 4, 1938) will be considered each week. This questionnaire was issued in order to explore the possibilities for a Young People's paper. This action was based upon Resolution No. 5 adopted at the Young People's Session of the last

General Conference. The pertinent part of this resolution reads: " . . . if the way opens up to publish a young people's paper in cooperation with the Board of Publication and the Board of Education, they are authorized to proceed."

Two facts which warrant the suggestion of a Y. P. paper are: (1) The present space does not permit much variety of material. (2) The present four pages do not effectively reach the group for which they are intended.

Question 1 reads, "Should our young people's publication be separate from existing church papers like the Mennonite, Kinderbote, etc.?" An unconditional "Yes" was the answer of 8; a conditional "Yes" was the answer of 4, and 2 answered "No." Some of the comments were:

"I believe that this publication must be separate from all other church papers." H. S.

"I don't see how it can be now. Maybe in another year. It might bring it to a larger Y. P. reading public though."

"That depends upon the objective and finances." Dr. J. H. L.

"I think it would be well to have a separate young people's paper, if we could be reasonably sure of its being read." H. R.

Take Census of the C. E.'s of Western District

The sample form given below is being used in a big drive to get a complete list of officers and individual members of the Christian Endeavor groups of the Western District Young People's Convention. There are over eighty societies, counting senior, intermediate and junior groups. Local C. E. presidents are in charge of gathering the data. The deadline for reports to be in is April 1, 1939. They are to be sent to Hilda Wiebe, Secretary of W. D. Convention, Hyannis, Nebraska.

"I Would Be Strong"

2 Cor. 11:21-31

Young People's Topic for Apr. 2, 1939

Meditations:

M. Mar. 27. Strength in God's presence. Ps. 46:1-7

T. Mar. 28. Strength in leadership. Josh. 1:2-9.

W. Mar. 29. Strength in weakness 2 Cor. 12:7-10

T. Mar. 30. Strength in inner conflict. Rom. 8:12-18

F. Mar. 31. Strength in God's armor. Eph. 6:10-17

S. April 1. Strength of Christ in suffering. 1 Pet. 2:21-25

Suggested Hymns:

"God Send Us Men" "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee"

Points for Prayer:

1. Thank God for the eternal resources of strength.
2. Thank God for the strong characters of men and women who have led humanity to higher ground.
3. Ask God for strength to oppose the mighty forces of evil.
4. Ask God for strength to control one's thoughts, words, and actions, and for strength to persevere in difficult tasks.

Questions for discussion:

1. Is unemployment detrimental to strength of character? If so, how?
2. In what ways does gambling, betting, or playing the punchboard weaken character?
3. In what ways does repeated avowal of belief and and repeated lack of action weaken character?
4. Is it true that much commercial recreation produces insipid personalities? Explain your position.
5. In reasoning is there a danger of confusing strength with obstinacy? Explain.
6. Does military life produce strength of character? Why or why not?
7. Is the daily newspaper designed to strengthen the reasoning process?

Lesson Discussion:

Being strong in patience. The Christian cannot afford to be exasperated by the shortcoming of his fellowmen. Witness Christ and Peter. The discovery of truth through scientific research requires patience. Witness a Louis Pasteur. Great discoveries demand patience. Witness a Madame Curie. Movements for the betterment of human conditions require infinite patience. Had there been more patience the Civil War might not have been fought and slavery might have died a natural death. War will not be conquered in our generation, but patient opposition to it is high adventure.

Being strong in action. We are flooded with Sunday Schools, C. E. Societies, Sewing Societies, etc. Most of these organizations are very desirable. But some are dead and some are dying, for action dripples drop by drop. Have your peace convictions sprouted into actions for peace? Have you sought to put into concrete, corrective action one of ten criticisms which you have fired at your church, your C. E., or your church paper?

Being strong in mind. The speed and confusion of modern life is hard on the nervous system. The minds of masses are being bombarded by proproganda, which is designed to prepare them for war. Advertising mostly seeks to obscure the truth rather than tell it. Publishers strive for popularity. Materialism fosters superficiality. Disciplining of the mind is much needed. We must learn to evaluate sources and material presented; we must learn to think clearly and calmly on problems. Great minds, furthermore, are not produced by reading the shortest articles which can be found.

Being strong in body. The state of our body partly determines the efficiency of our mind and spirit. Daily exercise will strengthen body mind, and spirit. Mediocre work and nervous disorders often occur when it is neglected.

Being strong in habit formation. Growth in character depends upon habit formation. At the end of each year we should be able to show an annual ring of newly-acquired, worthwhile habits.

Call to Worship

Prevailing Prayer

Lord, what a change within us one short hour
Spent in Thy presence would prevail to make!
What heavy burdens from our bosoms take,
What parched grounds revive as with a shower;
We kneel, and all around us seems to lower;
We rise, and all the distant and the near
Stands forth a sunny outline brave and clear.
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
Or others, that we are not always strong;
That we are ever overborne with care;
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer,
And joy and strength and courage are with Thee?
Arichbishop Trench

Season of quiet prayer followed by prayer by leader.

Introductory thought on topic

As the Christian Endeavor pledge puts it, "I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do, and throughout my whole life I will endeavor to lead a Christian life." It does not read "I will try to be a Christian the next ten days." No, there is expressed a loyalty to Christ through all of life.

Topical Discussions

Leader—Let us consider how Christ illustrated this complete loyalty, this life loyalty in his life and work. This loyalty of Christ knew no limitations,

I. Discuss how Jesus illustrated this virtue in his first recorded utterance "I must be about my father's business." Nothing could turn him aside from that decision.

II. Discuss also this similar though so oft expressed "I must work the works of God while it is day. The night cometh when no man can work." Though the demands upon him were tremendous and he craved for rest he never wavered.

III. Discuss the story of the temptation in the wilderness. What does it show as to the loyalty of Jesus? Matt. 4:1-11.

IV. Discuss the loyalty of Jesus in his friendships. This can be especially well illustrated in his friendship with Peter.

V. Discuss briefly the crowning proof of his loyalty when he gave the ransom for many. This thought will be presented more fully in the topic for Easter.

Conclusion by Leader

How many, many millions have been inspired by Christ's complete loyalty!

"In a tomb on the heights of the great city of Smyrna are reputed to lie the bones of Polycarp, one of the earliest Christian martyrs. His last words when about to be beheaded were "Eighty and six years have I sreved Him, and He has never done me wrong: How can I deny Him now?"

These words of loyalty inspired by Christ's complete loyalty have been echoed by countless martyrs all through the years.

Let us live our loyalty to Christ by striving to find as Christ did, God's will for us. Having found it, let us stay true to his will even as Christ did.

God's will in me
Is Truth and Good and Purity

God's will in me
Is Life and Immortality.

God's will in me
Is Faith and Hope and Charity.

God's will in me
Is Health and sweet Simplicity.

God's will in me
Is one Symphonic Harmony.

When one with Thee, my life shall be Attuned to Gladsome Harmony.
Alice Nevin

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

To the Leaders:

Our study during the month of April will cover the period between Palm Sunday and Pentecost. Let us make an effort to familiarize the Juniors with the events of this period. May it be our prayer that the Lord Jesus may become nearer and dearer to them because of this study.

Suggestive Outline for April, 1939

Apr. 2. Palm Sunday.—"Behold thy King cometh unto thee." Matt. 21:5.
Apr. 9. Easter Sunday—"He is Risen."—Luke 16:6.
Apr. 16. "Jesus showed himself again to the disciples."—John 21:1
Apr. 23. "He was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight." Acts 1:9.
Apr. 30. Pentecost,—"But the Comforter, . . . He shall teach you all things." John 14:26.

Song for April: "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" V. 1, 5, 6. (Mennonite Hymn Book).

Verse for month: "But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Matt. 6:33a.

Program for April 2, 1939

"Behold thy King cometh unto thee"—Matt. 21:5.

Setting: Place Plockhorst's "Christ Entering Jerusalem," or Tissot's "The First Palm Sunday" as the center of interest, grouping palms (if possible) about the picture. Use candles. It adds to the worshipful atmosphere.

I. Call to service by prelude

Worship Service.

1. Sing in Unison: "Come Thou Almighty King."

2. Scripture Reading, (boys and girls responsively) Ps. 24:1-10.

3. Leader's prayer.

4. All: "This is the day which the Lord hath made. We will rejoice and be glad in it."

5. Solo: "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus."

6. Story: A Junior tells the story of Christ's triumphal entry using as a basis all four accounts found in the gospels.

II. Mission Minutes:

1. Talk about: What do we mean by "missionary?" Do we have missions only across the sea? Can a junior be a missionary? (Be sure that you can give a reason for your answers.)

2. Our "King" tells His followers to be missionaries. Let two juniors read the following scriptures.

a Matt. 10:5-8.
b. Matt. 28:19, 20.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To create in the junior the desire to own the Lord Jesus Christ as King and a willingness to give their all to Him.

1. Leader's Heart Talk.—"Behold thy King cometh unto thee." Have you not sometimes wished that you had been there to see our Lord Jesus, as He rode into Jerusalem on that day, so long ago, while those who loved him honored him by singing His praises, waving palm branches and spreading their garments before Him? The children had their part in the glad welcome which the passover throng gave to Jesus, the King. The praise of the children must have made Jesus especially happy for when some asked him to hush the children, He would not have it so. So children today have their part in welcoming Him into their lives and letting Him rule them now and always.

Jesus' disciples had to prepare the way for Jesus. He needed what they had, and what they did. Our King needs us too. He needs us to sing His praise, He needs our talents, our time, our hearts and our love. Let us make Him King of our lives. Shall we now invite Him into our hearts by singing softly:

2. "Into my heart
Into my heart
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus,
Come in today, Come in to stay
Come into my heart Lord Jesus!"

3. Poem.—The song No. 9 (Mennonite Hymn Book) by four juniors each having memorized one verse.

4. Short talks by juniors:

a. Jesus King over Winds and Waves—Matt. 8:27
b. Jesus King of the Temple. Mark 11:15-19
c. Jesus Our King. Matt. 21:5
d. Jesus, Our King Brings Joy. Luke 19:37

5. Song—"Praise Him, Praise Him."

6. Bible Drill:

Ps. 10:16; Zech. 9:9; John 12:13; Isa. 62:11; Ps. 118:26; Isa. 33:17; Luke 19:38; Rev. 19:12; Eph. 5:5; Matt. 21:9.

7. Close the meeting by playing the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah on the Victrola, or sing "I Am Thine, O Lord."

8. Leader's closing prayer.

CORRESPONDENCE

TABOR CHURCH, GOESSEL, KANSAS

On Dec. 29 we had our Annual Meeting. Elections were held for the various officers. It fell to my lot again to continue as church secretary and correspondent for the church papers. Some difficult problems had to be solved. Will mention two: the language question and the yearly membership fees. The young people complain they cannot understand the German. For a number of years we have had English Sunday School classes and an English sermonette for the children. Now the classes are held in English, except six adult classes and two primary classes, these scholars are of pre-school age. This does not seem to be enough. So we have decided to divide the sermon into half English and half German for this year. We hope that by this arrangement everyone will be blessed. The church membership fees do not seem to come in very well. Some members must be exempted, others again must be reminded to do their duty.

My dear Mother died Jan. 22. She suffered much and she was ready to meet her Lord. We hope to meet her again over there.

On Feb. 5 Missionary W. F. Unruh was our guest. As he had just returned from India, he visited with his mother, who lives here, for a few days. The family had gone to Pawnee Rock. Rev. Unruh related things from the Mission field.

On Feb. 16 a Business Meeting was held. Bro. A. J. Schmidt was elected deacon. If he feels he can accept the office, he will be consecrated soon. Our wish is that he be installed for life. That is the custom in our church.—Rev. G. A. Linscheid preached on Feb. 19.

Last Sunday the adult S. S. classes were not held, to give everybody a chance to listen to the catechism class. There are 15 members in the class and two have asked to be baptized. In the evening Sister Frieda Kaufman spoke to the Senior Endeavor. She related some experiences of her life as a nurse.—D. S. Thiesen.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, MADRID, NEBR.

The Lord has been gracious to us. We were able to hold our yearly business meeting, arranging our work program and electing the new officers for the year. All our departments are working again. Sunday school and worship service every Sunday morning, Christian Endeavor and a short service every other Sunday evening. Beside this work we have a class of twelve for Biblical instruction.—From Feb. 6 to Feb. 19 Rev. John Esau was with us, holding evangelistic services. He gave very inspiring messages, dividing the word of truth. Ten young people came out to accept Christ as their personal Savior. And we all were greatly blest and strengthened to go forward with new courage in the work for the Lord.—The pastor and Bro. Esau visited all the houses during the two weeks. Bro. Esau led a Bible reading course in connection with the meetings. The total chapters read were 1408. May the Lord's blessing rest upon the work.

The weather is still winterly but not very cold. We have had three light snowfalls between Feb. 24 and March 6. The ground is still frozen and the wheat does not show green yet. Light attacks of flu are felt here and there. But so far no serious cases have developed. Spring must be just around the corner, because people are moving these days. March 1 is the date for tenant to change from the old home to the new home.—Your Corr.

ENID, OKLAHOMA, MARCH 3, 1939

The youngest church of the Western District is the Grace Mennonite Church at Enid, Oklahoma. It was nearly four years ago when a group of Mennonite families of our faith assembled in private homes for worship and fellowship. These four years were trying times, for it is not very inspirational to attend services when as few as fifteen are attending. But now we look back with joy and thanksgiving at these years.

For four years we have been worshipping in a dwelling house, which was very small and inadequate. Now work on the new church has been started. The new location is at the corner of York and Adams Streets. The structure will be of brick with full basement and adequate room for S. S. classes. The entire building is to measure 26 feet by 56 feet.

From February 6th to 12th Rev. A. J. Dyck of Inman, Kansas, conducted a series of evangelistic meetings at our church, by which we were all richly blessed. A fitting conclusion to these meetings was the solemn and impressive ground-breaking ceremony after the morning worship of February 12, at the building site of the new church. The service was carried out in the following order with our pastor, Rev. H. N. Harder in charge:

Scripture reading of Psalm 127:1 by Rev. Harder and prayer by Rev. A. J. Dyck; hymn—"The Work is Thine, O Christ our Lord" by the congregation; responsive reading of Psalm 24 by the congregation. Rev. Harder spoke briefly. He stated that "today our hearts are lifted up in joy and thanksgiving, because our desire to have a church building suitable for worship will soon become a reality. The building that shall be erected at this place shall not be a monument of our achievements and aspirations, but it shall speak of what God has done for us, and shall be a lighthouse for those who wish to come into his fellowship." Then followed a very solemn and impressive breaking of ground in which the following persons represented the various phases of our church work and each turned a spade of ground. Rev. Harder, as pastor, turned the first spadeful of ground and quoted Psalm 90:17 "And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us. And establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it." Mr. A. T. Mueller, representing the building committee, quoted Gen. 29:16, 19; Brother C. B. Schmidt, in behalf of the S. S. quoted Psalm 122:1; Bro. Simon Unruh, Pres. of the C. E. chose Isa. 58:12; Mrs. Simon Unruh representing the Women's Mission Society used Psalm 26:8. Rev. A. J. Dyck, Chairman of the Home Mission Committee quoted Exod. 33:15, "If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence." Rev. Harder offered the dedication prayer and Rev. J. Lichti spoke the benediction. All joined in the singing of the doxology.

Another blessed and solemn event of Feb. 12 was the ordination of Rev. Harder as elder. This ceremony took place in the Mennonite Brethren Church of Enid at 2 p.m. as follows: Processional—Hulda Reimer; Scripture and Prayer by Rev. H. U. Schmidt of Meno; address—"The Responsibility of the Pastor of the Church: Rev. P. C. Grunau, pastor of the Enid M. B. Church. He stated that a pastor is to be a watchman, he must be able to teach, to feed his sheep and lead them to green pastures. The ordination sermon by Rev. A. J. Dyck. He said that the minister must be called of God and that he must base all his works upon the power and love of God. Ordination of Rev. Harder by Rev. Dyck, assisted in the laying on of hands by the ministers present. Rev. Harder made a brief response, based upon John 21:16. Dr. Marshall, dean of the local Bible college, gave a forceful address on "The Responsibility of the Church to the Pastor." He stressed financial support, cooperation with the Pastor, regular church attendance, and prayer. Miss Phyllis Unruh gave a reading entitled "Hold Fast". Very appropriate music was rendered by two male quartets and one mixed quartet. Rev. Lichti and Rev. John Baergen led in prayer and benediction.

On February 26 four people were received into the church. They are Brother and Sister Simon Johnson, Walter and Elda Ewert. The attendance in S. S. during the past months has been very good. We have on the roll about 80. We are happy for the arrangements the conference is making to have a new church and all that has been done here for this church. May we be a real blessing to our Conference and the cause of Christ.—Elmer Unruh.

Self-made men. A half-drunken Congressman once staggered up to Horace Greeley and exclaimed, "I am a self-made man." Horace replied that he was glad to hear it, "for," said he, "that relieves God of a great responsibility.

Good Reasons for Tithing

1. It is Scriptural—approved of God in the Old Testament and supported by Christ's word in the New.
2. It is a good start in the individual's life of giving.
3. It is spiritual, for personal faith is called into play.
4. It is businesslike, for there is a definiteness, progressiveness and system.
5. It is a crushing blow against selfishness.
6. It causes the giver to take the initiative in Christian giving, rather than holding back one's response until the money appeal is made.
7. It commandeers all alike in quality giving.
8. It frees the church from the disgrace of deficits.
9. It enables the church frequently to plan for an enlarging work.
10. It safeguards the spirituality of the church by eliminating drives for money.
11. It establishes the individual as a financial steward, accountable to God.
12. It gives confidence in the practice of prayer.
13. It awakens thought as nothing else, regarding time and service for God.
14. It elevates worship to the high plane of rounded-out sincerity.
15. It makes giving a great principle and no longer a spasmodic expression.
16. It is likely to result, as it has with many others, in our giving being more than a tenth of all our receipts.
17. It means less of the comforts and pleasures of life that money can purchase, but the power to enjoy those that are left is expanded.
18. It creates in our lives a commanding position over others in the matter of giving. We can use the most effective weapon of example.
19. It makes us twofold before God — our hand held out to give, as well as receive.
20. It destroys the denomination of circumstances.

—Notice to Readers and Contributors! THE MENNONITE of March 21 is to be a MISSION NUMBER. As the Mission reports crowd the paper for space, contributors whose articles do not appear as they would otherwise are asked to be patient.

—East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.—The new minister, Rev. Harold Burkholder, sends us a pamphlet embodying their annual report. It lists 152 active members, 15 inactive. Rev. W. S. Gottshall, former pastor, served until March 27, Rev. P. J. Boehr had charge for 13 Sundays. Since July 14 the new pastor has preached 30 sermons. There are financial reports of the Church Treasury, Building Fund, Cemetery Maintenance Fund, Y. P. C. E., etc.

— More thoughtful pastors have again remembered us with copies of their year books, namely those of the Berne, Indiana; Hoffnungsau, near Inman, Kansas; First, Newton, Kansas; Allentown and Upper Milford churches, Pa.

— The Berne Church is still overwhelmingly the largest one in our conference. The pastor of this congregation is Rev. C. H. Suckau, D. D., while Reverends Joel and Marvin Lehman are listed as not in active service. Eleven members of the church are active in foreign and home mission work. The membership was 1221, increase during 1938 by baptism and otherwise, 54; decrease 36; on Feb. 1, 1939, there were 1239 members. Sunday school enrollment 1461, teachers 53; members of C. E. societies 561, of Sewing Society 530. Receipts for Foreign Missions, $6925.55; for Home Missions, $1514.53; for Sundry Benevolences, $2,991.71; for Church treasury, $4797.53; Women's Miss. Society, $929,21. The per capita tax for male adults for 1939 is $5.00, the tax on all property owners, $1.50 per $1000.00.

— The Hoffnungsau Church, reports a membership of 378 at close of 1937, now of 382. Sunday school attendance was 255, which is good for a rural church. The Reverends A. J. Dyck, C. H. Voth and A. M. Gaeddert are the active ministers; D. D. Unruh and Peter Flaming serve when needed, and Abr. Ratzlaff lives in retirement. The total receipts of the church were $4,976.38.

— First Church, Newton, Kansas, has a total church membership of 555, with children and young people 829. Sunday School enrollment is 582, with 29 teachers. The ministers are J. E. Entz, Abr. Warkentin, and Bernhard Regier (not in active service.) Grand total of all receipts by the church and auxiliary organizations was $7037.56. The church has Senior, Young People's and Junior C. E. societies, a Senior and Junior Church Choir, a Mission Sewing Society and a Mission Study Circle.

— Mennonite Church of Allentown, Pa., Rev. H. G. Nyce, Pastor, with H. S. Kummery and Menno S. Sell as deacons. The membership is 153. The church treasury has received $2,416.16, the S. S. treasury $1,050.89, the Deacon's Mission report was for $521.16. Bro. Thomas W. Close is president of the Brotherhood.

— Upper Milford Church, Pa. — Rev. Nyce is pastor and Monroe S. Geisinger is deacon. Membership is 180; Church treasury receipts $1,747.28; Mission receipts, $364.84; S. S. Receipts, $231.75, plus $55.00 for For. Missions. The Church has a cemetery fund of $3,514.36.

— Sunday, March 12, the men's tri-club of Freeman, composed of 55 voices, will give a program of sacred music in the College auditorium. Among many interesting numbers they will sing Handel's Hallelujah chorus. The proceeds of 15 and 25 cents admission will go to some Christian enterprise.

— First Church, Bluffton, O. — The Men's Bible Class of the Sunday School has an enrollment of 42, with an average attendance of 30. Interested in mission work, their White Gift at Christmas was $75.00 and $21.00 for religious education. Their report closes thus, "Let us never forget that the man who serves lovingly, so that other lives may be saved, is truly giving himself. We pray that we may learn the grace of giving."

— Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr., March 3.— "Rev. John Esau and family are with us and will close a two weeks' series of evangelistic meetings on March 5. From here they intend to go to South Dakota. Sickness is going around among the older people. D. A. Janzen, age 72, was laid to rest last month. John C. Janzen passed away March 1, aged 68. Cor. Janzen, formerly of Hillsboro, Kansas, is also on the sick list. His son Peter of Hillsboro, Kans. and C. C. Janzen from Milwaukee were here to visit him. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Schmidt are back from Buhler, Kansas, from Mr. Schmidt's father's funeral. At present we have snow on the ground. At places there are four feet drifts. The catechism class numbers 18.

— Mountain Lake, Minn. — Abraham Penner, father of Missionary P. A. Penner and A. A. Penner, recently had his 90th birthday. A group of about 70 guests were present to honor the nonagenarian. Reverends John Bartel, P. J. Friesen and Corn. Wall paid tribute to him. Miss Mary Bargen read an original poem, written by her father, I. I. Bargen, reviewing the story of Mr. Penner's life, and there were songs by children and grandchildren, also recitations. In 1905 Mr. Penner made a world tour as far east as Japan. He also made a trip to his old home in Russia. He is still in the best of health. His father lived beyond the 100 years mark.

— Hoffnungsau Church, Kansas. — Rev. Abraham Ratzlaff, former elder of this church, 88 years old, is seriously ill at his home in Buhler. He is suffering from heart and liver trouble.—Alvin Reimer, song director of the church, also music instructor and band director in the Inman, Kansas, high school, who had to undergo a very serious operation, is slowly improving at the Grace Hospital, Hutchinson, Kansas.

MISSION NUMBER

Foreign Mission Board Report

Meeting held Feb. 21-23, 1939, Newton, Kansas

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

The meeting was opened with Scripture reading and prayer. The president P. P. Wedel read Acts 1:6-9, and pointed out that the same power from on high was necessary and available for us today, the promise being made expressly for mission work. Then followed a season of prayer. All members of the Board were present: P. P. Wedel, M. Horsch, H. G. Nyce, A. P. Waltner, A. E. Kreider, J. E. Regier, and P. H. Richert. The Executive Committee of the Women's Missionary Association were also present: Mrs. R. A. Goerz, Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Mrs. J. E. Kaufman, and Miss Elizabeth Voran, besides the Field Secretary, H. A. Fast, and part time the missionaries August Ewert and W. F. Unruh.

Brother Nyce, who had just come from a visit from Arizona, brought greetings to the Board from the missionaries there, and Bro. Unruh from India.

The treasurer J. E. Regier read his report.

Other Expenses	400.00	83,412.95
Balance in Bank, Dec. 31, 1938		$ 1,323.97

1. Resolved, to accept the treasurer's report with thanks, especially since the work is done gratus.

Montana

Reports of the Montana field were discussed first.

2. Resolved to accept the following budgets:

Lame Deer: Native help	$100.00
Current Expenses	380.00
Total	480.00
Busby	160.00
Ashland: Interior painting	25.00
Current Expenses	200.00
Total	385.00
Grand Total	865.00

3. Resolved to grant the regular furlough to Brother and Sister Habegger this coming summer.

4. Resolved that they also visit churches on the way, and take as much time for it as is necessary.

5. Resolved to offer Sister Marie Buller $20.00 a month for half time service in direct mission work.

6. Reolved to continue sister Gibb's salary for another year.

7. Resolved to reprint the Petter pamphlet (English) with the understanding that opportunity be given to revise and enlarge it. (Number of copies to be printed 500 to 1000).

8. Resolved to approve of Prof. Riffman's suggestion regarding Brother Petter's writing his autobiography, and having it printed at no cost to the Board.

9. Resolved to allow one half of Brother Habegger's auto bill, $130.40.

10. (a) Resolved to allow Brother and Sister Petter a furlough this year. (b) Resolved, to allow one-half of Bro. Petter's auto bill, $92.10.

11. Resolved to instruct the secretary to report to Mrs. B. K. Petter, that we regret on account of present circumstances not to be able to allow $1000.00 for the trip to Europe.

12. Resolved to allow the trip expenses for Brother and Sister G. A. Linscheid to visit Montana for the 35th anniversary of the beginning of the work there.

13. Resolved that a Board member be also present at that celebration.

Arizona

14. Resolved to accept the following budgets for Arizona:

Moencopi	$ 78.00
Hotevilla	106.00
Oraibi	575.00
Total	$759.00

15. Resolved to allow Brother and Sister Henry A. Kliewer at Oraibi $10.00 a month for their valuable assistance to Brother and Sister Suderman.

16. Resolved to allow $20.00 expenses for the visit to Arizona by a Board member.

17. Resolved to instruct the secretary to report to Mr. Duffy of the Santa Fe R. R. our board's vote of thanks for the courtesy in granting passes to our missionaries and board members.

18. Resolved to grant Brother Suderman's request for a furlough this year.

19. Resolved to ask Brother A. E. Kreider to visit the Arizona mission field during the coming year.

20. Resolved to allow one half of Brother Schirmer's auto expenses, $100.00.

21. Resolved to allow the following budgets for Oklahoma:

Oklahoma

Cantonment (Longdale, Fonda, Canton):
Current expenses	$300.00
Native help	$100.00
Language study	50.00
Total	$450.00
Clinton (Hamon and Thomas):
Current expenses	$300.00
Native help	725.00
Total	$1,025.00
Grand Total	$1475.00

22. Resolved to report to our missionaries in Oklahoma, that the former resolutions to sell the Fonda and Cantonment mission properties, at acceptable prices, are still in force, and we ask them to report to the Board the offers they receive. This is done with the view to have the missionaries move from Cantonment to Canton.

23. Resolved to ask Brother Toevs to study the language for which we have allowed $50.00.

24. Resolved to authorize Brother Benno Toevs to officiate at baptisms and communions until he will be fully ordained.

India

25. Resolved to allow the following budgets for India (leaving it to the Workers on the field to make the adjustments) $16,500.00:

Basna	Rs. 11,976
Janjgir	9,408
Mauhadei	18,546
Champa	4,492
Korba	3,423
Medical Station	5,441
Total	Rs. 52,286

26. Resolved that we accept the resignation of Brother and Sister W. F. Unruh from the mission in India with deep regret, and that we express our sincere appreciation for their faithful service in the cause of Christ in India.

27. Resolved to report to Brother S. T. Moyer (since we find nothing in the India conference report that they have approved his plan for short term workers) that we do not see our way clear to approve it.

28. Resolved to pay Brother W. F. Unruh $2.50 a day and expenses when he visits churches.

29. Resolved that Sister Kuehney's resignation stands as accepted.

30. Resolved to hand the name of Brother P. J. Wiens to the Placement Committee for temporary service in some church.

31. Resolved to pay Brother and Sister Wiens half salary for this year, and allow him for surplus deputation work last year $2.50 a day.

32. Resolved to leave the passage arrangement for Brother and Sister Moyer to Brother Moyer.

33. Resolved to allow Brother Moyer's traveling expenses of $24.68, visiting churches in Pa.

34. Resolved to allow the following budgets for China:

Brown	400
Fast	50
Kuyf	50
Voth	500
Pannabecker	100
Total ($10,635.00)	Mex. 42,540

35. Resolved to grant the Voth's furlough this spring.

36 Resolved to return the Ewerts to China this fall.

37. Resolved to take John Warkentin in view to fill the call from China, for a doctor in China, within about 4 years.

38. Resolved to permit Brother Voth to continue the solicitation begun by Sister Goertz, but only for X-ray and light plant.

39. Resolved to send Brother and Sister Marvin J. Dirks to China this fall.

40. Resolved to instruct the secretary to get in contact with the nurses Kathrine Hildebrand and Hanna Jantz, and ask them whether they would consider a call to the mission field.

41. Resolved to give our approval to both constitutions for the China mission field.

42. Resolved, in view of the third class passage taken by the outgoing missionaries, we allow their traveling bills as presented.

43. Resolved to ask Brother Lester Wuethrich to spend another year in Bethel College, for which we will advance him $300.00 without interest, with the intention of sending him to China in 1940.

44. Resolved to send either the Moyers or the Ratzlaffs to India this fall, besides Orlando Waltner.

45. Resolved to report to Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, that the board proposes to send Brother W. F. Unruh to the Northern District Conference in June.

46. Resolved to ask the Exec. Committee of the General Conference to publish the resolutions concerning outside visitors into our churches.

47. Resolved to leave the matter of Homes for Missionaries on Furlough in the hands of the Exec. Committee of the Women's Missionary Association, with power to act, in cooperation with the B. C. school authorities.

48. Resolved that the secretary draw up a list of suggestions for our missionaries doing church visitation.

49. Resolved to thank the Kansas State Bank authorities for the use by our Board of their fine committee room to hold our sessions.

50. Resolved to thank all our mission friends, churches, C. E. Societies, Sunday schools, special supporters, and especially the Women's Mission Association for their continued, faithful and effectual support of the work. We make special mention of the publication of the News and Notes, which no doubt had much to do with the splendid report that could be given at the last General Conference for the past three years, in which some $54,000.00 were collected for missions.

51. Resolved to praise and thank the Lord for his sustaining grace and the continued open doors even in China, in spite of war and turmoil. We thank the Lord that the income last year just about covered the expenses, so that on the basis of last years income we had faith enough to allow a total budget for this year of $85,803.80. May the Lord strengthen this faith and our faithfulness as Board, mission friends and churches. May the spirit of prayer and sacrifice continue, and increase, for the work and the workers, their health and their spiritual power.

52. Resolved to adjourn.—Brother Horsch led the closing prayer.

c. Special offerings	774-10-3
d. Sunday School offerings	338- 5-6	Rs. 4,662- 5-3

The most noteworthy thing to be reported about the field is that the English Baptist Mission asked us to take over responsibility for the remainder of Phuljhar Zamindary, which has more than doubled our Basna area, as also the population, which includes several Baptist Christian groups.

Added to this, the large number of baptisms here last year has increased the number of Christians around Basna by over 400.—The C. E. Work has grown fine through native leaders.—That the orphanages show no increase in the number of children, is a good sign. Many orphans find homes in Christian families, and widows in Christian communities more and more.—Lepers receive special treatments more than ever.—In the Leper church two deacons and two deaconesses have been ordained last year. A distinct advance.—While only at one mission station there has been a rich harvest of souls, we do not want to be discouraged. The harvest must come to the other stations too.

Special services and visits during the year:

The Colestrip Community Choir with a much appreciated program.—Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Moyer, India, gave an illustrated talk.—Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz and children from Kansas.—Rev. Schmidt from Meno, Okla.—Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Frey, former workers among the Hopis.—Rev. and Ms. Alvin van der Smissen from Kansas.—Guests from St. Louis interested in Indians.—Mr. and Mrs. Lindley and son, representing the Indian Rights Ass'n, Philadelphia.—The Hilty Trio of Bluffton, Ohio, gave delightful concerts.—Dr. H. A. Fast spoke to appreciative audience, including government employes.—Miss Emma Ruth, Reedly, Calif.

Value of property as before.—Suffered some natural depreciation, but improvements in bath room, and installation of stoker for furnace add again to the value.—Growth of trees, shrubs and lawn have greatly improved the looks of the station, and brought favorable comment.—The new Federal Highway to be finished this summer, was surveyed to pass the Mission Station.

The class of native evangelists was begun many years ago, including Vohokass and Yellowfox as members. It trains native Christians for pulpit service. They are drilled in reading the Cheyenne Scriptures and in giving its messages. These are carefully noted, and found in many ways to be better than those a white missionary can give, as they know their own people thoroughly and understand conditions.—The class numbers four men now, and the interest in giving the Word, as the only saving message for their people, is very manifest.

Birney

Church and house were built by P. A. Kliewer in 1910. Rev and Mrs. Habegger substituted one year, while the Kliewers were on furlough. Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Wiebe occupied the station from 1922 to 1923. Rev. and Mrs. Otto Pankratz served from 1923 to 1926. Since then the house has been vacant, and Frank Littlewolf of Lame Deer has conducted the meetings regularly for 13 years: He goes for the weekends, usually on his Indian pony, covering the distance each way of 23 miles in all kinds of weather. He has shown a faithfulness and dogged persistency that is very commendable. He visits the sick, gives baptismal instructions, buries dead sometimes, unless the missionaries at Lame Deer are called by phone. He conducts the services alone without help at the organ, in singing or otherwise.

Number of members received since the work was started — 50. Regular services throughout the year with rare exceptions. A small nucleus of Indians comes faithfully to the services. A government day school near by employs two teachers, and has an enrollment of approximately 35 children.

Value of property: Church and house have been kept in repair, but show some depreciation in value. Some work will be needed this summer, on account of leaky roof and fallen plaster. The house otherwise is roomy, and quite a desirable dwelling with plenty of sunshine, a fine Kalamazoo furnace, a malleable iron range in kitchen left by the Pankratzes. Views of the Tongue river valley and the Big Horn mountains in the distance lend a distinct charm to the location and offset otherwise the barren outlook of "grease wood" wastes, and undulating surface that can only be cultivated below the expensive irrigation ditch built and financed by the government. Sheridan is within easy reach.

Ashland

Chapel was built by Rev. P. A. Kliewer and dedicated in fall of 1917. Fine mission dwelling was built in 1921. Rev. P. A. Kiewer and family occupied the station from 1921-1924. Mrs. Habegger supplied for three months. Rev. and Mrs. Valdo Petter took up the work on Oct. 24, 1924, and Mrs. Valdo Petter is still in charge, assisted by Miss Marian Gibbs. Valdo Petter died May 6, 1935. The Catholics began work at Ashland some fifty years ago, and established a large boarding school, built a chapel, dormitories, large barns, conducted a High School for whites and Indians for a time. Practically every Indian in the district was baptized by them either in infancy or while at school. During the years of our mission station there, two have joined our faith and one, Bruno Twobulls is still living. At times he assists Mrs. Valdo Petter in the church services. Regular services during the year are carried on by Mrs. Valdo Petter assisted by Miss Marian Gibbs. Native evangelists from Lame Deer are sent to conduct services whenever possible. Children's meetings are held when possible, and a live prayer meeting has given encouragement. Mrs. Valdo Petter reports a better attendance, and a growing desire to hear the Word of God in the mother tongue, also a better understanding of her efforts in their behalf. In addition to the work among the Indians, there is opportunity to "let their light shine" among a large white population living in town and in the valleys leading away from Ashland.

Our Mission Literature

Dear Brother Richert:

Your card of Feb. 2, and letter of Feb. 9, addressed to Mrs. J. S. Schultz, Bluffton, O. was forwarded to me, as I am the new Secretary of the Literature Committee. The Mission Pamphlets available seem to be scattered.

Anna Stauffer Mission Studies — 10 cents each.

No. 1. Out of Print (must have been on China).

No. 2. Hopi Studies—Mennonite Book Concern has a few. Mrs. A. E. Kreider, North Newton, Kans. has about 36 copies and I have 16. (No doubt Miss Helen Fast, 134 Abby St., Fresno, Calif. has written to you for information on the Hopi Field, as the California S. S. and C. E. Union have as their project the assembling of material for a complete and up-to-date study of the Hopi Field.)

No. 3. Cheyenne Studies and No. 4. India.—Mennonite Book Concern has a few hundred of each of these.

Reminiscences of Past Years in Mission Service Among the Cheyennes, by Dr. R. Petter, including Two Life Sketches.—I have 7 copies and Mrs. Kreider has 7 copies.

Our Literature Committee has three large maps 25" x 36" of China, India, American Indian (Okla., Ariz. and Mont.) at 30 cents each. Small maps 8½" x 11"—four in a set—China, India, Oklahoma, Montana and Arizona, at 3 cents each, or 1½c in lots of 20 or more.

We have several typed programs at 15 cents each.

1. Family Life Among the Cheyenne Indians.—Mrs. G. A. Linscheid.

2. India Program No. 1.—Including The Cooperative Bank, Evangelism, Self Supporting Churches, God's Workshop, The Gospel, The Power of God.

3. India Program No. 2.—Articles by J. Thiessen, Mrs. Thiessen, Mrs. Paul Wenger, Mrs. Duerkson and Mrs. Isaac.

4. India's Mass Movement of Untouchables.—By Helen Nickel.

5. China Program No. 1.—Including a background of the study of missions in China. Our own mission history.

6. China Program No. 2.—Educational, Evangelism, Medical Work, Chinese Christian Church, Christian Congregation on our Field. If you care to look over these programs, Mrs. A. E. Kreider has a copy of each.

I have 8 copies of Miss Fast's article "Missionary Life, Our Area in the Firing Line," at 10 cents. I don't know where there is a larger supply.

Sincerely yours, Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander

HEAL—CLEANSE

By H. E. Dester, M. D., India

With the command to "Go" is the command of Jesus to heal the sick and cleanse the leper. Why, "Freely ye have received, freely give." As your representatives in India we are endeavoring to carry out this injunction of the Master. For your guidance permit us to submit the following figures, to speak for the hospitals, the Leper Home, and dispensaries here in India for 1938.

Out-patients	14,460
In-patients	1,500
Return visits	15,500
Cataract operations	122
Major operations (including catara)	236
Minor operations	522
Laboratory tests	3,358
Obstetric patients, mostly abnormal	44
Income	8966 Rupees (About $3250.00)
Average daily in-patients	40

This means that there were 40 patients in the two hospitals every day of the year, and some 25,000 treatments. Because the work in the leper home is of a different nature the statistics were not included above. There are over 600 lepers in the home at Champa, and always some at the gate and under the trees waiting to be admitted. Five hundred and twenty received injection treatment last year. At the out-door clinic 2379 injections were given. Sixty two were discharged from the leper home as arrested. Since the Home was opened in 1902, 3057 lepers have been in the Home, and of these 1416 have been admitted to the church. There are at present 369 Christians in the leper home. The leper work is a task which is worthy of every praise and commendation, a definite factor in the evangelization of India, and a concrete witness to the Love of God. The leper work has done much to lead the people of India to realize their responsibility toward the helpless and needy.

The above figures, of course, are only a small part of the picture. To tell the whole story would require volumes. These statistics say nothing of the blind who have been on the road three or four days, some to receive sight, others to be told there is no human help. Very little is said of the leper for whom we can do so little in the general hospital. Nothing is said of the work involved in ministering to the sick; the many to whom we are unable to give needed medicine and food; the joy of health and happiness restored; the heartaches and broken hopes where, in our limitations, we cannot give physical aid. Nothing is said of the many Bible portions and tracts sold; the many who hear the gospel message, and the frequency with which patients take the name of our Lord and Master. It is not uncommon to have 20, 40, and as many as 75 and 80 patients at the morning services in the hospitals.

The Basna hospital reports over 500 vaccinations for smallpox last year. It is an interesting sight to see 5, 10 or 20 mothers coming in with babies on their arms. They have come a mile, or it may have been 15 miles. Think of a town 15 miles from your home town, and a group of 10 mothers coming all that distance with a baby on the arm. Why should they come so far for vaccination when there are regular vaccinators to do it in their villages? That is another story. For interesting experiences the "Horse and Buggy Doctor" has nothing on us here in the mission lands. All we need is a scribe to put it on paper.

Last night I had an attack of fever. As I lay on my comfortable cot before the fire, temperature about 50 degrees outside, I had to think of our patients out in the wards, some on cots, some on the ground, others on cement floors, some had good bedding, others had a little straw and a few rags. Some were well fed, many not.

At Champa the new ward was dedicated during the Christmas holiday. At Basna the new wards are about ready to use. With as many as 70 hospital patients, the high mark to date, and accommodations for 30, something needs to be done. Our mission needs another American doctor. Basna needs an assistant doctor badly.

The task is His, the Lord of the Harvest. We stand at His bidding, to pray, to send, or to go.

Faithfully submitted, Chairman, Medical Committee, G. C. M. M., India.

FELLOWSHIP OF KINDRED MINDS

A. Habeggar, Busby, Montana

Fellowship in this world is found among all people. Companionship, friendship, comradeship are built about something that is held in common.

Some people habitually chum with folks who like to smoke, drink strong drink, or dance. Maybe they frequent the pool halls night after night, because they like this kind of pastime. Gambling with cards, brings many groups together because they are absorbed in it.

On a higher basis is the friendship, of those who group together around something constructive, something that develops body and mind and soul. Athletics, of all kinds brings many together. Study groups, interested in some line of study, find pleasure in getting together to improve themselves along certain lines of knowledge.

On the Spiritual plane Christian people find fellowship in prayer and Bible study and Christian activities. All true Christians like to have private periods of devotion, but they also enjoy the "fellowship of kindred minds." In unity of outlook, unity of faith, and aspiration there is much satisfaction. On the Mission field the Mission workers quickly sense the presence of a kindred spirit. It is a happy hour when such "kindred minds" visit together, pray for one another, pray and put their efforts together in a common cause, and rejoice together in enriching each other's spiritual life.

These periods of fellowship come to us in our office, in visiting Indians in their homes, in prayer meetings and in church and Sunday School. Mutual understanding, mutual concern, and respect come from the fellowship of Christians. A sense of unity, of oneness in Christ, is a great reward to all missionaries. We rejoice in this fellowship with Christian Cheyennes.

CANTON, OKLAHOMA, February 10, 1939

Dear Friends of our Mission:

It is my purpose to tell you about the third funeral I was asked to conduct, since our coming to Canton.

Little Junior Redhat, age three, died of Pneumonia, and I was asked to conduct the funeral. The text, which I felt the Lord gave me, was: "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Little Junior has entered God's kingdom; of this Jesus, our Savior, left no doubt. But to the older ones Jesus says: "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

After the funeral service sorrowing friends took a last look at Junior. It was very pathetic to see the close relatives, the father, an old aunt, and a grandfather bend over and kiss the little corpse, and break out into loud wailing. Then something else happened at the cemetery, which we, who were not as yet very well acquainted with Indian customs, will not so easily forget. While the burying had just begun, the kind aunt, whose duty it had been to care for the children ever since the mother had been a patient of a tubercular sanitarium, was fumbling a ball and a few small toy cars in her hands, as if undecided whether to keep Junior's toys or to thrust them into the grave as companions to the departed one. Finally, as a last favor to the little boy, she thrust them in.

A few days later I was asked to visit Mrs. Redhat, who had received leave of absence because of the death of her son, but had come too late for the funeral. On entering their home, which is a small tent, a picture of poverty, sadness, and serenity, were impressed upon me. A bed, stove, and a few boxes for chairs, was all I could see in the tent by way of furniture. The mother lay on her bed with a sad but surrendered expression on her face.

On questioning her, I could discover her belief in the superiority of God's thoughts and ways over ours. The husband, however, was not yet a Christion, so I thought. Therefore I asked him whether he believed that Jesus, who had died for the sins of the world, was also his Savior. To my and his wife's surprise he answered in the affirmative. And what was it that induced this bereaved parent to leave heathenism and become a child of God? His answers showed me that God had used this severe time of testing to win a precious soul for His kingdom. They were: "Junior's and my wife's illness, as well as the desire to meet my son in the beyond, were my reasons for becoming a Christian."

Mrs. Redhat has now gone back to the sanitarium, and her husband is a candidate for baptism.

Your daily prayers for this bereaved family, for the whole work of the mission, as well as for your missionaries, will be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
Catherine and Benno Toews.

Have you found your life distasteful?
My life did, and does, smack sweet.
Was your youth of pleasure wasteful?
Mine I saved and hold complete.
Do your joys with age diminish?
When mine fail me I'll complain.
Must in death your daylight finish?
My sun sets to rise again.

ORAIBI, ARIZONA, February 19, 1939

Dear Members of the Mission Board:

Greetings in the name of Christ the Lord.

The year of 1938 was one of the busiest years for us here in Arizona. We can also say that it was a blessed year. We can not report of many souls saved, although there were two who came to the conviction of the need of Christ. A mother and daughter from a group which is ordinarily hostile, gave splendid evidence of a changed heart. In October they were baptized. It is a joy and an encouragement to the workers on the field to come to the home of such new born babes and to find them reading the Word of God in the English as well as in the Hopi language. It has meant much for a soul who has so long groped in darkness and in idolatry, to realize that there is a God Who loves and cares for us. He is not a God made with hands, He is One who made us and knows all about us and supplies us with the things needful for this life. Furthermore, he has made provision for the future life; and so the Christian does not need to fear. One man said the other day, "We are very happy because we have Christ as aur Savior." In a testimony meeting yesterday others expressed their happiness in God and in Christ as their Savior. We also believe that the Christians in general have grown in their Christian life during the past year. During the fall we arranged for daily prayer meetings with Christians. From 9 to 10 in the morning we gathered in the church for worship. The material given them was solid food for them. It gave them a good start for the day. Through these meetings some of the sins came to light and could be dealt with. We as missionaries feel that God was in this. On account of the busy Christmas season coming, we had to discontinue it but feel that we shall try to have such prayer meetings again.

We were also privileged to have with us for one week Rev. John Entwisle, formerly a missionary to India, but now in Mr. Stokely's Mission. His messages were clear and simple, but deep and powerful. The Indians' attendance increased until the last day. We hope and pray that the seed sown will bear fruit in the lives of those who attended. Once a month we get together with the other missionaries on the reservation for a day of prayer. Great blessings are derived in this way.

Four times we were assembled to lay to rest Hopis who had died. One was Mary Honaptsi, a member of our church; a young man, the son of Tom Mootzka, was sent home from Phoenix; then Karl's sister, at one time a member here, but the last years a member of the Catholic church in California, was sent here for burial; and the last was Martha's baby.

We have with us at Oraibi a young couple, Rev. and Mrs. Henry A. Kliewer, from Bakersfield, California, who are giving their time and energy to the work. We have enjoyed their hearty cooperation and appreciate their help. Their main work is to teach some of our regular Sunday School classes, also the Wednesday night Bible classes and occasional preaching on Sunday evening. Besides this we asked them to open a Sunday School on the mesa. The attendance up to Christmas was very gratifying. At this time very few attend because of the cold and the many sicknesses among the Hopis. They also have a sewing class on the mesa, and most of the women in the village attend them. With Mr. and Mrs. Kliewer here, this makes it possible for us to visit Fred Johnson and Daniel Schirmers each month and to help them with the services. This makes for greater cooperation on the part of our native workers.

It was a great encouragement to us to have with us Brother Nyce from the Mission Board. While he was here we had much sickness in the homes. So we went to all the Christian homes and a few of the others and ministered unto them, even though it was only a few minutes. This visit, we feel, will make the burden lighter; for our Indians become broader minded when they meet other men of God and can thus appreciate the fact that there are Christians among the white people. It was an inspiration to them to have Brother Nyce pray with them and for them. We are grateful to him and to God for the sacrifice he made to come here.

On January 30, Mrs. Suderman submitted to another major operation which was successful. Dr. C. G. Salsbury at Ganado performed the operation. He is highly esteemed by the people in Northern Arizona and certainly could be very efficient anywhere. Still he gives his time and talent to serve God among the Indians. Mrs. Suderman has improved greatly and perhaps after another week will be dismissed. Having not taken any vacation during 1938, would it be possible to add or accumulate the weeks and take four weeks in a lower altitude this year? It is necessary to be in a lower altitude, especially for the strengthening of the nerves. The doctor advises it.

As to repair work in the various missions, we have spent some weeks at Moencopi shingling the roof of the whole mission. However, we did not do anything with the waterworks as yet. As soon as warm weather starts we shall work on that. At Oraibi we shingled the roof on the old chapel. With Mr. Kliewer with us, we want to repair everything else that has not been finished last year, in so far as we are able. With the coming in of the new budget money, we shall be able to improve the sight of the mission home at Oraibi, and perhaps to improve the drinking water situation. Our children are well. John Mark is making good progress in his school work. We are happy in the work.

Yours for the salvation of the Hopi Indians,

John P. Suderman.

ROMANNOSE SPOTTEDHORSE

With Christmas in the background and spring in the air, we take a backward look and see that the blessings of Christmas are still felt in our work. It seems everyone enters into the spirit of that great holiday and thus gives us an opportunity to reach the hearts of many who are indifferent at all other times. Our work is exceptionally demanding during the festivities, because we want every person, young and old, to know the true meaning of Christmas, rather than a mere celebrating with gifts and gaity. When it is all over, we feel repaid for our work, because many have responded and are drawn close to their Savior.

The old members of our Indians, who were middle aged when we began our work here nearly thirty-two years ago, are being called from this world one by one. Shortly before Christmas we buried Romannose Spottedhorse and soon after Christmas Homer Heap-of-Birds, who was an older brother of our first native helper, Alfrich Heap-of-Birds, who died sixteen years ago. Both were old and both were Christians.

In my last article to the Mennonite I wrote of the blessed departure of Mrs. Romannose Spottedhorse. This time I would like to write a few words about her husband's recent departure. He too was most eager to gain his eternal reward, after suffering many hardships in this sinful world. Like his wife, he had endured much torment by their foster daughter and her husband. If ever a man stood this in a brave, Christian manner, Romannose Spottedhorse did. He was robbed of all his personal property which was sold by them to buy liquor this wayward young man constantly craved. In spite of this and many other similar abuses, Romannose Spottedhorse provided daily for the children of this irresponsible fellow. At all times he returned good for evil and even willed part of his land to his foster daughter who always helped her husband in the deceitful dealings against her foster father.

Romannose Spottedhorse was a respected man in his own tribe. Even before he became a Christian and was baptized, he was an honest man and highly esteemed by his fellow men. We came in close contact with him, for they were our closest neighbors during the whole time we have worked here, with the exception of a few years, and the better we knew him the more we loved him. Our sympathy went out to him and his wife especially when both their children died, one daughter at the age of seven and the other a young woman with two children. Later these children also died. Thus we see his life was no bed of roses and it was no wonder he longed for his heavenly home. It was not hard for Mr. Ediger to find fitting words for the funeral sermon. We thank all the readers for their prayers in our behalf. The work is not in vain. May the Lord give us more faithful Christians such as Romannose Spottedhorse, his wife and others.—Mrs. J. B. Ediger, Clinton, Oklahoma.

WILL IT BECOME EASIER?

A number of years ago and far away from Janjgir a young man received definite Christian influence through a tract which was handed to him by an Indian evangelist. He was thoroughly awakened. He prized the pamphlet greatly and it changed some of his attitudes toward life very much.

He married, had daughters born to him but no sons. Quite contrary to custom he decided to educate them. How quickly children grow up. Jamuna, the older daughter, was intelligent and eager to learn and she passed from grade to grade in the village primary school. Even though the grandfather encouraged it, the father made no marriage arrangement for her. Instead he sent the younger girl along to school with Jamuna.

In the meantime in our Mission a beautiful girl was being supported through school by the Intermediate C. E. society of the Berne church. She became a teacher, she married a young man from the Evangelical Mission area, and because of financial struggles, taught every year since her marriage. It happened that when Jamuna was in her last year in the primary school, Grace Bai and her husband were sent to that village to teach. Only one other Christian couple lived there. They taught the girls in the school and they won the friendship of the father outside of school hours. Soon his interest in Christianity created grave difficulties for him in the home.

Besides the subject of our sketch, there are four brothers under the authority and mercy of the old father. They own land in common and are of fairly good caste. All oppose him because of his open interest in Jesus Christ and his progressive ideas; they have cursed and threatened him, and more than once torn or burnt his books. His greatest problem was how he could arrange to educate his girls further and bring them under Christian teaching?

Grace Bai and her husband had told him of the Mission girls school at Janjgir. He himself had once seen the Champa hospital and had been greatly impressed with the care which the sick received there. One night he secretly took his daughters away. He did not tell them nor their mother where he was going. He brought them by train to Champa and from there they came to the school. He was much concerned that none of his relatives find out where they are. Two things he desired: that they learn all subjects in school and especially learn of the Christian religion. Later he said it might be possible for him to become a Christian openly.

Since August, Jamuna and Saraswati have been living in the Boarding house and attending school. What sweet girls they are and how quickly they have taken on the ways of the Christians! No outsider could anymore distinguish them. They enjoy it here and are proud to be the first girls from their village to attend Middle School.

When the father brought them, he asked us never to send them home for holidays, until the hot season when school will close. Then, he thought, he himself would have the courage to be baptized. At Christmas time the fear that we might forget his request caused him to come again. He was so happy to see his girls and find them taking such joyful part in the Christmas activities. Jamuna made a beautiful picture as Mary at the Bethlehem manger in the pageant. "They are getting just what I want them to have," he remarked, "I will allow them to come here another year and at the end of that time it will surely be easier for me to become a Christian disciple. For the present we must not tell any of my relatives where they are. My brothers would persecute me more bitterly if they knew, and my father would disinherit me at once and drive me out of the house. In fact," he concluded, "it seems now that there will be no other way than for me to allow my daughters to complete their whole Middle School course, and then we may all be baptized together." But——— will it become easier?

How can we help this father realize that, "Now is the accepted time, today is the day of salvation." It will never be easy for him to confess Christ in his home and in his village. It will be terribly hard; you and I can not know all that it may cost him and others like him to become followers. The Holy Spirit alone can give him the courage and the wisdom to know when to do it. And where.

How we pray that his daughters may help him make this most important decision. They seem to be opening their hearts like fresh flowers to Jesus Christ. They seem so eager for all that is Christian and wholesome. May they learn that Cross-bearing is the sign of every true follower, whether old or young.

Will you join the band who are praying for Jamuna and Saraswati, the first Hindu girls to live in our Christian boarding school? Will you pray for their father in his village, where no girls are considered worthwhile educating even through the Primary School?—Helen E. Nickel, Janjgir C. P., Jan. 27, 1939.

GO THOU AND DO LIKEWISE

Thanksgiving was observed in the Bethesda Leper Home during Christmas week. On the south side of the Church sheets were spread on the ground, on which lepers deposited their gifts. Rice, lentils, vegetables, fruit, bakery, chickens, cash, etc., soon covered the large sheets. Sitting on one side we watched the lepers come to show their gratitude for what the Lord had given them. And oh, how much they have to be grateful for! Almost unnoticed a woman with a 6 months old baby came forward and deposited her gift. This woman was for years a leper inmate. Intensive treatment and good care gave her health again. She recovered from her leprosy. Likewise a young man became symptom-free. These two were later married and are now no longer leper inmates in this Home. They have a small shop from which lepers buy their provisions. After her silent prayer and after having deposited her gift on the sheet in front of her, I turned to her and said, "Lilmatti, why don't you give your wee baby to the Lord?" Quick as a flash, she replied, "I gave our baby to the Lord on the day that it was born." How many parents are doing this today?

Here I want to give a bit of my own lfe, because it fits in here. Readers will pardon this. During my first furlough in the U. S. in 1908 and 1909 my sainted mother was very sick of pneumonia. For days her mind was not clear. But on Sunday morning, while I was near her bedside, she suddenly opened her eyes and with a perfectly clear mind, said, "Were you not to preach in such and such a place today?" "Yes, mother," I said, "but how can I leave you when you are so sick?" With almost a bit of reproach in her voice she said, "My son, I dedicated you to the Lord when you were a mere babe, don't mind me." I thoroughly believe in child consecration.

FOOD FOR THE HUNGRY

In the spring of 1938 the suffering among our people was most acute. Eight out of 10 families went to bed hungry every night. The common food was kaffir corn mush with weeds picked up in the fields and new leaves from the trees mixed in to increase the volume. No bread of any kind was made in order that less grain would be used. As one Chinese said, "You use more grain when you eat bread."

For four months the city was occupied by the Japanese. Because of fear no shops were open during that time, not even grain was sold, so the people had to go to the towns several miles distant to buy grain. On the way home very often the man carrying grain or pushing a wheelbarrow would be surrounded by scores of women who would slash the sacks open with knives and then scramble for the grain. The women used this method because their families were starving and they seemingly had no other way of securing food. Or if the men were not attacked by women, bandits would hold them up and take the grain away from them, hence the great difficulty of getting grain.

Grain during the spring was three to four times its usual price. Wheat which at the present time sells for $1.50 a tou (35 lbs.) then sold for $5.80; corn, the common food of the poor, was $4.00 a tou, a price which is prohibitive in China, because the average man must live on $3.00 (Chinese money) a month. Can you imagine the suffering?

When the two Pannabecker men returned in March the suffering was at its height and the situation demanded that unusual efforts be put forth to alleviate it. Fortunately several hundreds of dollars (American money) had been sent expressly for poor relief.

The next problem was how to use this money. For in view of the disturbed conditions, lack of government, and prevalence of banditry any indication that large sums of money were available would have caused them at least to be besieged by hundreds of starving ones and possibly even be subject to robbery. After consultation with a group of responsible Chinese it was decided that relief be given in form of payment for labor done on suitable work projects. In the city the situation was a little more complicated due to "occupation," but even there some repair work was possible with relief funds. At Tung Ming during the three weeks the men were there, a wall had been put up around the compound to replace the one that had collapsed during the heavy rains.

Repairs were begun and hundreds of men and women were given work. The compound road was raised about a foot in the middle and rounded off to the edges. Good dirt was put on top and pounded down, so that now we have a hard surfaced clay and sand road well drained. Much repair work on roofs was done; one house for workers torn down and two built in its place; the old hospital inn which was used to house the folks accompanying patients had collapsed and was replaced by a nice building now used as a fourth class ward and for overflow when the hospital is otherwise crowded. A new gate house for the Bible School was put up to replace the old dilapidated buiding and the entrance improved. A brick screen was built just inside the entrance and on it was painted a large Bible with this verse, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Ps. 119:105.

Besides repair work relief was given to women. About one hundred were given cotton for spinning and weaving and a score of blind, dumb, or halt were given a dollar instead.

Of course, some difficulties were encountered in this attempt at relief. Some men worked and some did not. One of the men wrote at the time, "They like soft jobs, the softer the better. Pretty soon we shall have to put seats on the shovels like they did for the PWA or whatever it was." Then again there was the difficulty of getting materials at a time when every normal occupation was disrupted. Forty-eight wheelbarrows had to be sent 25 miles away for lime, the money being carried in a hole bored in the leg of one of the wheelbarrows to avoid the danger of loss from bandits sure to be met.

At the same time that relief was given a short religious service in connection with the roll call was held each morning.

During this time refugees, mostly women and children, crowded into the compound, the maximum number entertained being 1500. It was not uncommon to have twenty crowded into a single room. Some brought along their spinning wheels or odd pieces of furniture or perhaps a box and even wheelbarrows. These were crowded into rooms already filled. Cooking was done in kettles set up on bricks in the yard and the burning material stored under the beds. A short term Bible school was opened in order to give the refugees a chance to know more about the gospel which up to this time was only "hearsey" to many of them. Some of the women and children still tell how they attended Bible school last spring. While seeking shelter for their bodies they learned to know that "Jesus is a rock in a weary land,

A shelter in the time of storm."

1938 EVANGELISTIC COMMITTEE REPORT

(The Work for Christ)

Introduction: "And He is the Head of the Body" (the Church) "who is the beginning of the body, the first born from the dead, that in all things He might have the pre-eminence." Colossians 1:18.

Christ the Head, the Church and the Body, His body. He is the beginning, the organizer of the Church. How precious the Church must be to Christ. How much of our life is spent on the care of our bodies. I dare say nine-tenths of our life is spent in dressing the body properly for winter, spring, summer and fall, for work and festivities, resting it when tired, healing it when sick, sheltering it from rain and shine, wind, storm, snow and heat. The body is not its own, it belongs to the head, and is dependent on the head. Christ the Head of the Church, its Director!—That in all things pertaining to the Church, Christ must have the preeminence.

While I was preparing the report, and I realized that Christ was looking on over my shoulder when I wrote, I wondered about the expression on His face. Was it that of pleasure and satisfaction, or that of deep disappointment, sadness and pain? Had those whom He had called and those who were the assistants been as thoughtful and mindful of His body as possible? Had His body suffered from neglect? Ezekial 34; John 10; Matt. 23.—Where we have failed on this Thy body, dear Blessed Head, forgive, and grant that the future might find us all living so close to Thee, that our souls feel with Thee the suffering of Thy body.

General Conditions: The general conditions during the past year were so varied and extraordinary that it can well go into the annals of the Mission as the "richest period in experience in the history of our mission."

Since the hostilities started July 7, 1937, there have been draught, famine, earthquakes, floods, bombing, fighting, conquering of territory, guerrilla operations, cholera and malaria, leaving in its wake destruction of homes, villages, homeless folks, orphans, widows, and scattered families, etc.

Strange though it may seem, the work of evangelism and the work of the church have gone on, though crippled considerably outwardly. But God did a work in the hearts of men that is marvelous to record. Most always during meetings, bombing planes would fly over either just before, during, or after the meetings. The Sunday Schools, though the leaflets had ceased to come through, went on, using old materials. Likewise the church services, prayer meetings and women's meetings continued until the occupation, after which they all discontinued for a while. However, evangelistic work then took its place, and continued throughout the disturbances, in the mission and church compound. Country evangelistic work could not be carried on in some places, and discontinued altogether for a time because of the political conditions. It could not be resumed until late in spring or summer in some places.

It might be of interest to know in what succession the cities were taken. Taming fell November 12th, 1937; Nanlo, December 20th; Tsing Feng, December 22nd; Kaichow, February 11th; Ch'ang Yuan, February 13th, and Tung Ming in June 1938. Tsing Feng Kaichow and Ch'an Yuan fared worst, for they were taken, evacuated, and re-taken; evacuated again, and we can imagine the suffering of the poor harrassed people. The greatest suffering with the largest death roll was in Tsing Feng and Ch'ang Yuan, but it was here also where our leaders showed greatest courage and fortitude. They stayed with the folks in the compounds throughout the struggles.

There were only three missionary men in our mission this last year and these, the brothers Pannabecker and Mr. Voth, returned to the field, leaving Kikungshan, August 19th, and Aganetha Fast left Kikungshan September 8th. At that time rumors were already very disturbing. The two Pannabecker brothers left for Kikungshan with winter supplies on September 23rd, and Mr. Voth left on October 1st. A few of the leaders left a few days later. October 1st the first bombing planes came during the Suday school hour, the whole Sunday school fled into the dugout except one girl in her teens who showed no fear, and so we continued with the Sunday school lesson.

After October 12th, when there was very severe bombing of the north suburb of Taming, the leaders with families left in rapid succession, the men returning several times, but finally they also stayed away until after the occupation. However, one leader remained with the church up to two weeks before Taming was taken, and two Bible women did not leave until two days before the occupation. Nanlo and Lung Wang Miao had the most complete evacuation of leaders, being so near the river, and the church work there is still paralyzed, due to repeated disturbances. (Later: work at Nanlo, however, is returning to normal.)

Throughout the struggle the morals of those who remained in the different church and mission compounds was indeed marvelous. God's strength indeed was made perfect in weakness. Most of our leaders with families, approximately twenty-five, had fled to the southern end of our field, to Tung Ming. Here they at once organized, services were started, children's work carried on, and bands were formed to go out into the surrounding country. Perhaps never before had this part of our field been touched as at this time, and it should prove a great blessing to the people there.

Our three missionary men returned to the field in November, but the war zone was steadily moving southward over our field and so they left in December, Miss Fast going with them.

It is remarkable to note that only two leaders lost their lives, Mr. Li Ta Wei, Mr. Ch'en Fu Sheng, and a few Christians and inquirers, during this struggle, and comparatively little damage was done to our church and mission property. Indeed great reason for gratitude! It is nothing short of a mircale. God has been very good to His own in China. And it is also remarkable to note with how much respect the military regard the church, though some premises were occupied, there was little destruction. God had put a fear of the Lord upon them so that little harm, comparatively, came to the church people and the church property.—Cholera took one of our Bible women, Mrs. Tuan Je T'ing, Mrs. Chen succumbed to sickness this past year.

Another thing to marvel at was the courage of the leaders to return so soon after the occupation. As early as January many of the workers from Tung Ming felt their way back to their posts of duty. By the beginning of March most of the workers were at their respective places. The Pannabecker brothers by then had also succeeded in entering our field from the south and Mr. Voth and Miss Kuyf in April succeeded in entering from the north. The Misses Goertz and Fast came in during the first week in July, most of them being on the way several weeks, even months, before they reached their destination. And now by fall, our whole force of workers is back in the field. With the return of Rev. and Mrs. Brown there now is a force of eleven workers. Praise the Lord for this!

Evangelistic Work

Not much work could be done in the country, in the northern part of our area, due to bandits and guerilla operations. In the southern half of our field a remarkable work could be carried on in the country, so that in several villages instruction classes were going on, with as many as forty in a class. Mr. S. F. Pannabecker reports 756 inquirers registered in twelve classes in the southern half of our field, with 602 in regular attendance, of which 102 were baptized. Mr. Voth reports seven classes of inquirers with an enrollment of 418, of which 103 were in Taming.

However, evangelistic work was perhaps never before in our mission so simultaneously done as during this past year. Our workers were privileged to use their wings as never before, and show what fiber they were made of. They showed that they were able to use them effectively, even in the midst of a political hurricane. The lay people, too, carried on splendidly. For instance, at Taming, for 3 months, before and after the occupation, when refugees had crowded into the church and mission compounds, instruction classes were opened, refugees were divided into classes, daily services were held, children's classes organized. Even Christmas preparations were not lacking. This held true in other places like Kaichow, Fengku and Ch'ang Yuan, etc. Taming had about five to eight hundred refugees. Tsing Feng had seventy. Later there were added many new inquirers, so that around Christmas they had 300 in attendance.

Tent work was completely closed down, due to political conditions, as it was not found advisable to put up the tents. But the workers, both north and south, have gone out in twos and larger groups, to preach in the villages, and to strengthen new church groups.

Much evangelistic work was done by two Bible women at Taming in connection with the open air clinic work, reopened early in spring by Miss Kuyf. Many mothers and children who came daily for treatment of eyes, bowel trouble and sore, thus came in touch with the Gospel.

Church Work

During the summer months, in the southern half of our field special efforts were made to reach the church groups in the villages, for the cultivation of the religious life of the new and old Christians. Bands were sent out to the various church centers for a week or so to do some intensive work in these vicinities. In August a Retreat for all Kaichow workers and others who coud make it possible to come. Folk in attendance came away richly blest.

Daily Vacation Bible Schools had a large place in our area last summer. At Taming alone 160 were enrolled. In a total of 22 places 580 were enrolled with 24 volunteer teachers and 12 paid workers. The educational report has the figures for the southern half of the field.

Ideograph Reading classes also soon found a place and at Taming and Kaichow classes were organized in spring.

Young Women's Preparatory Bible School. This is a new project. Since the hostilities young women and girls have learned to come out of their seclusion. It was pathetic to see so many young women and promising young girls long for a little education and no where to get it. Since there was an empty building, a rebuilt barn, and all that was needed was to have it whitewashed, windows papered, a blackboard put up, unused desks and seats put in, it was opened October 3rd, with an enrollment of about 15. There is a promise of more after the winter clothes are made. We know this, if we had a room to board them, we would have quite a large school. It is a half day school. They learn, besides the three R's, home-care, hygiene, phonetics, singing, Bible, Church history and industrial work.

A Junior Church was recently opened in the south suburb which is very encouraging. There are about 40 in attendance.

A new feature in our Taming church is that the Sunday School services have been held in two places, while formerly these were all in the spacious city church building. The fact that folks have to have a pass to go through the city gates, and this pass is frequently difficult to get, also many do not have a pass, has made it necessary to have services in the mission home south of the south suburb. The home was overcrowded, people sitting on windowsills and colonnades and up the stairway. During the hot summer days and until way in fall they had the meetings under the shade of the trees beside the mission home. Then when the cold fall rains came, the little women's chapel, now used as a school, was used, but even though it was cold and rainy the meetings overflowed into the yard. So we were most happy to move into the newly erected chapel a few weeks ago, situated on the main street in the south suburb. This chapel holds about 250 and it was overfull to begin with. In the city too the meetings are better attended.

Lately in the north of our field we have also been able to do quite a bit of village work and definite plans have been made to open up the Home Study courses in the villages. Our hearts are filled with praise and thanksgiving that the work has opened up so marvelously after the struggle and inspite of repeated skirmishes in the northern part of our field.

Respectfully submitted,
Aganetha Fast, Chairman,
W. C. Voth, Com. Mem.
Sylvia T. Pannabecker, Com. Mem.

The cure for all the ills and wrongs, the cares, the sorrows, and the crimes of humanity, all lie in the one word "LOVE." It is the divine vitality that everywhere produces and restores life. It gives us the power of working miracles if we will.—Child.

REPORT OF HOSPITAL SUPERINTENDENT TO MEDICAL BOARD for year October 1937 to September 1938 inclusive

The past year has seen very exceptional conditions due to the Sino-Japanese hostilities which during the year under consideration, passed over our field. After the bombing of Kaichow and with the approach of hostilities last fall, many of our workers moved south of the Yellow River and with them members of the hospital staff. Having the staff at Tung Ming, we opened medical work there, and during the fourth quarter of 1937 cared for many patients in the daily clinic.

During this time the hospital at Kaichow was not closed as two nurses and a small staff of workers stayed here and carried on an out-patient clinic doing dressings and such work as they could.

In December the workers at Tung Ming decided conditions there would not likely be better than Kaichow and so returned to Kaichow. The hospital work was continued then with the regular staff but due to unsettled conditions and continual fear of hostilities the hospital was not opened for inpatients. In February plans were made to take in patients and about the same day the Japanese advance on Kaichow made this impractical.

In March, S. F. Pannabecker and I arrived back on the field after trying for weeks to get here. The Japanese troops had occupied Kaichow for over a month then and although conditions were becoming more settled many questions and difficulties arose. The medical work offered many opportunities at that time and in April we again opened the hospital for in-patients having several very urgent cases waiting admission.

During the second quarter of 1938 we were kept busy mostly with gunshot wounds. It was the period of Japanese occupation of Kaichow and most of our patients were gunshot or had other wounds. Bandits were plentiful in the surrounding country, due to the breakdown of civil authority and the severe famine conditions caused by the 1937 flood. It was a very trying time for people in the country, travel was difficult and dangerous and only those with severe injuries or illness dared venture out to the hospital. Hence our second quarter was characterized not by a great number of patients but by fairly severe ones with gunshot or other wounds—military surgery. It was during this period with many fractures and bone injuries and foreign bodies in wounds that we felt most keenly our lack of an X-ray and sincerely hope we will not be caught in such a situation again without one.

The third quarter brought a changed situation with the withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Kaichow and control again in the hands of Chinese. We saw a good wheat harvest and settled conditions again in the country. Patients came in greater numbers, many medical cases again, many more women and a number of well-to-do patients and a number from the official class. During the summer cholera became prevalent over China and we had a severe epidemic around, such as we have not had during my experience in China. Many, many cases were reported in all the villages around us and deaths were reported in large numbers from the country villages with no health organization to combat it. We gave immunizing injections to our hospital staff and most all mission workers and to many others from around. Altogether there were 112 cases seen and treated at the hospital with good success. Only a few did not recover.

During the past year the out station clinic work was discontinued, as travel in the country was not practical. The School of Nursing was also temporarily discontinued last fall and has not been re-opened, but plans are being made to open soon.

Summary of Hospital Work, April to September, 1938

Below is a tabulated summary of the number of admissions of In-Patients and days of care rendered by the Hospital:

Admissions to end of September

THE LAYMEN OF THE CHURCH

Leave it to the minister and soon the church will die,
Leave it to the women folks—the young will pass it by.
For the church is all that lifts us from the coarse and selfish mob,

Now a layman has his business, and a layman has his joys,
But he also has the training of his little girls and boys,
And I wonder how he'd like it if there were no churches here,
And he had to raise his children in a godless atmosphere?

When you see a church that's empty, though its doors are open wide,
It is not the church that's dying, it's the laymen who have died;
For it's not by song or sermon that the church's work is done,
It's the laymen of the country who for God must carry on. —Edgar A. Guest.

PLUCK WINS

Pluck wins! It always wins! though days be slow,
And nights be dark 'twixt days that come and go,
Still pluck will win; its average is sure,
He gains the prize who will the most endure;
Who faces issues; he who never shirks;
Who waits and watches, and who always works.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

HOME MISSION BOARD MEETING

The Annual Board meeting was held in the Y. M. C. A. Hotel, Chicago, February 9-12, 1939.

All the members of the Board—Toews, Baumgartner, Regier, Amstutz, Plenert and Neuenschwander, were present. Dr. H. A. Fast, Field Secretary of the General Conference, was also present. His recent and careful observations were a great help to the Board many times in making decisions. Every field and station was considered and it was found that the work was making progress in every place. The reports from them were the source of much praise and prayer by the members of the Board.

I. Several phases of work are of Special Importance

The visit the Board made to some places where Mission work was begun: (a) The work authorized by the Board located on 8917 Commercial Avenue, South Chicago, was inspected, and the community studied. The Women's Missionary Societies have designated this as one of their projects. Several of the Societies have sent in contributions toward this work. Rev. William Bryan Miller, a member of the First Church, a graduate of Moody Bible Institute, is leading the meetings under the direction of Rev. A. H. Leaman. Regular services have hardly been conducted long enough to justify the ultimate possibilities of this station. The Board has agreed to furnish a set amount for the rent, $17.50 per month, for one year. Much intercessory prayer is needed to make this field good receptive ground.

(b) As indicated in another article, we also visited the Mennonite Bible Mission, 4221 South Rockwell Street, on this trip.

(c) One other place in the northern part of the city was visited. Some work had been done here by individuals from First Church. The Board has not given any support to this attempt, and none was voted for the future. The Board felt that those who worshipped here, could easily find a church home in the immediate vicinity without any hardship.

II. Board Attends Morning Worship Services

(a) Rev. J. M. Regier and Rev. S. S. Baumgartner visited and spoke at the Mennonite Bible Mission. They reported a unique joint-service of Worship and Sunday School in a one period session. Everyone that comes to the Sunday Morning service, attends both the Worship or Preaching period as well as the Sunday School lesson study. It was felt that perhaps others might profit from such a one-service program.

(b) Rev. J. E. Amstutz and Rev. J. J. Plenert assisted in the service at First Church, 73rd and Laflin Streets. Since a flu epidemic was sweeping through Chicago, the attendance here was approximately half the usual attendance. The different departments of the church were found to be functioning quite well, the report was that the Prayer meeting was not as well attended as one would desire. Prospects are for a number of new converts to be received into the church at Easter time.

III. Loans Granted and Support Given

At the General Conference, the Home Mission Board was able to report several thousand dollars on hand. The Board feels deeply indebted to the Lord and to the doners for such fine support of the work.

During the period of time since the Conference, several churches that have keenly felt the need for renovating and enlarging their places of worship, or building new churches, have written in to the Board for loans and in some instances for gifts.

The amount granted for this purpose is: Gifts, $1,550.00 and loans, $2,950.00, total 4500.00.

Note—Just as I was writing this report for the church papers, the Treasurer of the Board sent me his report for February. Income from gifts, including $5.00 as a special gift totaled $803.39. Unless larger gifts come in in the future, we will be hampered in meeting the many needs for help. May we lay this matter on your hearts?

IV. Help Offered to Smaller Churches

The Board is definitely committed to the plan of helping smaller churches, in supplying speakers for Evangelistic services, or in conducting a Week of Bible Studies, or in supplying help to conduct Summer Bible Schools. Larger churches can arrange their plans according to their own wishes; smaller churches find such services a financial hardship.

If any smaller church would like help in the manner described above, feel free to communicate with the Secretary of the Home Mission Board.

V. Part Time Workers—Register, Please!

The Board hopes to be able to serve as a clearing house to find workers and also places where such individuals can labor for the Lord.

Therefore, we would be glad if individuals who are in a position to give some time during summer months for special church work as described above or for a longer time, to send in their names, addresses qualifications, and type of work desired.

By cooperating, the Board feels sure that we can be of mutual help to each other.

College, Seminary students and Bible students, who have had special preparation, are encouraged to write the Secretary of the Board.

Yours for a stronger, and more spiritual Christian life, and Church,

A. J. Neuenschwander, Sec., Quakertown, Pa.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS FROM HERE AND THERE

In Altoona, Penn., a railroad city, much work is always waiting willing hands. In this city the Pennsylvania Railroad has large repair and work shops. True, sometimes the papers report that so many were employed to go to work in these shops. Somehow the papers do not report when many were laid off. This is no complaint, simply stating a fact.

When many are unemployed, there is bound to be want and need. To meet this need, in a measure at least, some of our people have sent in clothing, in many cases through the local Needle Work Guilds, as follows: Perkasie, 120 new garments; Bedminster, 44 new garments; Quakertown, 100 new garments; Souderton, 102 new garments; Harleysville, 82 new garments; Deep Run, 1 box new clothing. The following places sent in used garments: Bally, 2 boxes; Allentown, 1 box; Souderton, 2 boxes of used clothing; Buffton, Ohio, 1 box used clothing. Many of these things are used in our District, and if the need is great they get help, whether they attend our Services or not.

In January, this church was able to report that they have so far sent $90.00 to the Budget and Home for the Aged of the Eastern District. Never before has this church done anything like this to support the work of the District Conference.

Miss Cassie Niswander, worker in Philadelphia, reports that a large part of her work consists of personal visitation work, when the Gospel is presented. To quote: "The reactions to the Gospel of non-Christian people is very similar to those of people in other cities where I have labored. Some are willing to hear, others mock. Many give excuses as they did in the time when Jesus was on earth. Children respond readily. Lately there seem to be some visible results from contacts with parents."

The scattered condition of the churches in British Columbia, Canada, and also the fact that some do not have regular ministers, makes it necessary to have one who looks after these isolated groups. Rev. N. W. Bahnmann, Sardis, B. C., is directed to do this type of work. When visiting Mission workers, as did Rev. P. J. Wiens in the latter part of the summer, Brother Bahnmann accompanies them over the field and in connection makes visits into many homes. He conducts many of the Annual Harvest Home festivals, Mission Festivals and Communion Services as Elder.

Rev. C. N. Harder, Rosemary, Alberta, writes among other things: "In November I visited in the Girls Home, in Calgary, Alberta, and conducted some services. In the time of fellowship with the young women, many questions came to light, some of which might seem quite new to many of the older people. This life in a large city is so new to many and here such a multitude of new conditions confront them in a social way, as well as new and strange religious viewpoints, that it is indeed bewildering."

From J. P. Wiens, Vancouver, B. C., we learn that the new congregation in Vancouver, is already mission minded and has done something about it. Each Sunday afternoon a service is held in New Westminster, B. C., about 15 miles from the city. There a group of about 25 adults and 18 children were found who did not have a church. At first services were held in private homes. Toward the end of November a "Salvation Army Hall" could be rented and so now the Sunday School and Worship Services are held in this place. The group is served regularly by the Bruedergemeinde, and Rev. Wiens of the General Conference, since these two denominations are represented among those that attend.

In many of our Canadian churches and church communities there is nothing spectacular to report. In these days only the extraordinary gets into the front page.

We rejoice, however, that we get reports of work faithfully done, of many miles traveled to minister to hungry listeners. Much time is spent in family visitation work and in giving careful and prayerful attention to the spiritual needs of the members of the family. Much time is spent in personal conference and "Seelsorge."

When the seventy returned, the Master told them, not to rejoice because of outward and visible evidences, but to "rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven." Luke 10:20.

WELCOME TO OUR NEW MISSION CHURCH

For some months the members of the Home Mission Board have been studying the background, history and accomplishments of the Mennonite Bible Mission, 4221 South Rockwell St., Chicago, Illinois. At the recent Board meeting, held in Chicago, February 9-12, the Board as a body visited the Mission Church and held a meeting with the Workers. The nearly self-supporting church and Sunday School deeply impressed the Board. The solid foundation work is bringing rich dividends in spiritual life. The Board acted favorably toward a request from the Mission to be accepted as a Mission under the General Conference. We trust that such of you who may pass through Chicago will visit this new station. We hope you will agree with the Chicago Church Federation Fields Committee that the "Mennonite Bible Mission, near 42nd and Rockwell, is in a position to be of real service, for the area does not seem to be overchurched," and include this worthy light house for Christ, in your prayers and support.

Read the whole article, and see what contribution this Mission has made to our General Conference. (Secretary).

Mennonite Bible Mission, 4221 South Rockwell St., Chicago, Illinois

THE MENNONITE BIBLE MISSION

The Mennonite Bible Mission was opened in 1917. Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Wiens who had been in Chicago Mission work previous to this time came to this community in 1916. They brought their own home here and for about a year helped along in other mission work in the city. During this time they were repeatedly asked to open a Sunday school in the new community. This was at that time a community of German and English speaking people. After two weeks of special prayer and fasting they came to the decision to open a Sunday school. Encouragement had also been received from Christian friends. The work was opened in faith and was supported only by donations of friends. The daughters helped in the work and also in the support. The Sunday school was opened in December 1917.

In 1920 the writer came to Chicago and from that time on has been helping in the work, first as teacher and worker with boys and for about fifteen years as Sunday school superintendent. In the early years of the Mission the Sunday school was held twice on Sunday to accommodate the boys and girls that came. In 1924 the Mission was rebuilt to provide better accommodations. The chapel now seats 90 people in the main part and about forty more in an adjoining room separated by doors which can be opened to allow it to be used as one room. Besides this, there are smaller rooms used for Sunday school and week day activities.

The work is among a moving population. At present the Polish people predominate in the community and the greater portion are Catholic; however, the Mission serves as a church in a large field. The nearest other church is a Lutheran church a half mile away. During the twenty-one years of mission work over one thousand scholars have been enrolled in the Sunday school. At present the average attendance is 112 on Sunday morning. Nineteen teachers and officers are helping. Sixteen of these are people living in the community. Three are from schools in the city. Our own teachers are added to the Sunday school through our Teacher's Training class.

A strong interest in Foreign missions has been built up through our connections with missionaries. This came about first through Mrs. Anderson, sister to Mrs. Wiens, who is a pioneer worker in Africa and whose visits here have always created interest in missions. Following this Mrs. John Thiessen (Elizabeth Wiens) went to India; Mrs. August Ewert (Martha Wiens) went to China. This gave further connections with Foreign mission work; resulting in more visits from missionaries. Both Mr. Thiessen and Mr. Ewert were also known at the mission before they left for the mission field. Later Roussell Schnell, one of our first Sunday school scholars and member of the church here went to Africa. This was a great blessing for us all here. Then Mr. and Mrs. Henry Toews (Mary Wiens) also went to Africa. This makes a total of five families closely related who are in Foreign mission work, besides several other missionaries who have helped in the work here while in training in Chicago.

Rev. Wiens passed to his reward in 1937 after thirty years of city mission work. The writer was ordained by him about a year before his death. Helping in the work now besides myself and Mrs. Neufeld (Catherine Wiens), are mother Wiens and two sisters Sara and Esther Wiens; and also a fine group of members of the church. The active membership consists of sixty persons. The activities of the mission will be described in future writings, the Lord willing.

Since we have been drawn into the fellowship of the General Conference through our missionaries, it seemed to us as the leading of God to unite with the Conference. We have, therefore, contacted the Home Mission board and were very grateful for their visit to the Mission and for their interest in the work. The mission has decided to make application to unite with the Middle District, as we already have our brother and sister George Dick (Helene Wiens) working in the Lima, Ohio, mission church in this conference.

We would ask for your prayerful interest in the work.

March 1, 1939 John and Catherine Neufeld.

PRAYER.—Consider how august a privilege it is, when angels are present and archangels throng around, when cherubim and seraphim encircle with their blaze the throne, that a mortal may approach with unrestrained confidence, and converse with heaven's dread Souvereign!—Chrysostom.

QUARRYVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA, January 13, 1939

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander,
Quakertown, Penn.

Dear Brethren of the Home Mission Board:

Greetings in Jesus' Name. Another year has passed into history. Joys were many but disappointments were also manifest. We trust that the passage in Ephesians 4:13 might become very real in our ministry and also to all you brethren. "Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

During the year the services were conducted as usual. According to my record seventy-eight sermons were preached here, forty-three prayer meetings conducted. Endeavor is made to visit members a few times a year, the sick are visited frequently, whether members or not. Of course contacts are made with people not now interested with the purpose in mind of getting them interested. In all departments of the work the interest seems to be about as usual. On New Year's day or rather the Monday following we held our annual business meeting, and practically all elections resulted in that the former officers were reelected.

During the year it was my privilege to serve in various capacities, speaking in a number of neighboring churches, also at the Home of the Aged, Smith Corner, etc. It is always a joy to be of service to others. None of our members were lost through death, yet, we had part in a number of funerals. As additional activities, besides the regular services and Sunday school, the Missionary Society is doing good work, the C. E. meets twice monthly, with usually good programs, organized classes meet monthly with few exceptions.

During the year the current bills were all paid as the financial report will show. As to our financial report, it seems to me, that too much is used for home consumption, outside of actual support of the ministry. Yet, I do not know just how to correct the difficulty. Heretofore, we received quarterly offerings for the cause of mission; now, the church has decided to receive monthly offerings for missions. The church council is to decide what rotation to follow.

Last Friday evening, Jan. 6, the Rev. Percy Crawford, pastor of the Young People's Church of the Air in Philadelphia, held a service in our church. I did not really sponsor the meeting but went with the church in sponsoring it for various reasons. We had a crowd, the church full to capacity. On Sunday evening last, Brother and Sister James Hall, missionaries in Virginia, spoke to our group. The attendance was good, the Hall's are members of our church. Besides these, Anna Swarr, missionary to China, under the China Inland Mission, is also a member here. Personally, I feel that our church is well represented in the cause of Missions.

May we herewith express the deep appreciation for the loyal support of the Board to us financially and otherwise. You have done by far more than we deserve and therefore thank you and the Lord for it. It is our prayer that the Lord will greatly increase our usefulness here during the year. May it be so. Best wishes to all the Board members, may we pray for one another. 1 Tim. 2:1-6.

Yours in the Bond of Fellowship,
Sylvan Lehman.

STUDENT WORK—Y. P. WORK—GIRLS' HOME CHURCH WORK—VISITING THE SICK CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION IN SASKATOON, SASKATCHEWAN

Our Church

In the year of 1938 our local Church was organized as a separate congregation. For many years we were a part of the large Rosenort charge. Now, that we are organized, we pray the Lord to guide and direct us in our independent church life. The regular services are held: Morning and Evening Worship, Sunday school and Young People's Society. Attendance at morning worship has come up to 95, while the evening attendance has reached 160. The Young People's program, when special efforts are made to have all: the working girls, and the students in the various institutions of higher learning in Saskatoon, and also the young people of our Church present, make a large gathering. Attendance has gone over the 200 mark. There are 105 members in the church and approximately 65 children in our Sunday school, besides the large Bible class for the adults.

The Girls' Home

In Spring the number of girls in the city dwindled to 40 because the farmers expected a good crop. These fond hopes were shattered by drouth, hence necessity forced many girls to return to the city for work. During December, 80 girls were employed in the city. Each Thursday evening we have regular meetings, when we seek to bring comfort, encouragement, and inspiration to them. The girls have access to a small library of books and many periodicals as the Bundesbote, The Mennonite, the Rundshau, and many other helpful papers.

The Month of December was especially busy with preparation for Christmas programs and visitation work to patients in hospitals.

On Thursday afternoon (the afternoon off from work), Dec. 22, at 4:00 o'clock, the group gathered in the basement of the Church for the Christmas program. The mothers of the city had prepared a fine Christmas dinner, with a Christmas tree and all the sweets that go with such a meal. After the dinner, the program was held. It was a truly festive occasion with appropriate Christmas carols, poems, declamations and an address. After this, greetings were read and small gifts were exchanged. Too bad such joyous occasions are so short!

Hospital Visitation Work

Hospital visitation work requires much time and effort, but it is rich in rewards. In December, I was asked to go to North Battleford, to visit 10 patients in a hospital for nervous diseases. Some were unable to appreciate the Christmas greetings, while others responded to the reading of the Bible and prayer. On Saturday before Christmas day, both hospitals in Saskatoon were visited and here again I declared the glorious message of Him who is called "Wonderful Councellor, The Mighty God, the Everlasting Father and the Prince of Peace." Small gifts were left with each one who had to spend Christmas away from home.

Condensed from a report by Rev. J. J. Thiessen.

OPPORTUNITY. — The race is not to the swift; nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and change happeneth to them all.—Bible.

SWIFT CURRENT, SASK., Mar. 2, 1939

Dear Friends:

I am writing the following short history and other information about the Swift Current Bible School, so that our mission friends may know what is being done and what our needs are. We hope that thereby all may gain a better understanding of this field, and may therefore, the more remember us in their prayers.

A. History of School

The school was opened in the fall of 1936 by Rev. N. W. Bahnmann in Swift Current, a city of about 6000 people. Two buildings were rented for this purpose, one for the boys and classrooms, and the other for the girls. The school was operated for 5 months, from about the 1st of November to the 1st of April. For the season of 1937-38 only one building was rented, since the church was then finished so that it could be used for classrooms upstairs, and for the kitchen and girls' quarters in the basement. This season, 1938-39, no extra buildings are rented. The church is being used the same as last season, and the boys are staying in our house, which is being rented, and in the house of a sister who has very kindly put one of her rooms at our disposal.

B. Attendance

Season of 1936-37: Average—26
Season of 1937-38: Average—22
Season of 1938-39: Average—15

C. Expenses

During the first season a fee was asked of $3.00 per month. For the second season the same fee was asked of those who were able to pay it. But, due to the complete crop failure here, none were refused, even if they could not pay the fee. During both of these seasons, financial assistance was received, and deeply appreciated, from the Home Mission Board. For the present season an attempt was made to put the school on a self-supporting basis financially. A fee of $7.50 per month was set. This considerably higher fee, together with poor crops, explains the decreased attendance. Had we operated on the same basis as last year, our attendance would have been much greater, because many young people desired to come but could not, due to lack of finances.

D. Local Assistance

During all three seasons, practically all farm produce and vegetables used have been supplied by donations. This fall nearly $200.00 in money was obtained from local donations. The community has most faithfully supported the work, both materially and with necessary labor. They do this because they believe in the great need of this school in southern Saskatchewan.

The students do all they can. One boy, faithfully does all the janitor work this year for part of his fees. The girls help our faithful cook—"Susie"—very cheerfully with all the kitchen work.

E. Teachers

Season of 1936-37: Rev. N. W. Bahnmann and Mr. Abram Shulz.

F. Subjects taught in two classes

(A) German Subjects: 1. Biblische Geschichte; 2. Grammatik: 3. Schreiben; 4. Exegese; 5. Bibelkunde; 6. Geographie; 7. Ethik; 8. Lesen; 9. Aufsatz; 10. Eschatologie; 11. Kirchengeschichte; 12. Sonntagschularbeit; 13. Katechismus.

(B) English Subjects: 1. Bible Doctrine; 2. English Bible; 3. Personal Work; 4. Scripture Memorizing.

G. Why the Staff and Community Believe this School is very Necessary

1. Because our youth is growing up with practically no knowledge of God's Word of Life. They are drinking at other fountains.

2. Because there are many Mennonite young people, and old, in and aroud Swift Current who need spiritual awakening and nourishment. We believe and know that these young people will make their influence felt in Sunday school, Christian Endeavor and other spheres. We already feel and see the fruit. Last summer we were able to have Summer Bible School for 2 weeks at 5 places. This was possible due to the Swift Current Bible School students.

3. Because we live in a chaotic world, and only a firm foundation in Jesus Christ and God's Word can save our youth and people from being swept away by the stream of apostasy and worldliness.

4. Because world conditions and worldly people form a challenge to the Christian Church to show forth Christ and witness faithfully for Him, to prove to the world by exemplary lives the reality of the power of the blood of Jesus Christ to regenerate mankind, and to show that Christ can solve all problems of mankind and that He is the only One who can. Our young people, if given an opportunity, will meet this challenge by God's grace, we believe most heartily.

In closing, may I ask all friends and believers in our young people to remember us before the Throne of Grace, that we all may be rightly guided and may be able to perform our duties faithfully, wisely and in complete harmony with His blessed will.

Yours in His glad service,
V. E. Nickel, Box 844.

WINTON, CALIFORNIA

In the Name of the Lord, Greetings:

The work in this field is rather unique, in so far as we are working with a group made up of various denominations. On the first of March it was seven months since I began to work here. There are a number of scattered General Conference Mennonite families totaling about thirty adults living in and about Winton. These have had no church affiliation in the past and their children are growing up without any knowledge of the things for which we as a conference stand. After repeated appeals for spiritual aid from these people to the Evangelization Committee of the Pacific District Conference, the matter was taken up with the Home Mission Board of the General Conference. This resulted in a call for us to come to Winton.

There was here a small group of Presbyterians keeping up a Sunday School with an average attendance, when we came, of eighteen. The average attendance now is about forty-eight, and the interest is rapidly growing, the highest attendance since we are here was sixty-three. There were no regular Church services when we came here, but the average attendance at Church now is about thirty-eight. The Presbyterians own the Church building, but with only three families as members of the organization it was impossible to maintain a minister. We therefore joined hands with them and followed the precedent of Psalm 55:14, "We took sweet council together and walked unto the House of the Lord together." There are attending the regular services at present, members of the following denominations: Presbyterians, Swedish Mission, Danish Lutheran, Methodist, and General Conference Mennonites. All these are regular in attendance and the Lord is richly blessing the work. Praise His Holy Name! We have tried to arouse a greater spirit of cooperation among the various groups of the churches. The first effort along this line was on Thanksgiving when four out of the six denominations joined in a Union Service. Over two-hundred attended this service. The whole community remarked that this was an "unprecedented" undertaking. Since then there have been several other similar efforts, all well attended. The other groups are the Old Mennonites, Holdeman (now Church of God in Christ Jesus), Mennonite Brethren, one small group known as the Koehn Mennonites, and the Adventists. Of these, all cooperate with the exception of the Holdemans and the Adventists. The Holdemans are the strongest group and then the Brethren, then the old Mennonites, all of whom have organizations and maintain ministers. But there are many who have drifted away from these organizations and go nowhere. By the grace of God we hope to gather in some of these or at least get them to go back to the Church of their choice. God is richly blessing our effort, but you can realize, dear reader, that the work is difficult, requiring much prayer, patience, wisdom from above, and tact. We need your prayers. We know you will not fail us.

Sincerely in His Name,
Dillman B. and Bertha A. Hess.

A Harmony of the Kings

A New Book by One of Our Own Bible Scholars

In about a week Dr. A. Warkentin will come out with his third book. At this time it is a study of the Old Testament, a HARMONY OF THE KINGS, something similar to the Harmony of the Gospels.

Every Bible student has difficulty in getting a clear conception of the Bible records on the Kings of Israel as given in the books of Samuel, the Kings and Chronicles. Brother Warkentin has grouped the information together in a chronological and in a comparative way. This adds greatly to the understanding of Hebrew history.

On a special diagram one can see with a glance when the respective kings ruled, how long they reigned, and which kings ruled simultaneously in Israel and Judah.

Of special interest is the correlation of the 23 prophets to the kings. The extensive outline will prove to be very helpful to any Bible reader.

It is a nice volume of 228 pages. The price in paper cover, $1.50, in linen, $1.75.

I have no hesitation to recommend this book warmly to anyone, especially to our Sunday School and Bible teachers. It will be a very welcome help to them during the third quarter, since our lessons for that period are taken from Kings and Chronicles. It is also invaluable for ministers and Bible students generally. I bespeak a large and ready reception for the book, written as it is by one of our own men and of a type of work that should be encouraged. May God bless its mission wherever it goes.

—The Editor.

PUBLICATION

ATTENTION, PASTORS, SOLICITORS, READERS! New subscribers to the CHRISTLICHER BUNDESBOTE or THE MENNONITE may have either one of these papers for $1.00 for one year or fifty cents beginning with the current or Mission Number to January 1940. Those subscribing for the MENNONITE for a dollar for a full year may have a copy of the YEAR BOOK, as long as the supply lasts, by adding 25 cents for it. This is a very valuable book which is easily worth 50 cents to anyone interested in the activities of the General Conference, its boards, the district conferences, churches, etc.

THE INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

Samples of our new INTERMEDIATE CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY were sent out to all churches, resp. Sundays schools, where we had the address of the Sunday school or church leader. Some very favorable comments are forthcoming on this, our new venture in the field of Sunday school quarterlies, locally, and even from a distance.

And the orders are coming in in encouraging numbers. Those already in call for a number approaching the 2,000 mark, at this writing, March 17, and more are coming. The nice, legible type, the handy pocket size, the attractive illustrations, and especially also the write-up and explanations of the lessons seem to meet the approval of those who have been heard from.

We had dared to hope that about 3,000 copies would be needed for this second quarter's issue, and we hope and pray that the good Spirit may direct the Sunday schools that have not yet ordered to call for a third one thousand.

THE (SENIOR) CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

Last quarter nearly 14,000 copies of this publication were needed. For the coming second quarter just 12,720 copies have been ordered thus far, March 17. Orders for more are likely to come in for two weeks yet.

The boards of Education and Publication deeply appreciate the splendid response that our Sunday schools are making to these publications. We thank them and particularly aso our Heavenly Father who is so signally blessing these our endeavors in preparing and publishing helps for the study of his dear Word.

The PRICE for the two quarterlies is the same:

Single copies, 10 cents per quarter, 35 cents per year. Five or more copies, 6 cents per quarter, 24 cents per year.

SAUL BECOMES A NEW MAN

Acts 9:1-2, 17-19

Topic: How Conversion Changes a Man

Introduction

We have a brief survey of the career and teachings of Paul in this quarter's lesson. We shall see some of the reasons for his being one of the most notable men of all history. In him are magnified the power and grace of God which could so marvelously transform him. Paul was the great pioneer in carrying the gospel to the Gentiles and securing for them acceptance in the fellowship of the Church. Paul's writings cover a wide range and have largely been the basis of Christian theology. God has used them in shaping the lives of great leaders. He first and most clearly set forth the doctrine of justification by faith. He was a man wholly consecrated to God.

Saul, the Enemy of Jesus vs. 1, 2

Saul's anger against Jesus and His followers expressed itself in vehement persecution even putting them to death. "Threatenings and slaughter" were the breath of his life (cf. 22:19, 26:10, 11). He had persuaded himself that he was doing right (26:9). A conscientious man can be thoroughly, sinfully wrong. Damascus had many synagogues and the Christian Jews, who still kept the Mosaic law, worshipped in these with the other Jews. Saul determined to ferret out those "of this way", the Christians, regarded as a peculiar form of Judaism.

Saul, the Arrested Penitent vs. 3-9

The Lord allowed Saul to go almost to his goal in his mad career. Then He put forth his hand and saved the believers in Damascus and won Paul as his "chosen vessel". The "light out of heaven", Christ's resurrection glory, at noon time (22:6), exceedingly bright, "above the sun's brightness" (26:13), arrested him. He fell to the earth. The Lord spoke to him, a startling question (v4), the question put to everyone today who is persecuting His people. Jesus identifies Himself with his disciples whom Saul is persecuting (v5). The convicted persecutor is ready to submit himself to Him whom he persecuted (v6). Those with Saul saw the light (22:9), heard the voice, but probably did not hear the message. Saul, who came to take the Christians in Damascus as prisoners, was led into the city, a blinded prisoner of the Lord.

Ananias, the Obedient Disciple vs. 10-19

Ananias was a ready instrument of the Lord's. He had a definite work for him to do (v11). God prepared Saul for the visit of Ananias (v12). He hesitated (vs 13-15) but God assured him that He had called Saul to a great work and that all was well. God in wonderful ways transforms bitter enemies into "chosen vessels." Ananias addresses Saul, the recent arch-persecutor, as "Brother Saul," a Christian brother (v17). Faith in one Lord had made them brothers. Immediately Saul's physical sight was restored, as evidence that God had sent Ananias to help him. Saul's spiritual eyes were opened to the truth concerning Christ through the power of the Holy Spirit.

How Conversion Changes a Man

Saul's conversion, judged from the results following from it, was perhaps the most important event in the history of Christianity. Its forces are more potent than all the armies of the earth. A genuine religious conversion affects the whole man. There is a change of intellectual conception. In Saul it meant a profound upheaval of his whole religious outlook. His past training taught him that righteousness lay in observing the Law and traditions. His Damascus experience revealed that it was attained through the power of Christ. The doctrine of justification by faith became a fundamental conception in Paul's teaching.

Christianity consists of doctrines to be believed, of an experience to be felt, and of a life to be lived.

JOTTINGS

—Missionary Rev. P. A. Penner sends us a very interesting article, entitled, "Go Thou and Do Likewise," which we shall bring in this issue of the paper, if space permits, if not then in the next. He says, "Ere this reaches you, you will have heard that Missionaries Mr. and Mrs. Frank have resigned and are returning to the States. This will mean that the Mission Board will have to hurry up and send reinforcements. We need a number of couples and certainly a good nurse.— We have celebrated Mrs. Penner's 58th birthday today (Feb. 15). We had some of our missionary friends with us for 'Zwieback und Kaffee,' and now we are going to bed. It is nearing 10 p. m. Tomorrow will again be a busy day. Indeed, every day is full of much work and—much worry. I could fill pages with problems that beset us on all sides."

—Mr. and Mrs. Willis Rich and family, who have spent the past six week at the A. A. Penner home (Mrs. Rich's parents), left for their home in North Newton, Kansas via car Wednesday (March 8) morning.—Mt. Lake Observer.—Mr. Rich, who was suffering from serious nervous disorders which resulted in a telling bodily weakness and a slight attack of paralysis, affecting his feet, had gone to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. for a thorough examination and observation for about a week. Then he continued with treatments under a Mt. Lake doctor for about six weeks. Being somewhat improved, he returned here with the family where they are temporarily staying at the home of Mr. Rich's parents. His mind is perfectly normal. It is hoped that a complete state of relaxation and rest will put Mr. Rich definitely on the road to recovery. They wish to thank their many friends most heartily for their prayers, for they are convinced that they have been of great help and comfort to the patient. Mr. Rich was director of Public Relations at Bethel College and shunned no effort, nor time, nor exertion in his zeal to serve the school, until it all became too much for his nerves. It's another proof of the fact that college administrative work is very nerve-straining. The Bethel campus is happy to have this good family back, and we hope and pray for Mr. Rich's permanent recovery, if God so wills.—J. R. T.

—The Largest Church in the General Conference is not the church at Berne, Indiana, as was stated in last Mennonite, which is our largest church in the States, but the Rosenort Church of Rosthern, Saskatchewan, which has a membership of 1561.

FAVOR BI-WEEKLY PAPER

A review of question 1 showed that a large number of those answering were in favor of a separate Y. P. paper.

Question No. 2 reads: "Would a young people's publication be most effective appearing weekly, twice a month, monthly, or every two months?" A bi-weekly was favored by 8 persons, a weekly by 4 persons, and a monthly by 2 persons. Some comments were:

"How often is of less importance than how good."

"For the present a bi-weekly should be enough. It can become a weekly later."

THIS AND THAT

C. E. chairman, wilt thou let slip uselessly away the sheet upon which you are to list all the young people between the ages of 15-30? This list is urgently needed by the Y. P. Committee. Send it in before the dead-line of April 1st.

The Instructor of November 1938 contains a beautiful peace song, entitled, "Triumphant Peace."

Arithmetic: A 10,000 ton cruiser costs $8,196,000. A student's estimated living expenses in college average $400 a year. The cost of the cruiser would pay the living expenses for one year of how many students?

Do you know that the Standards for a Mennonite Y. P. Society allow 5 points for a publicity department that keeps up a vital and immediate contact with the editor of The Mennonite Y. P. page, informing him of interesting activities or problems of the society?

Rev. John E. Fretz says, "Using our Y. P. Dept. of The Mennonite is without doubt the first and most effective step in uniting our efforts. We have hardly scratched the surface of possibilities along this line." Broher Fretz is a faithful contributor to the Y. P. page. Won't you follow his example?

COOKIE JAR

To those who talk and talk and talk
This proverb should appeal;
The steam that blows the whistle
Will never turn the wheel.

—Industrial School Times.

Points for Prayer:

1. Thank God for a Christ who suffered, so that we might have Life Eternal.
2. Thank God for the fact that suffering can be used as a means for saving souls and society.
3. Ask God to give us a deeper understanding of what suffering really means.
4. Ask God to give us the strength to suffer for our convictions and to suffer in a saving way for the misdeeds of others.

Questions for Discussion:

1. Can the Oriental teach us anything about suffering? If so, what?
2. What are some definite things for which Mennonite young people should suffer?
3. In what way is competitive business antagonistic to the principle of suffering, while it produces an untold amount of suffering?
4. Why is a nation not always justified in seeking to prevent all infractions of its honor and all infringements upon its rights?
5. How can I use my handicaps to secure victory?

Lesson Discussion:

Very probably the world had witnessed billions of deaths before it witnessed the death of Jesus on the cross. Billions of deaths had not ended in victories. Billions of lives had not been lived victoriously. Jesus lived a life and died a death which could result in nothing other but victory over death and sin. Out of the grave He arose. Soon the white lily of Christianity unfolded its petals over the world.

Through suffering Jesus brought life. His life and death embodied the principle of suffering. Through it He arose as the Saviour of man. Then as now suffering was a principle not dear to the world. Rome conquered, sought not to suffer. Suffering was far from dear to many of the Jews. Today the mad whirl of competitive life makes many scorn the idea of suffering. And the world marches on to death. Christians must suffer if they would bring life. Victory is not life, but life is victory. What is conducive to Eternal Life is conducive to true victory.

True victory is not achieved over others, but rather for and through others. As the other lives, you live. A doctor lives in the activities of a carpenter, a teacher, a mother, the health of whom he has restored with the help of God. Their accomplishments are his accomplishments.

Men now as ever are seeking victorious living. They set material goals. They cannot achieve them, and over them creeps a benumbing feeling of frustration. Life seems maningless. Different is the life of that person who sets as his supreme goal in life, the rendering of unselfish service to God and man. If endowed with any creative ability at all no one need meet frustration in such a life.

Today the world says that peace must come by victorious conquest. In fact there are many Christians who advocate the slaying of their brothers in order that a religion based upon the sufferings of Jesus, who would not resist, may be preserved. Senator Pittman and others are trying to make popular another "holy war". Something must be saved, however drastic the methods. To us Mennonite Young People comes the challenge of Christ to love and suffer. Christ and His followers achieve victory through love.

Call to worship

Christ is Risen!
Come, rejoice, 'tis Easter Day!
Lo, the stone is rolled away!
Empty lies his tomb.

Death has lost its bitter sting—
Ring, ye bells of Easter, ring!
Christ is risen today.

Lo, He comes to you and me,
Bringing immortality,
That we, too, may live.

Priceless gift from Christ our King!
Ring, ye bells of Easter ring!
Christ is risen today.
—Mrs. D. H. Dugan

Hymn—"Christ the Lord is Risen Today"
Prayer by leader
Reading of Sripture passage in unison. I Cor. 15:1-11
Challenge by leader

The simple straigtforward statements of Christ's appearances to his followers after his death are the best proofs of his resurrection. But what if the world does not read or is not willing to believe these statements? Those who consistently live Christian lives and testify to his saving grace furnish the positive proofs of Christ's living power.

We, as intermediates, must endeavor to live persuasive Christian lives.

"A smart young skeptic once occupied a desk near another young man, a Christian, and often flounted Christianity. His companion refrained from argument, but was always pleasant and helpful. After a time the skeptic met the pastor of his fellow worker and said, 'I want to join your church. I want to change my life because of the lovely and blameless character of my fellow worker.' "

Are we persuasive proofs that Christ liveth forevermore?

Hymn—"Crown Him with Many Crowns"

Thoughts for further meditation and discussion

What does the resurrection mean to us?

1. We have a Divine Savior—If he were only a human Christ he would have no power to save to the uttermost all who come to him. The crucifixion showed the depth of his sacrificial love; the resurrection testified to his power to save to the uttermost.

II. We have a living Savior—We cannot stop with the thought of Christmas one who died on the cross nineteen hundred years ago, we must also think of Him as our living Lord and Savior. This is the message he sent us through the Apostle John on Patmos: "I am he that liveth, and he was dead; and behold, I am alive forevermore."

III. The resurrection assures us of our own resurrection and immortality, "because I live, ye shall live also." Futhermore, we have this assurance for our loved ones, and, therefore, we sorrow not as those who have no hope, "but now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept."

IV. There are many arguments for the immortality of the human soul, good arguments and weighty, and many men believe in it who are not satisfied that our Lord did rise from the grave in his transformed body. But no one gets calm assurance of it so clearly as those to whom this fact stands unshaken in their faith. He is the first-fruits of them that sleep. We have always hoped that death did not end all. We cannot see the resurrection of our Lord clearly and not find our hearts resting on the assurance. As he lives, we shall live also.

V. The resurrection shows that Christ cannot be defeated. We have the promise that he is to return to the earth order; still, in a sense, deeply vital, he has never left it. He could not be killed out of life; he cannot be defeated.

VI. The resurrection indicates that God has seen the work of human redemption through to the end. He rose again to make his death an effective justification for sinners. Here at last is one who lets death do its worst and then calmly rises and conquers his conquerer! No wonder it stirred the first believers; it should stir us even more.

NOT IN VAIN

Hope we not in this life only.
Christ himself has made it plain.
None who sleep in him shall perish.
And our faith is not in vain.
Not in vain our glad hosannas;
Since we follow where he led,
Not in vain our Easter anthem:
"Christ has risen from the dead!"

Suggestions—Arrange to decorate your room with all availabe signs of spring. The room should be made lovely with flowers. After the meeting have a committee distribute these to the sick in your church and community.

If possible, have Holman Hunt's picture, "The Shadow of the Cross" in the front of the room easily seen by everyone. It is the thought of the artist to show that across the soul of Jesus at thirteen there fell the shadow of the cross. Christ remained loyal until that shadow became a true cross.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

CORRECTION: MENNONITE, March 14, 1939, JUNIOR CORNER, second column, No. 3, Poem—"The Song No. 9" should be "The Song No. 97," Menn. Hymn Book.

'HE IS RISEN' Luke 16:6
Program for April 9, 1939

Setting: Let us create the atmosphere of joy and gladness at this time of rejoicing over the resurrection. We might do this by decorating with candles and lilies. Or maybe it would be possible to use a large cross, set up in the center of the platform. Its framework of wire netting lightly covered with smilax, asparagus fern, or newly leafed branches which conceal the wires and a string of tiny electric light bulbs. While the Juniors sing some appropriate song, the younger children march across the platform, each pausing long enough to place one lily in the cross. An older girl (dressed in white) receives the lily and twines it in. Real lilies or well made paper lilies can be used. Then all sing "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and the lights are turned on. The effect is very lovely, even without the electricity." (I found this suggestion in "The New Century Leader," March, 1936)

I. Worship Period

1. Call to worship by quiet music.
2. Let the Juniors choose and sing together favorite Easter carols.
3. A prayer of thanksgiving for resurrection.
4. Bible Reading: 1 Cor. 15:41-49, followed by a simple talk by a guest speaker.
5. Carry out the above suggestion for placing lilies on the wire cross.
6. Song—Solo: "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."
7. Poem: Jesus is risen,

Risen, we say;
See where His children
Meet Him today.
Meet Him with gladness,
Meet Him with praise,
Meet Him with singing
Ancient of Days.

Jesus is risen
Out of the grave;
Jesus is risen,
Mighty to save
O let His children
Gadly believe;
Make our hearts ready
Christ to receive. —The Expositor.

8. Song in unison: "Low in the Grave He Lay."

II. Mission Minutes

1. The Easter story is being told to the ends of the earth. Let the Juniors name the countries in which we have missionaries.
2. Prayer of thanksgiving that this glad Easter message is being told to all people.

III. Study Period: Aim: To teach in a simple way the story of the resurrection and its meaning to us.

1. A Junior reads the account of the resurrection given by Mark. Mark 16:1-7.
2. Another Junior recites from memory the passages from Matthew 28:1-10.
3. Story: "The Walk to Emmaus" told by a Junior in his own words after studying Luke 24:-13-45.
4. Two girls recite from memory the twentieth chapter of John, the first, verses 1-10, the second, verse 11-18.
5. Song: All Juniors standing: "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."
6. Bible Findings: "Luke 24:6; Matt. 28:6; Matt. 16:21; John 14:19; 2 Tim. 1:10; I Cor. 15:55; John 10: 17, 18; Rev. 1:18.
7. Song of the month: "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" v. 1, 5, 6.
8. Leader's heart talk: "What the resurrection means to us," Closing her talk with a prayer of thanksgiving and consecration.
9. Sing softly, "My Jesus I Love Thee."

Note to leader: Plan some special surprise for somebody's Easter. A visit with gifts of flowers, or an Easter song for a shut- in. Our Juniors love to share. Let us help them.

CORRECTION: Under the article entitled "Clarification," page 9 in last MENNONITE, which should have set at rest the rumor that the Lehigh church had not paid in full $600.00 borrowed from the W. D. Conf. Building Fund, a serious error was made by the typesetter in using the negative NOT for NOTE. Quoting from the Conference minutes for 1928 to 1931 the treasurer's report says:

Page 1257: March 1, Lehigh Mennonite Church paid off $100.00
Page 1342: Balance of Lehigh church NOTE paid 200.00

This clearly shows that the full amount of $600.00 was paid to the Conference.

— Rev. P. P. Wedel, Pastor of the First Church of Christian, Moundridge, Kansas has kindly sent us a copy of their church Year Book, which is full of interesting data, as one would expect from his active church. The deacons of the church are: Jacob B. Stucky, John E. Goering and John G. Stucky; the correspondent, Daniel J. Stucky. The church has 260 resident members and 82 living at a distance, total 342. Besides a live Sunday School, the church has a Sisters Society, a Junior Mission Branch and a Y. P. Christian Endeavor Society. During 1938 the church has given for church maintenance $2431.16; foreign mission, $2398.03; home mission, $1055.17; schools, education and publication, $2084.20; relief, $831.60; total, including $2100 for church building fund, $11,722.25. What a splendid showing!

— Goshen, Indiana, March 9, '39.—I wish to thank you and Professor Harshbarger for the excellent series of articles on Jewish Persecutions. They are much needed. I trust that before the series is ended there will be one article with concrete figures to show that the Jews do not control Wall Street, business in general, the press, the radio, etc. as men like Coughlin maintain. To meet one argument I encounter frequently, I preached last Sunday on "Who Crucified Jesus?"—Matt. 20:18-20; Heb. 6:6.—G. S. S.

— Eicher Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa.—"The Dorcas Society observed World Day of Prayer with Mrs. Penner in charge. Evening of March 7 we were privileged to hear Rev. Lloyd Imhoff and his fiancee, Miss C. Ruth Brown, candidates for the Belgian Congo (Africa) mission field. Men's club held their second meeting in the church basement, March 9. Rev. Wm. Penner has arranged for weekly Lenten service on Tuesday evenings. Pastor's class of about twenty young people meets every Wednesday evening. Flu cases and other sickness, also bad roads, have cut down our church attendance."

— St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio.—Rev and Mrs. Jacob Unruh of Fortuna, Mo. visited his brother D. J. Unruh and family, and while here he brought us some fine spiritual messages.—Snowdrifts and sickness combined to bring S. S. and church attendance to the lowest point in three years, Sunday, Feb. 26.—A True-and-False Test! Is this false or true: 1. Menno Simon was the founder of the Mennonite Church. 2. The President of the General Conference is the head of the Mennonite Church. 3. The first Mennonite settlement in America was made in Germantown, Pa. 4. The General Conference of North America is held every three years. Answers: 1. False; our church was not founded by Menno Simons, he was an influential teacher in the early history of the movement. 2. False; the president of the General Conference is the chairman at its business sessions and of the Conference Ex. Committee, and his work is one of sacred trust and responsibility. Christ alone is the Head of the Church. 3. True; the Mennonites settled at Germantown, Pa. in 1683. 4. True; the last session was held in 1938 at Saskatoon, Sask. and the next one will be held in Eastern Pennsylvania, in 1941.—Church Bulletin, answers abbreviated.

— First Church, Allentown, Pa., Sun., March 5.—"This is Mission Sunday. At the For. Mission Board meeting the budget for 1939 amounted to $85,492.-38, but the Board decided to cut the budget. In doing so, the work of the various fields must suffer. Sending of new workers is limited, even though a strong plea had been made from India and China. The Board would gladly send more workers, if they only had the money. Let us PRAY and GIVE;"—From Church Bulletin.

— Mennonite Church, Summerfield, Pa.—"Our young people are busy preparing to present the sacred dramatic Easter Cantata, "Thomas and the Risen Lord," which is to be presented on Easter Sunday evening.—On Good Friday forenoon our church will join the Evangelical-Reformed Church in a union communion service. And on Easter morning a "Sunrise Meeting" will be held at that church, after which breakfast will be served.—We have been having plenty of rain and wheat is doing fine."—E. Basinger.

— From the Burrton, Kansas, Church we have a nice folder with a beautiful front-page picture of Christ before Pilate. The folder, among other worthwhile things, contains a program of evangelistic meetings to be given by Rev. Edward D. Schmidt, Wichita. The general theme of the sermons is, "Stepping into Christian Life," and the different subjects: "Seeing Ourselves as We Are," "A Life of Constant Struggle," "Choosing God's Way," "Abiding in His Presence," "Lo, I Send You Forth."

— The Ludlow Referendum Bill, though not what we Mennonites should like to see Congress pass, is perhaps the best that can be hoped for. As some readers may not know its provisions, we give them here: "Except in case of invasion by armed forces, actual or immediately threatened by an approaching military expedition, or attack upon the United States or its territorial possessions, or by any non-American nation against any country in the Western Hemisphere, the people shall have the sole power by a national referendum to declare war or to engage in warfare overseas. Congress, when it deems a national crisis to exist in conformance with this article, shall by concurrent resolution refer the question to the people.

— Bethel College.—Bethel's Volunteer Deputation group is giving two kinds of programs in various neighboring churches. One program is entitled, "The Story with Music." It consists of a talk, a reading, which is interspersed with vocal numbers by a trio. The other program, "The Chalenge and the Cross," consists of a skit which is presented by eleven actors and a reader.—The Bethel debating teams came out victorious in the recent Kansas Debate League Tournament.

— At the Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana, the rural high schools of the county will present their annual Easter cantata, Friday evening, April 7. They will make up a combined chous of 200 voices.

— First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Mark your date books, Thursday, April 14, and allow nothing to interfere that evening. Prof. R. A. Lantz will bring his Vesper Choir to the city. They will sing in our church at 8 p. m. The Second Church and the Germantown Church will join us. Let us make this a big night for Philadelphia."—Church Bulletin.

— The Town of Freeman, S. D. is to have a complete up-to-date sewer system at a cost of $86,401.00, of which the federal government pays $64,000 and the town only $21,873.00. The project will take two years to complete and will provide work for 40 men on relief.—Courier.

— Lorraine Avenue Menn. Church, Wichita, Kans.—Before us on our desk is a Church Program embracing all the every day services to be held in and by this church from March 1 to April 30, 1939. It is a very challenging program with a large variety of things. We may be able to say more about it, but for the present suffice it to give the Sunday morning subjects of the pastor, Rev. Edward Schmdt, up to Easter: March 5, "The Nails of the Cross" (Flesh); March 12, "The Nails of the Cross (Flesh); March 19, "The Nails of the Cross" (The Old Man); March 26, "The Nails of the Cross" (The World); April 1, Palm Sunday, "Victorious Love;" April 8, "Easter Sunday," "After the Storm." Included in the programs are the service at the Mission station on the west side of the city, which has a population of about 110,000.

— Dr. W. A. Doppler of New York, specialist in adult health education holds that scientific advancement in the treatment of tuberculosis has been so fast the past few years that the disease, discovered in its early stages, is curable, easily, cheaply, and is not a serious illness. "For the cost of building one battleship," he says, "give every person in the U. S. a test for tuberculosis, locate the 300,000 'spreaders' and wipe it out."

Meditations for 'Passion' Time

In following the closing events in the life of our Savior, we are rapidly approaching the time when He drank the cup of woe for our sins and transgressions. No human being can begin to fathom the terrible suffering and agony that the Lamb of God suffered in our stead. No earthborn individual can begin to understand the full meaning of the work he wrought in our behalf. The thing that before Christ unknown millions of human beings tried to do, namely to get rid of their burden of sins, and other unknown millions have tried to do since His days, He accomplished with that one supreme effort, His death on the cross. And now it is as the apostle John puts it so tersely, "The blood of Jesus Christ, (the Son of God) cleanseth us from all sins."

No more meaningful a statement, no greater truth than this has ever been uttered. It will take all eternity to reveal the full import of it. What is it that takes away our sins? It is not silver or gold. It is not through chastisement, nor fasting (though this may have its place), nor through self-inflicted tortures, as lying on a bed of upturned spikes. It is not through a full bath and scrubbing, for sin cannot be removed from the body like filth, it is part of us, it is imbedded in the flesh, in the heart. For 1900 years this great truth of the sin-cleansing power of Christ's atoning blood has been preached widely, and its actual, though miraculous working power, has been proven by numberless sainted believers, yet, the world as such, including much of Christendom, carelessly passes this remedy by or is blind to it. Indifference, lack of faith, love of the world's allurements stand in the way. As we think and meditate upon the priceless work of salvation, should we not pray, as never before, for a great spiritual revival in Christendom and a mighty working of the spirit of God in the hearts of men that they may see their sinful ways. The more we do this and go into mourning concerning it, the more we will enjoy Easter. Yes, a Christ that has poured out his life blood to take away our sins and a risen Christ that has conquered death, furnishes the remedy for the world's ever increasing ills. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him, should not perish but have everlasting life."

MEDITATION FOR 'PASSION' TIME

by J. J. Balzer

We are approaching the most horrible and dark night of the world's history during the passion week of our beloved Christ. That Good Friday of more than nineteen centuries ago was surely a turning point of time, when even the sun hid its face for three hours during noonday and an earthquake tore the rocks asunder. But there was another darkness that made the darkness really dark. Two statements of our Lord express this fact: a) "This is your hour and the power of darkness." b) "They have done unto Him, what they could." All the forces of Sin and the Powers of Satan exemplified their power. Things more serious could never have happened on this globe. Sin here established itself as most sinful.

But these facts are really not drawing men to Calvary. It is not this that deeply grips my heart, no, no! What draws me to Golgatha is the most beautiful ray of light and hope that pierces through the darkness of sin. The glorious sunray of the Grace of God, which arrayed the world since the memorable day. The intercessional prayer of the suffering and bleeding Christ upon the Cross gives this ray of light and hope its real brilliancy. By this prayer: "Father forgive them," He throws the "First-Fruits" of His Salvation into our bosom.

Three questions shall briefly lead us in our meditation of this prayer: I. What is the substance or sum of it? II. Upon what authority does it rest? III. What are the boundaries within which this prayer is answered?

I. What is the substance of this prayer?

Horrible things are going on on Mount Calvary! A corps of a mob from the underworld is storming the hill. The Power of Darkness is foaming blasphemy and hatred against the Holy One, the Christ, their Messiah. And, foremost, men who should be servants of holiness and righteousness are the principal leaders of mob-rule. But, my dear readers, without knowing it, they glorify the One on the cross instead of defying him. They think of pulling the King's crown from his bleeding head, but instead are lifting the veil from his majesty. Listen to their cries one by one! "He has helped others," they begin "but himself he cannot help." A better and truer testimony they could not have expressed. "He has helped others." Yes, thus we know him. Just so the nation experienced him. He helped where no one could help, where all human help and means failed. He opened the eyes of the blind, even the born-blind. He cured the lepers and the maimed, and even resurrected the dead. He was the great Physician and Helper and never failed. Yes, they extended a Noble prize to him by saying: "He has helped others."

"He has trusted God," they continued. Even this they had observed in him, when they saw him in devotional fellowship with God. Further they continue: "He has claimed to be the Son of God," thus testifying to the truth of his testimony which even the Demons expressed in their cry: "We know who thou art: the Holy One of God!" "Thou art breaking down the Temple and rebunlding it in three days, help thyself now," they cry. Even to the resurrection of their Christ, which Jesus had predicted, they thus testify. And not less they must admit to the fact that Jesus had entitled himself to be the "King of Israel," when they cry: If thou art the Christ, the King of Israel, so step down from the cross."

What have they accomplished through these terrible blasphemous accusations? They have broken the most beautiful "Jewel," to make its pieces more beautiful and establish its everlasting glory. Jesus hears it all. Oh, that we could at that moment see what moves his loving heart! But listen! His lips are moving! He begins to speak. What will we hear? "Woe unto you?" or "may God curse you!" Men might say this. But listen! "Father, take this cup from me" or "ease my pain." Does he say that? No, NO! He does not think of himself, He desires to empty the cup which the father has given him. He thinks of his murderers and prays: "Father, forgive them!" Mercy, compassion and forgiveness he prays for them. Shall we not at this moment bow our heads and hearts and worship?" Alas! What words from the cross, "Father, forgive them!" Not words only, no, what an act! More precious than all of the miracles of his active ministry. His face was radiant at the moment of transfiguration, but here it shines in God's personal glory. Father forgive! With these sacred words he takes his murderers to his heart, carries them to his father's throne and lays them down into his bosom to assure them grace. But this prayer, dear readers, does not only embrace the murderers present on Calvary, but it is uttered for you and for me and all the human race. It is the Mediator, the Bondsman, the Highpriest, better than Aaron, who prays on the cross.

II. Upon what authority does this prayer rest?

We read in Scripture: "Righteousness is the step to God's throne." Is this righteousness when he pleads for pardon for these law-breakers? Do we not read, "Cursed is he who does not keep all the words of my laws? Yes, and Jesus came to keep the law and not to break it. But why this authority? Why, do you not know, my dear reader, that Christ upon the cross became the curse for us in that he was made Sin for us, that he took the place of all these guilty murderers: The Righteous for the Unrighteousness, for he bears their sins (Isaiah 53). Abel's blood cried towards heaven, but Christ's blood speaks better than Abel's. He pays the debts for the Race, for he is Authority.

III. What are the limits within which this prayer is answered?

These limits are shown in the added sentence, "For they know not what they do." They did it seemingly consciously, but it was in a state of moral blindness and they could not extract themselves from guilt and punishment. But Jesus looked farther and deeper. If these men had known that the One they condemned was not only a righteous and innocent man but the Lord of Glory, they would not have crucified Jesus. But as they unconsciously sacrifice me they are paying the ransom for themselves, and they are making it possible that thou, father, without offense to thy righteousness, might extend grace and mercy to them. But these bonds of the prayer, father forgive them, for they known not what they do, are widening themselves the more and more, when we consider the Plan of God's Salvation. God's plans are world plans.

The Apostle Paul asks a most serious question in Romans 11:11-12, 15, thus: "Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come to the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world and the diminishing of them, the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fulness? - - For if the carting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?" (Please read verses 25-36 in addition.)

Even you and me Christ had in view when he prayed: "Father forgive them. The Riches of the world! Think! World reconciliation! That is the heritage that lies near the blindnes of Israel for us. And when the fullness of the Gentiles has come in, then the eyes of the blind shall be opened and all Israel shall be saved. Till then this poor scattered nation must bear the guilt of their fathers and their blood has drenched all of Europe through the past centuries. And the real woe of Jacob, their greatest tribulation, is still waiting for them. Praise the Lord! Their dying King, our Lord and Savior shall return and gather his Israel from all the corners of the earth and be glorified among them as King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Shall even we not forget to pray: "Father forgive them and also us? Amen.

"GOD"

Sermon Preached by P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, South Dakota, at the 50th Anniversary of the Founding of Bethel College

Introduction:

The interested visitor at the R. G. LeTourneau Factory at Peoria, Illinois, is impressed with seeing "the largest and most powerful tractor ever made," "the largest earth moving machinery ever made," and the "greatest profit-producing industry of the present national recession period." But infinitely greater than any of these is the subject of this message, "GOD."

We shall listen to the following VOICES declaring "GOD": I. The Voice of the Heavens. II. The Voice of Nature. III. The Voice of Men. IV. The Voice of God's Word.

1. THE VOICE OF THE HEAVENS

First Text: Psalm 19:1-2, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge."

A. Distance to the Sun

a. A bicyclist travelling 100 miles per day—if it could be done—would require 2550 years to travel from the earth to the sun. Beginning in the year 1 A. D. he would be about two thirds of the way to the sun now. b. A railroad train, travelling at 60 miles per hour—if it could be done—would take 175 years to reach the sun. Anyone wishing to buy a ticket for this trip at two cents per mile, would have to pay a fare of $1,860,000.00. c. A cannon shot, travelling at the rate of 2,500 feet per second—if it could be shot from the earth to the sun—would take six years to reach the sun. Any thoughtful person will be overwhelmed by the realization of these vast distances, that DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD.

B. Size of the Sun

a. If the earth (8,000 miles in diameter) could be placed at the center of the sun, the sun's surface would be 433,000 miles away from the crust of the earth. b. The moon is 239,000 miles away from the earth, so, if the moon were also within the sun and travelling around the earth at its customary distance, it would be only a little better than half way to the surface of the sun. Surely THE VOICE OF THE HEAVENS DECLARES THE GLORY OF GOD.

C. An Illustration of the Size of the Universe

Imagine the earth the size of the period at the end of a sentence, one fiftieth of an inch, equal to one twenty five billionth of its actual size. Then the distance to the sun would be 19½ feet, and the size of the sun would be two and one sixth inches. In the same proportions the distance from the earth to the nearest star would be approximately 1,005 miles. The distance to the Milky Way would be 23,380,000 miles, and the distance to the farthest photographed galaxy of stars would be about 81,830,000,000 miles. And by a bold scientific guess the diameter of the universe would then be 1,402,800,000,000 miles, according to a most illuminating article in the Atlantic Monthly of February 1935. Who can be indifferent to the majesty of the INFINITE GOD, THE CREATOR OF THE HEAVENS AND THE EARTH, in the contemplation of such incomprehensible distances.

D. An Estimate of the Size of the Universe

It is estimated that there are in the starry heavens 500 million million galaxies of stars, like the Milky Way. Each galaxy is probably 800 times larger than the sun. And the sun's volume is estimated at 1,300,000 times that of the earth. The diameter of the universe is estimated at six billion light years, one light year being equal to 5,880,799 million miles. With light travelling at the rate of about 186,000 miles per second we see the sunlight of eight minutes ago. We see the Pleiades (the Seven Little Sisters) of 500 years ago. And we see the Nebula in Andromeda of 800,000 years ago. Surely THE HEAVENS DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD!

(Other units of the sermon will follow in due time)

Our Choice Should Be Easy

Adolf Friesen

Let us get the proper perspective; let us evaluate fascism and communism for what they are, not for what they pretend to be, or what their devotees claim for them. Most of us reject communism as ungodly and regard it as directly in opposition to our American ideal of democracy. But there are many here in America, especially those with a German background, who are tolerant and sympathetic toward fascism. There are obvious reasons for this which on the surface warrant such tolerance. Here, for instance, is a report by the United Press that "Germany is unable to find sufficient men to carry out the work to be done. Today 6,600,000 more Germans are at work than in 1929, and men in the 70's are coming out of retirement to return to their old jobs . . . " etc. This apparently gives a very favorable picture of Germany's economic condition. Ardent Nazis speak enthusiastically about the wonderful things that Hitler has done for the German people. And has he not resurrected Germany from a downtrodden to a self-sufficient nation?

The German bureau of propaganda is making most of these facts, and we see the results of it here in America. The recent meeting in New York City, where 10,000 members of the "Bund" met to salute the Swastika, is evidence of the success of this propaganda. And the fact that fascism is gaining in popularity in a way that we who are interested in the preservation of democracy feel cause for alarm. But why feel cause for alarm when fascism has wrought such wonders in Germany? Here, precisely, is the danger. We see but part, the favorable part of the picture. Let us consider all the facts and it will not be difficult for us to make our choice.

In the first place Germany has met the unemployment problem, because under her compulsory military and semi-military conscription more than one million men each year are withheld from the labor market. (Is this an actual fact?—Editor). Furthermore, her armament factories work overtime to keep pace with her furious armament drive. Again, thousands of men are put to work to complete her western fortifications. And in fairness, we must add, that the drive for economic self-sufficiency has given jobs to thousands of people in other industrial pursuits.

Here, then, you have a picture of modern, ambitious Germany, tirelessly working toward the goal of unexcelled military strength. Field Marshal Herman Goering summarized it well in a recent speech: "Germany is one of the greatest powers the world has ever known and the German soldier is best of all. The strength of 100 million Germans of the future shall be such as to withstand all fatigues and hardships they may be called upon to bear. Young men will stream in double and three-fold numbers into barracks. We intend to use every one of them. It is up to us to keep and increase our lead."

Can we as Christians indorse a program like that? Surely this is a situation for serious thinking and weighing of values. We do not have to make our choice between fascism and communism as is often assumed. Both are totalitarian in aim and effect. They reject the fundamental decencies and safeguards upon which democratic societies are built. We here in America do not have to express our loyalty to one or the other of these two repugnant alternatives. We recoil from the thought that either fascism or communism might some day become dominant in America. Our choice should be easy.

But let us not judge the people of Germany harshly for they are the victims of circumstance. We must remember that we, too, have our sins and are therefore not in a position to cast stones at others. Let us rather ask God to preserve our democracy by helping us to put our own house in order, so that we as citizens of a great country may have a wholesome and uplifting influence on others less fortunate than we.

— The United States Senate has declared war on the war profiteers. Welcome news! Had it not been for the war profiteers, munition mongers and selfish militarists, the U. S. would sit pretty snug today and much of the present trouble in Europe could have been avoided. If Ex-President Wilson's "fourteen points" had been made the basis of peace after the World War it is hardly likely that there would be any dictators and totalitarian states.

The Church of Christ Goes Forward

The way the cause of Christ goes forward in India is both heartening and challenging. The church is growing—growing in grace and number. In our entire field this is evident, but oustandingly so in the Phuljhar area. The recent Hindustani Church conference at Mauhadih, in which church representatives from the entire field met, was pervaded by a spirit of venture and brotherliness. This filled our hearts with gratitude and gave us a great confidence in the future of the church in India. Nothing particularly stirring or exciting has happened, but the quiet, progressive and venturesome spirit was impressive and heartening. In Phuljhar the district church "sammelans," the semi-annual conference of representatives from the fourteen district churches in the Basna field, also have given evidence to the fact that the Hindustani church is ready and zealous to go forward with the Master.

In the Phuljhar area 225 people could be added to the Church of Christ through baptism in 1938. Several more small groups were ready for baptism, but the pressure of other things made it impossible to baptize them before Christmas. A very encouraging fact about this ingathering is that a large number of these people were won and prepared for baptism by lay people. Lay men and women, after a short period of training, were sent out to villages where they have relatives who were approachable. For this service they received about 70c-80c a week when away from home. The Lord has honored this type of evangelism with much fruit.

There is a Christian community of approximately 1800 in the Phuljhar area. These Christians live scattered in groups of about 45 villages. They are grouped in fourteen simply organized churches or congregations. This makes shepherding, teaching and discipline much easier. Several groups of new converts have not yet been organized into churches. The leaders of these churches are quite ordinary men who need constant guidance and inspiration, but they are doing a fine service in their humble way.

One of the most encouraging phases of church building in the district is the daily evening group worship. At a recent meeting of church and group leaders it was reported that in 24 villages the Christians meet regularly for daily evening worship with an attendance of at least 50 per cent of the group. In villages where they have a church building they usually meet there. Where they do not have a church they meet in a centrally located courtyard for the evening worship. To worship our Lord together with these humble village Christians has been an experience which I shall always remember as one of the precious experiences of life.

The doors are opening ever wider for the Gospel, and we should not fail to enter where the Lord thus opens the way. The 225 people who have come into the church last year enlarged by just that much the circle of relatives who are approachable. But these new Christians must be guided, inspired and taught how to witness for their Lord, and it is here where the need for more missionaries comes in. Then also, as already mentioned, the leaders of the church are very ordinary men who need constant guidance, inspiration and teaching. To the missionary pastor falls the task of upholding and strengthening these lowly servants of the Lord. Here again the missionary is needed. It is a fact that Christian people need to be guided and inspired even in their daily worship of the Lord. Our Hindustani friends are no exception. The daily evening group worship in the villages must be kept inspired and directed by a worshipping consecrated leader. Thus the wider the door for the Gospel opens in India the greater the need for new missionaries.—W. F. Unruh.

A LETTER WITH WORTHWHILE SUGGESTIONS

From a Veteran Minister, W. W. Miller

Pulaski, Iowa

In view of the fact that I am retiring, at my request, from the leadership of my dear people here in Pulaski, I am writing this little word concerning my ministerial experience, for the benefit and encouragement of those who may be preparing to enter into this greatest of all callings, either here or elsewhere. Since the day that I left the schoolroom, where I spent twenty blessed, and I hope fruitful years of my life, as teacher, for the pulpit, there has never been a time to my recollection when I ever regretted having responded to this high calling. A definite and unmistakable call came to me while acting principal of a High School in Millersburg, Ind., from the Mennonite congregation at Pulaski, Iowa. There are many details that would be interesting but time and space forbids. Early in May, 1897, I preached my first sermon as pastor here. My subject was "Jesus, the Light of the World;" and by God's grace I am still using that subject, in the pulpit and out of it. With the exception of ten years in Chicago, and Goshen, Ind., it has been my privilege to minister as shepherd of this little flock for over thirty-one years: baptizing them, marrying them, and burying them. Our going in and out among them, has been pleasant from the beginning to this hour. Always agreeing upon things fundamental and paramount. "In union there is strength." This has been the secret of our walking together these many years. I bespeak for any young man a blessed experience in the Lord who may be called to stand in the pulpit where I have received showers of spiritual blessings from a responsive people these many years.—W. W. M.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

April 9, 1939

PAUL PREACHES THE RISEN CHRIST

(Easter Lesson)

TOPIC: What It Means to Have a Risen Christ

Introduction

The time of this lesson is about fourteen years after Paul's conversion. He is now on his first missionary tour, Barnabas accompanying him. They have passed through Cyprus and have come north into Asia Minor to the city of Antioch in Pisidia, the home of many Jews. Paul and Barnabas, devout Jews, attended the synagogue worship on the Sabbath day and Paul accepted the invitation to speak. He reviewed the early history of the Jewish nation up to the time of David, and then passed over the centuries to Jesus of the seed of David, and presented him as the risen Christ, the Savior.

Paul Proclaims the Gospel of the Risen Christ vs 16-39

Paul sought the synagogue on the Sabbath for there he could meet the people and present Jesus to them. He came for this purpose and used every possible opportunity to further his mission. Here were assembled the devout Jews and also Gentiles who had come under Jewish influence—"ye that fear God" (v16). These were proselytes who had accepted Judaism, either in its entirety or only in part. All of them believed in the true God.

Paul made it plain that Jesus of the seed of David (v23) is the Messiah, the Savior, the Son of God. He is the one promised by God to the people. This Savior has already come. John, the Baptist, spoke of him as coming after him. God has now fulfilled His promise in sending the word of salvation to his hearers (v26). The Jews of Jerusalem and their rulers rejected the prophesied Messiah and prevailed upon Pilate that he should be slain upon the cross. His dead body was laid in a sepulcher, a proof of the reality of his death. God raised Him from the dead(v30), thus fulfilling the promise made unto the fathers (vs 32, 33). He also was seen by many after his resurrection (v31).

Paul preached a gospel of pure grace (vs 38, 39). Forgiveness of sins and justification can be attained only through the atoning death of Christ. Paul teaches the doctrine of justification by faith and not by the keeping of the Mosaic law. We are justified "in Him," "every one that believeth," "from all things," and as soon as we believe. The responsibility to accept this salvation rests upon each one personally.

The Christian's Triumph Through Christ

1 Cor. 15:19-22

Our Lord's resurrection is the pledge, assurance of the resurrection awaiting all Christians. In it lies our hope for eternity. Our faith is not in vain, nor is our hope limited to this life. Christ rose from the sleep of physical death, the first one. Death came by the sin of man, Adam; the resurrection came by the man, Christ Jesus. All may have eternal life through faith in Him.

What It Means to Have a Risen Christ

Paul strongly emphasizes Christ's resurrection which is the supreme proof that He came from God and is His Son. Paul is speaking of that which occurred recently. Paul had seen the risen Christ on the Damascus road. The risen Christ of the other world had become very real to him. Our salvation from the power of sin in this world depends on the living Christ.

Paul has a lofty conception of the importance of the future world. We are here for but a short time. Eternity stretches out before us. God did not intend that we should be saved for this life only. He promised us eternal life in Christ whose resurrection assures our hearts, gives meaning to God's promise. We too shall arise triumphant over death.

QUAKERTOWN, PA.

Dear Editor: In the last few months there have been several statements directed at the Bible School trained pastor. No doubt such statements are many times justifiable. However, I feel that we as ministers will never succeed in building up the Kingdom of God, if there is a constant feeling of ill will between us, along educational lines. We ought to thank God for every Seminary, College and Bible School pastor who is faithfully proclaiming the Word of God.

A Bible School training has given me a sound, fundamental, and Biblical message to bring to the people.

Secondly, it has given me a "passion" for lost souls.

Thirdly, it has given me a "vision" of lost humanity outside of Christ, who are eternally lost, unless "born again" from above.

As ministers, our chief concern should be to get the "gospel" out to such people, as well as building up the faith of those already "in Christ."

Therefore, if we have a real "passion" for lost souls, we will not be striking at one another, but will thank God that souls are being saved and believers edified, whether it be through a Seminary, College or Bible School trained pastor.

Beloved, let us work together in spreading the Gospel.

I remain, Sincerely yours,
Rev. H. D. Burkholder.

Nothing gives us a greater idea of our soul, than that God has given us, at the moment of our birth, an angel to take care of it.—Jerome.

SERMON SKETCH

THE COMPASSION OF JESUS

Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa.

"But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion for them, because they were distressed and scattered as sheep not having a shepherd." (R. V.) Matt. 9:36.

What was Jesus' attitude towards the great human needs of his age? There was, in Jesus day, perhaps even more so than now, great physical distress and suffering of body and soul among multitudes of people. Disease, suffering, disappointments, and physical wants of all kinds will always be the lot of man on earth. Alongside of this desire within man for physical comfort, there has been another need of even greater significance—the need of the soul which is never at peace until it finds God. How did Jesus meet these two great persistent age-long needs which stand in such close relationship to one another in this life, and which so vitally effect one another?

1. Jesus' Response to Physical Need

Let us first briefly follow Jesus as He comes in contact with some of the many individual physical needs of human life, as they are recorded in the 8th and 9th chapter of the Gospel according to Matthew. Note there, how immediately after the Sermon of the Mount, he comes in touch with some of the practical needs of human life. Crowds follow Him at once. A loathsome leper comes to Him, sure that Jesus can heal him, and Jesus does not disappoint him. No more has He entered Capernaum, when an army captain comes to Him, begging that He should heal his trusted servant whom He has left at home. Next a man of authority approaches Him, telling Him of his little daughter who has just died. On His way thither a woman ill for twelve years finds help by merely touching his garment. Then came two blind beggars whom He sent away rejoicing over restored eyesight. A dumb man possessed with a demon was brought to Him and he too was made "whole." To every one of these coming to him in distress for help he brought happiness.

Notice, that every one of these cases that came to Him for help, came because they had great faith that He could help them.

Then Matthew records that Jesus went about all the cities and the villages "teaching and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of disease and all manner of sickness." Multitudes followed Him everywhere seeking for help.

II. Do the Multitudes have Faith in the Christian Church today?

Today there are still the multitudes in distress for various reasons. We have splendid charitable organizations, hospitals and clinics, but there still is much physical distress, in the form of disease, poverty, the wretched and destitute millions in the war ridden areas of the world, and the millions of unemployed. Do these distressed multitudes of today have faith in the Christian church that it can help them in their great physical needs? Jesus had the kind of reputation which made people feel that He could do something for them. Is that the kind of reputation which made people feel that He could do something for them. Is that the kind of reputation the Christian church has today? Do the multitudes know it for a compassion that is kind and sympathetic?

III. The Deepest Need in the Realm of the Human Soul

Underneath the great physical distress which Jesus witnessed, he saw something in the faces of the multitudes which told Him there was another and far more important need than that of relieving bodily distress, important as that is. Their greatest problem was that of the soul—a spiritual need. He was deeply moved in compassion toward them, because he saw them as "distressed and scattered as sheep not having a shepherd." This phrase suggests that they had no one and nothing to depend upon. What is more pitiful than to see a man who has no strong faith to lay hold of, to lead him through some of the tragic experiences of life.

There seems to be no panacea for social wrongs. The problem of the human soul can not be solved by only changing the circumstances and the environment of a person. The facts seem to indicate that people of the privileged classes are no better Christians than those of the underprivileged classes. The greatest need is a profound spiritual renewal within. Jesus' compassion went out to the multitudes, because they had found nothing which brought peace and satisfaction to their souls. This is a striking picture of suffering multitudes in the world today. Can we instill a faith in their hearts that we have something to give them which is even more important than bread, although both of these needs are to be satisfied?

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHANY CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

Our congregation can report things progressing well since the last correspondence. A catechetical class of nine members is now being instructed, and will be baptized some time in the near future. A series of pre-Easter services has been announced, with the message to be brought by Rev. Olin Krehbiel, pastor of the Grace Mennonite church at Lansdale. The services will run from March 26-31, and the sermon topics are, in order, "Behold the Love of God," "Faith and Works," "The Christian Life," "Being Tested," "The Coming of Our Lord," "Behold Christ Stands at the Door."

Efforts are being made to have as many Sunday School members as possible pledge themselves to daily Bible reading and prayer. Recent promotions in the Sunday School have changed the classes somewhat, but generally for the better. The two largest classes are the Adult Bible Class and the Junior Bible Class, both adult classes, and it is encouraging to see the latter with the largest membership it has had at any time.

The Brotherhood of the church, formed within the past year, is now a going organization, holding regular monthly meetings for the discussion of various topics. The Ladies Aid Society continues active, as is also the Young People's Society, holding its meetings on alternate Sunday evenings. The midweek meetings are currently taking the form of the study of world peace, the booklet "Christian Peace," by Rev. E. J. Bohn, being used as a basis for the study.

The congregation, together with the other churches of the Eastern District Conference, is taking up the penny-a-day mite box project for the support of Bluffton College, and the response has been encouraging. Dr. Lloyd Ramseyer, the new president of the college, brought the message at a recent evening service, stressing the value of the college as an investment. The charge looks forward to the concert on April 11 by the Bluffton College a cappella choir of sixty voices, which is touring the East during the Easter season.

It is news when a couple reaches its fifty-eighth wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thatcher, formerly of the Flatland charge, and now of this congregation, celebrated that event on March 5.

EAST SWAMP CH., QUAKERTOWN, PA., 3-13-39

This past Sunday Rev. Addison Horn from Atlanta City, N. J., a graduate of the Moody Institute, started a two-week evangelistic meeting in our church. Due to icy roads and a light rain the regular attendance was not present. A wonderful spirit was shown by those who came. Rev. Horn used as his text I Cor. 9:19-22. Last evening the Junior C. E. celebrated their anniversary. Mrs. Rev. Burkholder gave a "chalk talk." The topic discussed was, "Laying a Good Foundation."—Preparatory and baptismal service will be held on Good Friday night, April 7, followed by the communion service on Easter Sunday.—We are also looking forward to the Good Friday memorial service of Christ's suffering on the cross, held in Quakertown, from 12 noon to 3 p. m., sponsored by the Ministerial Association.—On Easter Sunday morning the Sunrise service will be held at West Swamp church, at 6 a. m.

BUHLER MENN. CHURCH, BUHLER, KANS.

Winter has come to an end again. It is March and spring has begun. At present we enjoy nice balmy, spring weather, but this month has a very bad reputation. You can't trust it. It may smile at you in the morning, cloud up an hour later, drenching you with icy rain or biting sleet before night.—There are a lot of people in the world who are just like the month of March, they are not dependable. May we, who call ourselves Christians, always be dependable to walk straight and honorable, and do what is right. In meeting temptations we are constantly called upon to make decisions in order that we may be kept from drifting with the current of the world. May the Lord depend on us.

For the past few months our church has been without a standing minister. The former pastor, Rev. J. M. Suderman, had to leave on account of ill health. Missionary August Ewert from Newton has very faithfully served us during this time on Sunday mornings with very inspiring sermons, and also teaching catechism.

Feeling the need of having our own minister, many a prayer has been sent to the throne of God to help us find a man that would be willing to become our leader. Our prayers have been answered. Rev. J. F. Schmidt from Council Grove, Kans. is willing to come in June to be our minister. We are looking forward with joy to greet Brother and Sister Schmidt. May the tie of Christian love bind us together, that, by working with him, we may lighten his tasks. May God bless us and make us a living church for Christ only. —Mrs. N. D. Esau, Corr.

SALEM ZION CHURCH, MARION, S. D.

Once more our thoughts turn to that season of the year, when nature awakens to a new life, and spring comes forth in all its beauty. Would that our hearts too, might feel a new awakening, to the all important things in life.

Winter here has been exceptionally mild and due to that, roads and weather conditions permitted regular church services throughout the year. If this mild weather continues, spring work will soon begin which is a very busy time for all.

This community was privileged to hear a splendid musical program, given by the joint men's clubs of the Salem church, the city of Freeman, and the Salem Zion church, at the college auditorium, on the evening of March 12. The chorus consisted of forty six voices under the able direction of Prof. Toews of the college. There were many in attendance.

Rev. A. P. Waltner accepted a call and has been serving the neighbor (Bethesda) church since Jan. 1st. We are confident that he will serve that congregation as efficiently as he did ours.

Ten young people are enrolled in the catechism class this year. Since January they have met regularly with the minister for instruction during the Sunday School period.

An influenza epidemic is prevalent in this community with many sick, but no serious complications thus far. There also have been several appendicitis operations recently, but we are happy to report that there have been no deaths in the new year.

Our church holidays will soon be here, when we shall again commemorate our Savior's suffering, death, and resurrection. We trust that its observance will tend to draw us ever closer to the Christ who died upon that cross. —Mrs. J. J. Saner, Corr.

WEST ZION MENN. CHURCH, MDGE., KANS.

For the fifth consecutive year the World Day of Prayer was observed in our church on Friday, Feb. 24. Nine churches were represented on the program. The morning service, beginning at 10:30 was under the leadership of Mrs. Bradbury, wife of the Methodist minister. Mrs. Walter Gering, wife of the pastor of the Eden Mennonite church, was leader for the afternoon service. Missionary and Mrs. August Ewert were guest speakers in the afternoon. A number of local people furnished musical numbers and short talks.

During the noon hour a covered dish was served in the church basement. Guests were seated at four long tables, which were decorated to represent the four seasons. At least 150 persons were served, the larger number of course were women, but a number of men were present. Each year a council is elected to prepare for the next year's meeting. Each church in the vicinity is represented. The attendance has been increasing year by year. It is an inspiring thing to join hands in prayer with folks of other churches and denominations. Moundridge hopes that other communities will follow her example.

On the evening of Feb. 16 the Mission Workers met in the church basement. Husbands and friends of the members were guests. The program consisted of several musical numbers, a book review and a reading. This was followed by a social hour, during which time appropriate contests were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Rev. Fast, field secretary, visited our church on Feb. 26-28. His messages bring us a larger realization of the worth and dignity of the Mennonite church and inspire us to help further the cause of the kingdom. His visits also serve to link the various churches together. We need to be impressed with the largeness of the task set before us.

Mrs. August, Ewy, Corr.

—Rev. G. T. Soldner with Mr. Curraus is in the Eastern District, at present, in the interest of the endowment campaign for Bluffton College.

GRACE CHURCH, ENID, OKLAHOMA

Greetings to all readers:

After the cold snap we are enjoying the beautiful weather which tells us that spring is near and reminds us of the Easter season.

The work on our church has commenced; for this we are very thankful. The basement is nearly finished. The neighboring churches are also taking quite an interest. On the day of pouring the concrete, seven men from the Meno Mennonite Church donated some labor.

Yesterday, March 12th, a group of thirteen young folks motored to the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indian Mission stations near Canton, Okla. Rev. H. N. Harder and Mr. N. P. Klassen, Newton, each took a car. First we gave a program consisting of songs, sermon, reading, and story telling at the Canton station at 1:30 p.m. At about 3:30 we gave the program at Fonda, the Cheyenne station. After our program the interpreter gave Rev. Harder's sermon in their own language.

A group of about fifteen Indians happened to be there from the Thomas Church near Clinton where Missionary Ediger is at work. This group rendered a number of songs which had the old Indian melodies which they love best. It was very inspiring to us to see our brethren in Christ working in much the same way as we are. We invited the Indians and Missionary Toews' to pay us a return visit as soon as we could offer a church. They responded favorably. We are looking forward to the time when they will come. —Elda Ewert, Correspondent.

A Horse And Some People

When I was a small boy I was in love with a big white horse. He hauled the old-fashioned one-horse hose wagon from the station near my home.

If ever a fire horse looked the part, old Dick did. He always galloped, being hitched alone, his long mane flying in the air, his huge hoofs smiting the pavement as though they would dig right through it. His nostrils breathed fire. He was the beau ideal of a fire horse. All the small boys loved and admired him.

There was something else about old Dick which the boys liked. He was so slow that we could run beside him and watch him perform, exactly the right word. There was a team of lean unhandsome bays which pulled the ladder truck from the same station. They were nothing much to look at. But they always got to the fire first. When Dick finally hove into sight the conflagration was usually all out.

I can still see old Dick coming down the street. Everything about him was perfect except his ability to get to a fire quickly. That had to be left to others.

Since I have grown up I have met quite a few men who reminded me of old Dick. They are men with the best of intentions. They are men who are confident that they are doing great work, are irreplaceable, in fact. I have seen them arriving when there was a serious problem to be solved. They came on the gallop and with metaphorical manes flying in the air. You could almost hear them say, "Don't worry! Here I come! Everything is going to be all right! Just get out of my way and let me solve this! I know all about everything!"

But these men never settled anything and they have never done anything important. They are so interested in how they look arriving at a fire that they forget that there is something more to solving problems than just looking impressive. They never get down to cases and clear up the difficulty. They simply do not know how. Other persons, quiet men and unimpressive, alway get there first and do the real work.

Old Dick always went away from the fire with the air of a conqueror. Nobody was ever cruel enough to tell him that he was a lovable old fraud. So also with the men I know who remind me of Dick. Never, never will they realize that they are chiefly show. Like Dick, they are all mixed up and think it is more important to make an impression than to put out a fire.

Most of the world's work is done by quiet people who are not very sure of themselves. They do not get much applause but they have, or should have, the satisfaction of knowing that the world cannot get on without them. — George Ross Wells.

Man is greater than a world, than systems of worlds; there is more mystery in the union of soul with the physical than in the creation of the universe.—Henry Giles.

Favorite Items

Question 3 presented 18 different items which might be used in the Y. P. page. The possible ratings for each item were, "very important," desirable," and "not important." In evaluating these ratings a positive 2 was allowed for each "very important" rating, a positive 1 for each "desirable" rating, and a negative 2 for each "not desirable" rating.

A summary of points revealed that editorial comment, poetry, and stories were the paramount choice. Each had 21 points. News and daily meditations each had 20 points. Peace notes and Mennonite historical sketches received 19 points apiece. Holiday specials received 18. C. E. programs elicited 17 points. The following, listed according to order, were next in line: question box, song stories, and "wisdomisms."

I am trying to secure material which conforms to these choices. However, this material is hard to get, and the readers will have to practice patience. Furthermore, it would be very helpful if they would practice contributing. Share the good, true, and beautiful which you experience. — R. W.

Selections of Hymns:

A brief word in connection with the announcing of the hynms will help in the recognition of the contribution of each hymn toward developing the theme:

Consecration of Self.—"Have Thine Own Way, Lord." (The necessity of so living in our own communities "till all shall see Christ only always living in me.") "Lord, Speak to Me."

Carrying the Message.—"I Love to Tell the Story." ("I tell it now to thee" also indicates that we are demonstrating our Christian belief in action right where we are.) "We've a Story to Tell." (Note the four emphases, a story to tell, a song to sing, a message to give, a Savior to show.) "O Zion, Haste." (Stanzas 1, 2, 4, and 5.

Suggested Topics:—

1. What are church members to believe? If they believe that God is their Father, that Christ is their Savior, that all men are brothers, is that enough?

2. The difference "what a man believes" will make in his "way of living."

He will not live for self, but for "others."
He will be meek, merciful, pure in heart,
A peace-maker, hunger and thirst after righteousness, etc.

3. Do church members find the world's "Thou shalt not" helpful? Ex. 20:13-17.

4. How do you like the following stories:

A Boy's Conviction.—A mother was shocked one day to find her boy seated at a table with a big Bible in front of him and a big knife in his hand. She anxiously asked him, "What are you doing?" The boy replied, "Why, Mother, I have been reading about that poor father who came to Jesus and said, 'If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us, and help us;' and I thought he ought not to say 'if' to Jesus, and so I have scratched it out."

A Lacking Faith.—Not long ago a private in a United States army airplane school was taking his final examination in parachute jumping. His instructions were to count ten after leaping clear from his plane before pulling the cord of his parachute. He lost his nerve, and pulled it too soon. The silk parachute was caught in the propeller blast and got fouled, leaving the unhappy soldier dangling between heaven and earth until rescue plans could be perfected. What was the matter with that boy's faith?

What a church member believes will make a difference in what a church member does, or does not do. "The Christian faith is a living faith, a faith intended for living, a faith that can and should be lived." If you believe in Jesus you will walk, talk, and act like Jesus. You will not do the things which he disapproves of. You will be against sin. Your faith will prove itself by what you are and by what you do.

Food for thought—

"A wide rich heaven hangs above you, but it hangs high. A wide, rough world is around you, and it lies very low."

Call to Worship

The Living Book

The Bible lives! Its truths are flames so bright
Their radiance can never once grow dim;
Their deathless splendor are the smiles of Him
Whose glowing face gives heaven wondrous light,
They quick dispel the gloom of sin's black night,
Revealing beauty that no brush can linn,
And melodies without an interim,
That tell of grace that ends man's woeful plight.

The blackest pall that sorrow's night can hang
Fades quickly when its healing glories shine
Into the crimson soul, forlorn by sin.
The breaking heart can never know a pang
Too great for soothing at its cleansing shrine
Where penitents find heavenly joys begin.
William James Robinson.

Opening song—"How precious is the Book divine"
Sentence prayers expressing thankfulness for the Bible
Scripture reading—Ps. 119:105; Luke 2:46, 47
For the Leader: Why God Gave the Bible.

God gave men the Bible because he knew there would never be a time in man's life when he would not need it. Accordnig to historical records God had other ways of revealing himself to men. When his full and complete revelation had been committed to writing these former methods were no longer needed. Now in the written Scriptures we have "the faith which was once for all delivered unto his saints."

"It was necessary for men to have a divine and infallible revelation from God in an objective form; so that it would not be subject to the opinions, inner leadings, and fallacies of men."

Song—"Break Thou the Bread of Life"

If possible, have all your members study the following questions before your meeting. Ask your superintendent to follow these with a very informal discussion of any questions or comments about the Bible which anyone may have. Let us have as our aim these two weeks the fact that we want all intermediates to have a greater personal appreciation of the Bible. To accomplish this the discussion must be personal and informal.

1. What does the word "Bible" mean?
2. What is the purpose of the Bible? "That we may have a true idea of how God revealed Himself to His ancient people and prepared the way for the fuller manifestation of Himself in Jesus Christ." (Have members add further personal opinions).
3. Is there any other way for men to know the truth about Jesus Christ? No, the written word of God is our only authoritative source.
4. Why should we believe the Bible? The greatest reason is the fact that the son of God when he became the Son of Man believed it.
5. How long did it take the Bible to be written and compiled? A period of about fourteen centuries.
6. How many men had a part in the writing of the Bible? About 40.
7. What type of men wrote the Bible? Prophets, priests, kings, fishermen, a tax-gatherer, sheep-master, etc.
8. How has it been possible to adapt the Bible to so many new languages and peoples? By a never ceasing process of revision and translation.
9. When was the King James version completed? 1611.
10. Questions of interest about odd Bibles:
    a. How large is the largest Bible?—"The largest Bible is said to be in the Royal Library of Stockholm. The covers are made of solid plank four inches thick, and the pages, which are made of parchment, are a yard in length and number 309."
    b. How small is the smallest Bible? "The famous thumb Bible in the theological seminary at Washington is the smallest complete Bible ever printed."
    c. A shorthand Bible. "A shorthand Bible is exhibited in London, the work of an apprentice of the days of James II, when even to possess a Bible was an offense."
    d. An American woman owns a Bible which an ancestor of hers baked in a loaf of bread when a house-to-house search was being made for copies of the Scripture."

Song, "Wonderful Words of Life"

Make sure every member has a copy of the following poem and use it as the closing prayer.

Influence of the Bible

Lord, make me godly, lift my soul from earth,
And do it by that book of priceless worth—
The Bible.

Lord, make me pure; save me from lust of men;
And do it with the writings from Thy pen,
The Bible.

Make me unselfish, teach me how to live
For others, as Thy words instruction give—
The Bible.

Let not time always captivate my thought;
I have Thy guide how glory may be sought—
The Bible.

May faith in Christ and seeking other's good
Show in my life that I have understood—
The Bible.
William Olney, London, England.

—Dimitri Shostakowitch, a young Soviet composer, is complaining that the Godless have produced no music. No wonder! For what is there in atheism to sing about. He wants an anti-religious opera. But what could the theme possibly be?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for April 16, 1939

"Jesus showed himself again to his disciples." John 21:1.

I. Worship Service

Setting: Picture: "Light of the World," Hunt.

1. Quiet Music: "Immortal Love, forever full" played softly while Juniors take their places.
2. Sing in unison first two verses of above song.
3. Sing: "I think when I read."
4. Leader reads scripture: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." Rev. 3:20.
5. Leader's Prayer—All heads bowed.
6. Poem, by a Junior.

"O Jesus, Thou art standing
Outside the fast closed door,
In lowly patience waiting
To pass the threshold o'er;
Shame on us, Christian brothers,
His name and sign who bear,
O shame, thrice shame upon us,
To keep Him standing there.

"O Jesus, Thou art knocking;
And lo! that hand is scarred,
And thorns Thy brow encircle,
And tears Thy face have marred:
O love that passeth knowledge,
So patiently to wait!
O sin that hath no equal,
So fast to bar the gate!

"O Jesus, Thou art pleading
In accents meek and low,
'I died for you, my children
And will you treat me so?'
O Lord, with shame and sorrow
We open now the door;
Dear Savior, enter, enter
And leave us never more!"

7. Song: "The Best of Friends, I Have in Heaven" —Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 364, verses 1, 4, 5.

II. Mission Minutes:

The March "Missionary News and Notes" has served letters from both China and India which contain items of interest for Juniors. Let the Juniors read these after they have been selected and marked by the leader. Follow this with a short discussion of the item read.

III. Study Period. Aim: To help the Juniors to realize that although Jesus is not on earth now, He is with His followers always, our ever-present Friend.

To the Leader: Our lesson today is a continuation of the lesson planned for Easter Sunday. Recall to mind, by means of question, the stories of the resurrection, and thus lead to the lesson for today. Use a large map of Palestine, and point out the places which our Lord visited after His resurrection. They were the familiar places where He had prayed and preached and labored and suffered. The Galilean mountains, the beloved lake, the Mount of Olives, Bethany and Jerusalem. Recall the five appearances of that first Easter Sunday.

1. Leader's Heart-talk.

There were forty days between the time of Jesus resurrection and His ascension. (Find the third verse of the first chapter of Acts). During these forty days He was seen by many of his friends, one time even by five hundred at once, I Cor. 15:6 and once by His brother James, 1 Cor. 15:7, and a number of other times that we have not studied about yet.

Jesus appeared so many times for several reasons. He wanted the disciples to be very sure that He had risen from the dead; He wanted to talk to them about the Kingdom of God, and the work that they should do after He had ascended to His Father, but above all He wanted them to learn that although He would not be visible to them, He would always be with them and help them, if they gave their whole heart to Him and trusted and obeyed Him. Jesus wants us all to be His children and He has promised to be with us always. Let us reverently repeat this prayer:

2. "Come into my heart, Lord Jesus
The door I throw open wide,
Come in, blessed Friend of sinners,
And ever with me abide."
Mrs. C. H. Wieand.

3. Solo—"I've Found a Friend; O Such a Friend" —(Mennonite Hymn Book, number 210.
4. Juniors discuss the following:
   a. Jesus proves to Thomas that He is the crucified risen Lord. John 20:26-29.
   b. Jesus tells Peter what to do. John 21:1-17.
   c. Jesus tells His friends that He is with them always. Matt. 28:16-20.
5. Repeat in unison the verse of the month, Matt. 6:33a.
6. Sing song of Month: "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."
7. Leader's closing prayer.

—A prominent Mohammedan expresses himself thus on the present day situation of Christianity: "I can declare with definiteness, that Christianity is stronger today than ever before in history. I am surprised at the large number of heathen and non-heathen people that are of the opinion that Christian ethics has the only answer to the present day world chaos."—Exchange.

IN MEMORIAM

HENRY MAST, son of David and Magdalena (Wenger) Mast, was born March 28, 1866, in Washington county, Iowa, east of Noble. On May 10, 1889 he was united in marriage to Marry Rittler. To this union were born three sons, Gladden, Louis, and Paul.

Upon his confession of faith in Jesus Christ as his Lord and Savior, he was baptized by the Rev. H. G. Allebach February 9, 1897, and taken into the fellowship of the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite church. In the later years of his life this membership was transferred to the Wayland Menn. church.

On Friday morning he became ill and on Sunday morning, Feb. 12, he was called to his eternal abode.

He is survived by his wife Mary, and sons Gladden and Paul. Louis preceded him in death.

—by Mrs. D. E. Welty.

PETER P. UNRUH, the son of Peter Unruh and Sara Schroeder Unruh, was born in Nicolaidorf, South Russia, November 11, 1852. He was educated in the home village school. In America he had one month of English school. He acquired a knowledge of the English language so that he could express himself well on the general problems of life and also on spiritual matters.

He was baptized upon the confession of his faith in Jesus Christ as his personal Savior June 4, 1872, by Elder Jacob Buller, and joined the Alexanderwohl church, where he was a faithful member till his end. In 1874 he, his parents, and all his brothers and sisters, except one brother, joined the great exodus to North America. Here they settled in the eastern part of McPherson Co., Kansas. The first years of hard pioneer life had a very beneficial influence upon him and many others, as it revealed to them how to correctly evaluate the material and spiritual things. Characters were developed which were firm and settled, not to be moved by the changes and storms of life.

On February 10, 1880, he married Anna Klassen. To this union were born four sons and five daughters. Of these 1 son and 2 daughters died in infancy. Feb. 12, 1901, his dear wife was called to her heavenly rest after 21 years of wedded life. Days of deep sorrow followed for father and children. The ever present help of the Lord was keenly felt. In the fall of 1921 he moved to Newton, Kansas. Here he lived with his three youngest children and enjoyed a quiet and happy sunset of life.

Father was healthy and strong. In the night of Feb. 6 and 7 he had a heart attack, which left him very weak, yet he was never fully bedfast. The last day he became sick with broncho-pneumonia. At 12:45, March 7, he peacefully and quietly went home to be with the Lord, whom he loved, at the age of 86 years, 3 months, and 26 days. During the days when he was healthy and the days of his last sickness he gave testimony of an unwavering life of faith which the Lord blessed with the quiet, peaceful hope of the saved.

He leaves to mourn his departure his children, Rev. and Mrs. Peter H. and Susie Unruh, Goessel, Kansas; Rev. and Mrs. Henry T. and Anna Unruh, Bluffton Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Carl and Sarah Unruh Schmidt, Newton; Misses Augusta and Louise Unruh, Newton; Mr. and Mrs. John W. and Wilma Unruh, Newton; 9 grandchildren and one great-grandchild; also two sisters, Mrs. Anna Regier, Buhler, Mrs. Katherina Regier, Hesston; one brother, Mr. and Mrs. David P. and Justina Unruh, Goessel; and many friends and relatives.

The funeral services were held March 10 at the Alexanderwohl church, conducted by Rev. C. C. Wedel and Rev. J. J. Banman, who used as texts, Hebr. 12:2 and Rev. 3:21, and Numbers 23:10 b respectively. Rev. P. H. Richert conducted the services at the grave.

VICTOR MERLIN GINGRICH, son of Otto C. and Clara Augspurger Gingrich, born near Trenton, Ohio, January 10, 1906, died February 25, 1939. Very early in life he associated himself with the activities of the Mennonite Church and Sunday School, serving as pianist and organist for a number of years, and an active member until he took up his residence at Riley, where he became active in the Riley Presbyterian Church, serving as Sunday School Superintendent at the time of his death.

October 19, 1929 he united in marriage with Nople Hurley of Riley, and to this union were born two children, Dale and Doris Jean. He is survived by his wife, two children, his mother and father, three brothers and a large number of relatives and friends.

Dr. Clark of the Riley Presbyterian Church spoke briefly to the bereaved family and friends, followed by Rev. J. E. Amstutz, who based his remarks on Rom. 8:28, closing his remarks with the poem, "The Lost Chord."

LENA LEISY NEE KREHBILL was born Feb. 15, 1864, in Lee county, Iowa. In her 14th year she accepted the Lord Jesus as her personal Savior and was baptized by Christian Schowalter. In Jan., 1887, she was married to Emil A. Leisy of the same place. The couple's first venture was to go west and settle near Moundridge, Kans. where they lived for 25 years. During their stay in Kansas, 12 children have come to them, of which 11 are still living. In 1912 the family moved to Oregon and made their home near Pratum. In 1918, on Good Friday, father Leisy was called to his reward. The home place was then sold and the mother with the younger children made their home in Salem. The last years they lived at 4911 N. E. 30, Portland, where six of her children have their own homes and their vocations.

The departed one was an ideal mother in Israel. While yet in Kansas the Leisys were counted among the pillars of the Garden Church. The same may be said of their stay here in this church and she was also one of the charter members of the Alberta Community Church in Portland. She was of a Christ-like disposition. She had a way to eliminate grief without hurting unnecessarily. Although her health was impaired for some time, she was active in some good work to her last day. She was happily surprised with the many, many greetings and gifts she received on her 75th birthday, on the Feb. 15 last, and she answered them, 67, appreciatively either in person or by letter.

Thus she leaves her blessed memory with seven sons and four daughters, 28 grandchildren, one great-grand child, two sisters, four brothers and friends. Her sons are: Ernest of Dallas, Texas; Edmund, Harvey, Elmer, and Weldon, of Portland; Homer of Salem, and Walter of Sweethome, Oregon. Her daughters are Olga Logenbill, of Woodburn; Linda Steffen of Silverton; Elsie Bartel, and Helen Warren of Portland, Oregon.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord for the Spirit says they rest from their labors and their works shall follow them."

Funeral services were held on Feb. 27, at the Pratum church, in which the Rev. J. M. Franz, S. S. Baumgartner and Edmund Miller participated, together with a mixed quartet. Rev. Miller's words of comfort were based on John 11. Her body was laid to rest in the Mennonite cemetery by the side of her husband. —Sent in by S. S. Baumgartner.

MOYER, CHARLES H., son of William D. Moyer and Susan Moyer, was born May 18, 1850, at Zionsville, Lehigh County, Pa. His wife and two children have preceeded him in his death. He passed to his eternal reward on January 22, 1939, at the home of his son Eugene.

He joined the First Mennonite Church in Philadelphia early in life and remained a faithful member until his death. During 1875 he was elected General Sunday School Superintendent of the Church School in which capacity he served for 23 years and taught an adult class till he was 85 years old. For many years he served on the Board of Trustees in the First Church. His church life was an active issue during his whole career. Until physical strength failed he was regular in his place on Sunday morning, both in Sunday School and worship service.

He has left a rich heritage to all that knew him and to all the members of the First Church.

He leaves to mourn two sons, Eugene of Philadelphia, Howard of Detroit, Michigan, their families, and a host of friends and relatives. His mortal remains were laid to rest January 25th with Rev. J. J. Plenert in charge of the services. —J. S. Bechtel.

MRS. BARBARA KRAEMER, daughter of Jacob and Margaret Bergdolt, was born near Summerfield, St. Clair county, Illinois on January 4, 1870. For some time Sister Kraemer had been suffering with asthma. This ailment was aggravated by bronchitis which caused her death on Feb. 26, 1939. She attained the age of 69 years, one month and 22 days.

On Oct. 28, 1884, she was baptized by Rev. J. E. Krehbiel and received into the fellowship of the Summerfield Mennonite Church, of which she remained a faithful member until her death. On Dec. 17, 1902, she was united in marriage with Henry Kraemer who preceded her in death two years ago. This union was blessed with four children, two of whom are still living.

She leaves to mourn her departure a son and a daughter, four grandchildren, two brothers and one sister, and many other relatives and friends. Funeral services were held at the Mennonite church, March 1, conducted by the pastor. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

—Sermon Sketches.—Two years ago THE MENNONITE featured a series of sermon sketches or sermonettes, furnished through the generosity of some of our ministerial brethren. Last year we discontinued that line, not fully assured that it met the approval of our readers. Recently voices have been heard that indicate a revival of interest in such sketches. So we have approached twenty-five mostly of the younger group of ministers in our Conference, with the question, if they might be willing to serve the readers of this paper by furnishing one sketch each, at stated dates during the year. Though not all have been heard from at this writing, the response has been very gratifying. Rev. Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa. furnishes the sermonette for this number of the paper. He will be followed through April, including May 2, by five other pastors from Eastern Conference churches. May God graciously bless these efforts!

—Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, pastor of the Reedley, Calif., church, has very kindly started to send us their Sunday bulletins. From these we glean that their Monthly Workers Conference is well attended and that the interest is good; that at the California Mennonite S. S. and C. E. convention at Shafter, their Young People will present a Missionary Service with the theme, WHITE UNTO HARVEST; that on March 5, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Unruh with their three children, Gilbert, Quentin and Tivila, and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kroeker have been received into the church by letter. Pre-Easter services are being held every Wednesday noon.—In a letter he says, "I appreciate very much the efforts which you put forth to improve our English church paper. That is a task which is not appreciated by all."

—From Sunday Bulletin, First Church Philadelphia. The Menno-Friendly Beneficial Association has been in existence thirty-six years for the protection of its members in time of disability and death. It has paid to January 1, 1938, $23,750.00. The organization meets the second Tuesday of each month.—Rev. and Mrs. Plenert, pastor and wife, express their appreciation for the kind remembrances of members and friends on their third anniversary with the church.

—Rev. John F. Schmidt, a graduate of Bethel College and of Hartford Theological Seminary, and a son of the Gnadenberg church near Whitewater, Kans., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Buhler, Kansas, Mennonite Church, his service to begin June 1, when he has finished his year of service with a Congregational church at Council Grove, Kansas. Mssionary August Ewert has substituted at Buhler, since the former pastor, Rev. J. M. Suderman, left the charge.

—Missionary G. A. Linscheid now living at Newton, Kansas, has undertaken to serve the Johannestal Mennonite Church for three months, both with preaching service and catechetical instruction. This church has been without a regular minister since the death of the former pastor, Rev. S. M. Musselman.

—The Emmaus Mennonite Church near Whitewater, Kansas, whose two ministers, Rev. B. W. Harder, elder, and Rev. Henry Thiessen resigned some months ago, has decided to call a minister. We hear that one call has been extended, but are not informed as to its outcome.

—Reverend and Professor J. J. Voth of Bethel College continues to preach for the Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, as he has done for the past two years. They, too, are looking for a minister. Rev. G. N. Harms, who has served the church for about half a century, still functions as elder.

—Mrs. Alfred Habegger of Busby, Mont. has gone to Berne, Indiana to be at the bedside of her father, Sam Hirshy, who is seriously ill with pneumonia at the Elmer Winteregg home.—Later: Brother Hirshy passed away Saturday evening, after an illness of three weeks. Funeral services took place Tuesday afternoon, March 21, at the First Mennonite church, with Rev. C. H. Suckau in charge. The deceased attained the age of 84 years, 10 months and 20 days.—Berne Witness.

—Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kansas.—"The Ladies' Mission Circle and a few other friends of this church went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ewert of Elbing, Kansas, March 10, to celebrate Mother P. J. Krause's 79th birthday. Mrs. Krause has her home at the present time with the Ewert family. She is the oldest member of the Lehigh Mission Circle. The celebration was enjoyed by all those present.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—Sunday, March 26, at 2:30 p. m., Rev. Norman Harrison, sponsored by the Ministerial Ass'n, gave an address in the College Auditorium.—The S. S. Teacher Training Class meets every Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. P. Preheim.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—The Junior Department of our S. S. has 38 pupils, two classes for boys and two for girls. For a special missionary project they gave, $5.00 for Mount Lawn, a country vacation home for children from the city; $5.00 for Faith Orphan Home and $9.83 to China for Orphan relief.—Bulletin.

—Hanston Mennonite Church, Kansas.—We had Bro. H. A. Fast with us March 21-22. Sunday, March 26, Missionary W. F. Unruh brought us messages direct from the Indian Mission field. We in these outer edges have so few opportunities to hear workers from the field, so we took advantage of his being so near for the time being.

—Bethel College Church, North Newton, Kans.— This church will join the other protestant churches in the city of Newton, on Good Friday from 12:00 to 3:00 p. m., in a service commemorating Christ's suffering on the cross, with addresses on the Seven Last Words of the Master, suitable music and prayers. These meetings observed for a number of years, have come to be blessed hours of meditation during the time when the Savior hung on the cross.

—J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake.—Our son is studying in a Chicago medical college, and we are lonesome in our big home. But on Feb. 24 we had 44 friends for lunch, at Mrs. Balzer's 78th birthday.—The world, especially Europe, is in turmoil. What will happen when our Administration in Washington actually assumes the policing of the world. Is France still a democracy? Is England? Servitude will soon be our lot, the way it begins to look.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon— "Arrangements are underway to have the Young People of the Dallas Church present a program at one of our evening services. — Mr. Elmer Widmer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis a few weeks ago, is back on duty as Sunday School superintendent. We are grateful to God for his successful and speedy recovery.—A three-hour Good Friday union service is being planned by the Albany Ministerial Association. Rev. W. R. Augsburger is to be one of the speakers."—Correspondent.

—Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa.—Rev. (Prof.) A. C. Schultz has been very well liked as a Bible teacher at Bluffton College. Let us make our plans right now to attend all the meetings he is to hold in our midst, from April 9 to 16 inclusive. Will you often think of these meetings in prayer? Our Brotherhood is planning a meeting with the Lansdale chapter.—"How many of our members have a church paper in their homes. There should be one in every home."—The Bluffton College A Cappella Choir will be with us Sunday night, April 9.—Bulletin.

The Risen Christ Makes Workers

P. R. Schroeder

1 Corinthians 15:58, "Wherefore (because of the resurrection victory of Christ), my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

All evangelical denominations believe in the resurrection of Christ. All evangelical missionaries preach His resurrection. All evangelical workers build their hope of success on His resurrection. It is the source of their power. Christian LOVE has power. That power proceeds from the resurrection. PATIENCE has power,—the enduring power of the resurrection. The TRUTH has power,—the explosive and constructive and creative power of the resurrection. REPENTANCE has power,—the Holy Spirit's power released by the resurrection. The PRAYER OF FAITH has power,—power whose sole source is the risen Christ.

The worker of the Lord can be compared to a salesman. His wares have no substitute. His competitors have less than a narrow chance of rivalling him. He only can satisfy a world wide need. His field is as unlimited as the universality of the need which he alone can meet. No other wares have a similar guarantee. No others have any like healing power.

The healing power of the risen Christ is effective where all human means tend to become sterile and bankrupt. Times without number have human agencies been found helpless in the dealing with our social, political, economic, moral and spirital maladies. Where is there a man-made cure for the divorce situation, the race question, the fever of war, the problem of socialism, the transformation of the heathen, the problem of the city, the delemma of the farmer? What knight will arise and successfully champion the release of the enslaved drunkard, the gambling fiend, the lustful dancer, the Midas of greed, the indulger of the flesh? What ointment can heal the soul's diseases of selfishness, hatred, jealousy, carelessness, pride, ungodliness, and arrogance? What genius of invention can offer a safe means of escape from death, both physical and eternal? What insurance society can protect man from the judgment? The resurrection of Christ has placed at the believer's disposal the one universal remedy for sin.

The risen Christ makes workers out of sinful men. He makes dead people alive. He makes timid people bold. He makes sinful people holy. He makes weak people strong. He makes those that are detestable winsome. He will keep the worker immortal till his work is done. He provides the field of labor, the kit of tools and the means of livelihood. He assures success. He throws a halo about the most gloomy place by faith.

Others may waste their energies among the spiderwebs of sinful hallucinations, like the correspondent with Mars, the devotee of spiritualism, the peddler of evolution, the higher critic, the moralist and the epicurean. But the laborer for Christ does not enter an unexplored field that ends in a blind alley. He is a follower and servant of the explorer and conquerer of death and hell and sin, the Lord of heaven and earth. The One who was in the beginning and will continue unending, the King of kings.

Listen to the text again. In this remarkable word of Paul in 1 Corinthians 15:58, the thoughtful reader will recognize these remarkable facts: The resurrection makes workers. It makes them steadfast and unmovable. It stabilizes their faith. It anchors their hope. It makes their work pay. It makes their future secure. Among all the deeds of men, among all the conquests of history, there is none that has conquered death, there is none that has vanquished Satan, there is none that has removed the stain of sin—but CHRIST. And whoever puts his trust in Him shall become a worker of the risen Lord, strong to dare and to do and to die, with the victory assured.

The Meaning of Easter Day

Lester Hostetler

Easter Day is a day of victory. The light of Easter morning followed the gloom and darkness of Good Friday. Jesus was on the Cross. The world was mocking and the disciples were in despair. They had hoped that He was the Christ of God, the Savior of his people, but their hopes were shattered and they were ready to return, disillusioned, to their old life, scorned by the cynics who believe in being practical and mock at faith.

But Easter changed all of that. The miracle of the resurrection wrought a miracle in the hearts of the simple disciples. Hope returned and the skies were clear. The world had not won on Calvary. It was Jesus who won. The grave in which He was placed could not hold Him. He was alive again. Evil seemed indeed to have triumphed at the Crucifixion. The narrowness and cynicism, and selfishness, and pride and heartlessness of those who crucified Him seemed to have won over a life given to righteousness and mercy and love and forgiveness. But in the end, the good life won and evil was defeated.

This message of victory is sorely needed today. The times are cynical and brutal. Sinister and cruel forces seem to be in the saddle and many are telling us that the ideals of Christ, though beautiful, are not for this world. We must be practical, we are told. The world is run by physical might and all of the church's teaching concerning love and forgiveness and brotherhood are not to the point. We must pay evil men back in their own coin for they understand no other. The way of the cross is foolishness.

But we who believe in Christ and daily know the power of His presence in our hearts, know that this is not so. God is still on His Throne and in the end will reign, no matter what evil men may devise. If the enemies of Christ triumph it can only be temporary. We have faith in Christ and in His word and in His way because we are witnesses of His resurrection.

Watching Under The Cross

J. J. Balzer

John 19:25: "Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene."

Introduction:

A most wonderful picture we see before us in the words of our text. And it becomes beautiful, more beautiful and more beautiful as we behold the entire scene of the most heartrending proceedings of the saddest story of human history. Jesus himself says of this most marvelous drama of world history: "Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out."

But what do we see in this immortal picture? Incorporated hatred, envy, blasphemy, bitterness, lawlessness, malignant joy, in short, all that sin can produce, is poured out here in wickedness and violence; and in the midst of this unlimited sin stands the purest human love and friendship under the cross of Christ. What holy contrast, devotion, and sacred submission in contrast to desperate hatred and passionate jealousy.

Let us meditate for a few minutes, nay, through this passion week of Christ upon this picture of love, of these three devoted Mary's and find a few answers to the question: What may we learn of them?

1) First of all we see how heroic woman's love may be. This love knows no danger. They do not consider the brutality of the Roman soldiers and the hard-hearted warriors. They do not consider the lawlessness of the masses of the people surrounding the hill of Golgatha. They are not estranged by the blasphemy of the Elders and Scribes and Pharisees of their people. They do not consider the dangers surrounding them. They forget all and self and desire to be near the One whom their soul has loved so much. They had but one passion: "He, her Son, their best Friend, their One and All." Have we this passion and love for Him who gave His life for the sins of the world? We surely should during Passion week and all our lifetime.

Yes, I hear some one say, that it is natural for a mother and friends. Is it? What mother would not stay with her dying son? What friend would not stand watch in the presence of his suffering friend. Surely that is natural. But what is natural for Peter and the rest of the Apostles, who spent three years with Him and heard His blessed teachings and the kingdom and the salvation of the world, through Him only, and saw all His miracles and love toward the weak and suffering? Peter swore that he was willing to be imprisoned and die with Him—and so said all the others. Why did they flee for life and keep in hiding? Why did Peter deny Him saying: "I know Him not." Did he consider his position, being chosen a witness and Apostle? Did he ever consider the heroism of love in these three helpless women?

2) Secondly, we see the loyalty of woman's love. I must confess that we men would without exception say: That is no company for women. They should never be seen in such a place. Think of a group of people hard boiled with hatred and malice of the underworld, and in a moment ready for explosion. What might happen to helpless women in such a case? But, in spite of all danger, we may perceive they are sacrificing all honor and life, to be loyal to Him, whom they love and adore, and the sacred writer says: "And there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene."

How loyal were these devoted women! The disciples once said: "Lord we have forsaken all and followed thee, what shall it be for us?" And the sacred writer reports of them at this tragedy: "And they all forsook him and fled!" But never such report of faithful women. Do we men hold watch beneath the cross, risking our lives? Is it a wonder when the suffering Son sees that it becomes too hard for His dear Mother to see His agonies that her heart begins to fail and that she is about to break down, that He forgets his won pain and the pangs of the world, at this crisis, and turns his face downward and says: "Woman, behold thy Son!" And turning to the one He loved, John, "Be- of the group that went and was eager to tell all that hold, thy mother!" And henceforth John took care of her. It was enough for a mother's heart watching under the cross of her son. In spite of the dangers surrounding her, she had shown to all the world a heart filled with sacred love and devotion for the One who gave His life freely for the salvation of the world. As the Lamb of God she saw Him suffering, dying and heard Him crying: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" She saw Him shouldering all the woes of the sinful world. She saw Him carry away the curse of God into the grave and through His resurrection bring eternal life to light. Her heart was pierced by the sword of God as old Simon had predicted 33 years before. It was enough!

Are we too suffering as watchers under the cross. What a lesson for our lives: "To suffer with Christ!" I often feel so sorry as I look upon the religious conditions of today. We organize and establish clubs and societies and carry out programs of music and what not—mainly for our entertainment. But where are the cross bearers? Where is the willingness to stand as a mother under the cross in spite of the dangers?

Let us take this lesson home: 1) To watch under the cross.—2) To be loyal to the cross of Christ.—3) To stand heroically under the cross.—4) To carry, carry, CARRY our cross until we have finished our course and kept our faith, watching and waiting patiently for the crown of righteousness, which God has laid up for all those that look for his appearance.

The Work of the Field Secretary of the General Conference

Reverend H. A. Fast has now been active as Field Secretary for two and one-half years, and most of our churches have had the opportunity to learn first hand what the work is and how it was done. The other churches are to be visited as soon as possible.

During this whole time the Executive Committee of the Conference has not once requested the churches to contribute to this special work. But now those churches that have been visited are kindly requested to take a free will offering in the near future for this cause and to send it to the conference treasurer, Bro. Karl A. Richert, Newton, Kansas, stating that it is for the Field Secretary work. And will churches that have not been visited kindly do the same when Bro. Fast visits them.

From a number of churches reports have come that Bro. Fast's presentation and explanation of the work of the Conference has given members a better insight into the work, and that the feeling of having here a united task to perform in our Lord's kingdom was definitely kindled and strengthened.

The word of the Head of the church, "that they may all be one," applies to our Mennonite church as well as to others. But let us not falsely interpret it as though we could have part in the blessing without sharing in the support of the work in prayer and purse.—C. E. Krehbiel, Chairman, Executive Committee.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

BEYOND THE BLUE HILLS

During our last hot season in Mauhadih we always ate our little breakfast under a large mauha tree back of the bungalow. From there we could look away south beyond the Mahanadi river to a low line of blue hills in the distance. Somewhere in that direction lies the Basna field.

Then one day I heard this story: In the year 1915 Rev. and Mrs. Steiner came to Mauhadih to take charge of the work while the Missionary Wiens family was on furlough. Often at sunset time they would take a walk around the compound and then sitting on the south wall they would look off to those same hills in the south. At that time there was no Boarding School at Mauhadih and only a handful of Christians. In fact, according to a report by Rev. Gustav Harder, who was on the Mission Board, there were only 140 Christians in our whole field.

That year the first village school across the Mahanadi had been started, but that was only six miles, or so, away. As the Steiners sat there looking across river and jungle to those blue hills in the distance, a desire was born to go and see.

In the book "Twenty Five Years with God in India," there is a section called "Chronology of Twenty Five Years." There under the year 1916—BASNA*—We read as follows:

"Operating from Birra station, Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Steiner and a party of evangelists made the first systematic tour of the district lying south of the Belaigarh hills, during February. They went as far south as Kursipahar, conducted a meeting and showed lantern slides in the Basna schoolhouse, and finally, while attempting to bring their two weeks work to a close in the bazaar village of Pirda, they met Gopal. He had become a Christian 18 years previously. He insisted that there were seven families in Sukhri who wanted to receive Christian baptism. A trip to this village, the home of Gopal, verified his statements. The first evangelist to be stationed in that territory was Isa Das who was sent to Sukhri village as soon as arrangements could be made."

Just the bare facts for that is all a chronology is supposed to give. Yet what a thrill there must have come to the hearts of those two who had followed the God-given urge. Suppose they had not gone! Suppose they had felt the long trip on springless carts was too difficult!

As I sat thinking about all this, the cook came into the room. I remembered that he had cooked for many years. Perhaps he would know something about that epoch-making trip. He did. He had been one of the group that went and was eager to tell what he remembered. They had travelled in carts, four or five of them, for, besides the missionaries there had been the evangelist Isa Das and his family, the cook and his wife and two children (the cook's wife was a Bible Woman), and then all the necessary touring equipment such as tents, bedding, food stuffs, books, magic lanterns and such. At Basna they had pitched their tents and, hearing that there were Christians in Kursipahar, they had gone there for a service. The next camp had been at Pirda Bazaar and there Gopal had made himself known to the Christians and had spent the night with them. The next day Rev. Steiner with some of the men had gone to Sukhri and had found that Gopal had been right. There were people there who wanted to be baptized.

* This is the station Rev. P. J. Wiens fostered.

In the next room Shanti was ironing. I remember that she hailed from Sukhri. So I called out to her, "Was your father among those early converts?" She said, "Yes, he and other relatives were among those. And Pancho Bai who lives here in Mauhadih is a daughter of that Gopal who called the missionary to our village." I turned back to the chronology and read under 1917:

BASNA—"The ingathering of the spiritual harvest of this area began this year. Operating from Birra Station during the month of May, the brethren Wiens and Steiner went down forty miles south to Sukhri and baptized twenty nine persons, the first fruits of this district. Many more people of the same caste in other villages began to ask for instruction and baptism which culminated in the great ingathering of the next few years."

1919—BASNA—"During a tour made by Rev. and Mrs. Wiens 108 received baptism. From now on a yearly tour of about four weeks became a regular feature of the work through Phuljhar and Deori Zemindaries."

1924—BASNA—"Rev. and Mrs John Thiessen were assigned to work in this field. Rev. Thiessen began a thorough canvass and visited everyone of the forty five villages in which 400 Christians were living and entered into most of their homes. The year before this the work of the Basna station was organized separately from that of Birra and Rev. and Mrs. Moyer had assumed responsibility for the work in Phuljhar and Deori Zemindaries." For some time they were busy trying to get a place for a station and then getting that station started which is no small task.

I have taken you with me in this sketchy study of the history of the work south of the Mahanadi river that you may better understand the background of our new home. For, since the 15th of December, 1938 our home is here in the country beyond those blue hills that I looked at so often last hot season. I shall tell you some day soon of some of the interesting happenings on this side of the blue hills.

—From Mrs. J. A. Duerksen

Are Peace Workers Communists?

E. L. Harshbarger

Were you ever accused of being a communist, because you believed in peace and were willing to do some work for peace? Do you remember how some Mennonite leaders urged the passage of anti-communist resolutions to make sure the Mennonites would not be classed with godless communism? Do you recall Mennonite attacks on non-Mennonite peace organizations, because they had been classed with communism by the militarists and fascists? If you remember, then take heart, brother, for at last the communist shows his true colors.

Today, militarists, fascists, communists and other opponents of peace movements are all in the same camp. They all believe in violence. They all believe in brute force. They all neglect the peace teachings of the Prince of Peace. All thoughtful persons were aware of this fundamental union before, but it was hard to convince the people that peace movements were not tainted with communism when the communists were proposing disarmament, were attending peace conferences, and opposing armament programs. Today, however, the issue is crystal clear. The communists of America are the loudest in their call for a "holy" crusade against the fascist terror, the warmest in their support of President Roosevelt's armament program, the most "patriotic" in their oratory. Listen to the words of Earl Browder leader of the communist party. These quotations are taken from a report presented at a meeting of the National Committee of the Communist Party held in New York, December 3, 4, 5, 1938.

"We can no longer dismiss the armament question with the old answer. We cannot deny the possibility even the probability, that only American arms can preserve the Americas from conquest by the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance . . . The Atlantic Ocean is transformed from a barrier to a broad high-road for the aggressor powers. The Pacific may soon be the same." p. 38.

"The question is not: are we for armaments, yes or no; it is the more complicated question, "Armaments for what?" If it is for the defense of liberty and independence of our own and other peoples, yes, emphatically, yes!" p. 40.

" . . . It is not pleasant to visualize what would happen to soft and flabby millionaires when they are at the mercy of Hitler's gang of hardened cut-throats." p. 41.

"When the United States has thoroughly made up its mind to stand out against the fascist alliance, the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis, and its Chamberlain-Daladier annex then the question is, how to do a quick and thorough job of it. Do we want to do it alone or do we want all the help we can get?" p. 41.

"Only a fool could deny that the United States would be stronger, that its role in the world would be much greater, that its national interests would be more secure, if it were working in collaboration with the great power of the Soviet Union." p. 44.

Of course, the communist is no more sincere than he was before. He is not concerned with preserving democracy, but rather with promoting his godless communism. He has changed his method only, his aim is insidiously the same.

But this change in communist strategy clarifies matters for the workers of peace. Now the issue is clear, a person who works for peace cannot be a communist, for the communists are working for war; any institution which stands for peace, especially one which stresses the religious phase, cannot be communistic, for communists are now working for war; you cannot be on both sides, either you oppose peace efforts and thereby work for the communists, or you wholeheartedly work for peace and thereby promote Christian peace in a land where freedom to worship God is preserved.

It was, of course, ridiculous to claim, previously, that all peace workers, including Mennonites, were communists, but it was said and many of our own people, even some leaders, were suspicious of all peace organizations. But today, the communist has shown his true colors. He wants a war of bloodshed and terror to bring his perverted system to our beloved America. Therefore, the peace worker can no longer be stigmatized as a communist. To do so is not only ridiculous, it is a deliberate falsehood.

Let all people, especially all Mennonites, work diligently for peace. By so doing we work against our carnal enemy, the god of war, and his twin children, fascism and communism. Let the timid and the suspicious now be assured that, at least the Mennonite leaders, are working both against war and communism, as well as fascism. Let us boldly but humbly assert our Christian faith and our belief in democracy. The enemies of the peace program are all in one camp now. They are easily recognized. On the question of war and peace, militarism, fascism, and communism are all alligned on one side, the children of peace on the other. No longer need Mennonites cower in inactivity; Christ himself, reason and expediency are all on our side; all call us to stand firm and "do battle for the Lord." They call us, not to a campaign of hate, but to a proclamation of the Gospel of Peace; not to a program of overcoming hatred with more hatred, but to a resolution to overcome evil with good. They call us in the words of our Master to "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you." Matt. 5:44.

AN EXPLANATION

In the printed report of the recent session of the Mission Board (Mission number of the Mennonite) Resolution No. 11 regarding Montana might be misconstrued. Mine was not a claim for an allowance, but was based on certain furlough rules. However they seem not to apply to missionaries in the United States, even if they have their home churches in Europe and are citizens there.

The Annual Bible Conference will again take place from May 12 to 19 at Newton, Kansas. The speakers that have already promised to serve are: Dr. Paul Rood, formerly president of Torrey Bible Institute, now president of the World's Christian Fundamentals Association; Dr. P. R. Schroeder, who has just served six years as chairman of the General Conference and is pastor of the Salem Mennonite Church, near Freeman, South Dakota; Dr. Harry Ironside, pastor of the Moody Memorial Church in Chicago, Illinois. Dr. A. H. Unruh, Principal of the Pniel Bible School, Winkler, Manitoba, has been asked to serve in German, but has not yet given his consent.

It is a special privilege to have the opportunity to listen to these outstanding Bible teachers. We heartily invite everybody to attend these meetings and to support them with their prayers.—E. M. Harder.

EVANGELIZING—WHAT DO YOU MEAN?

Evangelism refers to a certain type of effort. The task of evangelism is to present Jesus Christ through word and life in such a way that people may repent from their sins and through faith in Him receive forgiveness of their sins and thus enter into a new life in and through Jesus Christ their Lord. The message of evangelism is Jesus Christ Himself; the result, changed lives—lives lived new and creatively by the love of Christ who dwells in our hearts through faith.

PAUL ESTABLISHES CHURCHES

Acts 15:1-7, 19-23

TOPIC: Planting the Gospel in New Fields

The Church Established in Iconium vs 1-7

Iconium, in Lycaonia, was a city of considerable importance, situated at the intersection of several large overland trade routes. This helped to make it an especially well-adapted center in which to establish a church and to operate a missionary enterprise. Paul and Barnabas came here from Pisidia, went into the synagogue and powerfully witnessed for Christ (v1), winning many believers. Their good was not allowed to go on unhindered (v2), opposition being stirred up among the Gentiles—not Gentile proselytes. The opposition did not at once threaten violence and they continued to proclaim boldly the "word of grace" accompanied by "signs and wonders" (v3). An inspired witness for Christ can not well be silenced. They stayed until the many converts were well established in the faith. In time the hostile movement made plans for an assault upon Paul and Barnabas by both Gentiles and rulers of the Jewish synagogue, so they fled—the only common-sense thing to do (cf. Matt. 10:23). While the apostles were driven from Iconium by the enemies of Christ, they however left behind them a strong body of believers and the work went on. They went to Lystra and preached the gospel there. Here a helpless cripple was healed (vs 8-10) and this won the people's attention. God directed Paul's attention to this man who listened so attentively to him and showed he had faith to be healed. This miracle caused the people to look upon them as gods.

Paul Stoned, Raised by the Lord vs 19-23

Certain of the unbelieving Jews came from Antioch and Iconium and roused up the people of Lystra against Paul and his preaching. They had been ready to offer sacrifice to him a short time before this (v13). Now they were swayed by the Jews to stone him—not a judicial, legal stoning, but popular tumult (v19). How fickle popular favor is. Jesus experienced the same—Palm Sunday and Good Friday. They worshipped Paul, then stoned him. How fortunate that he was depending on God's favor, not on man's. Meantime however disciples had been won. As they stood round about Paul's body, he rose up (v20). God, in a miraculous way, either revived him from unconsciousness or else restored his dead body to life. God enabled him, the "chosen vessel," to go back into the city and the next day go farther on his missionary work. The hand of God thwarted the evil designs of the enemies of the gospel. Opposition did not stop Paul. He and Barnabas went on to Derbe, preaching and teaching and winning many disciples (v21). Then they retraced their way, visiting again the disciples won in the cities visited earlier (vs 21, 22), confirming the souls of the disciples and encouraging them to continue in the faith. It is not enough just to bring people to Christ; they must be strengthened and built up. Converts to Christ must "continue in the faith."

Planting the Gospels in New Fields

This is what Paul did in most of his labors. He preached with great power. God helped him with many signs and wonders to reinforce the truths he preached. The Holy Spirit helped him to drive the truth home to the hearts of his hearers and produce conviction of sin. Usually it takes more than silver-tongued oratory to lead people to the Lord. Paul was much concerned in establishing the converts in the faith. He revisited the churches he had estblished and effected organization by appointnig and ordaining elders who became the constituted leaders and were responsible for the care of the souls (v23). The organized Church was needed then, is needed today, to provide public worship and watch over souls and encourage them to continue in the faith.

LETTER

TAMING, HOPEI, N. CHINA, FEB. 23, 1939

Rev. P. H. Richert, Goessel, Kansas.

Dear Rev. Richert:

Thank you for your letter of January 13th. It is very interesting to me to note that so many of the friends at home had the assurance that I would get well. The realization of so many people praying for me, here and at home, serves to make me feel very humble, and I am grateful past all expression that I am permitted to continue to serve the Master here. With conditions as they are, one can't help the feeling of urgency, "We must work while it is yet day."

The cables which you mention in your letter to Mr. Voth did not come through, but as another friend who tried unsuccessfully to cable wrote, "It is a relief though that the spiritual cables made it—as always."

Convalescence seems very slow to me, but I hope to be at work soon.—We here have figured that the Mission Board is meeting during these days, and we pray for you, that in all the many affairs which you have to arrange, you may have the mind of Christ.

Most sincerely, Wilhelmina Kuyf.

SERMON SKETCH

HATH GOD CAST AWAY HIS PEOPLE?

Olin A. Krehbiel

(Romans 11:1)

One of the pressing problems of our day seems to be what to do with the Jew.

I. The Time of Jacob's Trouble

Many nations are persecuting the Israelites and seeking in every way to get rid of them. The doors of other countries are closed and there are a few places found where they can go. One is reminded of the word of Zechariah when he said, "Place shall not be found for them." It is a day of tribulation and suffering for God's people and some may ask, has God forsaken them? Although this is the time of the Gentiles and the Jews have been scattered, down-trodden and driven from one place to another yet Paul tells us that God has not cast away his people Israel. They may be blinded at present but someday they shall see Him whom they have pierced.

II. Judgment for Persecutors

In the promise of God to Abraham, Genesis 12:3, there is a warning to those who curse them and that also holds good for his descendants. Let no modern Pharaoh who would oppress the Jew forget that he will be held accountable for such action. God has said through the mouth of his prophet Jeremiah, "all they that devour thee shall be devoured; and all thine adversaries, every one of them, shall go into captivity; and they that spoil thee shall be a spoil, and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey." We as Christians should not join the procession that is stirring up hate but we ought rather to carry the gospel of the love of Christ to our Jewish brethren. Blessing will come to those who do this.

III. Deliverance

Paul after having raised the above questions goes on to show that deliverance will come after the times of the Gentiles. Christ speaking of things to come gives the parable of the fig tree which represents the Jewish people. He said the family of Israel would not pass away until God had fulfilled all His promises to them. One of the wonders of the world is the Jew. For about 2000 years he has had no country of his own but has been scattered over the face of the globe and yet he has retained his identity. Why? Because God has something in store for him.

"And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, Egypt, Pathros, Cush, Elam, Shinar, Hamath and the islands of the sea. And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth." Isaiah 11:11-12. Isn't God gathering his people again today? Over 350,000 have gone back to Palestine and they are still going. This is more than seven times the number that went back in the days of Zerubbabel. Oh they are encountering difficulties in the Promised Land as they did in that day, but the valley of dry bones is becoming a fruited plain. They shall not be rooted up anymore but as Ezekiel says, "They shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob . . . forever: and my servant David shall be their prince forever."

Conclusion:

Since God has not cast away Israel, is it not also true that He will not cast away Christian people? Even though things may look black for the moment the promises of Christ cannot fail, they will be kept.

To the Churches of the Western District Conference

Some time ago your Committee on School and Education began to collect German books for our brethren in Paraguay. This work was discontinued for a time because we waited for a definite expression from those brethren. We have word now that they would greatly appreciate books of this kind. We are, therefore, going to continue our collection until we have a sufficient number for a good shipment.

We should have about 2,000 lbs. At present we have only 3 or 400 lbs. on hand. Will those of our churches or individuals that have German books and would like to give them for this cause, send or bring them to our Loan Library, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas? The books should be in good condition and worth reading. Books with torn covers or books that are otherwise badly worn cannot be sent.

Toward a Continuous Mennonite Fellowship

Don. E. Smucker, North Newton, Kansas

I like the Quakers. In fact, I like them so well that I recently joined the Wider Quaker Fellowship, an organization for "those who would like to have closer fellowship with friends." Through this group one receives pamphlets on Quaker thought and action; letters from individuals with similar outlook; contact with Quakerism even though one is living in a place where there is no Quaker meeting.

As I read the letter from Brother Shaffer, secretary of the Fellowship, a series of questions concerning my own denomination came to me, all which culminated in a final query: Why not have a Mennonite Fellowship?

Because there are important differences in the complexion of the two groups, I am not asking for a mere duplication of the Wider Quaker Fellowship plan. No! I want an organization with more modest objectives, namely, the conservation of our most precious resource: those individuals, wherever they may be, who have been nurtured in the Mennonite way of life. This is necessary because of several characteristics of the Mennonites: (1) we are rural people; (2) we are concentrated in a few states and a scattered number of areas within a given state. Due to these factors, some of the best young people who move to cities or smaller non-Mennonite communities soon lose touch with any church or educational institution under Mennonite auspices. In most cases, these people remain loyal to the great heritages of the church. Being religious, they naturally join other churches and, also, develop interest in other agencies of education. This, in essence, is the expression of the Mennonite faith through non-Mennonite outlets. That, in itself, is not tragic, for, in the final analysis, it is the Christian gospel which is primary. On the other hand, there is a note of pathos in this severing of all institutional connections with the Mennonite faith of their fathers.

How would a Mennonite Fellowship remedy this situation?

It would provide an organization to which the individual could affiliate, thus gaining what would amount to an associate membership. The person would say something like this: "In this community where there are no Mennonite churches or schools, I must work in some other denomination. I do, however, want to continue my contact with and express my continued interest in Mennonite belief and action. Keep me informed on the affairs of the church. Count me as a supporter of your projects. Help me to keep alive this profound Christian revelation which has carried on these four hundred years."

The mechanics of organization could follow a pattern which, in general, was informal and flexible. There should be no long statement to sign, but rather the simple affirmation of continued faith and interest in things Mennonite. Membership would be granted upon the writing of a letter with this declaration; the desire for spiritual identification with their unique heritage. Special literature, the exchange of personal letters among members and personal visits by church officials could then make this fellowship real. The only obligation would be friendship.

Because this is a common problem among Mennonite groups, an inter-Mennonite fellowship council would be the best agency for the setting up of the plan. Representatives from the General, Central and Old Mennonite conferences (to name only a few!) could inaugurate the organization. In addition to being wider in scope, it might be a step toward denominational unity. These details, however, may be worked out later on and this outline is only meant to be suggestive. At any rate, our Mennonite teachers, lawyers, doctors, and business men in Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland, Arkansas City and other scattered points could still work in their particular communities and yet preserve the contact with their original background, a relationship, I believe, which would be mutually beneficial.

I would like to hear from other Mennonites who might be interested in forming an organization of this kind.

FIRST. MENN CHURCH, SHAFTER, CALIF.

Mr. John Penner from Reedley, Calif. brought some wonderfully uplifting messages during a two-week evangelical meeting in the month of January.

The churches of Shafter are uniting in an endeavor to get children who now do not attend any Sunday School, interested in going to Sunday School. Each church has selected three Sunday School teachers who invite children to come into their homes for one hour each week to learn the teachings of the Bible.

The Young People of our church are preparing for the convention that is to be held March 24-26 at our local church. A large crowd is expected, and an interesting program is in store for those who attend.

The annual sale of our Ladies Aid was a financial success. We are now making additions to our kitchen, and have recently purchased a hot water tank, a steam table, and more dishes.

Each month our whole congregation enjoys a potluck supper and fellowship meeting in the basement of the church. These meetings are interesting, and they promote good will among the members of the congregation. —Mrs. B. H. Harder, Corr.

—The Alumni Association of Freeman College is pushing a project to add many more books to the college library. Both books and funds are being solicited for this purpose at present in the local communities.

A Suggestion for Easter Vacation

A pastor tells of two girls who came home from different colleges to spend Christmas vacation in their home town. They were members of the same church. One began at once to plan with her mother the three weeks which she was to spend at home. A skating party, coasting, a dance—there was a plan for every evening. She had been inside the church just once, when she came in one Sunday morning late for the church school. The thought of contributing to the life of the church had not occurred to her. It was her vacation.

Another vacation: The other girl had only two weeks at home. She, too, enjoyed a good time, and began to plan her vacation accordingly. But she did not forget her Partner. One afternoon, she invited to her home a group of girls who were not often asked to parties. Among them was a negro girl. In the afternoon they coasted, and toward evening went into the house for refreshments and fun before a roaring fire. It was there where without apology, in a simple natural way, the young hostess spoke of Christ who meant so much in her life. At the close of her vacation she returned to college. Two weeks later she received a letter from the colored girl who had been her guest, saying that she had given herself to Christ and was finding opportunities to serve him. A changed life had come as a result of a vacation in which Christ was given a place.—The Vine Press.

Easter

Sing, soul of mine, this day of days.
The Lord is risen.
Toward the sunrising set thy face.
The Lord is risen.
Behold he giveth strength and grace;
For darkness, light; for morning, praise;
For sin, his holiness; for conflict, peace;
Arise, O soul, this Easter Day!
Forget the tomb of yesterday,
For thou from bondage art set free;
Thou sharest in his victory
And life eternal is for thee,
Because the Lord is risen.

Questionnaire Results

Question No. 4, "should it (separate Y. P. paper) be distributed on a subscription plan for individual readers?" In favor of such a subscription plan were 6, against such a plan were 4, and 3 were undecided. Some comments were:

"No! Mennonite does not seem to get into most of our homes that way."

"A matter for further study. I doubt if contributions could cover the cost of publication."

"It should be distributed on a subscription plan, and it should with proper care welcome financial support through paid advertising."

"This publication must positively not be distributed on a subscription plan for individual readers. The reason for making this statement is that if this plan is used only about half of the Mennonite Youth will receive this paper, and only a few will really be interested in it."

Oratory Continued for Spiritual Inspiration

In this day of economic and religious strife it is very important that Mennonite Youth keep itself informed on all problems, especially those pertaining to religion.

The K.I.I.R. offers splendid opportunity for this very purpose—to inform and enrich ourselves so that we as Christian youth might become more useful in this world.

Another step in this direction has been taken by our W.D.C. in sponsoring the second annual oratory. In keeping with the peace resolution passed at the W.D.C. last year, we are offering the oratory. The two general topics to be discussed by our orators this year are, "Peace" and "Missions."

Everyone interested is urged to take advantage of this contest, for expense-paid retreats are awarded to the winners of both.

Rules for W.D.C. Oratory

1. Each contestant must be a member of a Western District C. E. society.
2. Orations must be given in a regional elimination contest. (The location of these will depend upon the number of entries.)

3. Contestants must not have taken part in collegiate contests.

4. Entry blanks must be sent in by May 1.

Oration Suggestions

1. Material for orations may be secured in the Bethel library or any public library. Use the Bible and religious periodicals.

2. Consultation and personal interviews with educators and ministers is advisable.

3. For further information write to: Mr. Edwin Stucky, Peace Secretary, Moundridge, Kansas.

4. Remember oratory deadline for entry blanks, May 1, 1939!—Western District Tidings.

Pacific District News

Easter music is being rehearsed in many of our churches. The Newport choir is preparing special songs. The Menno choir is learning the cantata, "The Morn of Victory." The Pratum choir has 35 singers in the senior choir. It is preparing a cantata under the direction of Roy Rutchman. This is to be given at Dallas as well as at Pratum. The Reedley choirs are preparing "The Crucifixion" by John Steiner. The director is C. F. Mueller.

The Executive Committee of the Pacific District Conference has appointed Miss Alice Lehman of Aberdeen, Idaho, to act as representative for our district and to cooperate with the Y. P. Committee of the General Conference. The other nominees are asked to serve in their respective states under leadership. They are Harry Albrecht of Monroe, Wash., Roy Rutschman of Pratum, Oregon, and Mrs. Wallace Hiebert of Upland, Calif.—The Pacific District Workers Exchange.

THE LOVE OF GOD

Could we with ink the ocean fill,
Were the whole world of parchment made,
Were every single stick a quill,
Were every man a scribe by trade;
To write the love of God alone
Would drain the ocean dry;
Though stretched from sky to sky.
—Selected.

— Rev. J. J. Thiessen, Saskatoon, Sask. reports that while the number of girls frequenting and using the Girls' Home there had dropped to 40 in spring, many returned toward fall and, with new ones now joining, the Home is now serving eighty girls.—Der Herald.

Church Member's Conduct

Senior C. E. Topic for April 23, 1939

Topic—what should a church member do? Rom. 12:1-21.

Suggested hymns

"Somebody Did a Golden Deed", "I'm Pressing on the Upward Way", "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus"

The following two poems may well serve for the worship service:

So he died for his faith. That is fine—
More than most of us do.
But say, can you add to that line
That he lived for it too?
In his death he bore witness at last
As a martyr to truth.
Did his life do the same in the past
From the days of his youth?
It is easy to die! Men have died
For a wish or a whim—
From bravado or passion or pride,
Was it harder for him?
But to live—every day to live out
All the truth that he dreamt,
While his friends met his conduct with doubt
And the world with contempt.
Was it thus that he plodded ahead,
Never turning aside?
Then we'll talk of the life that he lived.
Never mind how he died. —Crosby.

What was His creed?
I do not know His creed, I only know
That here below He walked the common road
And lifted many a load, lightened the task,
Brightened the day for others toiling on a weary way:
This, His only meed: I do not know His creed,
His creed? I care not what His creed:
Enough that never yielded He to greed,
But served a brother in his daily need,
Plucked many a thorn and planted many a flower;
Glorified the service of each hour;
Had faith in God, Himself and fellowmen—
Perchance He never thought in terms of creed,
I only know He lived a life, in deed!
—H. N. Fifer, from the Christian Century.

Suggested topics for short talks:

1. Leave the past behind. Phil. 3:12-14
2. Live in the Spirit. Gal. 5:22-26
3. Labor whole-heartedly. Col. 3:23, 24
4. Love his church. Ps. 122.
5. Look unto Jesus. Heb. 12:1, 2

For Discussion

Will a church member do the following things because he is a church member:

1. Attend service regularly and often or just once in a while?

2. Give financial support to the church and its activities and how much?
3. Assume responsibility and render service in the church according to his talents?
4. Endeavor to interest new people in the church?
5. Support mission and relief work?

Today there is a growing demand that the life of church members should be "different." Church members are to prove by what they do that "Christianity works." We cannot lecture men into loving Christ, but we can win them for him by showing his love in our way of living.

"How many missionaries have you now on your station?" a bishop once asked of a returned missionary. "Three thousand," was the answer. "I did not ask how many converts you have, but how many missionaries?" returned the bishop. "I quite understand you, and again reply, "Three thousand, for all our converts are missionaries."—Selected.

There is the story of a missionary who told the natives of India of Jesus who went about doing good. The natives said, "Oh, yes, we know who he is. He has lived among us." And as proof they showed the missionary the grave of another missionary who had worked in their midst some years ago. Are our lives also spent "going about and doing good?"

Food for thought: "Faith without works is dead."

Why the Bible Never Becomes out of Date

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Apr. 23, 1939

For Daily Reading

Apr. 17. God's word stands. Matt. 5:17, 18.
Apr. 18. Prophets spoke for later times. I Peter 1:3-12.
Apr. 19. History was written for future use. I Cor. 10:1-12.
Apr. 20. Help comes from past events. Rom. 15:1-7.
Apr. 21. Heed Christ's warnings. Matt. 24:35-42.
Apr. 22. The peril of influence. II Pet. 3:1-10.
Apr. 23. Topic—Why the Bible never becomes out of date. Isa. 40:8; I Pet. 1:22-25.

THE WORLD'S BEST BOOK

"The Bible is the world's most popular book. In 1933 the Bible away and afar outsold the twelve best sellers in English. The combined output of Bibles from the American Bible Society, the British Bible Society, and the Scottish Bible Society, since the origin of these societies, is over eight hundred million of copies and portions of Bibles. It was recently stated by someone in authority that very soon a person buying a copy of the English Bible will find a statement printed in the front of that Bible to the effect that it is the one-billionth copy of the Word of God printed in the English language." — Moody Monthly, Oct. 1935.

Song, "O Word of God Incarnate"
Have the members read each verse silently before it is sung.

Scripture Reading: Isa. 40:8; I Pet. 1:22-25.

Silent Reading: (Have each one meditate on what the Bible means to him. Follow this period with prayers expressing the desire to become better acquainted with the Bible and gratefulness for the privilege of having free use of it.)

Song, "Holy Father Thou Hast Given"

THE BIBLE WILL STAND

O God, Thy word is true we know!
It makes men's souls with beauty glow
With radiance from above.
Help us to plant it in each heart
That none from Thee might wish to part,
But walk with Thee in love.

We know its entrance giveth light
To guide us through life's darkest night,
To light that is divine.
The hope it gives is from above,
And floods our souls with truest love,
Making us know we're Thine.

Heaven and earth shall pass away,
And yet Thy Holy Word shall stay
Until its task is done.
It is the truth, and cannot fail,
Though foulest hell doth it assail—
Its fight has long been won.

Eternal Truth, give us to know
That joy our souls may overflow,
While on Thy Word we rest.
Bestow upon us now Thy grace
That we may truly seek Thy face,
And know that we are blest.

We believe it profitable in relation to this topic to consider some quotations of famous men as to why they believe the Bible never becomes out of date. These should serve as thought stimulants to be followed by an informal discussion. Have the Endeavors give reasons why they love the Bible and why they believe it will live undefeated.

"The longer you read the Bible the more you will like it; it will grow sweeter and sweeter; and the more you get into the spirit of it, the more you will get into the spirit of Christ."—Romaine.

"I have always said, I always will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers, and better husbands."—Jefferson.

"Scholars may quote Plato in their studies, but the hearts of millions will quote the Bible at their daily toil, and draw strength from its inspiration, as the meadows draw it from the brook."—Conway.

"The gospel is not merely a book—it is a living power—a book surpassing all others. I never omit to read it, and every day with the same pleasure. Nowhere is to be found such a series of beautiful ideas, and admirable moral maxims, which pass before us like the battalions of a celestial army . . . The soul can never go astray with this book for its guide."—Napoleon on St. Helena.

"There is not in the whole compass of human literature a book like the Bible, which deals with such profound topics, which touches human nature on so many sides of experience, which relates so especially to its duties and sorrows and temptations, and yet which looks over the whole field of life with such sympathy and cheerfulness of Spirit."—H. W. Beecher.

"The grand old book of God still stands, and this old earth, the more its leaves are turned over and pondered, the more it will sustain and illustrate the sacred Word."—Prof. Dana.

"The book to read is not the one which thinks for you, but the one which makes you think. No book in the world equals the Bible for that."—McCosh.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"He Was Taken Up"

Acts 1:9

Program for April 23, 1939

"We, O Lord, with hearts adoring
Follow Thee beyond the sky;
Hear our prayers Thy grace imploring,
Lift our souls to Thee on high."

I. Worship Period

1. Quiet music
2. Sing in unison, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name"
3. Leader's Prayer
4. Responsive Reading:
   Leader: As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in Him, should not perish, but have eternal life.
   Juniors: For God so loved the world, that he gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him, should not perish, but have everlasting life.
   Leader: Worthy is the Lamb that was slain and hath redeemed us to God by His blood, to receive power and riches and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory and blessing.
   Juniors: Blessing and honor, glory and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.
5. Solo. (An older girl sings while all Juniors reverently bow their heads) "Holy, Holy, Holy", verse 2 and 3

II. Mission Minutes

1. The Junior leaders will find much material that they can use in the recent Mission Number of "The Mennonite."
2. It is garden time. Juniors, why not have a "Mission Garden" this summer? Plant it, care for it, and sell what you raise, giving the money you earn in this way to the mission. Maybe you will even have enough vegetables so that you can make someone living near you happy by giving them some of the nice vegetables from your "Mission Garden".

III. Study Period. Aim: To help the Juniors to realize that our Lord Jesus is now in heaven, but that He will come again.

1. A Junior reads the story of the Ascension. Luke 24:50-53; Acts 1:9-11.
2. One minute talks by Juniors:
   a. What does "Ascension" mean?
   b. Where is Jesus Now? Mark 16:19; Acts 7:55, 56.
   c. Jesus' last command:
   "Ye shall be witnesses." Acts 1:8.
   d. Jesus' last promise:
   "I am with you always." Matt. 28:20.
   e. Jesus praying for us. Rom. 8:34.
3. Sing the first two stanzas of "I Have a Savior, He's Pleading in Glory."
4. Bible Findings: Matt. 28:20; Mark 16:19; Heb. 9:24; Rom. 8:17; John 14:3, 4; Heb. 13:8; Matt. 23:39; Matt. 25:31; Phil. 3:20, 21; 1 Thess. 1:10; Rev. 22:20; 1 John 3:2.
5. Leader's Heart Talk. Make the fact that some time we shall see Him for ever and rejoice with joy unspeakable if we believe in Jesus and accept Him as our Savior, very precious to the children. Use the story of the two birds in Lev. 14:49-53 (types of Christ's sacrificial death, resurrection and ascension). Close with a prayer of thanksgiving.
6. Song, "Jesus Loves Me"

Conferences and Conventions

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE will meet at the Bally Mennonite Church, Hereford, Pa., May 4 to 7, 1939.

PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE plans to meet at Monroe, Washington, June 9 to 11 inclusive.

NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE is scheduled to meet at the Salem Church near Freeman, South Dakota, June 10 to 13.

EASTERN DICTRICT QUARTERLY CONFERENCE will be held at First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa., Monday, April 17.

KANSAS MENNONITE TEACHERS' CONVENTION will be held at Tabor College, Hillsboro, Kansas, Sunday, April 30, 1939.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, RANSOM, KANSAS

On Sunday, March 19, about eighty relatives and friends gathered at the F. O. Oppliger home to help them celebrate their forty-second wedding anniversary. After dinner a short program, consisting of songs by all and a short talk by Rev. Abr. Albrecht was enjoyed. The guests departed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Oppliger many more happy anniversaries.

We were privileged to have Rev. H. A. Fast of North Newton with us on Sunday, March 19, both morning and evening, also on Monday evening.—The Ladies Missionary Society met with Mrs. F. O. Oppliger and Mrs. Walter Will the last time. After the program the time was spent tying a comfort and quilting. The Society plans to give a Mission program on Sunday evening, March 26.—Rose Ummel.

WAYLAND, IOWA, MARCH 23, 1939

On Sunday, March 19, 1939, the Eicher Emmanuel Church, at Noble, was host to districts three and four of Washington County for their church school rally.

The Rev. Carter, of the Christian Church of Washington, spoke on the place of the Bible in teaching in our church schools. The Bible should be the main textbook and all quarterlies and helps should be supplements.—Each school should have a definite objective which is to instill into every heart the eternal truth of God.

The Rev. Atack of the Methodist church used Luke 5:4 for his text: "Launch out into the deep, and let down your net." What a timely admonition for all of us. Each one of us needs to launch out into the deep and Christ says, "Let down your net." This is a personal message and means our own net, and not the net of a friend or a neighbor.

—Mrs. D. E. Welty.

GRUENFELD CHURCH, FORT COBB, OKLA.

People in our vicinity seem to be quite well with the exception of a few who have the flu or bad colds. We have not had much rain here, but wheat and oats are looking good, and the corn is coming up. Most farmers have their spring planting done, except cotton planting which is done the first part of May. We are trusting the Lord for moisture and the supply of our daily needs.—Sunday School and Church attendance were good last Sunday, with Bro. Hege as minister. Rev. Froese will fill his regular appointments.—Our church is planning to celebrate the 25th anniversary jubilee, May 7th. A. W. Froese has been our pastor during this time. We are looking to the One above for our spiritual blessings on that occasion.—Rev. J. M. Regier rendered a very fine service for us last Sunday night. Those who missed it missed a treat. We wish him much success in his work. —John Nightingale, Corr.

HOFFNUNGSAU CHURCH, INMAN, KANSAS

God has wonderfully guided our church in the past. We have enjoyed church services every Sunday, under the direction of our loving elder Rev. A. J. Dyck, Rev. C. H. Voth, and Rev. Albert Gaeddert. May we as members remember our ministers in our prayers that they may obtain new strength, courage, and faith from that fountain that never runs dry. May Christ fill them with the Holy Spirit to speak that which lifts us on higher grounds and induces us to lead nobler lives of service for Him who died on the cross.

Rev. Albert Gaeddert and family are attending school at Evanston, Ill., in further preparation for his ministerial calling. We are expecting them back the latter part of May. May he be able to bring us the greatest of all messages in a fuller measure.

Rev. Abr. Ratzlaff, who has been seriously ill, is back again greatly improved from Hillsboro, Kans., where he received the best of care in the home of his children, Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Epp, and his grandson, Dr. A. K. Ratzlaff. He is 88 years old.

Sunday, March 19, was a happy day for the Alvin Reimer family, when Brother Reimer was returned from a six weeks stay in the hospital. During his serious illness many prayers have been sent to the throne of God by his family and members of the church, and our prayers were answered. Their little daughter, about two months old, was for the first time permitted to enter the family circle. She had been in the hospital during her daddy's entire confinement and had become such an intimate friend with the nurses that they hated to give her up.

Mrs. H. H. Regier, Moundridge, underwent an operation at the Bethesda Hospital, Goessel. She is recovering slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Heidebrecht celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary at the Hoffnungsau church, in the afternoon of March 12. Sisters, brothers, relatives and friends participated in the commemoration of the event with a short program, in charge of D. D. Unruh, as follows:

Short talks by Rev. A. J. Dyck and Rev. C. H. Voth, music by Inman Four; remarks by J. J. Heidebrecht; family history by Mr. P. G. Heidebrecht; congratulatory remarks by Rev. Abraham Ratzlaff and Rev. Peter Flaming; solo by J. A. Heidebrecht.

A basket lunch was served following the program.

May the Lord grant the honored couple many more years of wedded life. —Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

DAVID A. JANZEN was born Jan. 14, 1867, at Mundhau, South Russia. He immigrated to America with his parents in 1878. They settled on a farm south of Henderson. In the year 1887 he was baptized upon the confession of his faith by Elder Peter Friesen and accepted into the Bethesda Church, where he has been an active and faithful member to the end.

On July 17, 1888, he was united in marriage to Anna Friesen. They moved onto the farm, where they resided until retirement. Their union was blest with 8 children: 6 sons and 2 daughters. In August 1923, they retired to their present home in town. Last summer the golden wedding anniversary was celebrated amid the whole family and a host of relatives and friends.

Mr. Janzen was always busily engaged. Even after retiring from active farm work he still loved to be on hand to lend a helping hand where he could. Until advancing age demanded rest he had no thought for idleness.

In church he served as a deacon for 28 years and as Sunday School teacher for 32 years. His home was one of hospitality where friends from near and far desired to enter. He was concerned about the spiritual welfare of his fellowmen. He never gave sparingly to the cause of God's kingdom. Anything in work, time or talent for helping others was willingly given.

About 5 years ago his strength began to fail. But he would not complain. He always had a pleasant greeting for everyone. The last few weeks in bed found him very resigned. He spoke of the Heavenly Father coming softly to take him home. He passed away quietly on Wednesday evening, Feb. 15, 1939.

He attained the age of 72 years, 1 month and 1 day. He leaves to mourn, his life companion, 6 sons, 2 daughters, 6 daughters-in-law, 2 sons-in-law, 27 grandchildren, 1 brother and 4 sisters.

The bereaved mourn not as such that have no hope but grant him the eternal rest prepared for him above.

ANNA MARTENS NEE BALZER was born January 9th, 1858, in Paulsheim, South Russia, and died suddenly March 13 at noon, at the age of 81 years, 2 months and 4 days.

On the confession of her faith in the Lord Jesus as her Savior, she was baptized by Rev. Dietrich Gaeddert in 1876, and received into the Hoffnungsau Mennonite Church. Later she and her family affiliated with the Buhler Mennonite Church.

She was joined in holy wedlock with John Martens, November 20th, 1877. Forty four years the good Lord granted them a sojourn together in happiness. To this union were born 9 children: A. B. Martens and Nic. B. Martens; Mrs. D. J. Ediger, Buhler; J. B. Martens, Mrs. P. H. Ediger, H. B. Martens, and G. B. Martens, Inman. She was the grandmother of 48 grandchildren, 8 of which preceded her in death. Bernhard died in infancy and P. B. Martens met death in an accident. She was the great grandmother of 8 great grandchildren. Two daughters-in-law also preceded her in death. The departed leaves to mourn her sudden departure: 5 sons, 2 daughters, 2 sons-in-law, 4 daughters-in-law, 40 grandchildren, 8 great-grandchildren, 1 brother, 1 sister, besides a great number of other relatives and friends who join the bereaved family in their sorrow.

Mother Martens was an inspiration to her family and friends in her devotional and prayer life. It afforded her much joy to make others happy. She considered it an answer to her prayers to have the assurance of her salvation and of eternal life. The following lines in free translation became very dear to her in the last few weeks:

My soul is watching with my lamp so bright,
"The bridegroom comes" I hear it through the night;
The gates of heaven open wide for me,
"Come my dear Lord, O come, I wait for Thee."

KAROLINA SAUER departed this life, after a long period of illness, March 8, 1939, aged 76 years, 5 months and 26 days. She was born Sept. 12, 1862, in Harodischt, South Russia. She was married to Mr. Peter Sauer Dec. 27, 1882. The family lived in Kansas until 1911, when they moved to Monroe, Wash. In Dec. 1933, Mr. Sauer departed this life.

Mrs. Sauer had been living in her own home in Monroe until last fall, when illness prevented her from keeping house for herself. Since then she has been living with her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Stucky. She was a faithful member of the First Mennonite Church, of which she was a charter member. Surviving her are Mrs. J. D. Stucky, her only daughter, and one granddaughter, besides a host of relatives and friends.

Rev. M. M. Lehman was in charge of the funeral service and spoke words of consolation, based on John 14.

DANIEL B. HUXMAN, son of Louis C. and Maria Zerger Huxman, was born near Moundridge, Kans., Sept. 22, 1888. When he was five years of age, the family moved to Ness County, Kansas, where his father departed this life at the age of 41 years. After the death of his father in 1899, Daniel came back to Moundridge, and made his home with his uncle, John P. Huxman, where he lived until his departure.

On the 5th of June, 1904, he was baptized upon the confession of his faith, by Rev. Wm. Galle and received into the West Zion Mennonite Church.

Daniel was one of eleven children, five of whom preceded him in death. His mother was called to her reward in 1934. Daniel's character was marked by thrift and industry. He was a good and faithful worker, who would do his utmost to please. He was quiet and reserved, and in times of suffering his lips were sealed against all complaint, for fear that he might burden someone else.

He departed this life on Feb. 22, 1939, bringing his age to 50 years and 5 months. He leaves to mourn his passing a sister and four brothers, a large number of other relatives and many friends.

— Salem Mennonite Church, near Freeman, S. D. This church, which has undertaken to entertain the NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE June 10 to 13 next, is already in full swing with the preparations. Committees have been appointed and instructed. To the Women's Missionary Society has been assigned the problem of how to furnish meals to the assembly. The pastor has given these appropriate suggestions: "Let all committees begin their preparations without delay. Plan and work and pray to make this a good conference, profitable, business-like, inspiring, and spiritual. Let us prepare to be hospitable and unhurried."—Returned missionary W. F. Unruh has been assigned by the Board of Foreign Mission to be the guest speaker of the conference.—The March offering was $88.17. —Monthly News Letter.

— St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio. — We are happy to see new faces in our church services, and pray that God may bless them and us mutually. They are Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Basinger and their two boys, Richard and Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones, their daughters, Frieda and Norma, and their son Donald.

— First Church, Philadelphia, Pa. — Passion week services: Mon.—Rev. G. A. Palmer of the Morning Cheer Broadcast, and children; Tues.—Mr. R. J. Milligan, a Christian business man; Wed.—Cantata by Church Choir; Thurs.—Preparatory Service by the Pastor; Fri.—Baptism Service and Reception of new members; Easter Sunday, Communion Service.

— CHANGE OF ADDRESS: Since the Missionary P. J. Wiens family are moving into a home of their own, they wish it announced that their address will be 315 E. 5th St., Newton, Ks., after Apr. 1, 1939.

— Our good, aged friend, Rev. Allen M. Fretz, pastor of the Deep Run, Perkasie and Springfield congregations in Penssylvania, has kindly sent us a copy of their year book entitled, "Home and Church." Following a thought-provoking introduction, are given the annual reports of the three churches: DEEP RUN: Deacons, Levi S. Moyer and Charles F. Wasser. With 9 additions and one loss during the year the church now has a membership of 189. The general treasury has received, for all purposes, $1,463.95, the Sunday School 290.53 and there are other small accountings, beside a cemetery fund of $2034.91.—PERKASIE: Deacon, Clayton F. Myers. Church receipts, $334.75; Sunday School, $65.45, etc. With two additions, the group now has 32 members.—SPRINGFIELD: Deacon, Jacob M. Landis. Church receipts, $414.06; Sunday School, $82.65; Mission Society, $133.45. With one loss, the membership is 32.—Feeling the burden of advanced age, the pastor asks for relief from this charge, as soon as a successor can be found.

— Mission Stations Thomas and Clinton, Okla. — Sunday, March 5, Mrs. Alice Flyn Romannose, Julia Sigeagle and Alfrich Heap-of-Birds, upon confession of faith in Jesus Christ as their personal Savior, were baptized and welcomed as members of the Thomas church.—One more of our old Indians left us. This time it is our native helper, Kias, Clinton. He went home Sunday, Feb. 26. He had a bad cold, then pneumonia . . . He committed himself to God, who was his Father through Jesus Christ, his personal Savior. His life was a life of service for his family, his tribe and his church. He filled his place in the pulpit two Sundays out of three. He also enjoyed witnessing for his Savior during the week. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord . . . they rest from their labors and their works follow them.

—J. B. Ediger in "Chey. and Arap. Messenger."

— Leslie E. Sprunger of Berne, Indiana, son of Mrs. D. C. Sprunger and brother of a former missionary to China, Miss Frieda Sprunger, now Mrs. P. J. Boehr, passed away, March 23, "losing a fight for life that extended over a period of eight weeks," as the local paper puts it. Starting with the flu he became critically ill with pneumonia, rallied under expert treatment and the constant bedside care of his sister "Frieda," was released from the hospital, returned there again, when an aggravated condition of empyema, with severe chills and high fever set in, this proved to be too much for the brave soul. Mr. Sprunger was 36 years old, was married, but his wife had died, leaving behind a daughter, now eight.

We extend to those left to mourn his early departure, our heartfelt sympathy.

—Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Kliewer, former mission workers in Oklahoma, are the happy recipients of a truly appreciated gift from their children, a nice home in Newton Kansas, where they have been renting a house since their retirement. The new home is located at 510 S. W. Second Street.

—First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, Kans.—A series of revival meetings are in progress in this church beginning March 26 and continuing until April 6, with Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of McPherson, evangelist. A cordial invitation is extended to pastors and church friends to participate in these blessings. —C. H. Dirks, Pastor.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE.—The a cappella choir, which is reported to be doing very creditable work under the direction of Prof. Gerhart Toews, gave the Easter Story in Song and Recitative at the Salem Zion Church, Sunday evening, March 19, 1939. And on Sunday, March 26, the group of about 30 voices gave three concerts in the churches around Freeman. On April 2, the choir starts out on a concert tour of the following places: Sioux Falls, S. D.; Mountain Lake and Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicago, Ill.; Goshen, Topeka and Nappanee, Ind.; Bluffton and Pandora, Ohio; Carlock and Peoria, Ill.; Wayland and Noble, Iowa; Omaha and Henderson, Nebr., and back to Freeman, S. D.

—Bethel College.—The a cappella choir is making a nine day tour of Oklahoma and Texas during the Easter holidays. They will sing at Meno, April 6; at Orienta Good Friday morning and Geary in the evening; three times in the Cordell neighborhood Easter Sunday; at Fort Worth, April 10. On April 12 the choir will arrive at San Antonia, and sing there on the morning of April 14 at the Southwestern Music Educators' conference.—On Palm Sunday, at the College chapel, and in the evening at the First Mennonite church, the choir will present for the 17th time the oratorio Du Bois' "Seven Last Words."—On April 4 a Peace Oration Contest will be held at the college chapel.

—More Pastorless Churches.—Last week we told about four churches in the Western District which are looking for pastors. We should have mentioned two more: The Emmanuel Church near Canton, Kansas, with a membership of 127, which Rev. J. J. Ratzlaff of Newton, Kans. has fathered the past few years, is now without a regular minister, since Rev. Ratzlaff had to give up the charge, Jan. 1, because of other duties. The Friendenstal Church near Tampa, Kansas, lost its minister, Rev. H. H. Schmidt, who had served it a good many years, through death, and is no doubt looking for a successor. It has a membership of 109. One wonders if some of these smaller churches that have not been in the habit of giving their ministers much financial support will not find it necessary to consolidate or to unite with a larger church as a filial part, wherever possible.

—Just now a brother has reported to us that the Emmaus Church near Whitewater has given a call to Rev. John C. Kaufman, pastor of the Hoffsungfeld Church near moundridge, and that he has accepted. —Der Herold.

—Rev. Walter Dyck of Burrton, Kansas, and his two sisters, Dorothy and Gertrude, were overnight guests of the Dr. P. R. Schroeder family, near Freeman, S. D. Miss Dorothy was taken to Marion for diabetes treatments, the other two returned soon.

Framed In Love

(Just a Thought)

There was light and there was darkness on the hill called Calvary.

A picture is made out of shadow and light and each human life lives itself out in a pattern of shadows and light. The strange truth within this truth is that the deeper the shadow, the more intense is the light.

Jesus walked the earth against the dark shadows of man's sin. He was the Light of the world and how radiant, how intense is the figure of the Christ as it walked in the midst of earth's selfishness and strife. Supreme was its glow when, via Delorosa, it was placed upon the cross. The darkness had not wanted light. It had sought to overcome it. When, in the three hours on the cross, the light slowly faded away as a candle that burns itself down, the darkness of earth beat its breast in triumph but God, allowing its brief joy, mourned over the sins of the children of men and, reaching down, He wrapped the earth in black shrouds of mourning till its light burned out.

It is interesting to watch the making of a picture, to see the shadows give way to light; it is thrilling to note the birth of night, the dawn of day; but the heart pulsates with joy unspeakable as it looks back to the day when the great darkness of earth received again, into its midst, the Light on Eastermorn.

A Pastor's Thought: "The Atoning Death"

The death of Jesus Christ is mentioned one hundred seventy-five times at least in the New Testament, to say nothing of the almost countless references to the death of Christ in the prophecies and types of the Old Testament; so it is evident at once how large a place that death occupies in the thoughts of God. The fundamental truth of the Gospels is His death. Christ died that you and I might live. "The wages of sin is death." He paid them. He bore the penalty. We are told in the inspired Word of God that the purpose for which Jesus Christ was incarnate was that He might die. "He died for our sins according to the Scriptures."—Easter Bulletin, Germantown Ch., Pa.

What We All Should and Could Do

During recent disturbances in the Czecho-Slovakian region of Europe, a group of American journalists met there and engaged in a thoughtful discussion of America's part in a possible new war in Europe. They unannimously reached the conclusion that the United States should keep hands off by all means and manner. For, another war would likely mean the end of democracy in Europe and, if the United States should take part, she would undoubtedly suffer the same fate as England and France. Whereas if she kept aloof from the holocaust she might be able to keep alive her democratic status and become a mighty factor in reconstructing the world along democratic lines, if such a thing were then possible. These are very encouraging thoughts.—Russia's big man, dictator Stalin, is reported to have given utterance to another wise view, namely that it would be unwise for Russia to enter into a general European war, for England and France would let Russia and other possible allies (like the U. S.) do the bulk of the fighting against Germany and Italy, and when the belligerents had reached the state of exhaustion, England-France would come forward to dictate an unjust peace like they did in 1918.—Prime Minister W. L. McKenzie King of Canada, too, recently made an interesting statement in the House of Commons, to this effect: If war should come in Europe, it would not involove great expeditionary forces. "The days of great expeditionary forces crossing the ocean are no longer with us. —It has been held unlikely that any British dominion would ever again send an expeditionary force to a war in Europe." The idea that Canada should risk the lives of citizens every twenty years in a war for democracy or small nations in Europe seemed to him a "nightmare."—But, still, the war may come. What can we Mennonites do to avoid it? First, pray to God with all possible fervency to prevent a war, for "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."—James 5:16—Secondly, make an effort to instruct our representatives in Congress to do all in their power to keep us out of a second European conflict. And that at the same time they should use strong influence with the administration to stop the shipment of war material to Japan. For without such shipments Japan would have had to stop her carnage of innocent Chinese people. This all of us can and should do.

Whitewashed Men

There is dire need for a real Christianity that reaches to the sources of our lives and takes into consideration the great needs of the day. We do not need more whitewashed men; many are too refined to consider God. We need an army of regenerated men. Men in whose hearts the Spirit of God has caused a transfusion of mighty grace with power. The need is for men who do and dare in the name of their God. Men who are mightily reenforced with the power of the Spirit. If in every countryside there could be raised up a force of such men who would stand true to the test of the Gospel, a new hope would spring forth and a great victory would be won for God. Carefulness of life and a prayerfulness in service would bring about a tremendous change.

Let us see just wherein we have been at fault or to what extent the blame can be laid at the door of the professed church. The church's message has been one in which there has been a softening down on the denunciation of sin. Sin is no longer the blighting, blinding and benighting force that it was in the days of yore. Sin is the same, but we have a changed conception of it and have taken it into good society. We have re-christened it with easy titles and have made a place for it in the holy associations to which God would never have allowed it. In doing so, we have been thinking of the physical comforts of life and not of souls. The sins against which we cry are those influences that affect the body and the mind. To vote for the wrong man or measure is a great sin to many, while the outright rejection of Jesus Christ or the denial of His atoning death are winked at as differences in opinion. There has been a tremendous let down in the matter of our regard of the sinfulness of sin. The moral leper is no longer condemned as such, much less the sinner who tramples under foot the grace and mercy of God.

Man has been enthroned as God has been dethroned. We have exalted man to a place as Master and have been whittling down the Being and power of God to fit the smallest intellectual conception of a god. We have been engaged in building a social consciousness instead of bringing men to Christ for salvation from sin and its sting. Every attempt to bring about a social reconstruction without the transforming grace of God has taken man deeper into sin and further from God. This tends to anarchy in the religious realm.

We soon discover that we have been and still are being deceived by the same devil that tempted Adam in the garden and caused the havoc in the universe when he assayed to rule over God. A little lad in Sunday School was asked, following the lesson on the fall of man, "Who tempts us now?" He replied, "The same old devil." He still is in command of men—"whitewashed men." Yes, there is need for a real Christianity that reaches to the sources of our lives.—H. Ellis Lininger, Th. D., in GOSPEL HERALD.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Letter by Missionary H. J. Brown, China, published in the Freeman, South Dak. Courier.

Praise the Lord, who is taking care of us. Today two planes bombed Kai Chow, throwing about a dozen bombs. A few fell in the open and one hit and killed a watchman. The rest all fell on houses of civilians, and a few on the people on the market buying their daily needs. Not a one fell on any military establishment. It seems devilish to do such bombing. The people came running into the yard for protection. Our church and house in the city were not hit, but one bomb fell about a block away and demolished two dwelling houses. The glass in our windows was broken by the concussion. In one home two young women were rescued from beneath the debris and sent to the hospital. In another home a woman was buried under the debris of her little house. We reached the place about 20 minutes after the bombing, but nobody was trying to rescue her. I and my helper dug with one pick and bare hands. Finally four of us got her out, but it was too late, she had been suffocated. There are reported to be 20 of these poor people now in our hospital. When one sees such things, one revolts against the inhuman way of warfare, and especially against the civilian population. I believe in God, a righteous and just judge of heaven and earth, and I surely believe that such acts of brutality will not go unpunished. The day is coming and may be close at hand, when such acts will have their right reward. You wonder how we are otherwise. Well, we really are well and have much to do. This sorrow stricken people is turning to God. The dear Lord gives us wonderful opportunities to bring the good news of salvation to many. Thank God, ever so many people in their sorrow and distress come to Christ and find forgiveness of their sins and life eternal. In the world there is no peace, but in Christ we all can have perfect peace. Greetings to all dear relatives and friends. God bless you all. Continue to pray for us.

The Power of Resurrection. "What manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" That hope has widened the scope of all our plans and purposes. It is told of Michael Angelo that on examining the work of one of his students, he took his pencil and wrote on it the one word, "amplius"—wider. So the resurrection of Christ has written "amplius" on the whole sphere of human life and character. Adding the world "altius"—higher—we can also say that the salvation wrought by Christ means a life on an immeasurably higher plan, which draws us away from the sordid things of earth and induces us to strive for things of higher, eternal values.

II. THE VOICE OF NATURE

P. R. Schroeder

Second Text: Romans 1:20, "The invisible things of him (GOD) since the creation of the world are clearly seen, being perceived through the things that are made, even his everlasting power and divinity; that they may be without excuse."

A. SOME LAWS OF NATURE

Henry Drummond in his book, Natural Law in the Spiritual World, describes a number of natural laws that bespeak a powerful and orderly LAW MAKER, whose invisible personality can be recognized through "these things that are made," demonstrating HIS EVERLASTING POWER AND DIVINITY.

1. The Law of Five Worlds

The law of these five worlds, the mineral world, the plant world, the animal world, the human world, and the spiritual world, is, that each of them is shut out from the next higher one, until the higher one reaches down into it. Example: The mineral world cannot become part of the plant world unless the plant world reaches down into it to make use of it and to make it a part of itself. So with each of the others. And the solemn truth revealed in this law is that man, a representative of the human world, can in no way reach up into the spiritual world. The only way that he can become a part of that higher world is by having God, the Master of the spiritual world, reach down into the human world through His Only Begotten Son, whom He sent to become like us, to die for us, and to rise victoriously from death, and thereby to make us partakers with Him in conquest of the world and the flesh and the Devil.

2. The Law of Neglect or Degeneration

Neglected cattle degenerate. Neglected houses degenerate. Neglected men, that is, such that do not not commit themselves to the care of the Redeemer of body, soul and spirit, degenerate. They become corrupt. They live under a curse. They are doomed to die in judgment. They have no hope.

3. The Law of Growth

Lilies grow, because it is in their nature to grow. They toil not neither do they spin. They just grow. Boys grow. Their fathers can't make them grow by threatening them. Just feed them, and they grow, because it is a law of their natural life to grow. So it is where there is genuine spiritual life, received by faith. The new-born child of God grows, because it is the law of Life to grow.

4. The Law of Death

Death is separation, limitation. Death separates a member of the animal world and transfers it to the plant or mineral world. Death of the soul separates man from the spiritual world and transfers him into the realm of the curse. Just as the tree, a member of the plant world, cannot eat the grass that a cow, member of the animal world, eats, so man—natural man—dead in sin—cannot partake of the food of the spiritual world and live by his own effort. Just as the dog, a member of the animal world, cannot appreciate the text books of man, so man—as long as God has not transferred him by His grace into the spiritual world—is blind and dead to the living Truth of the Word of God.

5. The Law of Environment

No person, plant or animal can live or thrive without an environment. None of the original members of any of these worlds of created life could have existed, if there had not been a suitable environment for them, when they were put there. Our ability to determine and improve our environment is so limited, that families, tribes and even nations have been wiped out by catastrophic changes of environment over which they had no natural control.

6. The Law of Conformity to Type

Sugar and salt crystals never look alike. Each is always true to kind. Mica can be used for stove doors, because it is a law of nature that mica always crystalizes in layers. Snow crystals always conform to type, there being no perfectly formed snow flake with more or less than six points. This law of conformity to type is also seen in conductors and non-conductors of electricity. Glass is a poor one. Copper is a good one. If glass and copper were not true to this law, man could not safely handle them when dealing with large voltages of electric power. This law is also seen in the reproduction of plants and animals and man. Seeds reproduce blindly after their kind. Only human beings can be born of human beings. Only negroes can be born of negroes. Only sinners can be born of sinners. Only God can produce saints.

7. The Law of Multiplication

Pigeons multiply every month, wheat multiplies in about three months, some bacteria multiply every minute. The human race has its law of multiplication. And in the kingdom of God there is a law of multiplication, some thirty-, some sixty-, and some an hundred fold.

8. The Law of Unity without Uniformity

There are ninety two or more elements in nature, discovered and partly understood by chemists and physicists. Practically all of these elements are willing to unite with others, under certain favorable conditions. Example: Brass is produced by the union of copper and zinc. All the elements have a place and a purpose, and some of them were missing. For instance, if only water (hydrogen and oxygen) were missing, life would be impossible on earth. Everything has its place and purpose. There is unity in this created world, but not uniformity. Diversity is one of the most pronounced marks of the "things" that exist on this planet, and yet all have a pre-determined relation to each other

9. The Law of Order and Purpose

An example of this law is the quantity of water present in the oceans and elsewhere. Scientists assert that if there were a little bit less water on the surface of the globe, it would be so dry that plant and animal life would wither and die. If there were a small increase in the total amount of water the increased evaporation and spreading of water through rain and snow and fog, etc., would produce such soggy land conditions that life would be seriously jeopardized. The sun lifts a total of sixteen feet of water from the ocean surface every year to redistribute it for the necessary purposes of life. There is evidently a GOD of Order and Purpose back of this creation. Just as bees are made to cooperate with flowers, so innumerable forms of minerals, plants and animals are corelated to each other without any pre-meditated act of their own. It all bespeaks the MIND of a GOD of Law and Order.

Can the thoughtful observer fail to recognize the INVISIBLE GOD "in the things that are made?"

B. DOES THE VOICE OF NATURE DECLARE GOD

1. Every Movement Must have a Mover

Every machine must have a maker. Every organization must have an organizer. Every work must have an idea back of it, every idea must have a living mind back of it.

2. The Invisible Always Precedes the Visible

The architect has the invisible image of the sky scraper in his mind even before it comes onto the blueprint. The inventor has the invisible image of the invention in his mind before it can ever become a matter of record among the 2,000,000 and more inventions registered with the United States government at Washington. The gardener sees the blending beds of flowers and green in his own fruitful mind, long before the visitor gasps at the profusion of color and fragrance in the municipal park. The teacher sees the man in the boy when he is but a small bundle of disheaveled hair and ragged clothes in the primary school room. And so THE VOICE OF NATURE DECLARES GOD.

3. You Can't Weigh a Man's Thoughts with a Scale

You can't measure the temperature with a quart measure. You can't measure distance with a tuning fork. You can't detect true love with a camera. You can't measure the rain with a weather-cock. You can't determine the direction of the wind with a calendar. You can't see the wind, but you can see what it does. You can't hear the sunshine, but you can feel its warmth.

You may not be able to see God, but in spite of that "the invisible things of Him since the creation of the world are clearly seen, being perceived through the things that are made, even his everlasting power and divinity; that they may be without excuse."

The Voice of Nature declares GOD.

What Is A Jew?

By George E. Sokolsky

I am a Jew.

But for the grace of God and the easy American immigration laws of the 1880s, I should today be in a concentration camp in Germany, or in a refugee hut on the German-Polish border, or in terror in Poland.

This fact lives with me constantly: America is not only a country to me, not only the land where I happened to be born. It is more than that: it is a sanctuary—a sanctified house of refugees in freedom.

The Jew in America who does not appreciate the truth of this does not deserve the freedom, the equality, the justice which he enjoys here.

Of course, this is one man's opinion. There are others who disagree. In fact, that is one of the curiosities about the Jews—they rarely agree about the Jews.

Political equality is not an ancient right of any people. Few countries have known democratic institutions at all. Really, only the Anglo-Saxon countries, the Scandinavian countries, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, and France ever developed true democracies. And in none of these countries is the conception of political democracy two centuries old. And that is not long enough to give firm roots to a novel social order.

The first country to recognize that a Jew has equal political, economic, and social rights was the United States. The Constitution establishes that right. Every state constitution maintains it. No silly prejudices, like keeping Jews out of clubs or hotels, can weigh against this monumental fact in the history of my people.

It was not until 1858 that a Jew could sit in the English Parliament without being converted to Christianity. (Disraeli was such a convert.) Only between 1920 and 1932 did the Jew possess equality in Germany. Only since 1917 in Russia. In France, it is true that the French Revolution gave the Jew equality, but his situation has been confused by political changes there, and it is impossible ever to forget the Dreyfus Case.

But America's history is clear. From the earlist colonial days, the Jew in America has enjoyed the rarest of human gifts—freedom, liberty, equal rights, equal justice before the law—and the most glorious of all human rights, the worship of God according to the traditions of one's ancestors and according to one's conscience.

Let me talk to you freely about my people. We are different. We are peculiar. That is both our vice and our virtue, our burden and our joy.

In the first place, let me say that we are not a distinct race. We are called Semites, but most of us come from families that have not been a Semitic people for two thousand years or more. We originated among Semitic tribes, that is true. But we have wandered far from the land of our origin.

And wherever we lived, we intermarried with the local people. Although, in the Bible, the teachers and leaders and prophets thundered against intermarriage, it always occurred. But marching armies, wandering traders, forbidden love—these dilute racial purity even more than formal marriage. The best informed anthropologists laugh at the idea of racial purity anywhere. Among the Jews there is not even a semblance of it.

Nor are the Jews a nation. We are of all nations, but there is no Jewish nation. There is no Jewish land. It is true that Jews of all nations look to Palestine as the place where, more than four thausand years ago, we originated. It is true that in our history and tradition, Palestine is the scene of our greatest national development, our physical and material triumph, and our greatest glory. And those memories have a traditional and poetic pull which cannot be exaggerated.

But for two thousand years we have been in the Diaspora, dispersed over all the world, in every land, in every nation. We have become citizens of numerous countries. We have taken on the characteristics of all countries. In China I found Chinese Jews who were in all respects Chinese. I once was associated in business with a Danish Jew who looked like a viking. Judge Brandeis resembles Abraham Lincoln. So it goes.

For instance, I speak English as my mother tongue. My mother spoke Polish; my father Yiddish. My mother's family originated in Italy and passed through Hungary, England, France, and other countries. Each is as much a citizen of his country as I feel that I am a citizen of America. I am sure that each loves his country.

Nationality involves love of country. There can be no mixed nationality. It is impossible to be loyal to more than one country, as the world is now constituted. Therefore, when the Jew accepts the blessings of political equality, he must accept the responsibility and obligation of loyalty. There must be no holding back.

I am convinced that the great body of Jews throughout the world hold to this view. I am sure that that is the attitude of Hore-Belisha in England, of Justice Frankfurter in America, of Kaganovich in Soviet Russia, of Leon Blum in France, of any responsible Jew anywhere who rises in public office. It is true of the man-in-the-street Jew in the United States.

Now, if the Jew is not a race and not a nationality, what is he? Why should there be a word, "Jew"? Why, if he has so often intermarried, has the Jew not disappeared? Why does he reappear as a problem in almost every century?

And the answer is so simple. The Jew is a religion, a faith, a belief, a mystical sign for the human race. From the time when Abraham broke the gods of his neighbors and Moses came down the mountain bearing the Word of God, and the prophets spoke of the love of God and man, and Christ carried the cross along the Via Dolorosa, the Jew has appeared upon this earth with a single message: There is but one God, omniscient, ever present, a God of love, yet a God that wearies of the everlasting backslidings of the human race, a God that promises peace on earth and the brotherhood of man.

Three great religions have sprung from this fountain of faiths: Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. And each has spoken these few truths, each in its own manner. And when it is realized that the prophets in the Old Testament and the disciples in the New Testament were of the same brood and spoke the same words of God and uttered identical prayers with like fervor, then all that needs to be known about the Jew is known. Whether it is Isaiah or Micah or Mark or Luke, whether it is Hillel or Paul—all Jews, all religious Jews, all believing in our God to whom they uttered the single thought:

"And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and all thy soul and all thy might."

For it is this prayer that every orthodox religious Jew says as the "Sh'ma" every day of his life. And yet it is the foundation prayer of Christianity.

Now, in the days of Christ, many Jews followed him. And when Saul of Tarsus founded a new church, many Jews followed him. But the great body of Jews did not become Christians. They believed in the coming of the Messiah, but they did not believe that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah. And all the rest of Europe became Christian. . . .

But the Jew was not a Christian; therefore he had no fixed place in this world. . . . For many centuries he enjoyed a rich life in Spain, but even there when Ferdinand and Isabella ascended the throne, he was hated because his religion was not their religion; he was different and he was driven out. And in Poland he enjoyed periods of freedom, but there, too, he was different. It was his religion that made him different. When the missionaries of Christ were converting the heathen peoples of Europe, the Jews alone stood out in Europe as a stiff-necked, unconvertible people. And for this the Jew was hated. For this he was persecuted. And that tradition of hatred and persecution has become a part of Europen heritage and civilization. Little children were taught that the Jews were different, and the explanations were sometimes pretty awful. And Jewish children were told to dread the Christians. And so a bitterness has characterized the life of the European Jew. And it holds over in periods of enlightenment.

But when there are wars or economic depressions, or any political or social disturbances, the old poisons flare up. And they flare up on both sides. For the Jew blames all his troubles, whatever their cause, on anti-semitism, just as many Christians blame all theirs on the Jews.

For instance, nowadays the Jew is accused of all sorts of crimes, because he is an international banker or a Communist. As a matter of fact, international banking has all but disappeared since the war, and few Jews are bankers at all. And of all the Communists in the world, few are Jews. But does it matter what the truth is? The ancient poisons are at work because times are bad—and only because times are bad.

Similarly, Jews blame everything on anti-Semitism, even when there is no such feeling. I have heard Jews accuse men of anti-Semitism who never gave two thoughts to such a question. But the mere existence of a Hitler makes a Jew suspicious and defensive and, frankly, frightened. And that works like poison in the human mind.

And it must be remembered that in the European tradition these "queer" people were separated from the others; that they had to live apart. And in the ghettos where the Jews lived, they developed differently from their neighbors. Their home life was different. They were limited by law to a few occupations, trades, and businesses—and those the least attractive ones. Their culture was different. Even, in some places, their clothes were different—and different because the law of the land so prescribed.

Yet now they are simultaneously accused of being different, of isolating themselves, of being cliquy—and of pushing when they are not wanted, of being aggressive. And, unfortunately, it is all true. For the old traditions isolated them and the new freedom caused them to seek equality. And whereas the old ways pulled them back, the new ways pushed them forward. And not many of them in the course of this pulling back and pushing forward, could keep an even keel, could find a way of life that satisfied their old traditions and at the same time brought them up to the ways of the new life. So there are periods when the Jew is traditionless, when he has no ballast and no anchor. He is neither of the House of Moses nor of the House of Christ. It is this ugly confusion that the rest of the world can visualize either sympathetically or antagonistically, depending upon whether there is peace and prosperity and good feeling or war and depression and human misery and hatred.

But that has not been true in America, not from the earliest times. The first Jews to come to these shores arrived in 1654. And they have been coming ever since. Some of the descendants of these early comers remain Jews; others have become Christians. Whichever way they chose, they were free here to follow their consciences. This has in truth been the Jew's Promised Land. Will it remain that for him? Is he deserving that it should remain that? That question he cannot answer altogether, but his conduct here, his attitude in these trying times will do much to answer it?—"Liberty" magazine.

PAUL WINS RECOGNITION FOR GENTILE CHRISTIANS

Acts 15:23b-29; Gal. 2:1, 2, 3, 10

Introduction

It is difficult for us to appreciate how great a crisis faced the early Church at the time of our lesson. The large increase in Gentile converts in Antioch, Syria and Cilicia aroused a controversy in the Church. The Judaizers believed, these must keep the Mosaic law in order to be Christians. Was Christianity to be a mere part of Judaism with its yoke of Jewish legalism? This would greatly hinder, even check the gospel progress, for Gentiles would not submit to Jewish legalism. Gentiles must be granted admittance into the Church without first becoming Jews, if Christianity was to spread in the world. So Paul and Barnabas and certain others were sent to Jerusalem where the controversy was definitely settled.

Decision of the Spirit Led Council 23b-29

The essential point of controversy was whether a person is saved by faith apart from works of the law, or by faith and the works of the law. Three arguments were presented in the Jerusalem Council to refute the Judaizers. (1) Peter's (vs8,9), God gave the Holy Spirit to the Gentile believers, making no difference. (2) Paul's (v12), God wrought miracles among the Gentiles by us, showing His approval of our missionary ministry and also of them. (3) James' argument (vs14-18), the Old Testament Scriptures declare that God will take a people for his name out of the Gentiles. These arguments convinced the Council and the Mosaic law was not laid upon the Gentile Church. This decision, in its far-reaching meaning and effect, was perhaps most momentous in all the history of the Church up to the present time.

The Gentiles are addressed as "brethren" (v23). Faith in Christ makes all men kin. Many Christians do not yet seem to believe this. The Jerusalem apostles, elders and brethren denied all responsibility for the pernicious teaching of those mentioned in verses 1 and 24. They represented only themselves. The Council was "in one accord", unanimous, in the agreement reached (v25) and sent "chosen men" to bring the official report to the Gentile converts. There is no reason for any difference on essential matters among those who recognize the authority of God's word. The three ceremonial prohibitions and one great moral law (v29), singled out for emphasis, are considered as "necessary" for Gentile observance after becoming Christians.

Paul Recognized as Apostle to the Gentiles

Gal. 2:1-10

Paul gives his account of the Jerusalem Council (vs1,2). Fourteen years after his previous visit to Jerusalem (Gal. 1:18), he went up in obedience to an inner revelation from God. He took with him Titus, a Greek, a living witness to Gentile Christianity, and told plainly to the Church leaders what he had preached to the Gentiles, lest the fruits of his labors among them should be wrecked. Had the law of circumcision been imposed upon the Gentiles, Paul's work would have been "in vain". The leaders of the Jewish Christians saw the evident blessing of God on his work among the Gentiles and they gave the right hands of fellowship to him and Barnabas (v9). They now became the missionaries to the Gentiles.

Paul's Aggressive Leadership

Paul was the great pioneer leader in taking the Gospel to Gentiles. He was the leader in securing the right of fellowship in the Church for them. Paul convinced the leaders of the Church in Jerusalem that his work among them was of God. They saw that God had truly called him to this work. The plain facts were that many Gentiles had been wonderfully saved apart from the law and all debate was ended. Christ would be greatly honored if the Christians today would stress their agresments more, and their differences less. The victory was permanently won and Paul won the most important triumph of his career in the Jerusalem Council.

Work of the Emergency Relief Board

Dear Friends: Several months ago we called your attention to the Conference resolution adopted at Saskatoon, Can., pertaining to the passage debt of those immigrants whose breadwinner has been taken from them or is incapacitated, and the family in unable to take care of this obligation. A number of churches and also individuals have taken notice of the plea and have remitted appreciative gifts for that purpose. About 25 cents per member per year for three years would mostly cover that obligation. It behooves us as Mennonites to maintain the credit which our ancestors have established and preserved for our descendants.

An ever increasing emergency is making itself felt in war torn China. We would urgently request that you send gifts for this great need. The money for this purpose is sent direct to our missionaries to relieve the distressed people in our own mission field.

For our general treasury we need gifts right along. Requests come in continually for help. We would like to help all those who are worthy of it.

We wish to thank you for the gifts we received in the past and may the Lord bless them as they are applied. Send all your gifts to Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas.

Emergency Relief Board,
John E. Mueller, Secretary.

SERMON SKETCH

"THE FAITHFUL WITNESS"

Proverbs 14:25; Acts 1:8

Howard T. Landes, Pastor Germantown Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

Introduction: To be a witness for the Lord, is the lofty position which the godly man holds, wherever he may be. God wants every one of His children on earth to be a faithful witness. In this respect He desires them to follow in the steps of their Lord and Master. And for this He gives every qualification in the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Let us first learn what a witness is. We generally mean one who furnishes evidence or proof from having known or seen anything; but the word witness, in the Greek is martyr, one who gives testimony to the truth at the expense of his life. There are three things which go to making a faithful witness. They are: Experience, Certainty and Boldness.

I. Experience.—One who desires to witness for the Lord must have a Christian experience. He must have a personal realization of the truth which he is to declare. Paul had such an experience on the "Damascus Road." Personal experience was the goal of the Apostle. By this method he was trying to lead his hearers, and for this purpose he gave his own testimony before King Agrippa desirous that he would find his Christ. We may have a similar experience by personal trust in Jesus Christ as Savior and a complete surrender to Him as Lord of our lives.

II. Certainty.—There must be nothing of a doubtful character in his testimony, or people will not credit it, I Cor. 14:8, "For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself for the battle." There are three modes of witnessing. To the air: sound without sense, to the head: sense without life, to the heart: sense and life. Our Lord always spoke the truth with authority and certainty. And it is the desire and will of God that all His people should be certain of the truth, and speak with assurance. This is effected by the Spirit.

III. Boldness.—A faithful witness may have a testimony, but the testimony is of no value unless there is courage to declare the Message. Never did Jesus shirk from telling the truth which it was His work to announce, even in the face of the greatest danger and opposition. In The Acts 4:13, 29-31, we have the boldness of Peter and John. This was not natural nor acquired boldness which they displayed as they stood before the Council. But the Apostles knew the Lord Jesus Christ and received this boldness through the Holy Spirit, who possessed, controlled and energized them.

We know that Jesus was the faithful witness. So may you and I be, a faithful witness, never failing to declare, by word and deed, the truth which we have received from God, Proverbs 14:25, "A true witness delivereth souls; but a deceitful witness speaketh lies."

Is God Our Father?

Yes, God is our father and we are his children via the new birth spoken of by Jesus in John 3:3; but God is not the father of all mankind and all men are not brothers in the sense that he created all.

God is our Father and we are His children, on one condition only and that condition is set forth very clearly by Christ Himself, John 3:3. "Jesus answered and said unto him, verily, verily I say unto thee: Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God."

Jesus, here was addressing a religious man, Nicodemous, a Pharisee, versed in the law with the responsible position of being a ruler of the Jews, but who saw in Jesus only a teacher, not the Christ. He confessed that God was with Him but he did not see God Himself incarnated and revealed to him in Christ. He did not believe and confess Jesus as the Christ, the Son of the living God (Matt. 16:16: "He saith unto them 'But whom say ye that I am?' And Simon Peter answered and said, 'Thou art Christ, the son of the living God.' "

Again Jesus said to Nicodemus, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh and that which is born of the spirit is spirit. . . . Marvel not that I said unto thee . . . . Ye must be born again."

How like a bombshell these words must have exploded in the ears of this man who had been reared under the law of the Ten Commandments. But mark you, Jesus ignored all of his goodness, all of his culture, all of his honesty, all of his polish, all of his education and his honored position, yes, all of his outward credentials, even his so very scholarly salutation to Christ, "Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God." Yes, Christ ignored all of this in Nicodemus with the point-blank and imperative statement "Ye must be born again."

This new birth is not effected by our trying to live up to the Ten Commandments, or by having some kinship with the father's nature or in sharing in some measure the father's purpose. That is not enough. Christ demands more than all that, namely a new birth. That means nothing short of a new creature in Christ, 2 Cor. 5:17, "Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature," also Gal. 6:15, "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything nor uncircumsion, but a new creature." God says that "all have sinned." Not only so, he also said, "The soul that sinneth it shall die." A man, therefore, can no more become a Christian or a child of God by living up to the Ten Commandments or, as some modern thinkers phrase it, by living up to the Sermon of the Mount, than Ethiopians can become white by coming to America. "Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the Leopard his spots? Then may ye also do good that are accustomed to doing evil," Jer. 13:23.

An Ethiopian was born an Ethiopian and a leopard was born a leopard and will ever be recognized by his spots. A leopard is a leopard, simply because it is its nature to be one. Even so lost mankind is not lost because of what man does, but because of what man is. That is, man in his fallen condition is a born sinner and before he can be saved and go to heaven, he must have a new nature imparted to him by God Himself and none other. This is the new birth. Man has inherited an evil nature no matter how polished and cultured he may be, he cannot change his nature by being educated to keep the smouldering passions of his nature in leash. He cannot change his nature by turning over a new leaf, no more than the leopard can change his spots by trying to be a bear. Why? Because man is born with a nature that is inclined to evil. Man's outward groomings do not change his real nature. He still remains a lost sinner in the sight of the Almighty, unless he accepts God's plan of salvation through Christ Jesus as his Savior. No wonder Jesus said, "Ye must be born again," and again, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God."

"They tell me the story of Jesus is old,
They ask me to preach something new,
They say that the Babe and the Man of the cross,
For the wise of the world will not do.
But it will never grow old,
Though a million times the story is told.
While sin lives unvanquished
And death rules the world
The story of Jesus will never grow old. —A. R. D.

Conferences and Conventions

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE will meet at the Bally Mennonite Church, Hereford, Pa., May 4 to 7, 1939.

PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE plans to convene at Monroe, Washington, June 9 to 11 inclusive.

Questionnaire Results

Question No. 5 read, "Should it be a bulk-service plan of distribution, a quantity of copies to each church for general distribution there?" In favor of a bulk-service were 6, against 3, and undecided 6. Some comments were:

"Yes! This way it gets to those . . . whose interest must be built by reading material that is good."

"Such a plan reduces the possibilities for its being read. People have to pay for a thing in order to utilize it."

"Yes, specials on orders by groups."

"Yes, but individual "stamping" of address."

"No, for too often they are not distributed."

"No, the churches should pay the individual subscription price for all those of high school age."

"Here's the way to do it! The central office should have on file the names of all the members of all the C. E. organizations or at least a list of all the young people in Mennonite churches. Each one of these names should receive one of these publications. At the print shop put on the individual addresses. Wrap all the papers for one city in one bundle. The bundle is opened, and the postmaster distributes the papers. The C. E. groups could pay the subscription price for all their members. Advantages of this plan are, cheap operation because of the quantity of work done, every young Mennonite would get a paper, collecting would be easy, because it's through the C. E. groups, and postal rates would be low."

AMEN!

"We utterly deny all outward wars and strife, and fightings with outward weapons, for any end, or under any pretence whatever; this is our testimony to the whole world. The Spirit of Christ by which we are guided, is not changeable, so as once to command us from a thing of evil, and again to move us unto it; and we certainly know, and testify to the world that the Spirit of Christ, which leads us unto all truth, will never move us to fight and war against any man with outward weapons, neither for the Kingdom of Christ, nor for the kingdoms of this world . . . Therefore we cannot learn war any more."

ALTRUISM

If you have a friend worth loving,
Love him. Yes, and let him know
That you love him, ere life's evening
Tinge his brow with sunset glow.
Why should good words ne'er be said
Of a friend till he is dead?

If you hear a song that thrills you,
Sung by any child of song,
Praise it. Do not let the singer
Wait deserved praises long.
Why should one who thrills your heart
Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you
By its humble, pleading tone,
Join it. Do not let the seeker
Bow before its God alone.
Why should not your brother share
The strength of "two or three" in prayer?

If your work is made more easy
By a friendly, helping hand,
Say so. Speak out brave and truly
Ere the darkness veil the land.
Should a brother workman dear
Falter for a word of cheer?

Scatter thus your seeds of kindness
All enriching as you go—
Leave them. Trust the Harvest Giver;
He will make each seed to grow.
So, until the happy end,
Your life shall never lack a friend.

DATA FROM HOME MISSION COUNCIL

"There are 10,000 villages in rural America today without a church of any kind, Jewish, Roman Catholic or Protestant; 30,000 villages without a pastor; 13,400,000 children under 12 years of age who are receiving no religious instruction. More than one half of the population of the nation is not connected with an institution representing organized religion."—

Church Member's Gifts

Senior C. E. Topic for April 30, 1939

Topic—How should a church member give? Mal. 3:8-10; Mk. 12:41-44.

I. Suggested Hymns: "Work for the Night is Coming", "I Gave my Life for Thee", "Take my Life, Let it Be"

II. Ask 4 to 6 members to share in a short prayer service, after the leader has read the Scripture passages above for the main topics.

III. Poem for the worship Service:

I SHALL NOT PASS THIS WAY AGAIN

The bread that bringeth strength I want to give,
The water pure that bids the thirsty live.
I want to help the fainting day by day,
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give the oil of joy for tears,
The faith to conquer crowding doubts and fears,
Beauty for ashes may I give always.
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give good measure running o'er,
And into angry hearts I want to pour
The answer soft that turneth wrath away.
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give to others hope and faith.
I want to do all that the Master saith,
I want to live aright from day to day,
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

—Author Unknown.

IV. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Give as Abraham gave. Gen. 14:18-20
2. Give his talents. Mt. 25:14-23
3. Give his time. Eph. 5:14-17
4. Give cheerfully. 2 Cor. 9:6-7
5. Give proportionately. 1 Cor. 16:1-2

V. For Discussion:

How much was the rich young ruler asked to give? Mk. 10:23-30.

Have someone read up on Muriel Lester's life of self-giving if possible.

Jesus Wore the Serf's Coat

A Russian legend which tells of a poor serf who on a bitterly cold night passed a soldier on guard was once related by Dr. D. J. Burrell. The teeth of the sentinel were chattering with cold, and the serf, observing this, said, "Man, you shiver—you are freezing; take my coat." Many years after this gracious deed the serf arrived at the gate of heaven. Seeing Christ, the new arrival said with surprise: "Master, you have on my coat." "Ay," said Jesus, "I have worn it ever since thou gavest it to me on that cold night."

There are other gifts than money which also are most valuable. Some one writes:

"I have seen a mother, holding a child in her arms, with the face of a Sistine Madonna. I have been a surgeon, saving a man's life, with a light on his face never seen on sea or land. I have seen a trained nurse pouring out her soul in Christlike ministry, whose wholesome face glowed with heavenly beauty."

There is no one so poor, but has something to give. And "giving is living", we may be sure of that. It is not only the one who receives, but also the one who gives who becomes richer through the gift.

Food for Thought:

"I hold that Christian grace abounds
Where charity is seen; that when
We climb to Heaven, 'tis on the rounds
Of love to men."—Alice Cary.

Opening song to be used as a Prayer, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee"

Silent Prayer with closing by leader

Presentation of topic by leader

Factors that influence success

1. The influence of the home.—The atmosphere of our homes determines in a large measure the type of man or woman we shall be. Let us not fail to thank God for the fine heritage He has given us in our Christian homes. May He fill us with the spirit of helpfulness toward those who do not have this heritage.

2. The influence of books and education.—How many of us have grown to love the Bible because our mothers loved it and taught us a reverence of it! Then too, the books and magazines which were accessible to us have done much to form certain concepts in our minds. All that we have had the opportunity to learn has made its vital contribution to our success.

3. The influence of friends.—Have we not all friends who have inspired within us the desire to possess certain qualities which we believe have made for their success?

Scripture Reading, Matt. 16:25, 26; Luke 12:13-31

Topical discussions which should have a great deal of preparation before the meeting:

1. Name a man who you think has been especially successful in his life as a minister. What special qualities, according to your observation have made him so successful?

2. Name a missionary who has achieved great success in your opinion. What qualities have made him so beloved and of such great service?

3. What qualities did the Sunday school teacher who meant most to you possess?

4. What qualities did the public school teacher who meant most to you possess?

5. Name a business man who in your opinion has been most successful.

After these discussions ask your superintendent to give a resume of the qualities mentioned which made for success.

Song, "Give of Your Best to the Master"

The above discussions should have revealed how you as intermediates measure success. Discuss further how you as young people can hope to be successful. Perhaps it would be wise to have each one mention the quality which he feels he most needs to develop. Follow this with these personal questions:

1. Must I earn huge amounts of money in order to be called successful?

2. Must I have a position which will always keep me before the eyes of the public?

3. Is it possible for me to achieve success as an ordinary citizen of my community?

4. What are some of the qualities which we as intermediates possess which if properly directed are conducive to success?

Concluding challenge by leader: "The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do without a thought of fame. It it comes at all it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after."—Longfellow.

Song, "Love Thyself Last"
Poem:

THE PLACE TO SERVE

Go forth and serve in fields that others shun,
Serve fallen ones who wear the blight of sin,
Serve broken hearts, made wrecks by selfish men,
Having their conscience seared, their hopes undone.
The foulest soul God's grace will never shun!
Why then should you "all joy" not count it, when
By kindness, you can bring on hope again,
And see a life of happiness begun?
The Son of God poured forth his ministries
Wherever blighting evil left its stain
And clothed the vilest souls in righteousness.
Unselfish service fills with ecstasies
The heart that gladly serves for love, not gain,
And gives it joys that will not evanesce.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for April 30, 1939

"But the Comforter . . . He shall teach you all things."
John 14:26

I. Call to service by instrumental music

II. Worship Period

1. Sing in unison, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple"
2. Leader's prayer
3. All Juniors stand and sing: "Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide", M.H.B. No. 178
4. Scripture reading by a Junior: John 14:26; 16:7-14
5. Silent reading of hymn: "O Holy, Spirit Enter in", (M.H.B. No. 176) verses 1, 2, 3, while pianist plays the hymn very softly. At the close of this silent reading the leader repeats: (Pianist still playing)—"O Holy Spirit enter in, among these hearts Thy works begin, Thy temple deign to make us. Amen."
6. Poem: read by a Junior

"Our blest Redeemer, ere He breathed
His tender, last farewell,
A Guide, a Comforter, bequeathed
With us to dwell.

"He came sweet influence to impart,
A gracious, willing guest,
While He can find one humble heart
Wherein to rest.

"Spirit of purity and grace,
Our weakness, pitying see:
O make our hearts Thy dwelling place
And worthier of Thee."

7. Sing softly in unison: "Into my Heart"

III. Mission Minutes

Recall again the names of our workers among our American Indians, telling also items of interest regarding them and their work. Spend a few minutes in prayer for God's blessing upon them.

IV. Study Period

Aim:—To learn how the Holy Spirit came on that first Pentecost and that the Holy Spirit makes a great change in our lives.

1. A Junior boy tells the story as found in Acts 2:1-18
2. Leader's heart talk stressing the change that came over the disciples after the outpouring of the Holy Spirit

3. Two minute talks by Juniors:
   - a. The Holy Spirit teaches us about God and Christ: 1 Cor. 2:9-10; 12:3; John 16:13-15
   - b. The Holy Spirit is the Author of the Scriptures: Acts 28:25; 2 Tim. 3:16
   - c. The Holy Spirit shows us Heaven as our Home and leads us there. Rev. 1:9-19; Rev. 21:2-4
   - d. The Holy Spirit abides in the hearts of all believers. 1 Cor. 3:16. Is it not wonderful to think that we are the temples of the Holy Spirit? That it is in us He dwells and through us He shines forth? We are His crystal temples. The Spirit fills us with the beauty and radiance of Christ. Does it shine forth in our lives?
   - e. Song by a quartette of girls: "Spirit Divine, Attend our Prayer", No. 183 M.H.B.
4. Bible Findings:
   Luke 11:13; Matt. 28:19; Acts 1:8; 1 Cor. 6:9; I John 2:27; Rom. 8:2; John 14:16; Rom. 8:14; Eph. 3:16; Phil. 2:1; Eph. 5:18; Gal. 5:22; Ps. 51:10; John 4:24; Rev. 2:29
5. Song of the month—"All Hail the Power of Jesus Name", verse 1
6. Verse of the month in unison, Matt. 6:33a
7. After short sentence prayers by five Juniors the leader closes with prayer
8. Sing, Doxology

TRUST

Loraine M. Ripper

I will gladly follow Jesus,
I will walk with Him below;
I can trust my precious Savior,
He will guide me right, I know.

Tho' the Way sometimes be lonely,
And I cannot understand,
I can trust my Jesus fully
As I hold His guiding Hand.

'Tis a Hand that's never changing,
'Tis a Love that holds secure,
As I follow my Beloved
I can to the end endure.

As I see Him by faith's vision,
And I hear Him speak my name,
I can always trust the Savior—
Yesterday, today the same.

PLUCK WINS

Pluck wins! It always wins! though days be slow,
And nights be dark 'twixt days that come and go,
Still pluck will win; its average is sure,
He gains the prize who will the most endure;
Who faces issues; he who never shirks;
Who waits and watches, and who always works.

An Opinion Worth Thinking About

Upland, Calif., April 4, 1939

Dear Dr. Thierstein: I hope the Young People's section of THE MENNONITE will not be removed from the rest of the paper, and the adults will be able to keep up with us and our problems, if it continues to remain one paper. It would be a much greater expense to the Conference to have two papers and later on, when we young people make up our own homes, we will not feel like subscribing to a new church paper such as THE MENNONITE is likely to be. Perhaps a larger Young People's section could be included in THE MENNONITE.

I want to let you know that I enjoy reading THE MENNONITE. There is a good deal of work connected with editing such a church paper but, when the work is done for Christ and His Kingdom, there is bound to be success and fruit for the effort put forth. May God bless you as you continue in the task.

"Laborers together with God"—Leonard Wiebe.

Editor's Note: The above came as a note attached to a Report of the Nineteenth Annual Mennonite S. S. and C. E. Conference, sent in by the president of the organization, Leonard Wiebe. We think his opinion pertaining to the publication of a separate Y. P.'s paper is food for thought which should be passed on. Since the report came in rather late, we can hardly find room for it in this issue, so shall bring it in the next.

Will He Always Take It?

Mrs. George Wiens Dick, Lima, O. Mission Church

Walking through a meadow one day, a man came upon something that made him step back and stare. With pitiful tenderness he stopped and picked it up. It was a newly born infant, uncared for and filthy, naked and unwashed. It had been cast out to die. The man took the tiny creature to his home, and gave it a new lease on life. He washed it off and gave it simple, nourishing food.

The little girl baby thrived and grew. As a bud she developed from girlhood to lovely womanhood. Under the kind and watchful care of her friend she bloomed to lovely womanhood. Under the kind and watchful care of her friend she bloomed in full radiance.

The kind friend loved this newly developed woman, his ward. Would she be his wife, and remain at his side all her days?

"Yes," she promised. And they became one.

As his bride he clothed her in rich garments. Expensive shoes and lovely dresses were hers for the asking. But he didn't stop there. He brought her jewelry of every kind, and the richest of everything: earings, bracelets, lockets, a lovely tiara, and everything her heart could wish. For her table he provided the finest of dainties.

Under his care and patronage she radiated and blossomed unto buxom womanhood. Her friends and neighbors found her very attractive. She became aware that her men friends thought her handsome and appealing. When they whispered sweet nothings in her ear, she was delighted. It was pleasant to be admired and loved by those about her.

Before long the admiring looks and comments went to her head. Why should she stay at home with her husband and children all the time? Why couldn't she go out and have a good time with the other gentlemen? In her husband's absence she invited them over to have dinner with her. She entertained and fed them. In time these affairs took on a more intimate nature. Rumors of illicit affairs spread around, rumors which soon became known facts.

The sweet and modest woman became bold and conspicuously dressed. She was out to catch the eye. Loud colors and excess of jewelry attracted every one's notice. Men knew, that she would give them what they wanted, and frequently visited her. She even permitted the presence of men of evil reputation. Instead of satisfying her cravings they increased. She wanted more of it all the time. She lost all sense of decency, and became openly flagrant.

As one might suppose, her beauty was no longer fresh and appealing, but worn out and hard. Her clothes and make-up were louder than ever to take the place of shop-worn beauty. She soon discovered these were not enough to attract her lovers. In order to appease her insatiable lust she offered them gifts. Instead of their paying her to come, she paid them to come. She went so far as to offer them her children to do with them what they would. There was no limit to her outrageous wickedness.

What about her husband? She was using his food to feed her admirers. He paid for the clothes and ornaments that attracted men to herself. His money paid for the gifts she passed out so freely. What did he think of it all? Would he continue to tolerate it? Of course not.

At first he covered his disappointment and jealousy under a cloak of indifference. He let her go on for a while, spending his money. Then he burst out in righteous fury.

She could go to her lovers. They could have her and make the most of her. They could strip her of her clothes, and take her fair jewels and leave her poor, and naked, and wretched. For he would give her no more. He was done with her!

The name of the woman, according to Ezekial 16, was Jerusalem, and the name of her kind and deserted friend was the Lord.

Many, many years later, in a prosperous country called the United States of America, lived many prosperous families. They had enough employment to give them the necessities of life, with a few luxuries now and then. They had enough time to amuse themselves once in a while, and as a whole, lived a well-rounded existence. Their lives, the air they breathed, their food, their capacity to work and have a good time, all came from their Creator and Sustainer, God Almighty.

Let us visit some of these families. Knock, knock. "Good morning," we say. "Won't you come out to our church sometime and worship God with us?"

"Why, I really ought to, I guess," replies the lady of the house. "I used to go to church. But you know how it is, a person just gets out of the habit of going. We usually go away on Sunday. But sometime when we stay home we'll be out to church." We encourage her a little more and then leave. Not much chance of seeing her out to church.

At another home the father does the talking. "If I want a good sermon I just turn on the radio. No use going to church. If the wife and children want to go, I won't stop them. It won't do 'em any harm, and I'd just as soon the kids were out of the way." We go away feeling nothing has been accomplished.

"I work on Saturday night, and Sunday is really the only time I have to sleep," says the wage-earner of another family.

What is the matter with folks anyway? Don't they realize everything we have comes from God? How can we so easily forget the hand of Him who feeds us and sustains us? Why do we so soon forget the most important One in the world. The serious thing about it is, how long can it go on? Where will it lead us to? We are using the dainties and treasures from our benevolent Father to hand out to false admirers. They are His gifts and we are giving them for those things which would tear us down.

How does God feel about it? Will he tolerate such doings forever? Of course not! "Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent." (Rev. 2:5)

"The way of the Lord is strength to the upright, but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity . . . the wicked shall not inhabit the earth."

CORRESPONDENCE

EMMAUS CHURCH, WHITEWATER, KANS., 4-3-39.—For the past three months we have had visiting preachers, since our congregation was without a pastor. On the evening of March 12, the Student Volunteer Band of Bethel College gave us a very interesting and inspiring program. On Sunday, March 26, in our morning service, Rev. C. van der Smissen brought us the message, and in the evening the young peoples' C. E. from the First Mennonite Church in Newton, presented an evening program. On Palm Sunday, Rev. H. A. Fast brought us the morning message. Included in this service the boy's quartette from Bethel College sang a few numbers, which were much appreciated. On Easter Sunday our Church Choir will present a Cantata, The Living Christ, under the direction of Prof. David Suderman of Bethel College.

In this Easter season may we be refreshed by the thought which we find in 1 Cor. 15:57: "But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." May I add this poem:

Easter Blessings

A conquered grave, a risen Christ,
  A High Priest gone above;
A Savior strong, a changeless Friend,
  A never-failing love;

"Abounding grace," "all things made new,"
  A refuge ever near;
A "present help," a "blessed hope"
  That He shall soon appear;

The joy of securing for His sake,
  And making known His love;
A wondrous looking forward to
  The "things prepared" above.—Ida A. Guirey

EAST SWAMP, QUAKERTOWN, PA., 4-2-39.—On the occasion of the installation of Rev. Harold Burkholder, as pastor of our church, a very impressive service was held in the East Swamp Church, Sunday afternoon. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Bethany had charge of the service. Rev. Olin Krehbiel of Lansdale read 2 Tim. 4:1-5 and 1 Peter 1:1-9, followed with prayer by Rev. Freeman Swartz, Schwenksville. Rev. Daniel J. Unruh of Pandora, Ohio, gave the charge to Rev. Harold Burkholder, using the text found in Joshua 5:13-15. The charge to the congregation was given by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who used as his text 1 Peter 2:9. The hymn, "Have Thine Own Way" was sung, followed with the Installation charge by Rev. J. J. Plenert of the First Church, Philadelphia.

All the pastors already mentioned and Rev. P. J. Boehr, forming a semicircle, took part in the installation of Rev. Burkholder. Rev. Burkholder made a few remarks and closed with the benediction.

May God's richest blessing rest upon Rev. Burkholder and his family as he ministers to the congregation, and spreads the glad tidings of great joy to all people.—W. W. Cope, Corr.

EINSIEDEL CHURCH, HANSTON, KANSAS, 4-2-39—The Einsiedel Church at Hanston enjoyed the story of Easter on Palm Sunday, when an octette sang, "Love Triumphant." Interest was manifested by a large attendance.

The recent visits of the Conference Field Secretary, H. A. Fast, and of Rev. W. F. Unruh, returned missionary from India, and the information and inspiration they brought us were much enjoyed.—Rev. T. A. van der Smissen of Buhler, Kans., a former pastor at Hanston, wife and family called upon old friends in the Hanston community, Saturday, April 1.

Much interest in the Lord's work has been manifest throughout the past winter. Each sabbath, morning and evening services have been conducted under the able leadership of our pastor, Rev. A. S. Bechtel.—Mrs. Vivian T. Ewy, Corr.

BETHESDA CHURCH, MARION, S. DAK., 4-31-39.—Since spring has made its appearance, our thoughts turn to nature's awakening, which brings life anew to the earth. So may it bring a new awakening of life in our hearts. As we approach the season of growth of grain and fruits, let us place our trust and hope at this seeding time in the Lord our God. May He bless us this summer with bountiful crops, which we are so much in need of in South Dakota.

The grim reaper of death has rather had his inning this spring. Dr. Derk D. Thieszen, the well-known bonesetter, died last week as a result of a stroke. Wm. Deckert, a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Deckert, a comparatively young man of 28 years, died last week. Also several other parties of our little city have passed on this month. Our retired minister, Rev. D. P. Tieszen, has reached and passed his 80 years lately. He is quite well yet, however, his hearing is rather limited.

Since the newly called pastor, Rev. A. P. Waltner has taken up his work, our church has had wonderful blessings out of his inspirational sermons. We also have Bible study meetings every Tuesday evening.—The winter has been very mild, and of late the weather has been very warm. Farmers are all busy in the fields with spring work.—H. F. Tieszen, Corr.

THE GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH, PANDORA, OHIO, has had its usually busy season leading up to Easter. The men and boys of the church had a fellowship dinner at the church on Wednesday evening, March 15, at which time Dr. Lehman of Indiana gave the address on "How to Carry Our Religion into Every-day Life." It was a helpful, much worthwhile meeting.

From March 21-28 we had the usual series of special Pre-Easter Services. Rev. J. E. Amstutz and Rev. W. S. Shelly were with us for the Sunday services and made a fine contribution by their helpful sermons. Dr. E. W. Bloomquist spoke at each of the five week night services to large and appreciative congregations.

On Palm Sundays we had baptismal services, at which time fourteen were received by baptism and nine by letter and renewal of faith, adding 23 new members. This was an inspiring service. Next Sunday we shall observe Holy Communion in the morning and in the evening our choir will sing Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" with the assistance of soloists.

COME INSIDE

A traveler visited a church in Germany, famous for its stained-glass windows. The exterior was plain; there was no beauty in the windows from the outside, there never is.

The first look within was a disappointment. The guide bade him to go forward and look eastward where the sun was rising. Lo, a marvelous vision broke upon him of Jesus in the temple with the doctors. It was called "The Glory of Christ."

The guide asked him to return about noon. Another window flamed in the sun with Christ walking upon the sea. He was requested to come yet at sunset, and the rays fell upon Christ on the cross, amazing, touching and convincing.

Many people see nothing to admire in the Christian Church. It is a disappointment, a fraud, a delusion. There are always people who see it from the outside. There are some inside who view it from the wrong angle, or on a dark and foggy day; they see only the pews and the floor. Those who come inside and look toward the sun, see the Glory of Christ, His power and His Salvation.—A Pastor's Thought.

THE MENACE OF THE DRINKING DRIVER

Near Mineola, Long Island, recently State Police on a Saturday night, from the hours of 11:00 p. m. to 4:00 a. m. stepped up to 101 motorists who had stopped for a red light and asked them if they would mind blowing up a toy baloon. The inflated baloons were studied by medical examiners. Here are the results of the tests: Of the 37 tests taken before 1:30 a. m., 13 had been drinking, and four had drunk enough to make them a menace to traffic. Of the 63 tests between 1:30 and 4:00 a. m., 45 had been drinking and 31 had drunk enough to throw their coordinating powers dangerously out of gear. This meant that 35 per cent had been drinking enough to make a danger to life and limb. These figures tell us something which do not need much explanation.

A RESTATEMENT

The article "Beyond the Blue Hills" in the last issue of this paper gave the impression that Rev. P. J. Wiens built Basna station. The secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions wants us to state that Rev. Wiens built Mauhadhi.

—Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebr., writes: The program committee of the Northern District, composed of Rev. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, Rev. John Bartel, Mountain Lake and myself, met recently at Freeman, instead of Henderson, to accommodate Rev. Schroeder who had a funeral on hand. The program will shortly be published. We are expecting the Freeman Junior College chorus in our midst, Apr. 16. Mr. Peter Buller of Upland, Calif., is visiting here, intending to spend a week among his children.

—Gnadenberg Church, near Whitewater, Kans. On March 26, Rev. Paul Erb of Hesston College, spoke to an appreciative audience on the subject of Peace. He serves under the auspices of the Western District Peace Committee. It is to be hoped that all of our churches will avail themselves of this service.—Corr.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio, Mar. 26. The Bluffton A Capella choir rendered a fine concert in the Mennonite Church on Sunday evening, Mar. 26. This college group leaves for an extended tour of the eastern churches on April 1st.—A group of singers from Freeman Junior College will sing in the First Church on Easter evening.—Rev. Unruh was confined to his home for several days the past week because of severe cold.—Evelyn Gratz Stauffer, Corr.

—Rev. John T. Neufeld of the Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago, which our Home Mission Board has recently adopted, writes on April 3: Yesterday was a blessed day for the Mission. Five young people were baptized and three adults taken into the church by confession of faith.

—Lehigh Church, Kansas, March sixteenth—The Ladies' Mission Circle and a few other friends of the Lehigh Mennonite Church went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ewert, of Elbing, Kansas, March 10th, to celebrate Mrs. P. J. Krause's 79th birthday. Mrs. Krause has her home at the present time with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ewert. She is the oldest in our Ladies Mission Circle in age as well as a member. This birthday celebration was enjoyed by all those that were present.—Mrs. F. G. Unruh, Corr.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—Beginning in the evening, April 2nd, pastor L. H. Linscheid will give successive sermons based on the last seven words of Christ on the cross at the Bethany Church in Freeman. — Easter morning Sunrise Services will again be observed with a program sponsored by the young people of this community.—Jas. Waltman, Corr.

— Union Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio.—Special Holy Week services were held in this church April 2-7, with Reverend (Prof.) A. E. Kreider of Bethel College as speaker. The following were the themes: The Greatness of God, the Unusual Privilege of Prayer, Living Expectantly, Things That Cannot be Shaken, The Fact of Iinfluence, Sin and Its Forgiveness, Peace in Days such as These.

— Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska, Year Book.—The brief but thoughtful introduction by the pastor emphasizes the fact that the happiest hours of life are those, when we are doing good and serving the Master. The pastors are: A. W. Friesen, elder; assitant pastors, P. F. Epp and H. D. Epp. B. A. Friesen is the deacon. A very interesting and valuable part of the booklet is a chronicle of the church. During the year 1938, the church had an increase of 33, a loss of 19 members, and cancelled 21 because of delinquency, leaving a total of 687 members. The total contributions of the church and its organizations amount to $5049.18. They have a Male Chorus of 32 members, a Senior Ladies' Chorus of 21 members; a Mixed Chorus of 36 members, and a Junior Ladies' Chorus of 18 members. The church also maintains a Parochial Bible School during the winter months.

— Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa.—Lenten Services were well attended this year. Every one of the six services had an audience of 200 or more. The illustrated messages on the Great Pyramid were well received. They constituted the Red Letter services of Lenten History in Schwenksville.—Pastoral visits are planned for every home—except those at a distance—between New Year and Easter. Some members may be disappointed. No one answered the door bell!—
—Bulletin.

— Mennonite Church, Inman, Kansas.—The Community Training School was a great success. 46 credits were earned during the week. The following of our S. S. did the required work and received credit: Katherine and Marie Doerksen, Mrs. J. C. Klassen, Mrs. Clarence Froese, Kathryn Wiens, Mrs. C. M. Toews, John C. Klassen, J. P. Schierling, J. E. Kaufman, Virginia Toews, D. C. Ewert, Viola Doerksen, H. F. Reimer, Mrs. Waldo Friesen and Aganetha Duerksen.—Baptismal services are being planned for Pentecost.

— Grace Menn. Church, Lansdale, Pa.—Facts about our Church: 200 active members, 24 gained, 9 lost, 286 S. S. enrollment, 16 classes, 76 members in three Young People's societies, 64 members in two Women's organizations, 22 members in Brotherhood.—Saturday, April 8, Bluffton College; April 9, Sunrise Service, Stanley Fretz in charge. Communion service with the Bluffton choir participating. Evening, Cantata, "Risen Indeed," by church choir, Miss Sarah Allem directing.—Next year, 1940, is the tenth anniversary of our church and plans are underway for a fitting celebration. —Church Messenger

— First Church, Upland, Calif.—The evening of Sunday, April 16, is set aside for a special program by the Gideons, an organization of Christian business men, interested in the distribution of Bibles in hotels and schools. Among other things, they will give testimony to the value of Bible reading and report some results of their work.—The Young People are planning an auto caravan to the Indian Mission fields in Arizona. The plan is to make the trip after the close of school, camp and cook on the way, make stop-overs at Hoover Dam and Grand Canyon, and visit Moencopi, Oraibi, and Hotevilla.

— Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—Beginning with Palm Sunday evening, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings, Good Friday morning and evening the pastor preached on the Seven Last Words of Christ, under the titles, A Word of Forgiveness, A Word of Restoration, A Word of Affection, A Word of Desolation, A Word of Physical Suffering, A Word of Achievement, and A Word of Commital. — An Easter Sunrise service, with a very full and worthwhile program, was given by the young people.

— Salem Church, near Freeman, S. D.—The very interesting Year Book of this church has just reached us. During the past year new song books have been purchased, the Mother's room, parsonage and parking grounds have been improved, a library has been established, and the treasuries show a balance.—Dr. P. R. Schroeder is the pastor; William J. Senner, Prof. John D. Unruh and John M. Miller are the deacons, Attorney John J. Gering correspondent to The Mennonite. The membership, though apparently not definitely given, is about 480. The pastor preached 139 regular and 11 special sermons, total 150. He made 507 visits in the home community and 223 in other communities. The contributions made by the church and its different organizations during 1938 amount to $5642.02. Of this $817.28 went to Foreign Missions and $425.00 to Home Missions.

— Second Church, Philadelphia. — New organ for Easter Sunday! Easter Sunday is always a great occasion at Second Mennonite. This year, however, added features, make it greater than ever. A new electric organ, similar to the one we hope to purchase as a Memorial soon, is being installed to be used at the Easter services. The evening service will be devoted to a musical program, featuring the organ and a guest soloist.—Our Easter joy, if it is genuine, must be in the risen Christ, our hope for the present and future. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most miserable." 1 Cor. 15:19.—"But now is Christ risen," and thus we are of all men the most joyful. —Bulletin.

— American farmers took in $7,632,000,000 in cash and government aid during 1938, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. In 1937 they took in $8,574,000,000, in 1929, $10,479,000,000.

A Christian's Conversation

Men say it is the fashion
And expression of the age
To abuse our stately language
And make "slang" the modern rage.
They have forced its vulgar usage
Into every land and state;
Until even God's own children
Have begun to imitate.

We, whose lives should waft the fragrance
Of the Heavenly Life and Way;
We, whose souls are bought by Jesus,
Should be careful what we say.
So we pray Thee: Lift us, Father,
Out upon a higher plain;
So that e'en our conversation
May reflect Thy Holy Name.

TWENTY YEARS AGO AND NOW

Twenty years ago the world was at war. The conflagration began with a minor incident—the killing of an Austrian Prince in Serbia. Our country tried to stay out of it but could not. We went into the war, sacrificed thousands of lives and paid billions of dollars, believing that a good cause was being served. Now we know that no good came from it. The war righted no wrongs; it only created greater ones. We followed Europe into war and learned a lesson. We are wiser and sadder.

Today we are again following Europe, not in war, it may be, but in preparedness for war. European countries are all afraid of each other and are arming to the tooth, believing that might makes right. It is a made race, unprecedented in human history. Many high-minded people have counselled our government not to follow but the counsel goes unheeded. The President asks for more battleships and more bombing planes—more and more instruments of destruction—and the majority of people, as the Gallup poll shows, cheer him on. That the budget is unbalanced and that we are in the midst of a serious depression does not matter. We have billions for preparedness. Europe is traveling a dark road leading to competitive killing. And we are following again in their footsteps.

The Christian way points the opposite direction—not competitive killing but cooperative living. Our advancement in education, scientific knowledge, and mechanical skill should be turned to mutual helpfulness, to making life fuller and freer and happier. God intends it so. And it is the business of Christian people, in season and out of season, to work to make it so. Our huge preparedness program may temporarily stimulate business but it arrives at nothing constructive. It is a waste of energy and resources and in the end we will be the worse off. The Easter message is a message of LIFE. But the world, still crucifying Jesus, prefers DEATH.—Lester Hostetler.

A DAY WITH JESUS

It is said, to know a man we must observe him when he is by himself or when he is whole heartedly at his work. That is true of Jesus. When he was left to himself, especially during the hour of the night, his favorite pastime was prayer, to replenish the rundown spiritual resources of a busy day. To be sure, all of his waking days were crowded with work. There is one passage of scripture that more than perhaps any other gives an account of a day's work done by Jesus. It is found in Luke, chapter 7. He starts out by halting a funeral procession near the city of Nain and raising a young man, the provider of a widow, from death. Then he received a delegation of John the Baptist's disciples, with the enquiry, "Art thou he that cometh or look we for another?" But the Master was too busy "curing many of diseases and plagues, and evil spirits" . . . restoring the sight of the blind, the hearing of the deaf, health to the lame and the leprous. Only when the crowd had somewhat disbursed did he answer the question put to him by virtually saying: You see what I am doing. Is it not proof of who I am? Then he delivered a telling sermon to the crowd with an unmistakable reproof to the Pharisees and Scribes, and ended with a eulogy of John. In the evening he had supper at the home of a Pharisee, and while at the table, a woman from the street, doing penitance before him, had her sins forgiven and her faith restored. When he perceived that the Pharisee inwardly objected to his familiarity with a sinner, he discussed with Peter the great question about forgiveness, which ended with the thought that we should never cease forgiving, and the reason for forgiving the woman her sins was that she loved much. What an array of deeds of mercy, contacts with all sorts of men, discussion and answers to great soul problems! Could any mere man do all this, and in one day? Could any one be so insensible as not to perceive and to know this man Jesus must be God, the son of God?

THE TEMPTATIONS OF AN INDUSTRIAL AGE

Before us lies a 132-page copy of the magazine American Home, profusely and exquisitely illustrated, with endless advertisements for the improvement of the home and its comforts, and suggestions to cooks and housewives for the preparation of new, savory dishes for the table. They are all intended to create an appetite or desire for things that are not really a necessity, but tempters for getting things that would mostly be classed as luxuries. And the more the wants multiply and the desires for easing and grooming the body increase, the less we Americans, including Christians, especially so-called Christians, are apt to think of the needs of our souls and of the countless number of fellow human beings the world over who have not the wherewithals to keep body and soul together. Likewise, the less concern we are likely to have for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God. A good many years ago we faced the novelty of the telephone. Some saw in it a thing to be shunned, an invention of the devil. Some soon sensed its utility. It is now an absolute necessity to the progress of modern life. Then there came the auto, the electric or power-driven washer, the electric cooker, the electric iron, the frigidaire machine, and what not, all of which soon advanced to the list of necessities in many, many homes. And with every new devise, comes a new temptation to add it to the comforts of home and life, and even to go into debt to get it. All for self, largely for the gratification of the flesh! And the needs of others, whose keepers we are whether or not we admit it, are forgotten. O the contrast between the people, Christian people, living in the American homes of today and Christ! He went about doing good to others. He could truthfully say, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of heaven have nests, but the son of man has not where to lay his head." Is there not much food for thought in this contrast? And we Mennonites, where are we coming to with our boasted simple life?

Prince Eugene once said to his friend, in his life he had been exposed to many Potiphars, to all of whom he had proved a Joseph, merely because he had so many other things to tend to. —Colton.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

EXPERIENCES AT LAME DEER, MONTANA

By Mrs. B. K. Petter

Looking back upon the year 1938, what have we to report to the churches whose representatives we are? An article should go out promptly, according to the secretary of our Board, and I shall quickly attempt a retrospect.

Without interruptions the usual program of work and services was followed during the entire year. There were marriages and funerals. Sunday School and church services continued interspersed by prayer meetings. Hospital visitation, and receiving of daily callers in the home required attention as ever. Then some personal correspondence must be crowded in here and there. The native workers' Bible class to prepare readers and preachers for the pulpit, has been a very important part of the program for many years. These meet regularly on Tuesday evening and come often on other evenings for more individual instruction.

For the most part the entire program seemed rather "up-hill" work during the entire year. A certain lethargy was felt by all as the opposing forces seemed so strong. The New Deal program which led to the Howard-Wheeler Act helped in the general chaos of missionaries trying against tremendous odds to preach the "one thing needful," while government and relief agencies were putting on program and projects galore to "better the Indians." Add to this, frequent white dances, Indian dances, card parties, gambling, movies, "booze" as never before, one gets a conception of the kaleidoscopic and confused picture.

In the midst of these new conditions, the poor Indian finds himself wheedled or cajoled to be this or that, according to the view point from each avenue of approach. He is thus no more the rugged, stalwart, fearsome, commanding figure of early days. The fact stands out ever more clearly that when one destroys the initiative of a people, the result is disastrous. Thus the Indian of today is largely the product of indefinite, often conflicting, and even mere experimental policies. He becomes to a large extent a creature of circumstance, having lost even the self-respect of his once free, wild existence.

In this chaos, we have ever rejoiced in a positive message, a clear program and an unchanging policy. Our message is the only unalterable challenge the Indians receive, and we are ever glad to give it in the spirit of conquerors. The "Thus saith the Lord," sounds also here above all the confusion of voices, and is heard. We have ever rejoiced in victories all along the way. Oh, had we but ten lives to give to this all-absorbing task!

Now in retrospect of the year 1938. It was not a pleasant matter last spring, when the doctor in Miles City said in substance to Mr. Petter, "Slow down. Avoid all strain of public speaking. Change your diet somewhat. Continue in such tasks that are pleasant to you, and that do not tax you. Your heart has thumped faithfully through years of most strenuous labor, and it asks for a little more consideration now. Do this and, with God's help, you can still render valuable service."

Thus we had to adapt ourselves to a new program. While I had always assumed many responsibilities to relieve Mr. Petter in his greater task, this was still more to be the case. To the praise of God, I cannot recall a single indisposition during the year that hindered me in my duties. Thus was the promise, "As thy days so shall thy strength be" literally fulfilled.

In June it was my privilege to attend the National Fellowship of Indian Workers Conference at the Nez Perces Indian Camp Grounds near Lewiston, Idaho. Milton Whiteman and family accompanied me and we made the 2,000 mile trip in his car, stopping also at Colfax for Childrens' Day, then in Spokane, Kettle Falls, the Flathead Lake region, passing through Glacier National Park and on to Ft. Shaw, where Milton had spent some of his boyhood years getting an education. This Conference is worthy of a report on its own merit.

On Thanksgiving Day, our agent, Mr. Jennings, gave a much appreciated message from our pulpit, which encouraged our Christian Indians. In substance he said, "While the government comes to the Indians with all kinds of programs and projects, it is the missionaries that bring the program most worth while. Their message outweighs by far the thousands of dollars spent in behalf of the Indians through other agencies."

The year 1939 opened hopefully. A new spirit seems to be manifest. Such who had grown cold have renewed their vows. A deeper interest is manifest in the Word. Peyote devotees give evidence of turning from it as a false worship. A fourth man has been added to the class of native evangelists, who can read the Cheyenne Scriptures fluently and give its message from the pulpit. Two young girls were baptized recently, and others ask for instruction. Thanks are rendered continually for the Word that speaks Cheyenne, and for God's servant who translated the Word. Many have shown a pardonable pride in seeing a Cheyenne Scripture portion listed in the new publication of the American Bible Society, entitled "The Book of a Thousand Tongues." Again and again they express their pity for Indian tribes or Indian groups who are not so privileged as they to hear God speak to them in the mother tongue.

How true the preface to the authorized version of the English Bible in 1611, which reads in its quaint English and ancient spelling:

"Translation it is that openeth the window to let in the light: that breaketh the shell, that we may eat the kernel: that putteth aside the curtain, that we may look into the most Holy place: that removeth the cover of the well, that we may come by the water, even as Jacob rolled away the stone from the mouth of the well, by which means the flocks of Laban were watered. Indeed without translation into the vulgar tongue, the unlearned are like children at Jacob's well (which was deepe) without a bucket or something to draw with: or as that person mentioned in Esay to whom when a sealed booke was delivered, with this motion, read this, I pray thee, hee was faine to make this answere, I cannot, for it is sealed."

GOD

III. THE VOICE OF MEN

P. R. Schroeder

Socrates (Philosopher): There is a God and there must be one.

Cicero (Historian): That God is, is so plain, that I question the mental soundness of one who denies Him.

Roger Bacon (Naturalist): There is only One Perfect Wisdom, and that is completely recorded in the Scriptures. All wisdom comes from God.

Kepler (Astronomer): In the created universe I virtually take God by the hand.

Pasteur (Chemist): Men of the future will some day laugh at the foolishness of our present day materialistic philosophy. The more I study nature the more I am astonished and awed by the works of the Creator.

Fichte (Philosopher): True peace and happiness can be found no where else, than in the Eternal One.

Ibsen (Norwegian Poet): And if all lights of the world are wiped out, one bright light of the mind remains: there is God.

Voltaire (Atheist): I cannot believe that this watch exists, but no watch-maker.

Schiller (Poet): The Universe is a thought of God.

And someone has said that it would be just as reasonable to imagine that the alphabet flew together and formed Dicken's David Copperfield as that nature just happened.

The voice of men is overwhelming in the declaration of GOD.

— God Hides Nothing. His very work from the beginning is revelation—a casting aside of veil after veil, a showing unto men of truth after truth. On and on from fact Divine He advances until at length in His Son Jesus He unveils His very face.

"MEDITATION"

This article is taken from the April number of THE VINE PRESS, organ of the Middle District Young People, Miss Inda Sprunger, editor. It is only one of the many good things contained in this model paper.—Editor.

Let us think for a little while on the subject "The Face of Christ."

Our life is a Christ bought life—Christ the eternal Son—Christ the Lamb of God purchased it. His sacrifice, His suffering and death was the price of our salvation.

Dr. Robert G. Lee, that wonderful pastor and orator of Memphis, Tenn., makes us realize and grasp in a very definite and unusual way, the meaning of this sacrifice, by bringing before us through a word picture, the face of Christ.

He refers to the Vatican of Rome, the largest of earth's art galleries; where are eleven thousand rooms, with walls of speaking pictures on either side, and all sides. One may wander for days and look at these pictures.

"But the Bible" he says, "is an art gallery; greater than the Vatican. One may wander for centuries and not see all its glories. But on every page we will get evidence that all portraits lose their splendor in the greater glory of the face of Jesus."

"What kind of face" Dr. Lee asks, "is it? Was it a stained face—a tear stained face, sometimes? Once in Bethany this face was stained with tears, in the home of friends."

During the days of the last week that sloped to Calvary's bloody top, He came around Olivet's brow one day in His one and only hour of royal pomp. Then and there he burst into tears. Luke 19:41.

A tear stained face, not because of anything He had done—there was no sin in His life to bring forth those tears. His love and compassion brought forth those tears. It was stained with something else. In the book of Mark, one bold statement stands out "They smote Him on the head with a reed and did spit upon Him."

But it was also stained with blood. In Gethsemane's garden we see Him sweating drops of blood. Blood trickling from the thorn puncture in His brow; blood oozing from the holes in His palms where the nails went. Blood spurting from the feet where the spikes were driven. Blood dripping from His back where the scourges had cut his back.

And it was also a smitten face. The prophet Isiah says, "Surely He has borne our griefs and carried our sorrow; yet we did esteem Him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted." Matthew says, ". . . and others smote Him with the palms of their hand;" and Luke tells us, "And the men that held Jesus mocked Him and smote Him."

Think of it! Smitten His face, where never dwelt hate.

Smitten with hard fists, the face where no hypocrisy ever stamped itself.

God forbid that we should forget that marred face, that has been brought to our attention again this Easter season.

Toward a Continuous Mennonite Fellowship

I was very much interested in the suggestion of working toward a continuous Mennonite Fellowship as suggested by Mr. Smucker in the Mennonite of April 4. I think the idea is splendid. I love the Mennonites and am proud of my Mennonite heritage, yet it always rubs me the wrong way if I hear one deploring the fact that Mennonite P. H. D.'s for instance have left our church and are serving in other denominations. To me it seems that is a reason for gratitude. After all, the Mennonites are a people apart in order that they may develop their peculiar contribution to the rest of the world, and not in order to keep all for themselves.

Mennonites have a sincerity of purpose, a seriousness of mind and an honesty of character which the world needs badly. We have in the past too often permitted this sincerity of purpose, this seriousness of mind to go off on a tangent by overemphasizing minor details and frittering away our energy over hooks and buttons and such matters, when there are matters of life and death in this world waiting for our sincerity and our seriousmindedness.

A student here at the Chicago Theological Seminary acted as secretary to the Peace Conference of Quakers and Mennonites held here in Chicago. She told me repeatedly how much she was impressed with the zeal as well as the resourcefulness of the Mennonites in bringing Russian Mennonites to Canada and getting others settled in South America. That is the Mennonite quality which we need to share with the world.

On the other hand of course we do not have a monopoly on all the Christian virtues. We need to see things in larger relationships than what the average Mennonite is apt to do. Therefore we need the broader outlook of other churches, they need our depth.

It seems to me that a Mennonite fellowship would work in both of these directions. The individual Mennonite who is away from the group will thereby be strengthened and anchored more securely in his priceless heritage. On the other hand he can pass on to the Mennonite church the good things he finds in other churches.

Therefore, I for one, am heartily in favor of establishing a Mennonite Fellowship.

—Marie J. Regier.

What Happens When We Pray?

"The Lord is in His holy temple."—"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord?"

Did it ever occur to you that there is a very definite purpose and plan back of every worship service? It is not just a meeting with a program arranged to fill the alloted time. It is not merely a sermon with a few hymns hung around to make the instruction agreeable. Rather a service of worship is a studied plan. Each part of the service has its own function to play to create the effect which worship should produce on him who worships.

Call to Worship

Worshippers gather together during the organ prelude. In quietness they take their places, knowing that a wonderful experience is in store for them. The hour for worship arrives. Comes the call to worship.

Humility and Plea for Pardon

Assured that God is in His church, the next attitude of the worshipper is that of a supplicant for pardon and forgiveness. The expression of this may come in a prayer or confession. Who has not heard the beautiful historic prayer of the church which begins: "Almighty and most merciful father, we have erred and strayed from thy ways like lost sheep. We have followed too much the devices and desires of our own hearts. We have offended against thy holy laws."

These words are typical of a general confession. Through it the worshipper is making his own approach to the blessing which he is sure that God has for him.

Instruction and Illumination

Having made himself ready through the plea for forgiveness, the worshipper is now ready to receive, from the Lord, Light. This comes through the reading of the Bible, the law from the Old Testament, grace from the New Testament. Following this giving of light there naturally follows a spirit of thanksgiving.

Dedication of Self

After knowledge, consecration. The offering is the open symbol of personal dedication. It is truly a part of worship. Thankful givers place their offering on the plates as a token of the gift of themselves. These gifts will be received at the altar and consecrated to a holy purpose. The offering is a most important part of the entire service of worship and should never be considered as purely a mechanical method of raising money.

The Particular Vision

This is the sermon. The sermon has a big place in the service of worship. The preacher takes the philosophy of ages. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, the personal experiences of his own life, and builds them into a message of illumination and help. If the sermon is omitted, the service is incomplete; if the sermon overbalances the other features, the result is not pleasing.

Final Vision and Gift of God

The sermon has been completed, a hymn of consecration has been sung, the worshippers with bowed heads have received the benediction which comes as the climax of the hour of worship.

You then go out into the world, a better man, inspired to live a life of Christian service and helpfulness.—"The Mennonite Messenger," Sugar Creek, Ohio.

"Faith: The Confidence of the Hope That Is in Us"

Scripture Lesson: Hebr. 11:1-6; Text Hebr. 11:1

by Rev. Victor Sawatzky, Butterfield, Minnesota

Christianity is a religion of certainties. There are many forms of religion in the world today and all of them present some plan of salvation, but none of these, except Christianity, present a way of salvation that is based upon a sure foundation. No system of theology outside of the Word of God can present a way of life that will give its adherents the positive assurance that they are actually safe and that their salvation will be complete in eternity.

Why am I a Christian? The first part of our answer is, because we have a sufficient Savior who died for us on Calvary's Cross in whose very person our sins were borne up onto the tree. This Savior who is the foundation of my salvation is none other than Jesus Christ, the Lord of Glory. Other religions center their beliefs around the work, teachings, and person of some certain man. Mohammedanism has Mohammed for its savior; Confucianism has Confucius for its basis; Mormonism rests upon Joseph Smith. But none of these religious cults can boast of a sufficient Savior, because all base their hopes in a mere man who has lived and who now is dead and buried. In what state his soul is, no one knows. But not so with Christianity, for it has a living Savior who is both God and man.

We see, then, that Christianity has a sure foundation on which to rest its hope. Christianity is a religion of assurance and comfort to those who are partakers of it. The Scriptures say, "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear." (1 John 4:18)

Not only is Christianity based upon Jesus Christ the God-Man, but we find the further teaching in Scripture that faith plays a large part in the assurance of our salvation. Jesus Christ as the foundation of our faith gives us the aspect of salvation outside of our own beings; but faith as the confidence of the hope that is in us, gives us the assurance of salvation in our very souls; it is part of our inner experience. We will realize how necessary it is that we see clearly these two points, namely, the work of Christ on Calvary, and the faith which we have, as a twofold basis of our assurance. For if the death of Jesus on Calvary's Cross were the only ground of our assurance then all those who believe or possess the saving faith can rest assured of salvation. "But as many as received him (the same as believe in Him) to them gave He the power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name." (1 John 1:12)

In order to possess the assurance of our personal salvation or acceptance by God we must have that necessary, vital faith. To the end that we might be helped to find how we stand in relation to God by faith let us briefly meditate upon the teaching of our text.

1. The meaning of this verse as found in the King James version of the Bible is not very clear. Let us read it once more and then translate it from the German Bible. It says, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." The German says, "Faith is a sure confidence of what we hope for, and not doubting the reality of that which we do not see."

Faith is a confidence of what we hope for; it is something within us that makes us feel and know that that which God has promised to those who believe has really happened and what remains to be done will find fulfillment in the future. I am positive that there is such a town as Butterfield in the state of Minnesota, in the nation of the U. S. A. But the reason I am so sure of the existence of the town is that I have seen it with my own eyes and have felt the buildings with my own touch. Now the confidence which we find in the Christian faith is just as sure that God is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him as I am that Butterfield exists. With such a definition of faith as we find in Hebrews 11:1 we realize that faith is a thing that makes our salvation obsolutely sure.

2. Let us read farther, "Faith is a sure confidence of what we hope for." The word hope brings to our minds other Scripture passages which deal with the same subject and which will throw light on our discussion of faith as a sure confidence of our salvation. The first Scripture is this, "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the geratest of these is love." (1 Cor. 13:13) In this verse faith and hope are linked together with love in one great chain; and we find according to another Scripture passage how vital this relationship is which exists between faith and hope. This truth is found in parts of two verses from two different epistles of Paul. The first is our text (Heb. 1:11) which states that faith is a sure confidence of what we hope for. The second is found in Romans 8:24, "For we are saved by hope." Here again we prefer the German reading which says, "We are saved, but that in hope."

We have said that faith is something that makes us sure that God is and that He is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him. But when we speak of hope we immediately think of a certain condition within us, by which we wish certain things would happen, though we are not sure that they will. But let me say that the hope which these Scripture verses speak of is not something uncertain, for faith is the sure confidence of this hope.

Let us look at it from another angle. Romans 8:24 does not say, "We hope to be saved," but rather, "We are saved (present tense, right now where we sit or stand), but nevertheless it is still in hope." That does not mean that there is any uncertainty as to our salvation, but it does mean that we do not yet see our Savior face to face and ourselves completely sinless. The completion of our salvation is still future, even though the transaction has already been completed as far as our relationship to God is concerned. Hope always has to do with things unseen which are yet future, as is explained in the remaining portion of Romans 8:24, "But hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth why doth he yet hope for?" As soon as we see the object of our hope, we cease hoping, and that is why Scripture states that love is the greatest of the three, because when we shall see our Savior face to face, faith and hope will pass away for they are no longer necessary when we see the object of our faith and hope, but love will never pass away, it cannot cease. The hope, then, spoken of in connection with our salvation is not an uncertain thing; it is just as sure as faith because faith is the sure confidence of what we hope for.

Another Scripture says, "Hope maketh not ashamed." We all know what it means to be ashamed. If we have boasted that we could do a certain thing and then fail to do it, we feel ashamed of ourselves. But the hope of salvation does not make us ashamed, and from this we know that it is something sure.

Yet another Scripture, which says, "As it is writen, Behold I lay in Zion a stumbling stone and rock of offense: and whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed." (Rom. 9:33) The German says, "And whosever believeth on him shall not be put to shame." Knowing what the German says, I was always disgusted when a leading minister in this country quoted the last part of this verse when he asked for a show of hands in his church after a sermon so as to mean that whosoever believeth will not be ashamed to show it by a raised hand. But it means, as the German says, "Whosoever believeth will not be put to shame." and it points to the great judgment day. Even so the hope of salvation will not end in failure or shame.

Beloved, let us rejoice that our salvation is both sure and steadfast, because it is rooted and grounded in Christ Jesus and because faith and hope give us a sure confidence.

PAUL CROSSES INTO EUROPE

Acts 15:36; 16:4-15

Introduction

Paul started on his second missionary journey as a follow-up campaign to encourage and strengthen the converts made on the first journey (v36). He had a constant concern for the brethren in the faith. It reveals the great heart of the apostle who gave himself unsparingly for others. Under the divine guidance this journey was extended until the gospel had been carried into Europe and important churches were established in Macedonia and Corinth. Our lesson is one of the great Bible passages on divine guidance.

The Spirit Closed the Door to Paul in Asia vs 6-8

Paul chose Silas as his companion on this journey, while Barnabas and Mark went to Cyprus. The missionary work was enlarged into two great streams of missionary influence. As they went to the groups of Christians (v4), they delivered to them the decree of the Jerusalem Council (see last lesson) and encouraged them in their work. Their faith was strengthened and their numbers increased by constantly gaining new converts. This is a good and practical example for our churches today.

Paul wished to carry the gospel message into the populous province of Asia which appeared to be a very promising field. The divine hand of God closed this door to him for the time being (v6). Later it was opened and with marvelous results (19:1, 8, 10). Paul submissively followed the guidance of the Holy Spirit, even though He closed the door to a seemingly ripe opportunity. If we would do the Lord's work in the right place and at the right time, we must look to the Spirit for needed guidance.

God had larger plans for Paul and Silas, so He closed all doors to them and they came to Troas (vs 7, 8), an important sea port city in Paul's day. Here, at what must have seemed like the end of the road, Paul received the call to bring the gospel to Europe.

The Spirit Opened the Door into Europe to Paul vs 9-12

God guided Paul step by step. His divine action is mentioned three times in four verses (6-9), all leading him to enter Macedonia. God now uses a vision (v9) to call him to this larger field of opportunity. All uncertainty has now disappeared. Paul recognizes the vision as a direct call from God (v 10) to bring the gospel message to Macedonia, and at once he started for the new field (vs 11, 12). A readiness to follow God's guidance is one of the greatest secrets of a happy and efficient life. As we respond to divine guidance, it becomes clearer and clearer.

The First Convert in Europe. vs 13-15

Paul and his companions—Silas, Timothy and Luke—went directly to the chief city, Philippi, a Roman colony, and abode there some days waiting, watching and praying. On the sabbath they began in a quiet way (v13), seeking the place where the Jews gathered for worship and speaking to the women gathered there for prayer. European evangelism began with a handful of praying women, one of the notable gatherings of all history. The words spoken here resulted in the conversion of Lydia, a prominent and religious woman. The Lord opened her heart to Paul's message (v14), she accepted it, was baptized and gave shelter to the missionary party (v15).

One of the fundamental facts of Paul's life was the guidance of the Spirit, and his ready response was the secret of his success. He declares that all of God's children may be led by the Spirit. Paul prayed much that he might rightly learn God's plan. God can guide those consecrated to do His will. God will not fail us when we are willing to be led. We need to do faithfully the thing at hand as opportunities come to us.

SERMON SKETCH

"Rumours of Wars"

Text: Matt. 24:6, 7

Howard G. Nyce, Pastor of Allentown and Zionsville Churches, Pa.

For quite some time we have been hearing people talk about World Peace, and yet, today, every time we pick up the paper or hear the news flashes over the radio, we hear something about rumors of wars. It seems that the question is not, will there be world peace, but how long may war be avoided? This problem of world peace has been discussd from every angle and, to be sure, is more often misinterpreted than correctly understood. As peace with God is the chief issue with the individual soul, so world peace is the paramount question for the nations. We know from God's Word that world peace is coming; it is an absolute certainty. But WHEN will that be? What are we as Christians to do about it? It is certain that before there can be a warless world there MUST BE a righteous world. In Heb. 7:2 we see that Christ is first King of Righteousness, then King of Peace.

Our Lord prophecied that this age would be characterized by war, and that these wars would climax at the end in the birth pangs of a new age. We so often hear Isa. 2:4 quoted, but, before the swords are beaten into plowshares, we see another prophecy in Joel 3:9, 10. This will take place before the Isaiah prophecy and therefore the text is slowly but surely being fulfilled, for today we do find that people are preparing to have the plowshares beaten into swords.

Surely we, as Christians want peace. Christ wants peace. He came as the Prince of Peace, but He also knew that the wisdom of man, and the cleverness of men through greed would devise ways whereby they would take by force what they could not possibly get otherwise. There shall be wars and rumors of wars until that time when Jesus as King of Kings and Lord of Lords will be recognized as the Universal King. This however, will not take place until after the Church has been received unto Himself. A warless world bowing to Christ before He comes, is evidently in vain. All Christians hate war and long for peace, but in this age blood will be shed.

We may agree that the principles of Christ have great weight with Christian statesmen who have fought for peace treaties, but what will be the outcome of a Godless movement for peace that leaves out the Prince of Peace? In Matt. 5:9, Jesus said, "Blessed are the peace-makers: for they shall be called the children of God." PEACE-MAKERS! Who are the peace-makers? Acts 10:36 we read, "The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ: (he is Lord of all.)" and Romans 10:15 "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!" The peace-makers are the soul winners who preach the righteousness by faith that results in peace. Before there can be universal peace, there must be universal righteousness. The blessed hope of a warless world cannot be separated from the blessed hope of the personal return of the Lord Jesus Christ. Perhaps some dear reader would receive the impression that I think it is foolish to speak or even think of peace among the nations. If that is your impression, it is not correct. Though wars will not be done away with until Christ returns, much may be done toward temporary periods of peace and Christians SHOULD as far as possible promote the idea of peace. Although the Word informs us that there will be no permanent peace until Christ returns, it would be utterly foolish for me or any other Christian to fold his hands and say "What's the use, the Bible says there will be no permanent peace." We do not remain silent on other problems. For instance, we urge our young people not to touch liquor, and yet look at the amount consumed annually. As Christian ministers we do not remain silent about sin, and yet we will have to contend with the problem of sin until Christ returns. If it is foolish to speak about peace, then it is also foolish to speak about sin. I am not saying that all peace movements should be supported, for they are not all in accord with the teaching of Christ. We are exhorted to pray for all men, and especially for rulers, that we may live a quiet life and that the Gospel may be forwarded, I Tim. 2:1-4.

Yes, if all people of all nations were Christians, there would be no war. If all the people of the world would realize the importance of the words of Jesus, "Thou shalt not kill," there could be no war. But this is not the case. People are drifting away from God. There are wars and rumors of wars, and yet the text informs us that we should not be troubled. These things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. "All these are the beginnings of sorrows."

One thing we may be certain of when we hear of these rumors of wars: "The coming of the Lord draweth nigh." We should busy ourselves in His vineyard to bring unto Him lost dying souls who may have eternal life by believing in the name of God's well beloved Son, who died that we might have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

—Christian Tolerance Needed—How easy it is in these days to hurl an epithet across the seas to trample in scorn the name of another nation. How hard it is for us to remember that once our nation marched across the lands of another race and took them as our own under the paltry moral excuse of "manifest destiny." This does not minimize the atrocity of the international crimes now committed but it reminds us that there is also "a beam in our own eye." All nations have sinned and all need to repent. Until nations confess their sins and ask forgiveness, the world picture remains very dark indeed.

The Armament-Maker

He oils the tongue of lobbyists
Whose logic fits his will.
If Britain's guns have blinding glints,
Ours must be shinier still.

The brothers, Fear and Hate, he hires
To help the planet's press—
And ignorance who sometimes gives
Jesus centurion dress.

When tax-dazed nations meet to spin
Disarmament's bright scheme,
He delegates sleek anarchists
To blast the common dream.

If countries war, his subtle trade
Claims enemies as friends.
Whoever vomits up his lungs
Will vomit dividends.

While millions starve, and millions more
Draw an uncertain breath,
He has his yacht and proud estates,
This racketeer of death.

Favor Paid Advertising

The first part of question 6 read as follows, "Should such a paper welcome financial support through paid advertising?" Of those who replied, 8 said, "Yes." Undecided were 3 persons, and 4 were opposed to such a means of support. The latter part of the question read, "If so, what limitations do you suggest as to types of advertising admitted?" Some comments on this question were:

"I see no objections, providing competent persons select the advertising. I feel that advertisers would be rather limited."

"Any product or institution which appeals to young people and has Christian endorsement."

"It should be limited to good books, etc. Patent medicines, etc., out."

"Limit it to Mennonite institutions."

"Limit it to Christian advertising. Colleges, books to read, and other things of that type might be advertised."

"It might be good to accept advertising from Mennonite schools, hospitals, etc."

"Whatever fits the spirit and the object of the paper."

This and That

The Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa. has sent in the first money for a follow-up fund. The amount was five dollars. On Good Friday this church had a three-hour community service. The Bluffton Vesper Choir sang there on Easter Day. They report that the weather is rather cool for spring.

The Western District Convention has received an invitation from the Beatrice, Neb. church. This meeting will be held on July 30th.

Chairmen of Western Dist. C. E. Societies, have you sent in that list of young people's names?

The Y. P. Standards Committee has completed the revised standards. They will be ready for distribution soon.

The Grace Mennonite Church, Enid, Okla. reports that "a very fine group of young people" participates in the church work. The choir attendance runs as high as 24; the Sunday School enrollment at present is 83. God willing, the new building will be ready June 1st. The Young Married Women's S. S. Class of Bethel College sent $10.00 towards furnishing the pastor's study in the new church. H. N. Harder is the young pastor of the church.

WANTED—A young Mennonite lady to help in Summer Vacation Bible School work for three weeks. Room and board free. Write to Route 2, Box 44, McPherson, Kansas.

"LET MY PEOPLE GO," a drama taken largely from genuine, Mennonite historical incidents, was presented in Mennonite Communities of Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa during Spring vacation—April 7-17, by a group of Bluffton College students, under the auspices of THE MENNONITE PEACE SOCIETY.

The cast was as follows: John Miller, Wm. Ramseyer; Ruth Lander, Betty Kenney; General Dejaro, Leonard Metzker; Menno Simons, Melvin Yoder; Mrs. Simon, Anne Schumacher; Brother Smythe, Richard Weaver; Elder Epp, Rollin Moser; Elder Isaac, Carl J. Landes; Czar of Russia, Karl Schultz; A Brigand Captain, Richard Weaver; Brigand Soldier, Melvin Yoder; Dietrich Neufeld, Bertram Smucker.

Accumulating Riches

"You are richer today than you were yesterday—if you have laughed often, given something, forgiven even more, made a new friend today, or made stepping-stones of stumbling blocks; If you have thought more in terms of "thyself" than "myself," or if you have managed to be cheerful even if you were weary. You are richer tonight than you were this morning—if you have taken time to trace the handiwork of God in the commonplace things of life, or if you have learned to count out things which really do not count, or if you have been a little blinder to the faults of friend or foe. You are far richer if a little child has smiled at you, and a stray dog has licked your hand, or if you have looked for the best in others and given others the best in you."———

—David Grayson.

My Life Work

Senior C. E. Topic for May 7, 1939 . .

Main Topic: Being Christian in My Life Work

Deut. 10:12-14; 1 Tim. 6:6-12

I. Special music: "I Want My Life to Tell for Jesus"

II. Let the leader read the passages for the main topic, and bring a few suggestive thoughts.

"It is important for a person to think of his life work in terms of something more noble and enduring than merely making a living. He should learn to think of it in terms of making a life, a life that amounts to something in the service of God and of mankind."

III. Quiet music: "I Would Be True"

Let all join in the singing, softly, with bowed heads.

IV. Suggested poem:

A DREAM

"Chisel in hand stood a sculptor boy,
With his marble block before him,
And his face lit up with a smile of joy.
As an angel dream passed o'er him.
He carved that dream on the yielding stone,
With many a sharp incision,
Till heaven's own beauty in sculpture shone,
He had caught the angel vision.

Sulptors of life are we, as we stand,
With our lives uncarved before us,
Waiting the hour when at God's command
Our life dream passes o'er us.
Let us carve that dream in the yielding stone,
With many a sharp incision,
It's heavenly beauty will be our own,
Our own that angel vision."

V. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. Joseph's loyalty to God and his faithfulness in his work: Gen. 41:38-44.
2. What can we learn from these three tentmakers? Acts 18:1-4.
3. Greatness in service: Mt. 20:25-28.
4. The most important thing in life: Mk. 8:34-38.

VI. For discussion:

Does Mt. 6:33 hold out a selfish motive for the service of God?

How can we use our job to be a life work for Christ and his Kingdom?

VII. The work in this world is done by people who hold many various kinds of jobs. If each one will do his job in the spirit of devotion to God his work whether it be with the head or with the hands, will have value in the upbuilding of God's kingdom. Whether it be farming, or clerking, or teaching, or being a maid, or running errands, being a Christian will make a difference in your work, and will lend dignity and give value to your work.

VIII. Facts for study:

1. In a typical city of around 100,000 the workers are divided as follows: (a) about 38% are at work making things, engaged in factories and shops; (b) 18% are buying and selling, working in stores and as visiting salesmen; (c) 10% are engaged in transportation, taxi drivers, street car operators, truck drivers, etc.; (d) 10% are engaged in clerical work, such as stengraphy, accounting, filing, etc.; (e) 12% are engaged in personal services, such as cooks, waiters, laundry workers, barbers, etc.; (f) 10% are engaged in professions, such as law, teaching, medicine, dentistry, etc.; (g) 2% are engaged in public service and protection, such as policemen, firemen, garbage collectors, street cleaners, etc.

Would it be possible for all these people to be Christians in their life work? Would it make their work count for more if they were Christians?

Food for thought:

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Proverbs.

Call to Worship

Your Place

Is your place a small place?
Tend it with care!
He set you there.

Is your place a large place?
Guard it with care!
He set you there.

Whate'er your place, it is
Not yours alone, but His
That set you there.

—John Oxenham, Fleming H. Revell Co. Pub., Copyright, 1933.

Opening Song: "If you cannot on the Ocean"

Leader's Introduction to topic: In our thoughts as to what to consider in choosing a vocation let us keep uppermost in our minds the desire to be doing that which Christ would have us do. May we first of all yield ourselves unto him as "instruments of righteousness," to be used by him as he pleases.

"Jesus was only a young man when he died. His problems were the problems of sensitive, idealistic youth everywhere. As a boy of sixteen he was learning to make yokes that are light and easy. He oft trudged the Judean hills because he too had no money or way to ride. Remember him looking out over the world from a hilltop and choosing the hard but triumphant way of sacrifice.

We have a Savior who, because he was once the young man of Nazareth, can understand our problems and guide us into the proper vocation.

Song: "Trust and Obey"

Scripture Reading: Mark 10:35-45; Matt. 4:1-11.

Sentence prayers asking God to open our lives to His call to service.

Vocational Talks: These should be given by people from various vocations. Be sure to ask a minister, teacher, and nurse. Other vocations should also be represented. If your superintendent is willing it would be very fine to have a panel discussion under his leadership. If conducted informally this can be made very much worthwhile. The following are some questions which should be discussed by the panel:

1. What aptitudes are necessary in all vocations?
2. Is it right to believe that one's personality fits one for one vocation better than another?
3. How important is preparation? Is it necessary to complete a college course or can one become prepared through experience?
4. Does hard work develop character? Many great men have seemed to prove this fact. Is it proper to work hard in order to develop character?

"Joseph Turner, a great artist, said 'I have no secret but hard work. This is a secret that many never learn and they don't succeed because they don't learn it!

5. Is it always wrong to work for money? One cannot live without money today. It is the source of our existence, food and shelter. It gives us a feeling of security. By it we are able to help others.

Is it wrong to work for money to give?

Song: "Serve the Lord in Youth"

Offering and announcements

Poem:

Laborers Together with God"

Helpless am I indeed
To right earth's grievous wrong,
To help earth's bitter need;
But thou, my God, art strong.

Too weak I am, I know,
To fight the foes within;
But thou dost strength bestow
That I may conquer sin.

Naught for life's work have I
But feeble human sense;
Thou dost my need supply
From thy omnipotence.

Oh partnership divine,
That thou dost work with me!
What wealth and power are mine,
Since I may work with thee!

Lucy Alice Perkins.—L. H. Revell, Co.

Close with sentence prayers, asking God to guide each one into the vocation which He would have us choose.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Suggestive Outline for May 1939

Theme: THIS IS MY FATHER'S WORLD

May 7 He created it. Gen. 1:1.
May 14 Mother's Day Program.
May 21 He speaks to us through it. Amos 4:13; Acts 7:49-50
May 28 Jesus helps us see it. Matt. 6:28.

Opening Sentence for each service: "He hath made everything beautiful in His time." Ecc. 33:11a.

Verse for month: "Sing unto Him, sing praises unto Him; Talk ye all His marvelous works." Ps. 105:2.

Song for month: "This Is My Father's World."

"HE CREATED IT"—Gen. 1:1

Program for May 7

To the Leaders: May the following poem by Grace Noll Crowell be our aim in the studies planned for May.

"A Teacher's Aim"

"To make these precious children see
God's face in every little flower,
His strength in every splendid tree,
His glory in each silver shower;

His splendor in the new green grass,
His grace within the waving grain—
Could I but bring these things to pass,
My teaching will not be in vain.

If anything that I might say
Would make them feel that God is near,
Through every moment of the day,
To love them—that they need not fear—

If I could teach these shining truths,
Dear heavenly Father, I would be
So very glad—and these dear youths,
With clearer vision, would serve Thee."

Setting— If possible secure a large good globe, place it so that all Juniors can see it. Have spring flowers and spring pictures placed about the room.

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude
2. Opening Sentence: "He hath made everything beautiful in His time." Ecc. 33:11a.
3. Song—"Come Thou Almighty King."
4. Scripture: Two Juniors read the following:
    First: Ps. 24:1, 2
    Second: Ps. 95:1-5
    First: Ps. 95:6, 7
    Second: Ps. 148: 2-5
    First: Ps. 148:12, 13
5. Leader's Prayer.
6. Song—"This is My Father's World."

Before the Juniors sing this song they read it silently while the leader reads it to them. The pianist may play the melody very softly during this reading.

II. Mission Minutes

1. Two Juniors report on news from the Mission fields in China.
2. Short prayers for God's blessing on our workers everywhere.
3. The great commission (Matt. 28:18-20) in concert.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To impress upon the mind of every Junior the stupendous, fundamental truth that all this universe came from the hand of a wise and loving God.

1. Eight juniors read the first chapter of Genesis.

a) v. 1-2; b) v.3-5; c) v. 6-8; d) v. 9-13; e) v. 14-19; f) v. 20-23; g) v. 24-27; h) v. 28-31.

2. Leader's heart talk: Beauty of our world. God's love and wisdom and power is seen in the creation.

3. Poem: "To God, who makes all lovely things
How happy must our praises be!
Each day a new surprise He brings
To make us glad His world to see"—Selected.

4. Minute talks by three juniors.
    a. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Gen. 1:2. Create does not mean make. We should worship and praise God the creator of this beautiful world.
    b. "And God said, Let us make man in our image." Gen. 1:26. What does it mean to be made in the image of God? It means that we have a soul, that we can think and plan and decide. It also means that we will live forever. Just as God is eternal so are we.
    c. "Remember your creator." Ecc. 12:1. Because then we can be blessed and can also be a blessing. So we remember our creator in the days of youth that we may praise God by our lives.

(These are just suggestions. The juniors should not use them for their talks.)

5. Prayer by a Junior. "We thank Thee God for this beautiful world that thou hast created. May we see in it Thy wisdom, Thy love, and Thy power." May we show our thanks, not only with our lips, but in our lives. Make us more loving in our hearts and help us to be more willing to serve Thee." Amen.

6. Song—"For the Beauty of the Earth." v. 1, 2.
7. Leader's closing prayer.
8. Doxology.

THE CROSS, A SYMBOL OF SACRIFICE

Above the empty Cross the face of the living Christ makes glorious the Easter day.

The devotion of Holy Week has kept the cross of Christ before our eyes. His love and sacrifice have made our hearts responsive to the love of God. On Easter day we do not lay the empty cross aside but make it a symbol of the sacrifice and service which is to command our lives, and from the Cross we lift our eyes to the glorious face of Him who said, "Because I live ye shall live also."

Report of the 19th Annual California Mennonite S. S. and C. E. Conference

The convention took place at Shafter Calif., March 24-26, 1939. The president, Mr. Gust Linscheid of Los Angeles, presided very effectively at all meetings. As soon as we entered the church, we could feel the Spirit of God present and that all who attended would be spiritually refreshed. The theme of the convention was, "The Saving Christ." Eph. 2:8.

Mr. John Unruh, Shafter, led the opening prayer service, stressing the need of personal prayer. Eph. 1-15.—The address of the evening was given by Dr. J. A. Hubbard of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. His theme was ,"The Three Imperatives." John 3:7, "Ye MUST be born again," v,. 14, "Even so MUST the Son of Man be lifted up," v. 30, "He MUST increase, but I MUST decrease."—The testimony period Saturday morning, led by Mrs. W. N. Claassen, Paso Robles, was very fine. She used various passages of Scripture showing praise to God and said that we should testify more than we do.—The devotional message was given by Rev. W. A. Regier, Los Angeles, saying Luke 19:10 is a picture of the Saving Christ.—The business session was then held. Among other things a motion was accepted that our Conference appoint a nominee to the Pacific District Conference to represent the Pacific District in the General Conference Y. P. Union.

In the afternoon the Reedley Y. P. gave a play, "White Unto Harvest," which was very well presented. This was under the direction of Miss Helen Fast, our Missionary Superintendent. These same Y. P. sang two very fine choral numbers under the direction of Miss Emma Ruth.—An Open Forum, dealing with S. S problems was held under the direction of Rev. D. D. Eitzen, Los Angeles. The questions were: 1. What can we do to interest our people, professed Christians, in the Lord's work? 2.How can we get our people to come to S. S.? 3. How can we get our substitute teachers to take part in teacher's meetings? 4. How can we get the teachers of younger classes to take advantage of the time for the lesson?

In the evening the annual convention banquet was served in the church basement, with practically every available place taken. The Shafter women served fine meals throughout the convention.—Miss Emma Ruth of Reedley showed moving pictures of her trip to the General Conference in Canada and also the California Retreat, held at Lake Sequoia last August.—Rev. J. J. Penner of Reedley brought the evening message on, "The Enlarged Christian Life," 11 Cor. 6:11-13," . . . our heart is ENLARGED," "be ye also ENLARGED." Ps. 18:36, "Thou hast ENLARGED my steps under me, that my feet did not slip."

Rev. D. D. Eitzen was in charge of the installation service Sunday morning

Missionary P. W. Penner, India brought the closing message with the subject, "What Shall I Believe In Jesus?" Acts 16:31, Mark 1:1. He remarked "Scripture shows that unbelief bars us from the salvation of Jesus Christ."

There were 168 registered delegates outside of the host church which attended this fine convention.—The convention next year will be held in the San Marcos church, Paso Robles.

The officers for the coming year are: President, Leonard Wiebe, Upland; 1st Vice Pres., Louis Bergman, Paso Robles; 2nd Vice Pres., Rudolph Lichti, Parlier; Sec., Mrs. Elizabeth Hiebert, Los Angeles; Treas., Miss Olga Unruh, Bakersfield; Missionary Supt., Miss Helen Fast, Fresno; Jr. Supt., Miss Louise Richert, Los Angeles.

The outstanding project of the year, with the help of the other Pacific District churches was, sending Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Jantzen to India.

Treasurer—Mr. Alvin H. Alderfer

IN MEMORIAM

ED FRIDAY, son of Friedrich and Florentina Leth Friday, was born January 18, 1894 on a farm near Peabody, Kans., where he grew up and lived until the family moved to Newton, in 1934, the next year to Russel, Kansas, and to Inola, Oklahoma in 1938, where they lived on a farm until his sudden death.

On the 19th of May, 1929 he was baptized upon the confession of his faith in Jesus Christ as his personal Savior and received into the Hillsboro Mennonite church, which membership he retained until his death. In the same year, on the 20th of June, 1929, he was united in holy matrimony. One son was born to them on June 3, 1937, who lived but a few hours.

Ed was a devoted and loving husband, ever ready to lend a helping hand where necessary and always mindful of his duties as a Christian husband in maintaining our family altar and in providing the necessities of life.

On the morning, when he left for Newton, Kansas, he remarked to his wife, "You know, Jessie, I wish I could take you with me on this trip. You could then also visit your mother who is getting old and weak. The Bible tells us that the Lord will soon come to take all his own unto himself." Just before leaving he said, "I am sure happy, and will come back soon as happy as I left." And with a wave of his hand he disappeared in the distance, not realizing that on the next day, Tuesday, March 28, at 3 p. m. he would meet with that fatal accident. When crossing a railroad track in Ponca City, Okla., his car was struck by an oncoming train, killing him instantly.

He reached the age of 45 years, 7 months and 10 days. He leaves to mourn his untimely departure, besides his wife, his aged mother-in-law, 3 brothers, Fred, of Bakersfield, Calif., John, of Newton, and Charlie, of Peabody, Kansas; also 3 sisters, Tena, Mrs. Kelso, of Aberdeen, Idaho; Carrie, Mrs. P. P. Newman, Pueblo, Colo.; and Minnie, Mrs. E. E. Ward, Caldwell, Idaho; also 7 brothers-in-law, 7 sisters-in-law and a host of friends and relatives.

Funeral services were held at 2:30, Sunday afternoon, in the First Mennonite Church at Hillsboro. Rev. J. H. Epp and Rev. A. E. Funk conducted the services.

SUSANNA BOESE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Schartner, was born Jan. 22, 1872, in Philadelphia. At the age of 4 years she moved with her parents to South Dakota. May 14, 1893, she was baptized and received into the church.

On Jan. 17, 1895 she was married to Bengamin J. Boese, to which union were born five children, the oldest of which, Lena, died nearly 6 years ago.

In 1901 the family moved to Oklahoma where they have lived ever since. She transferred her membership to the Zoar Mennonite Church of Goltry, of which she remained a member.

For some time she has been somewhat ill, and since November her condition took a more severe turn. But by the last of March she apparently seemed to be as before. This was not for long, though, for after she had taken her breakfast, she passed away.

She leaves to mourn her passing, her husband; her children, Elvina Johnson, Enid; William, Carrier; Esther Buller, Enid, and Joseph at home. Also 14 grandchildren, three of whom have been staying with their grandparents because of their mother's death; 6 sisters and one brother.

She has been a loving mother and left the testimony that she was ready to go, inviting others to meet her in the beyond.

PETER P. FLAMING was born near Inman, Kansas, on February 22, 1880. He passed away on April 2, 1939, having attained the age of 59 years, 1 month and 11 days.

He professed himself a follower of Christ at the age of 18 years and joined the church known as the Hoffnungsau Mennonite Church near his home.

In 1903 he went to Oklahoma, where he lived for 17 years. During this time he met Agnes Wiens, whom he married on May 9, 1907. One son and two daughters were born to this union. Both of the daughters passed into the Beyond in their infancy

In 1920 the family came to Reedley and have lived here ever since. Mr. and Mrs. Flaming became members of this church in 1924. During recent years he has been a member of the Board of Trustees of this church and also a member of the Men's Chorus.

The departed leaves to mourn, his wife, son and daughter-in-law, aged father, three brothers and three sisters, as members of his immediate family and, in addition, many other relatives and a large host of friends.

> "If we could push ajar the gates of Life
> And stand within and all God's workings see,
> We could interpret all this doubt and strife
> And for each mystery could find a key.
> But not today; then be content, poor heart,
> God's plans, like lilies pure and white, unfold,
> We must not tear the close shut leaves apart;
> Time will reveal the calyxes of gold,
> And when we reach the land,
> Where tired feet with sandals loosed may rest
> When we shall clearly see and understand,
> I think that we shall say, "God Knew Best."

Funeral services were held April 4th at the Reedley First Mennonite church, with Dr. J. H. Langenwalter in charge. His words of comfort were based on John 14:1-6.

DERK D. TIESZEN, was born on Dec. 7, 1881, near Marion, S. Dak. and died in Marion, March 21, 1939. He was baptized upon confession of his faith, and became a member of the Bethesda Church. As a young man he began helping his father with the work of setting bones. After the death of his father he continued in the same work. He has given help and service as doctor to very many in the last thirty years.

He was joined in marriage to Maria Kleinsasser in 1901. This union was blessed with five sons, all of whom survive him. The mother preceeded them into the Beyond in 1914. In 1915 he married Kathrina Schartner. From this union three daughters survive, the mother preceeding in death in 1937.

Dr. Tieszen suffered a paralytic stroke in January from which he never fully recovered. Several hours before his death he suffered another stroke, and cerebral hemorrhage caused his death.

His son, Dr. Edw. Tieszen, will continue the practice. Funeral services were held March 24 from the Bethesda Mennonite Church, Rev. A. P. Waltner, Rev. David Schultz, and Rev. Jacob A. Tieszen officiating.

— First Church, Reedley, Calif.—Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Krehbiel spent Easter with their daughter Ruth and family in Los Angeles. They sent wishes for a blessed Eater season to their church and the church wished them a rich experience during their stay in the city. Sunday evening, April 2, during the evening meditation at the church, Mr. P. P. Flaming breathed his last at the Reedley Hospital. The large attendance at the funeral attested to the many friendships the departed had established. —Bulletin.

— Rev. Jacob Unruh, pastor of the Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo., writes in part: We have been away a month. Our visit to the East was a most enjoyable one. We were in eight states. Saw the famous Japanese Cherry Blossoms in Washington D. C. Traveled in all over 3000 miles. My parents' golden wedding was a very blessed event.

— Bulletin, St. John Church, near Pandora, O.—The Union Meeting of the Mennonite Ladies' Missionary Societies of Ohio and Indiana will be held April 20, 7:30 p.m. Mrs. J. J. Thiessen of India will speak.—It was a great privilege and a great joy afforded the pastor and his family to attend the golden wedding of his parents who live at Lancaster, Pa. The celebration took place in Fire Hall, Denver, Pa.—He also spoke at services in the East Swamp, Lansdale, and Mechanics Grove Churches.—Among many whom he visited were Rev. and Mrs. Gottshall. Both are in very poor health, the memory impaired and their speech affected, but they were glad to see us.

— President S. C. Yoder of Goshen College has announced his desire to retire and requested the Mennonite Board of Education to elect a successor to whom he could relinquish the office at an early date. The Board has agreed to accept the president's request to be relieved at an early date, but at the same time reelected him to serve another year, until a succesor could be chosen. Dr. Yoder has done outstanding work at Goshen during his fifteen years as president and Bible teacher.

— Rev. A. S. Bechtel, pastor of the Hanston, Kans., church reports that they had an alarmingly severe storm recently, with clouds of dust, then hail and rain and snow. He thinks even some of the small churches could do more in the way of a pastor's financial support if they really tried. He cites the Hanston congregation of 72 members on the east edge of the "dust bowl" which is doing so nobly in this respect. He feels, where there is a will and the necessary vision, there is also a way.

— Colfax, Washington.—To the editor: "Will endeavor to comply with your request for an article for the Mennonite. The changes in the paper are improvements and well received by our people. Special Easter music and a blessed Easter here. Communion services are arranged for and anticipated. Wishing you God's grace.—Sincerely, W. Harley King — Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas, 4-10-39.—Recently our congregation met to make plans and set the date for the 60th celebration of the organization of the church. The tenth of September was chosen.—All friends and former members of Hebron please note this date and plan to be present.—The Senior C. E. arranged a very inspiring Sunrise program for Easter. A number of people came out to enjoy it. Last night a twister passed through the community a few miles east of Buhler. Many buildings and trees were blown down. Hebron church property suffered considerable damage. —Mrs. v.d. S., Corr.

— Salem Zion Church, Marion, S. Dak.—The Ladies' Missionary Society of this church met April 5 at the home of Mrs. Nick Goosen. After the regular business and a short program, the ladies cut quilt blocks and worked on baby quilts to be sent to the Indians at the Arizona mission. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Goosen at the close of the meeting. — We were happy to have Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mountain Lake with us Easter Sunday. He delivered two very inspiring sermons, one in the forenoon and one in the evening. His Easter message gave us much food for meditation and we are grateful to him.—Mrs. J. J. S.

— Germantown Church, Philadelphia. "Remember the Sabbath Day" is one of the commandments easily memorized, but perhaps on that account is more often forgotten. Whatever plans you may make for Sunday, I am sure will be found more enjoyable after first attending Sunday School and Church.—Bulletin.

—Disagreeable Slips.—In the last issue of this paper the name of Joseph A. Wollman, correspondent of the Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D., came out as Jas. Waltman, and that of John C. Mueller, Secretary of the Relief Board, as John E. Mueller. Such slips are very regretable and should not occur, especially when the copy is very legible as it was in these cases.

—From Y. P. S. and S. S. U. Notes, Eastern Conference organ.—"Our Eastern District Union is to be represented in the publication work of the General Conference. Rev. Olin Krehbiel has just announced the appointment of Miss Huldah Myers as Intermediate editor of "Our Youth Says," in the Mennonite. Huldah is well qualified for this work, a truly consecrated young woman, past president of our union, a graduate of Ursinus College, and a very active Retreat leader. She succeeds Miss Emma Ruth of Reedley, Calif., who has done oustanding work in our Y. P. committee.—We have the names of 14 young people in Canada who would like to correspond with American young people. So far Bally has taken four, Lansdale one, and Germantown one. That leaves plenty for you. (More next time from this good paper.—E.)

—Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.—Our Sunday evening song service is meeting with good response. Old favorites are used and less familiar hymns to be used in the morning services are learned.—Our trustees deserve commendation for the excellent manner in which they are keeping up the physical property of the church. The floor of the foyer was refinished, repairs made in the kitchen, basement walls and woodwork painted, and broken window lights replaced. It costs extra money but the house of God deserves the best of care.

—From the "Witness," Berne, Indiana.—Children and grown-ups of Berne and vicinity again enjoyed the Easter egg hunt at Lehman Park on Easter Sunday afternoon. A case of eggs—360 of them—plus fifteen prize eggs—were hid in the Park, hunted and found by a large number of children, while a huge crowd looked on. "The Berne Witness" has for years been the host to this gathering.

—Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio.—Twelve young people were received into the Salem church Palm Sunday morning through the rites of baptism. Peter Schneck who has been a Sunday school teacher in this church for 53 years resigned his position because of failing health.

—Eicher Emmanuel Menn. Church, Noble, Iowa.—On Palm Sunday we had our baptismal services. 5 young people, who have been taking catechistical instruction for the past 6 months were baptized upon their confession of faith and received into the membership of the church. This was indeed an inspiring service and we pray that the Lord will bless and guide all those who have accepted Him as their personal Savior. —Mrs. D. E. W. Corr.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.— Rev. David Wedel, pastor of the Halstead, Kansas, church held a series of Easter services at this church. The meetings were well attended and brought blessings to the hearers.

—Hillsboro, Kans., April 11, 1939.—"Friends and relatives in and around Goessel, Kans., were shocked to receive word of the tragic death of Abe Schroeder at Chinock, Montana, the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Schroeder of Deer Park, Wash. Abe Schroeder was teaching school near Chinock, and when he failed to appear in his school the school board investigated the matter. Only after weeks of searching it was found that he had been drowned in an irrigation ditch after stepping from a bus on his way to school."

—Mrs. A. R. D. Corr.

—Rev. H. E. Widmer, Pastor of the Grace Church, Dallas, Oregon, writes, April 6: "I have resigned here, to be effective April 16. Have been here with the Grace Church five and a half years. We started with 24 charter members and now the membership is 60. In 1938 we started a new building. We are worshipping in the basement until the auditorium is completed. We have enjoyed our work immensely. Our new field is with the Bethlehem Church, Bloomfield, Montana."

—A Pastoral Message by a Young Minister.—Who is Jesus to you? Is He simply an object of superstition, is He merely an historical oddity, or is He a Savior and Lord? By the answer you give you do not only judge Christ but you judge yourself. You take your place either with the friends of Jesus or with His enemies. A disinterested neutrality is as impossible here as in modern international problems. Jesus of Nazareth stands on trial today. Who is He to you?

—The Bridegroom's Love. — Have you not heard someone make a comment like this: "Mr. and Mrs. Jones have lived together so many years and they are always so courteous to each other. Don't they look alike?" This is a cmpliment to whomever it applies. There is an evidence of love, mutual helpfulness and team work—one living for the other, each sharing life and, therefore, they are happy and become identical.

—Bethany Messenger, Freeman, S. D.

—Second Church, Philadelphia.—"Christians are frequently called upon for ACTION. Perhaps the reason there is so little Christian social action is that there is so little KNEE-ACTION. Prayer is the needed knee-action of the Christian. The Christian equipped with a deep prayer life will find that the BUMPS on the road of life are easier to take. He will find a greater measure of SAFETY, because he is traveling with an unerring Chauffer, Jesus Christ.—Pastoral Message.

Every period of life has its peculiar prejudices; whoever saw old age, that did not applaud the past, and condemn the present times?—Montaigne.

"THE WORLD HATH NOT KNOWN THEE"

These words are taken from one of the most precious portions of the New Testament, Jesus' farewell address to his disciples in John's Gospel. Jesus had not been deceived by the Hosannahs of the populace on the Sunday preceding. He does not for a moment lose sight of the conditions of the world of his day, yes of all days. He knows the real reason why the period of his suffering and that of his followers is on. The world denies the Son, because it denies the Father and that for the reason that it does not know Him. Thus it has ever been in the world. In this respect it distinguishes itself from the Church of Jesus Christ, and it is for this reason that we have to be continually ready to face the enmity of the world. This is sad indeed, for how we yearn to live in peace with all men, including those that do not know God in His Son. But Jesus spake the truth, for the world that does not know God will never make peace with the followers of Christ. It is only that group of men and women who heed his word and are united with him in faithful obedience that, through faith, know something of the mission of Christ through the Father. The world continues to maintain the same attitude of enmity toward God and His Christ. Only if the Christians' influence could become so powerful and penetrating as to permeate the hearts of all the people of the world, might there be hope of a change. But will God have the patience to wait that long?

A NEW HEART, A NEW LIFE

More than ever the Church needs to preach a new heart, a new life, a new living. Ex-President Calvin Coolidge once told this story to emphasize the great need in the Christian Church today: My thoughts turn back a quarter century and memory's eye focusses on an old college church in Oregon. I hear a young preacher cry with passion and with power, "This Galilean, this kingly man, this manly king, Jesus, wants you. He will change your heart. He will give you a new life. He alone can do it and He will do it. What is your answer? My gaze concentrates on a young man—no, a boy—sitting at the heart of that tense congregation. I see him terribly concerned and almost persuaded. Now he hesitates visibly, but for the last time. He rises, pushes into the aisle and moves with a firm step of great decision to the altar. He kneels and when he stands again, he is "changed," he is "new." "A change of heart,—a new life." . . . I see that boy again later. He is a little older, a little wiser, sometimes disillusioned, and often a failure, but always conscious of the fact, the superlative fact, of that "change of heart" and a "new life." That fact commands his soul. I am that boy.—Thus ends the good President's story, a valuable and blessed experience for the boy who was destined to be a great nation's blessed leader! How fortunate the nation that has such a man, with a new heart, as its head!

ADDICTS

This word, taken from the Latin "addicere," meaning to adjudge, to devote or to give one's self wholly up to some thing, is used to designate people who have become slaves to certain destructive habits, as the drink habit, the swearing habit, the drug habit, the smoking habit and others. They are addicted to the satisfaction of certain bodily cravings, often with a strangling hold on them. But, though many, too many, people are addicts to things that are harmful, God, in his mercy, has led many more to become addicts to good things and causes. Speaking in eulogistic terms of the house of Stephanns, Paul says, "they have addicted themselves to the ministry of saints," 1 Cor. 16:15. In the language of today we would probably say, "They have dedicated or consecrated themselves to Christian service." And just as some people can become fettered to evil habits, so can others, through the power of God's spirit, become seized with a craving for doing spiritual good that they cannot divest themselves of it. Such was the experience of the apostles and many saintly men and women since the time of Christ, and Christ himself. "Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?" "My meat is to do the will of Him that sent me." Happily it can be said of a truth that the world today has far more people that are addicted to Christ-like work than ever before. The fact that the progress of their labors is slow is not their fault but that of the forces of darkness, hell let loose to counteract and destroy their efforts. Think of all the missionaries, evangelists, ministers, church, Sunday School and Christian endeavor workers, Christian day school teachers, seriously interested in leading aright the immortal souls of boys and girls intrusted to their care; Christian doctors, nurses, slum and social workers! What a mighty army marching against the foe of Christendom! May we never cease to support and pray for this great army. And we gain new hope and encouragement in these times of distress, of rumors of war, that the forces of righteousness are at work bringing about a better day.

THE MORAL BOYCOTT

Shall we go to war? That is the question upon every lip. Feverishly we are getting ready for war, if war must be. But we do not want war. We are seeking to find some other way, some better way, perhaps, to gain the end we seek without destroying all that we hold dear. We have recalled our ambassador from Berlin, temporarily, and Britain and France and Germany seem to agree that such a first step may well be taken. We have sent word to the third Reich that we will not recognize the conquest of Czechoslovakia. We have upped the tariff on German imports; thus we have begun a sort of political and economic boycott, although it falls far short of being that. Why not try Jesus' suggestion of a moral boycott? If a brother sin against you, reprove him. If he listens you have won him over. If he will not listen, take one or two others along with you and try again. If he refuses to listen to them, take it to the church, the highest spiritual tribunal. And if he still refuses, and is bent upon continuing in his sin, treat him as a pagan. That is cast him out of the pale of civilized society. Bring moral sanctions to bear upon him.—The Presbyterian.

EVANGELIZING SIGNS

Deeds are signs. They point to the source of life and its beauty. For this reason deeds are more than mere acts. They are a witness to a power. The early Christian Church grew rapidly because "signs" of good deeds prepared the hearts of the people for the Good News. "The multitude gave heed with one accord unto the things that were spoken when they heard and saw the signs." In the early church these signs were largely deeds of healing. The Christians were out frankly to help those who were unfortunate and needy. The nursing and medical professions have a unique opportunity to contribute to church growth when the motivating and controlling aim is evangelism. Neighborly kindness and helpfulness in any form to the needy and unfortunate are "signs" which will surely induce the "multitude to give heed with one accord unto the things that were spoken." The whole of Christian life and activity should be saturated with and controlled by a conscious evangelistic aim. —W. F. U.

GOD

IV. THE VOICE OF GOD'S WORD

P. R. Schroeder

Third Text: Psalm 14:1, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." The result of thus denying GOD is described in all its gruesomeness in the first chapter of Paul's letter to the Romans, verses 22 to 32. And the dishonesty prompting it is declared in verse 21 of that same chapter: "Because that knowing God, they glorified him not as God, neither gave thanks; but became vain, and their senseless heart was darkened."

Three classes of atheists can be distinguished among the ranks of those whom Psalm 14:1 calls "Fools."

1. School bench atheists. These are those who sit at the feet of learned professors in high schools and colleges, persuaded by shrewd words of apparent wisdom to deny the God of their fathers and mothers. This is atheism in the head.

2. Park bench atheists. These are those who love to stand on a soap box to air their theories of evolution and materialism, with park and street loiterers gathered around them,—breeders and products of a life of indulgence and sin. This is atheism in the heart, a step lower than the school bench atheism of the head.

3. Law bench atheists. These are the men who through laborious preparation and oftentimes highly merited recognition, have been seated in the judges benches of the state and the nation. When they take the attitude that justice and judgment can be meeted out without depending on or turning to GOD for guidance and strength and mercy, then a sad day has come for the nation. This is atheism in the nation. Had there been no school bench or park bench atheism, law bench atheism could not have become possible, but woe unto the nation whose leaders forget GOD. America is confronting that danger today.

The preacher is happy to announce that there are three steps toward knowing GOD, that can be taken by every earnest seeker after GOD.

First step: By observation. The voice of the heavens, the voice of nature and, the voice of men, are united in making this step possible. Wherever you look, wherever you may be, if you will but acknowledge truthfully what you observe, you will realize the FACT OF GOD.

Second step: By Revelation. GOD has seen fit to reveal Himself personally through His only begotten Son, Jesus Christ, and through His Written Word. Whosoever sees Jesus sees God the Father. Whosoever accepts Jesus Christ by faith is brought face to face with God his Savior.

Third step: By Experience. The first two steps, if honestly taken lead to this third one. You can experience GOD in your own life. He will enter into your life, and become your very life, if you will acknowledge His revelation of Himself in His Son and in His Word. For then it will become possible for you to say with the apostle Paul, "It is no longer I that live, but Christ liveth in me." Do you really want to know GOD? Do you really with all honesty of mind and heart want to follow the light that you have before you? "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they SHALL SEE GOD." Moody thought at one time that faith in GOD comes somewhat like lightning. You don't have it, and then all of a sudden you do have it, not knowing where the experience of GOD comes from. For it says in that verse: "So faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of GOD." May it be the happy lot of your honest heart to KNOW GOD!

Does Salvation Come by Education?

J. M. Regier

The business of education is one of the biggest enterprises in our country. One fourth of our population is giving their full time to the schools. In 1930 there were 30,000,000 children and young people in our schools. Two and one half billions of dollars were spent that year for their training. Figures from 1934 show that we had over one million teachers in the United States.

The purpose of all this expenditure of time and money and energy is to prepare young people for lives of greater usefulness. But unless the Christian motive is injected into this whole enterprise, it will merely cultivate and strengthen the head, the intellect making folks more skillful. As Christian people, however, we are not merely interested in skill, but also in true goodness. We want people to become saved from selfishness, fear, anxiety, destructive habits, and the dominion of sin, to lives of happy and cheerful service and usefulness and eternal life. That is why we promote schools that have this Christian motive.

The materialist says, salvation is for this life only and comes by education. That salvation is for this life we believe most sincerely, but that it is for this life only we do not believe. It is for all time to come.

But what about the other assertion that salvation comes by education? Then the most educated should be the most thoroughly Christian. That however is not necessarily the case. Some of the finest Christian people, including the Galilean fishermen, were unlearned men and women. On the other hand, some of the most brilliant and learned scholars have been rather godless.

Still, a degree of education must precede salvation. The person must be taught how salvation can become possible. He must be taught just what it means to be saved and how a Christian must live. If mere education would save, then America with all her educational facilities, with her millions who have finished the high school, and the thousands upon thousands of college graduates, should be one of the most Christian nations in the world.

However, during the last century in which education has increased in America by leaps and bounds, we were told at the Stewardship Conference in Chicago last December that crime has increased 500 per cent. Education does not save. "Ye were saved, not with corruptible things with silver or gold. . . . . but with precious blood, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot, even the blood of Christ."

Look at the man in the Old Testament who had possibly greater influence than any other man. Moses was probably the most educated. He became learned in "all the wisdom of the Egyptians." And yet he was a murderer. The most influential man in the New Testament was Paul, having received a thorough training in the universities of Tarsus. He, too, was a murderer. Two very talented men, both possessing very good education. But neither one became saved by this education. Both made definite experiences with God and then their lives were changed. Moses met God in the wilderness and Paul in Damascus.

What about the value of their education? Was it all useless? Some of this training, especially Paul's, may have been of a religious nature, but undoubtedly not all. After dedicating their lives to God, they made the finest use of all their training. It had not been obtained in vain.

Man is not saved by education, but education will become a most valuable servant in the hands of a consecrated Christian. Education rightly used multiplies man's usefulness. Jesus challenges us to work with the talents entrusted to us, and these talents which can be developed by education, will become of greatest service, when used as Moses and Paul used theirs.

The Church and the World Crisis

By Albert W. Palmer

The morning after the Munich conference one of America's outstanding preachers and advocates of peace was met by a parishioner with these startling words: "You are to blame for this! What has happened at Munich is because of you and others like you!" What did he mean? He meant that Chamberlain and Deladier gave way to Hitler at Munich because they and their countries had been unnerved by pacifism and no longer had the will to fight.

There are three theories about what happened at Munich. One is that it was a gigantic hoax, mere play-acting by Chamberlain and Deladier to cover up a bargain already made with Hitler secretly. The second theory is that, when it came to a show-down, Hitler held up the democracies because Germany was vastly superior in aeroplanes. The third explanation of Munich is that popular opinion in all four countries was overwhelmingly against war.

In either case it was pacifism that enforced the hands of the big four at Munich, either the pacifism which had resulted in British and French unpreparedness or the deeper popular pacifism in public opinion. The leaders of the world came to the brink of the abyss of war and looked over. But they did not have the heart to hurl civilization over that brnik. And so they capitulated to Hitler's demands.

The way was cleared for Germany's advance eastward so far as military strategy is concerned and, more sinister still, the way was prepared psychologically for more demands until at last Germany should dominate Europe. Or, the alternative might be, that France and England by feverish rearmament and propaganda might build up a rearmament both of aeroplanes and popular fighting temper to the point where they could dare defy Germany and the postponed war could then take place but with the strategic disadvantage of having surrendered the Czechoslovak citadel.

The World's Answer to Munich

Things are now moving in both these directions. Hitler is more daring in his demands and utterly scornful of world public opinion, as shown by his outrageous persecution of the Jews. On the other hand not are only France and Britain feverishly adding to their armaments but other countries as well—and, by no means least, our own.

The world's answer to Munich then is: "Bigger and bigger armaments!" What this means in the dislocation of peaceful industry, in taxation, and in swelling the profits of the merchants of death I need not tell you. Far more sinister is what it means in mental attitudes. You cannot get people to vote these vast sums for military preparation without an equally vast campaign of propaganda getting them to fear and hate potential foes. This is already under way, helped mightily by the terrible behavior of Germany in persecuting the Jews. We who do not fear the invasion of the United States must be shipped into a frenzy of fear lest South America be invaded. We must fear, distrust and hate the Germans and the Japanese so that we may be willing to tax ourselves to build vast armaments against them. That is the world's answer! It is the counsel of despair. That way madness lies, and war, and chaos and the new dark ages!

The Church's Answer to Munich

Over against this reliance on "reeking tube and iron shard" what should be the answer of the church? There are three possible answers:

(1) One is that the church can do nothing beyond calling people to pray about it. It can advance no policy, make no protest, just confine itself to the personal salvation of individuals one by one and leave the policies and conduct of nations outside its sphere of responsibility.

(2) A second answer is that the church can do nothing but wait. Maybe Hitler will become more tractable in the face of adequate preparedness by the rest of the world. History has a way of going on and just now there is nothing to do but drift.

(3) I am not content with either of these answers. I do not think the conscience of mankind will be content with them. I think that a church which is so anemic in mind and heart that it settles back into defeatism or passive pietism in the face of so stupendous a world calamity will lose and deserves to lose its authority over the hearts and consciences of men.

I propose, therefore, a more heroic answer than either of the two just noted, an answer more in keeping with the historic moral leadership of the Christian church in times of as great moral crisis. A contemporary English historian has called attention to the fact that Christianity survived the downfall of the Roman Empire and thereafter achieved the moral leadership of the world because of three factors:

1. It had a universal philosophy and character;
2. It had a concern for the poor and fulfilled the needs of the proletariat; and
3. It had a constructive outlook toward the future!

Are not those three things precisely what humanity needs today? 1) A world divided by nationalism which is universal and above the fragmentation of race and clan. 2) A world struggling with depression, unemployment and threatened industrial rebellion, needs some constructive urge toward economic justice and sound employment doing more useful tasks than building great engines of war with which to kill men and destroy civilization. 3) And, third, when secular statesmanship has lost almost all vision, hope or leadership toward a better future, and apparently knows only how to build armaments and foment hatreds, some force must arise with a constructive program in the leadership of the world.

Since Munich the world is quivering in the balance, waiting for leadership. Now is the strategic moment for the church to speak and to speak largely, grandly, with a note of universal truth and real international insight. After Munich it is either peace or war. If the church keeps silent, it looks like war. If the church sounds a bugle call for right, reason and universal principles we may go on toward peace. But whatever is done must be done quickly before another major world crisis shall arise. After another crisis it may be too late. There must be either more intelligent determined work for peace or else pacifism will be discredited, betrayed and perhaps hopelessly defeated.

What is supremely needed today is a clear, assured, commanding voice which shall say to this generation: "Look deeper! Don't be victimized by surface emotions. Don't be exploited by those who through either blindness or quest of power or selfish profit would like to stampede you into a stereotyped hatred of dictatorships and hostility to Germans, Italians or Japanese! Look deeper! Ask who made the Germans go away and choose a Hitler for their leader? What driving force sent the Japanese into China? Unless thee deeper causes are recognized and then removed thy will continue to operate. They will produce new Hitlers. They will cause new invasions." When a child is in a tantrum it isn't enough just to punish him. It may only make the tantrum worse. We ask: what caused this tantrum? Is the child hungry and undernourished? Is he coming down with scarlet fever? Has he a temperature? Is he in the grip of some fear? Has some bully up the street been abusing him? What is the cause? So with nations swept by tantrums of persecution, menacing military preparations and aggression, ready to defy the world and destroy its peace. Someone must have the restraint and wisdom to stop and ask: Why? How do nations get that way? What are they suffering from? What could be done to reduce their fever?

The supreme peril of the moment is that instead of doing this we will short-circuit our resentment and irritation into hatreds, embargoes, belligerent gesture, bigger armaments. And always in the background there is the sinister possibility that popular hysteria and easy antagonisms are being whipped up by propaganda because they are so capable of being manipulated for selfish ends and political purposes.

What the causes of the present world tantrum of hatred, fear and violence may be no man can say completely. But it seems increasingly clear that they are largely psychological and economic—the largest single cause is economic fear. Modern science has given us a world in which every nation needs to import large amounts of raw materials from beyond its borders. To do this, it must, in exchange, be able to sell its own products abroad. No nation is self-sufficient. Economically the world needs free access to raw materials and markets. But across a world which should be an economic unit we have inherited from a divided past national boundaries at any one of which goods may be blocked by tariffs backed by military force. The only answer to customs barriers seems to be military power. As Cordell Hull has said: "If goods cannot cross frontiers, sooner or later soldiers will!"

(To be concluded next week with an exposition of the writer's idea of "What the Church Can Do.")

History Views the Jewish Persecutions

4. THE MOST COMMON ANTISEMITIC ARGUMENTS

In previous articles the verdict of history on several antisemitic arguments has been given. It was found that history regards The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, the fountain source of antisemitic arguments today, as a notorious forgery; that the Weimar Republic had many Jewish officials, whose number was out of proportion to the size of the total Jewish population, but that Jews by no means dominated the country, and that there was even a well-organized wave of anti-semitism; and finally, that the finances of the world, although deeply influenced by Jews, especially in central Europe, were by no means controlled by the "international Jew."

We come now to the last argument for discussion, namely, that the Jew is the source of radicalism of all kinds, culminating in atheistic communism in the Soviet Union. Does it seem logical that Jews should seek to dominate the world's finances and at the same time be responsible for bringing on communism which would confiscate that wealth? But one should remember that logic and reason are not characteristics of this type of propaganda. Let us then examine the pages of history to ascertain the facts about radicalism among the Jews.

If radicalism means a regard for the human being, then the ancient Jew was a radical. Moses, 1250 years before Christ, proclaimed the rights of man. Protection was given to the widow, the fatherless, the stranger, the poor, and even the slaves. Every seventh year debts were cancelled, those imprisoned for debt were set free, and in the year of jubilee every family could regain land it had been previously compelled to sell. Taking interest from fellow Jews was forbidden. Equality before God led naturally to social and economic equality. Judged by modern standards that was truly a radical program. But then came the dispersion of the Jews and a thousand other changes in the moving drama of history. The Jews departed from the social and economic details of the codes of their fathers. Therefore, unless Jews have developed another kind of radicalism, they cannot be considered the source of all radical movements. And that says the antisemitic, is just what happened, for, beginning with Karl Marx in the nineteenth century the Jew became the source and propagator of new radical movements like materialism, socialism and bolshevism.

It is true that Karl Marx, the reputed founder of materialistic socialism, was a Jew. But history shows that it is also true that he was baptized at the age of six, and that he was "indifferent to everything Jewish, nay, hostile toward Judaism and the Jews, in whom, naively accepting the antisemitic views of the outer world, he saw the incarnation of capitalism, the spirit of huckstering and mammonism, the objects of his burning hatred." It is also true that the Frenchmen from whom he got most of his social ideas—Saint Simon, Proudhon, Louis Blanc, and Fourier—were all non-Jewish, and that the great German philosopher, Hegel, from whom he took his research method was Aryan. Therefore, in spite of the fact that the socialists Lasalle, Adler, Bauer, and Marx were Jews, it is hardly historically accurate to label socialism Jewish or the Jew radical.

Neither is the term "Jewish materialism" historically accurate. The economic view of history can hardly be characteristic of a people whose great contributions are universally conceded to be in the Intellectual sphere. The founders of philosophical materialism,—Democritus, Epicurus, Lucretius, Holbach, Helvetius, and others, were non-Jewish. On the other hand many Jewish leaders from Amos and Hosea down to Henri Bergson have been among the severest critics of materialism.

Finally comes the antisemitic reference to "Jewish Bolshevism," the charge that the Jews are the creators and propagators of communism in Russia and seek its spread over the world. But here again history recalls the words of the English-Jewish statesman, Disraeli, who maintained that the Jew was by nature conservative, and that only injurious treatment makes him a radical. History records that with the exception of Karl Marx, the intellectual leaders of Russian Bolshevism, — Herzen, Bielinsky, Pisarev, Tschernyshevsky and Bakunin, were non-Jewish. Moreover, these Russian radicals got their ideas from their study of the German thinkers Feuerbach, Strauss, and Büchner, and the English and French positivists—all of whom were Aryan.

Historians agree that Bolshevism arose in Russia chiefly because of the backward, and often inhuman, social and economic conditions in Tsaristic Russia, and not because it was instituted by Jews. The violent antisemitic policy of the Tsars did drive some Jews into the ranks of radicalism, but the majority of Jews were not Bolsheviks. The largest group of Jews interested in politics were "Cadets," or bourgeois and liberal constitutional democrats. Most of the Jewish workers and many intellectuals were members of the social democratic Mensheviki. Such Jewish Menshevists as Dan, Axelrod, Martov, Liber, and Abramovitch were quite as capable as their Communist opponents, whose names, thanks to final Communist victory in 1917, have become known all over the world: Trotsky (Bronstein), Kamenev (Rosenfeld), Zinoviev (Radomyslsky), Litvinov (Wallach, not Finkelstein), Radek (Sobelsohn), and others. It should be noticed that the two greatest leaders of the Soviet Union, Lenin and Stalin, are non-Jewish, in spite of belabored attempts of the antisemitics to brand them otherwise.

As previously mentioned, the Bolshevist revolution placed the Jew in a precarious position. Two fifths of the Russian Jews were engaged in private trade, and another one third lived by handicrafts, thus making them capitalists and hated by the Communists. In the Ukraine Jews were the chief representatives of private trade. With the adoption of a drastic anticapitalist course by the Soviet government in 1924, the O. G. P. U. confiscated Jewish property and deported thousands of Jews. And this was done by the Jewish Communists listed above, again shownig that Jews are not all joined in a conspiracy against the world. An example of this attitude of the Communist Jews toward members of their own race is found in the story of a delegation of Jews who called upon Trotsky and asked him to resign as leader in view of the terrible reprisals to which Jews would otherwise be exposed. Trotsky's reply was, "Go you home to your Jews and tell them that I am not a Jew and I care nothing for the Jews and their fate."

Thus, when we come to summarize this antisemitic argument we again find lying propaganda, exaggeration, and misleading statements. It is true that there are Jews in Communist ranks, but it is not true that Jews are the creators and chief disseminator of Communism. It might be mentioned in passing that very few Jews are mentioned in the report of the Dies Committee on un-American activities in the United States. As to conditions in Germany and Europe in general, allow me to quote from a Nazi source, which certainly cannot be accused of being pro-Jewish, and which shows some discernment for historical fact. A writer in the Nazi review, Erwachendes Europa, emphasizes that the Jews of Russia are by no means the real rulers, but occupy almost everywhere the second and third rank. On account of their linguistic ability and suppleness alone they are the most skillful negotiators with foreign countries, and they are useful as advisors and assistants in economic affairs and finance. . . . They are the executive organs, but are far from being leaders."

NEXT: Concluding statements from the Christian Viewpoint.

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—The following were baptised and joined our church Good Friday: Chas. P. Cicchino, Wm. English, Lawrence and Elwood Lauer, Jack Harrelson, Elsie L. Smith, while Mrs. Catherine English and Mrs. Edith Olson joined by the hand of fellowship.

PAUL WORKS A HARD FIELD

Acts 18:1, 4-11; I Cor. 2:1-5

Introduction

After starting his missionary labors in Macedonia, Paul gradually moved westward and south into Greece, going as far as Athens, the city of culture, philosophy and advanced civilization. From there he came to Corinth (v1), a city of commerce, architecture, wealth, luxury. It was a large city, the political capital of Greece and notoriously wicked. Drunkenness and vice were rampant. In this hard field little could be accomplished by preaching for a few weeks and then hurrying on. Only the transforming power of God could enable the gospel to gain a foothold and make Christians out of these unpromising sinners. It is not surprising that problems of discipline arose in this church.

Paul Preaching in the Corinth Synagogue vs 4-6

Paul came alone to Corinth and there met Aquila and his wife, Priscilla, Jews, who had recently come from Rome. He found lodging in their home and worked with them at their mutual trade of tent-making. On the sabbath he went to the synagogue and preached the gospel to the Jews and Greek proselytes, endeavoring to persuade and convince his hearers who were hungering for a more satisfying type of religion. The coming of Silas and Timothy (v5) much encouraged Paul who had begun this difficult work alone. He now felt so moved by the Spirit that he devoted himself to preaching with unusual zeal. He testified with great earnestness that Jesus was the Christ, the Messiah.

Many of the Jews were unwilling to receive his testimony and opposition of a violent kind arose (v6). Paul stated clearly that he had done his duty to them, now they must bear the responsibility for rejecting the gospel. He turned to the Gentiles.

Paul Conducts His Work in the Home of Justus vs 7-11

Paul continued his work in the home of Justus, a Greek proselyte, a worshipper of God, who lived next to the synagogue. His labors bore abundant fruit, even the ruler of the synagogue believed Paul's message, with his whole house (v8). Many others also heard and believed Paul's message and openly confessed their faith in baptism. Opposition, however was active, doubtless increasing in intensity with Paul's success. The Lord was mindful of his needs and spoke to him in the night (vs 9, 10). He never forsakes His own. He encourages Paul to be unafraid and assures him of His constant help. How welcome this message must have been to Paul. The assurance of large results to follow must have greatly encouraged him. It is easier to make sacrifices when we can feel that they really count for something. God so blessed the work in this hard field that the Corinthian Church became one of the greatest in the early centuries of the Christian Church.

Paul's Dependance Upon God 1 Cor. 2:1-5

Paul came to Corinth greatly concerned about the churches in Macedonia. He came resolved to present only the message of the crucified Christ (v3). He purposed to put his whole effort into presenting Christ in a plain and simple manner. He realized that elegant language (v1) was not sufficient if he would accomplish anything in Corinth. He realized his weakness, being fearful and trembling. He had a deep sense of his need of God's help. We need this sense of needing His help. Paul wished the converts to feel that it was the power of God that changed their lives. Paul faced a difficult task. God strengthened him for it. We need difficult tasks to strengthen the sinews of the soul. We must not make the Christian life seem so easy that it loses the appeal of a hard task.

Transparent Lives

"Not I, but Christ liveth in me!" Gal. 2:20

Scripture Reading, Romans 8—Comp. text, Ps. 34:5

Freeman H. Swartz, Pastor,
Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa.

In this day of Visual Education nearly everyone knows the value and the beauty of film transparencies!

There is the plain black and white with gradations of gray in between. We have seen too, the color transparencies, a film so constructed that the three basic colors of the light beam are filtered apart and recombined in the pleasing reproduction of the natural picture we see with the naked eye. Two facts should be noted about these transparencies which make them so attractive and useful. First, they must be sharply in focus, clear in lights and shadows, not mottled with densities which blacken out their brilliancy. Second, the light of their beauty is not their own but that of the light-beam which is projected through them.

I

Our text, written by the Apostle Paul to the Galatian Christians, sets for the the primary secret of the power of his life. This reveals the motive of his glorious venture which blazed along the shores of the Mediteranean and reflected across the pages of Western civilization. His life portrays the most brilliant achievement of any single life, save that of our Lord! This text declares that the source of his life was not resident in himself but that it was the reflection of the living resurrected Christ who is the effulgence of Glory; not his own achievements, nor his drive, nor qualities his own, but the shining of a life through him!

II

Thus we will do well to look upon our lives as transparencies which are reflections not of our own achievements, our own energies, our brilliant mentality but rather the transforming life of Christ. Our lives, are they well defined and in sharp focus? It is here that we should look to our beliefs and see whether we are really in the faith. A classic example of such a life, distorted and out of focus, is Appollos. "Aquilla and Priscilla showed him the way of God more perfectly." What conceptions of divine truth do some messengers for Christ portray?

Again, we ask, are they in close proximity with the living Christ, or like the slide lying beside the projector, clear and sharp but dark, flat and lifeless with no glowing color to delight the eye and refresh the heart? Many Christians are doctrinally clear and sharply refined but personally flat and dark, because the light of the living Christ is not projected through them. (And some are just plain dirty and smudged with fingermarks and grime, so that no matter where placed no light of life divine however strong, could shine through them!)

God needs transparent Christian personalities through which to reflect His Triune Glories!

Organization and Early Developments of Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Penna.

In 1894, the Young Peoples' Society of the Christian Endeavor of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa., devotedly felt enthused to do more effective work for the Master. They felt that they should engage in Home Mission Work of some kind. A committee, appointed by the Society and approved by the congregation, established a Mission at three different locations in the city at which Sunday School and Young Peoples' work was conducted. This young group later interested the members of the First Church to release them of their affiliation with the church so that they could organize another congregation in the section known at that time as North Philadelphia. This was granted and a lot was purchased at the present site of the Second Church and a building erected there in 1899. This group numbered thirty and was a nucleus of the present congregation numbering about 200. Rev. Silas M. Grubb, eldest son of Rev. Nathaniel B. Grubb, pastor of the First Church was called to the pastorate. It is interesting to know the contents of the copper box which was placed in the corner-stone of this church. A list is shown in the printed pamphlet which is being prepared for the Fortieth Anniversary exercises which will be held in May of this year.

One of the locations in which the Mission was conducted was formerly used as an athletic club of no excellent reputation. There was a large room over a stable, wholly incapable of being properly heated or kept free of offensive odors. The old boxing ring was still in the room and from it the Sunday School was directed and services conducted.

Among the leaders who gave of their untiring efforts in the establishment of the Second Church beside Rev. S. M. Grubb, were: Rev. N. B. Grubb, Harvey W. Shelly and his wife, Wm. H. Grubb, Franklin F. Gabel and Mrs. Aravesta Apple.

The dedication exercises were conducted by Rev. N. B. Grubb on Sunday, December 4, 1898. Rev. W. S. Gottschall preached an eloquent sermon.

Much credit must be given to the congregation at the First Mennonite Church for their endeavors in this enterprise both in their moral and financial support. The financial burden was carried by them for many years before turning it over to the new congregation.

Could these original workers who established this work be here today, they would be very thankful to God for the outcome of their successful efforts.

Wm. H. Shelly.

CORRESPONDENCE

DEER CREEK, OKLA., APRIL 1, 1939

Spring has been slow in coming, even to sunny Oklahoma. However, shrubs and trees are slowly leafing out beautifully. Wheat and spring sown grains give promise of another harvest, should God grant us sunshine and rain, and protection from the elements. The last Sunday in March we had the privilege of listening to an inspiring program given by a group of students of the Bethel College Volunteer Band. It gives one courage and hope for the coming of God's Kingdom on earth to know that we have young people who give of their time and talent to tell us such messages in story and song.

Recently a study of the Book of Acts was completed. These study periods were held weekly and were conducted by our pastor, Rev. Herbert E. Miller. On Good Friday morning we had our usual services. In the evening a choir of thirty-five voices, under the direction of Rev. Miller, again rendered the Contata, "Redemption's Song," telling in song the story of our Lord's crucifixion and resurrection. Friends of the entire community came to listen to the story. Easter Sunday morning communion was observed.

On Sunday morning, April 16, consecration services were held for Paul Eldor, infant son of Rev. and Mrs. Miller. The service was conducted by Rev. John Lichti. This service reminds us anew of our responsibility as Christian parents. A sermon on Consecrating our life for work in Christ's Kingdom was given by Rev. Lichti. —Mrs. M. C. Lichti, Corr.

FIRST MENN. CH., WADSWORTH, O., 4-12-39

Our church can report a week of inspiring church activities during Holy Week. On Monday evening, April 3, we had the privilege of hearing the Bluffton College Vesper Choir, which gave a very fine concert to a large and appreciative audience. On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings special Lenten services were held, with Rev. Arthur Rosenberger of the Salem Church, near Dalton, as the speaker Tuesday. On Good Friday evening preparatory services were held for the observance of Holy Communion on Easter. Early Sunday morning, a sunrise service was held at the church, and a fine program given, which was followed by a breakfast. At the regular service, Communion was observed and a missionary offering was received for brother Vernon Sprunger and family in Africa.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, UPLAND, CAL.

"But now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first-fruits of them that are asleep." 1 Cor. 15:20.

Easter Day 1939, dawned in all its glory, even nature seemed atune with the glad tidings. Members and friends of the First Mennonite Church, from far and near, gathered to worship and partake of Holy Communion. Easter music, a stirring message by our pastor, Lester Hostetler, on "The Risen Redeemer" helped prepare the hearts for the sacred event, in which many participated and received a blessing. Ten new members were received into the fellowship of the church, namely, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Niswander, Mr. and Mrs. John Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Siemens, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Friesen, Mrs. Lucy Baird and Mr. Lawrence Delk. Three of our members who had been ill, Mrs. J. C. Mehl, Rev. J. J. Voth and Mr. J. S. Boshart were able to be present at the service. Private communion was administered to two of our sick members. The evening meeting portrayed the life of Christ in a song service of hymns, instrumental solos, duets and trios. Those supplying the instrumental music were Miss Genevieve Jacobs, violinist, Miss Pauline Jacobs, flutist and Miss Alice Hostetler, organist. The pastor's message: "Are We Witnesses of the Resurrection?" was a fitting close for a blessed day.

On Palm Sunday afternoon, "The Seven Last Words of Christ," by Th. Dubois, was given by the Upland Oratorio Society, Rev. Hostetler directing. This was the third annual rendition. The large and appreciative audience listened reverently and prayerfully as this sacred Oratorio was so beautifully sung.

A community Good Friday service was held at the Brethren in Christ Church in commemoration of our Lord's suffering, the pastors of the Upland churches all having some part in the service.

Since early in the fall season the first Wednesday of each month has been set aside as Church Night. This has taken the place of the Brotherhood which had previously been disbanded. Each family supplys some food, some church organization or Sunday School class has charge of the arrangement and all gather in the basement of the church for an evening of good-will and fellowship. After the social hour, a song service is held, in which all heartily join, then some phase of our church life and work is discussed. These meetings have been very well attended and prove of mutual benefit.

Since the beginning of Lent the pastor has based his Sunday morning sermons on the last seven words of Christ on the cross, closing this series at our last church night, Wednesday before Easter. At the evening worship he delivered successive sermons on the Lord's prayer. The final sermon of this series was given on Palm Sunday. These sermons have been an inspiration and blessing to all the hearers. For the last few months the Wednesday evening studies have been on "The Kingdom of God."—Corr.

MISSION CHURCH, PORTLAND, ORE., 4-10-39

The past month has been an unusually busy one at the Alberta Community Church. From March 19 to 26 Homer Leisy of Salem, Oregon, was the special speaker in a series of evangelistic meetings. His Spirit-filled messages, illustrated by charts and cartoons, were well-received and the attendance at the meetings far exceeded our expectations. The Christian people had deepened their experiences, and others were won for Christ. Of special blessing was the interest shown by the children. Every night one or two front benches were filled by youngsters who always received an object lesson before the sermon, and several of them were saved. We pray that this is just the beginning of a revival in the church and in the community.

March 31 the Women's Missionary Society celebrated its tenth anniversary, in cooperation with the Sunday School, at a dinner followed by a fine program. About 120 were present and the wholesome Christian fellowship and good time were a real blessing.

The Lord's Supper was celebrated on Good Friday evening at an impressive candle-light Communion service, and Easter Sunday brought a record attendance to Sunday School and a capacity audience to the worship service. Three were baptized and 2 others received into the church by the right-hand of fellowship.

April 13, the Women's Missionary Society is to have a "pot-luck" luncheon at the pastor's home, after which Colonel Roy W. Gilks of London, England, will give a talk on the missionary work of the salvation Army. We are highly privileged in having this widely traveled lecturer come to us.

Surely the prayers of God's people have been going up for the Mission in Portland! May they continue to do so. Christine Miller, Corr.

Render Unto Caesar

Jesus said unto them, Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's.

Unto the Jew of that day this could hardly mean more than the payment of taxes to the Roman Emperor. Caesar governed. That system of government did not place upon the Jews the duty to help solve complex problems of state. Caesar dictated, and the Roman legions marched. The commandment had a narrow scope.

Today, unto the Mennonites of America, this is a vital and challenging commandment. In a democracy the people are supposed to govern. To voice their desires is their duty. "Render unto Caesar" refers, then, not only to the payment of taxes, but also to the duty of informing our law-makers that the troops of the United States shall not march.

Such action does not interfere with our supreme allegiance to God; it intensifies this allegiance. Let us step out of the shadow of inactivity and into the sunlight of creative, Christian action for peace—sunlight which will help to dispel the shadows of war.

CONTACT!

By Wilbur Lauer

Pastors will welcome enthusiastically the plan for a Young People's Follow-Up Index, now being prepared by the Young People's Union. It arises out of a direct need, expressed many times by the leaders of our churches, for a method of keeping in touch with those Mennonite youths who leave their home communities to work in other localities or who go away to school. Although many of these do affiliate themselves with the Mennonite churches in the new communities, it is not infrequent that some drift completely away from Mennonite influence. Sometimes this is the result of reticence, indifference, or lack of information on the part of the young person; in other instances it is the result of living in a community which does not have a Mennonite church. In the past this has been a perplexing problem for the leaders of our churches, one that offered little hope of solution. The proposed Follow-Up Index, however, provides the needed means for overcoming the most stubborn obstacles. When a member of one of our young people's societies leaves his home community, his pastor will be assured he will find a hospitable welcome in a Mennonite church of his new community. And where there are no Mennonite churches to extend a friendly hand, he (the pastor) can be instrumental in keeping in touch with that member both through the mails and such Mennonite friends as may be near enough to entertain that young person occasionally in their homes. In other words, whenever a Mennonite youth moves to a new community, he will have a "letter of introduction" to the religious fellowship of that community.

But the Index should not be regarded simple as another means of bolstering up our membership. It is more than that. It means that Mennonites of distant communities will be more vitally related to each other, that their work will be more effectively integrated. Loose ends of our widely scattered Mennonite communion will be gathered up in concrete fashion, thereby rendering our work more significant. When our pastors are called upon to supply the names of their young people for the Follow-Up Index, we are assured of the utmost cooperation and cordial aid.

Two Youths Visit Europe

by Robert Kreider

Throbbing in the heart of every youth is a deep desire for adventure and travel. One longs to visit strange lands, meet new personalities, contact cultures different from our own. So it was with Rollin Moser of Bluffton College and myself when we set sail for Europe last June.

With only a limited number of dollars in our pockets for the three-month sojourn, it was necessary for us to live a very simple life. In our jaunt rarely did we resort to the railways, preferring to travel either by bicycle or hitch-hiking. At nights we stayed in the homes of friends or in the youth hotels or Jugendher- bergen which are distributed throughout all of Britain and the Continent.

One of the primary factors encouraging us to make the trip to Europe was that we had received scholarships to a volunteer work camp of the International Voluntary Service for Peace in England. The IVSP is a Christian pacifist organization whose purpose it is to enter areas of poverty and distress and to aid the communities in reestablishing themselves economically and morally. With volunteers from some twelve different nations, we worked in the poverty stricken English mining town of Oakengates, Shropshire, building a community center for these miners. Day after day we worked with pick and shovel, glorying all the while in the rich fellowship and in the sense that we were serivng a wholesome end.

A most stimulating experience in our travels in Great Britain was our visit to the Costwold Bruderhof, a Huterian religious-cooperative community in Wiltshire, England. We found there a group of 250 German and English people seeking earnestly to live the Christian ethic in all phases of their life. These folk were deeply interested in the Mennonites and Huterites of America.

Crossing to the Continent, after five weeks on the British Isles, Rollin and I found the dyke-enclosed land of Holland one of the more fascinating countries which we visited. It was fascinating not only because of the quaint beauty of the countryside, but because here in the tiny village of Witmarsum, near the Zuyder Zee, the early leader of the Mennonite church, Menno Simons, was born. It was here where he cast off the yoke of the Catholic church. We visited this little village with its canals, cobblestone streets, windmills, wooden shoes, and marveled at the grand history which lingers along these ancient streets.

In coming to Europe, we were eager to become acquainted with the Mennonites of Holland, Germany, and Switzerland. Leaving the Netherlands we turned eastward into Germany, where we visited numerous Mennonite communities along the historic Rhine and in the Pfalz. We were entertained in such homes as those of Dr. Christian Neff of Weierhof and Prof. Benjamin Unruh of Karlsruhe, both prominent Mennonite leaders. Everywhere we were received with the utmost cordiality. It was a disappointment, however, for us to learn that the Mennonite church in Europe no longer adheres to the traditional Mennoite doctrine of non-resistance. This fact, nevertheless, should not cause any breech in the bonds of fellowship binding the American and the European Mennonites.

Another country of beauty and historic interest was Switzerland, home of our forefathers. The majestic beauty of the Alps is matchless. Here also we visited in the humble homes of the rugged Alpine people. At Geneva, the home of the League of Nations, we saw more fully the need for utilizing the international machinery for justice and peace.

Although we found our summer's experiences most pleasant, we encountered, also, a grim side to Europe. We were depressed with the sight of feverish military activity in all of the nations we visited. With greater clarity we recognized our good fortune in living in a nation devoted to democracy and freedom and, we hope, to peace.

A Christian Home

Senior C. E. Topic for May 14, 1939

Mother's Day Program

Main Topic: When is a Home Christian?

Col. 3:12-21; Eph. 4:31, 32

I. Worship Service

1. Song, "Faith of our Fathers"
2. The Leader reads the passages for the main topic followed by prayer
3. Special music in keeping with Mother's Day

II. Introduction of topic by leader

Some suggestive thoughts are the following:

It is a very challenging point to notice that family religion was such an important item in the home life in Jesus' family.

Religion, like everything else that is good, began in the home. And no problems of social religion are more serious and pressing just now than the problems of the family.

It will be wholesome for us all to think back to the simple home in Nazareth and contrast it with our strenuous modern living.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. The home of Samuel
2. The home of Jesus
3. The home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus
4. How does environment influence the home?

IV. For discussion:

1. How do you account for the breakdown of love in so many homes?
2. How does the Christian spirit of a home manifest itself:
    a. As regards Christian practices, such as church attendance, place at mealtimes, family altar?
    b. As to books and magazines, movies, radio programs, amusements?
    c. In its relation among its own members?

V. The basis upon which to build a home are the principles of Christian character, love, truth, purity sincerity. A Godly home is like a fixed star. Here the parents live and work together in love and understanding. Here the child absorbs the spirit of kindness, patience, good will, and trust in God.

What counts and what is immeasureably vital is, that Christ shall be a member of the family circle, and increasingly a part of the intimate life of the home.

The home is easily the most deeply influential environment known to man. For good or for evil! When we want to account for the nobility of some great man, we inquire into his family origins. Think of the homes from which John Wesley and Henry Ward Beecher came. Lincoln said, "All I am, I owe to my angel mother."

On the other hand, when children are brought into the juvenile court, the social worker knows where to look for the reasons which often brought them there. The break down of the large number of homes, the many divorces and unhappy homes, shall we say, the many un-Christian homes are responsible for much of the crime committed by the young people.

VI. Facts for study:

"Personal habits are largely formed before the age of twenty, and a single year in the teens is worth a decade in the forties for that purpose. At sixteen we are what we are likely to be at sixty."

Conversions usually take place in the earlier years of life.

"More individuals are arrested who are twenty-two years of age than in any other age group. Judge Epstein recently declared that few of the youths arraigned before him on serious charges had any spiritual education in the home."

Parents should give as much care to leading their children into fellowship with God as they do to their physical well-being.

VII. Religion on the outside

There is a story of a Novia Scotia sailor who has the Lord's Prayer tatooed on his back. He says that his dying mother asked him never to part with the back cover of a family Bible, on which the Lord's Prayer was printed in letters of gold. For many years he carried this cover on all his cruises; but one day, having a tussle with a sailor, he lost it overboard. Bad luck pursued him after that; and finally a companion who had heard him lament the loss of the talisman suggested his having the prayer tatooed on his back. He did this, though he suffered very much during the process.

Alas! there are many who are making the mistake of this poor ignorant, superstitious sailor. There are multitudes who are putting their religion on the outside rather than on the inside. The Lord's Prayer cannot do any good on a man's back, but it may lift him up to fellowship with angels if it be graven on his heart.—"John and His Friends."

VIII. Food for thought

In the home "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

THE HOME came from heaven, modeled after the Father's home and the many mansions. It was transplanted to the Garden of Eden, but ruined by the Fall. Our Savior, Jesus Christ, brought it back to earth as a gift, to Christianity, to make it a training school for the Home above.

May 14. Topic — What we owe to our homes. Luke 15:11-32; Eph. 6:1-3

Call to Worship

Honor thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.—Ex. 20:12.

Song, "O Happy Home Where Thou Art Loved"
Scripture Reading, Luke 15:11-32; Eph. 6:1-3
Prayer by leader
Vocal solo in honor of Mother
Poem:

Hymn For A Household

Lord Christ, beneath thy starry dome
We light this flickering lamp of home,
And where bewildering shadows throng
Uplift our prayer and even song.
Dost thou, with heaven in thy ken,
Seek still a dwelling place with men,
Wandering the world in ceaseless quest?
A Man of Nazareth be our guest!

Lord Christ, the bird his nest has found,
The fox is sheltered in his ground,
But dost thou still this dark earth tread
And have no place to lay thy head?
Shepherd of mortals, here behold
A little flock, a wayside fold
That wait thy presence to be blest—
O Man of Nazareth be our guest!

—Daniel Henderson

The above poem expresses the prayer of every Christian home. It is in this spirit that our parents strive to bring their children into rich fellowship with the Heavenly Father.

"Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein. Thus Jesus wished parents to realize that kingdom training must begin with the day of birth. Every home builds up its own pattern of behavior which bears its influence upon every member of the household. How fortunate we are if we have been born into a home whose behavior is formed in accordance with the life pattern of Jesus.

Song, "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus." Does this song not express what our mothers did for us?

Thoughts for further discussion on the topic:

1. When does a home become merely a house? It becomes merely a house when children have not been raised in the fear of the Lord, when mothers have not told the stories of Jesus.

2. How is the home the dominating influence of an individual? It is the place where we live and love and sacrifice and share. It is the place to which we turn when in deep need and when we are in ecstacies of joy. All too true it is also the place where we grumble and give way to impatience. Too often it is the place where we hurt those we love most yet we always expect to be forgiven. Hence, it is the place where we must learn self-sacrifice. Do we not owe it to our homes to be willing to show that we are learning those lessons? Do we not owe it to our parents that as we are growing older we hurt them less often?

3. Do we not owe it to our homes to be part of a partnership which is willing to profit by our parents experience and to share our experiences with them?

4. Other things for which we are indebted to our homes: (a) Food and shelter until we are able to provide for ourselves. (2) Most excellent care when we have been ill. (3) A good family name so that it may be said of us "He (she) comes from a fine Christian home." (4) The influence of good books and magazines. (5) The desire to go to the House of God on Sunday. (6) The desire to later engage in an honorable vocation.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Mother's Day

Program for May 14, 1939

(To the Leaders: Let us remember, not only mother, but father and the home in this program.)

I. CALL TO WORSHIP

Instrumental prelude
Hymn (Standing) "For the Beauty of the Earth" verses 1, 2 and 3

Opening sentence in unison: "He hath made everything beautiful in His time." Eccl. 33:11a.

1. Scripture by three Junior girls:
   a. Exodus 20:12. "Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."
   b. Prov. 1:8. "My Son hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother."
   c. Col. 3:20. "Children, obey your parents in all things: for this is well pleasing unto the Lord."
2. Prayer by an older Junior boy:

> "Lord Jesus, thou hast known
> A mother's love and tender care,
> And thou wilt hear while > for my own mother most dear
> I make this Sabbath prayer.
> Protect her life, I pray,
> Who gave the gift of life to me;
> And may she know, from day to > day, the deepening glow
> Of joy that comes from Thee.
> I cannot pay my debt
> For all the love that she has given;
> But Thou, O Lord, wilt not forget > her due reward—
> Bless her in earth and heaven."
> —Henry Van Dyke

3. Song in unison, "O Happy Home"

II. MISSION MINUTES

1. Name the missionary mothers in our mission fields, telling where they are stationed and how many children they have.
2. If possible have a missionary mother speak to the Juniors about their special problems, such as the care and education of their children. Help the Juniors to realize the sacrifice our missionary parents often make in leaving their children in the homeland when they go to their stations.
3. Leader's prayer of thanksgiving for and blessing upon these missionary parents

III. STUDY PERIOD

Aim: To help the Juniors appreciate a Christian home and to realize their responsibility in making the home a happy one.

1. Leader's heart talk
   "Jesus in His home." Luke 2:51
2. Duet, "I Would Be True"
3. Story by a Junior: "Hannah, A Godly Mother." 1 Samuel 1:1-28; 2:1-11, 18, 19; 3:1-18.
4. Two minute talks by four Juniors:
   a. We should honor our parents. Ex. 20:12
   b. We should obey our parents. Eph. 6:1
   c. We should listen to our father's instruction. Prov. 4:1
   d. We should love our Bibles and remember its teachings as our mothers have taught us. 2 Tim. 3:14, 15; 2 Tim. 1:5
5. Solo by a Junior girl carrying her mother's Bible: "My Mother's Bible"
6. Bible Findings:
   Prov. 1:8; Matt. 2:11; Prov. 6:20; Luke 2:51; Eph. 6:1; Ruth 1:16, 17; Rrov. 23:22; Ex. 20:12; Deut. 11:19; 2 Tim. 1:5; Col. 3:20; Jno. 19:25-27. When all of the references have been found they should be read clearly and distinctly. Our Bible reading should always be done reverently.

7. A short talk by the Pastor or an older person: "God's gift to children—parents; God's gift to parents—children"
8. Verse of the month in unison:
   "Sing unto Him, sing praises unto Him; talk ye of all his wondrous works." Ps. 105:2.
9. Song for month: "This Is My Father's World"
10. Leader's closing prayer

Correspondence

IMMANUEL MENN. CHURCH, PRATUM, ORE.

The first quarter of the year has brought us many rich spiritual blessings. Besides the wonderful messages from God's Word brought to us every Lord's day by our beloved pastor, J. M. Franz, we also enjoyed some special services. Paul Voronaeff, a young Russian evangelist, whose parents are held in exile in Siberia, brought us an evening message illustrated by slides, telling and showing the conditions in Russia. Shall we not give thanks to God anew for the liberty we enjoy in our land and pray earnestly that we may be permitted to live in peace, in order to be able to help those who are in such dire need of both the gospel and material things.

A Bible Conference was held March 29, 30 and Sunday evening, April 2, with Brother Simon Foresheg, Dean of the Multnomah School of the Bible in Portland, Oregon, as guest speaker. The messages were deeply spiritual, yet very practical. Two of our young women, Misses Beulah and Martha Gerig students at the above named school. We hope and pray that more of our young people might prepare themselves for definite Christian service.—Our neighboring Methodist Church joined us in service on Good Friday evening. Both pastors gave messages.

Easter was a full day. Home-coming and the Lord's Supper were observed. Nine new members, representing two families, were added to the church. Six by letter and three young men were baptized upon their confession of faith in the Lord Jesus as their personal Savior. We are indeed happy to have these fathers and mothers, with their children, join with us in worshipping and serving the Lord. The choir rendered the contata, "Rise Conqueror," in the evening. It was well received by a large, appreciative audience. May the message of the risen Lord inspire us to live for Him, day by day, and may the hope of His early coming give courage in these troublesome times.

We also rejoice in the fact that some of our workers have been privileged to bring the gospel by word and song in other places and that through this ministry souls were saved and believers edified.

Mrs. Jno. L. Merryman, Corr.

SECOND CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA, PA., 4-13-39

In May of this year, the Second Mennonite Church of Philadelphia, Pa., will be forty years old. At our annual congregational meeting, held in January, our pastor, Rev. Waltner stated: "Walter B. Pitkin says: 'Life Begins at Forty.' If that is true, why not have a birthday party—an anniversary commemorating the founding of this congregation."

These exercises will be held on the evenings of April 26th, 28th, May 2nd., celebrating "Old Home Night," "Sunday School Night," "Musical Night," and "Organizations Night," respectively. In connection with this celebration we are planning to complete our drive for a new organ in memory of our former pastor, Dr. Silas M. Grubb and our former Deacon, Mr. Abraham B. Weiss. It may not be entirely possible to procure this organ by that time, but we are all working earnestly to attain that goal. Also in connection with this anniversary, a pamphlet has been compiled entitled "Organization and Early Developments of Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia" which will be ready for distribution at that time. We invite our friends and members of the Mennonite Churches to enjoy these exercises with us.—Wm. H. Shelly, Correspondent.

EMMANUEL MENN. CHURCH, NOBLE, IOWA

On April 10 at the Wayland High School auditorium the Wayland and Noble communities had the privilege of seeing the drama "Let My People Go" played by a cast of Bluffton College students, sponsored by the Mennonite Peace Society, under the direction of Carl Landes. A large attentive and appreciative audience was present. This is a most effective way of presenting the Peace problem. Many have expressed themselves as having a clearer knowledge of the meaning of Christ's words "Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you, bless them that curse you and pray for them which despitefully use you. And unto him that smiteth thee on one cheek offer also the other," than ever before.

On Friday evening April 16, the Wayland and Noble Mennonite churches were hosts to the Freeman Junior College chorus, of Freeman, South Dakota. Their program of songs and addresses was given before a fair sized audience. Many more would like to have been present but due to the frequent April showers and Iowa mud, were denied the privilege of hearing them. Mr. Toews, their director, should be commended for the good work he is doing with this group of young people. Mrs. D. E. W.

—The Middle District Conference will be held in the First Mennonite Church at Bluffton, Ohio, June 17-20 next. Dr. Rufus D. Bowman of Chicago will bring three messages on Saturday and Sunday.

—For some time Mrs. Entz, wife of Rev. J. E. Entz, of the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, has willingly and efficiently furnished the material for the Junior Corner in Our Youth Says in the Mennonite. She did this while the regular editor, Mrs. Johana Andres, was recuperating from her illness and eventually asked to be relieved of this duty. So Rev. Olin Krehbiel, chairman of the Y. P. Union, has wisely asked Mrs. Entz to become the regular editor, and it is to be seriously hoped that she will accept. To Mrs. Andres we wish to express our sincere gratitude for her good work with the Junior Corner.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—Rev. Linscheid is conducting a S. S. teacher training class every Tuesday evening.—The church choir, making its first appearance Easter Sunday was quite a surprise to some folks.—Rev. S. P. Preheim is soon to begin extensive solicitation work for Freeman Jr. College.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—An unusual service for lovers of music and the gospel will be presented in this church April 22 in the evening, by Mr. Eivin Bjornstad, lyric dramatic tenor and king of gospel singers. He sings with the quality and clearness of the artist and the fervency of the child of God.

—First Menn. Church, Nappanee, Ind.—From this church we have just received a fine Easter folder and some Sunday service programs. We are glad for these and shall be looking for more. In this town, too, the churches united on Good Friday for special services in commemoration of Christ's suffering from 12:00 to 3:00.—In the evening the Bluffton College peace group gave the three act drama "Let My People Go."

—Prof. W. H. Hohmann of Bethel College and family will make a trip to the Pacific Coast this summer. At Upland, Calif., he and Rev. L. Hostetler will busily collaborate in preparing the "dummy" for the revised Mennonite Hymn Book for the engravers and printers. They will keep in touch by correspondence with the other members of the Hymn Book Committee, Prof. Russell Lantz and Rev. C. E. Krehbiel. Prof. A. E. Kreider and Rev. J. N. Smucker of Bethel College, with Rev. C. E. Krehbiel as chairman, who are revising the Responsive Readings.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon.—On Easter Sunday we enjoyed Communion. An added interest to many was the Consecration Service during which two babies were publicly dedicated.—Our Sunday School attendance is rapidly increasing. Much effort and prayer is being exercised for its growth and spiritual development.—This is the month for our quarterly musical program which is a city-wide attraction. What a power for God Christian music can become!—On Friday, April 14, we are looking forward to having the Pratum Choir render their Easter Cantata.—Sincerely, the correspondent.

—From the Bulletin, Zion Menn. Church, Souderton, Pa.: "Rev. A. C. Schultz, teacher of Bible at Bluffton College is known for his fine Christian messages. He will bring us a series of vital messages April 9-16. Let us put God first in our lives during these meetings."—Twelve people recently joined this church by baptism and five by letter.

—Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Lansdale, Pa. writes, April 18: Yesterday we were in Philadelphia attending our Eastern District Quarterly Conference. Missionary John Thiessens were there and spoke briefly to us. They landed in New York last week.

—First Church, Allentown, Pa.—This Easter season has been a great blessing to us. Eighteen new members have been added to the church by baptism, confession of faith, and letter. On Easter Sunday afternoon a capacity crowd enjoyed the inspiring concert by the Bluffton College Vesper Choir, and in the evening the Upper Milford Mennonite choir and congregation visited our church and the choir presented selections of the Easter Cantata, "Christ is Victor."—Corr.

—Other new editors for the OUR YOUTH SAYS section.—Readers of this paper will have noticed that other changes in the editorial staff have taken place. Mr. Reynold Weinbrenner has taken the place of Prof. B. Bargen as editor of the Senior Department, and is doing nicely. Miss Huldah Myers of Quakertown, Pa., has kindly agreed to serve as editor of the Intermediate Department in the place of Miss Emma Ruth of Reedley, Calif., who had so efficiently served for some years. Mrs. Gerhard Friesen of North Newton, Kansas, is now furnishing the lesson outlines for the senior section.

— Rev. Lester Hostetler of Upland, Calif. has been getting in touch with two retired gentlemen, who are spending their declining days in California. Each of them is well versed in hymnology, one of them having edited the latest Methodist Hymnal and the other the H. Augustine Smith Hymn Book. Bro. Hostetler went over the draft of our coming Hymn Book with them and they both highly commented the splendid collection of the hymns and the wide variety.

— Rev. J. J. Esau, our blind evangelist, gives notice that they are now located at 307 South Main St., Bluffton, Ohio, for a few months. He adds, "We have had a very delightful time in evangelistic work during the past winter."

— San Marcos Church, Paso Robles, Calif.—Missionaries P. W. Penner are visiting in the San Marcos neighborhood for a week, holding meetings each evening in the Mennonite Church, with Mrs. Penner speaking to the Women's Missionary Society this Monday afternoon. — Mr. and Mrs. John Janzen of Elbing, Kans., who have been visiting here for some time, are now returning to their Kansas home.

History Views the Jewish Persecutions

5. CONCLUDING STATEMENTS FROM A CHRISTIAN POINT OF VIEW

E. L. Harshbarger

Can a Christian participate in antisemitic propaganda and persecution of the Jews? History says, "yes", because many of the leading antisemitics have been staunch Christians. This has been due largely to social rather than Christian causes, that is, the Jews always represented a small alien group and were easily persecuted in spite of the Christian profession of their persecutors. But I am convinced that Christians, especially those who, like the Mennonites, profess to live the simple Gospel of the Sermon on the Mount, cannot and should not participate in such degrading propaganda.

As a Christian, therefore, I wish to place myself definitely on record as opposed to all such vicious propaganda, for, in the first place, I must have a high regard for truth. A review of the previous articles shows that all antisemitic propaganda is guilty of unscrupulous carelessness with the truth. The fountain source of antisemitism, The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, is a weird forgery, and the charges that Jews practice ritual murder, dominate the world's finances, created and propagated Communism, are the source of all obscene literature, stage and movie productions—are all shown to be gross and malicious exaggerations of fact. (The statement "created . . . . fact" is altogether too sweeping." —Editor.)

Secondly, we ought to hold ourselves aloof from such class hatred because, as Mennonites, we know something, vicariously or actually, of what it means to be a persecuted minority group. For generations our fathers have been driven from pillar to post in search of religious liberty. It ill behooves us, a persecuted minority, to aid in any way the persecution of another minority group.

Thirdly, I am opposed to the Jewish persecutions because I cannot forget the great cultural contributions of the Jewish people. Space limitations prevent a listing of more than a few of the Jewish benefactors of mankind. In Germany alone there are so many Jewish cultural leaders that their works cannot be ignored even by the Nazis, therefore, Jewish contributions are used anonymously. One example is the Nazi use of the song "Die Lorelei", written by the great Jewish poet, Heine. Call the roll of the immortals in any field of culture and the names of Jews are prominent. Mendelssohn and Strauss in music, and Einstein and Wasserman in science are examples of many. The Nazi antisemitic campaign drove five Nobel prize winners from the country: Albert Einstein and James Franck, noted physicists; Gustav Hertz and Otto Meyerhoff, famous physiologists; and Fritz Haber, the chemist. Jewish cultural contributions to the world are undeniable. Can we, therefore, denounce a whole race for the sins of a few representatives of that race?

Fourthly, as a Christian I cannot participate in Jewish persecutions because I am supposed to live peaceably with all men, and to love all, even my enemies. That is all-inclusive, I cannot exclude any person or group simply because I disagree with them or because they are peculiarly clannish and unlike my group. Certainly, love of my fellowmen, including the Jew, means I cannot spread lies about him, persecute him, or in any way degrade his personality. To do so is fundamentally un-Christian. To foster hatred against the Jews is to spread hatred among other groups just as surely as handling coal produces black hands. Hate will beget hatred. This too is un-Christian.

Finally, as a Christian I cannot become an antisemitic, because I remember that nearly all my religious idealism and Christian hope came through the Jewish race. Moses, the great lawgiver, the prophets of Israel, Jesus, our Savior, and all his disciples were members of this, now accursed, race. How can anyone who loves his Bible, anyone who names the name of Jesus and professes to follow Him, be an antisemitic?

That there are disreputable characters among the Jews, even the Jews will admit. But the entire race cannot in justice and in a Christian spirit be condemned because of some black sheep. Every group, even the Mennonites, have some of these black sheep which we would rather not own. Therefore, the attitude of the Christian toward the Jew, it seems to me, as toward all other people, should be one of tolerance and Christian love, not forgetting that the sins and shortcomings of the Jews are the sins of all mankind, that many of these sins are aggravated by the clannish attitude of Aryans and by the Aryan inclination to exploit a Jewish minority, and that the Jews also are human beings, humanity "for whom Christ died."

(The author would welcome written comments on the value of such articles.)

If War, Will the U. S. Be In It?

Recently when President Roosevelt left Warm Springs, Georgia, his parting words were: "I'll be back in the fall—if we don't have war." In an attempt to interpret the puzzling we and the whole statement, the "Washington Post" opined somewhat as follows: By we Mr. Roosevelt meant the Western civilization and the whole statement was intended to do certain things: (1) Tell the axis-powers that a war forced by them would involve the destinies of the U. S. (2) Rebuke the isolationists who, in spite of the certainty of American involvement . . . , would protect themselves by closing their eyes. (3) Link America with the stop-Hitler drive." The President is reported to have heartily endorsed this explanation and thus also to have revealed his opinion that another European war would again involve our country.

Meanwhile there is developing in the already feverish minds of a large number of our people the conviction that this must not be, that we have no business to help fight the wars of Europe. In a recent hearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, a prominent person said, "In the present state of public opinion there is great reluctance to trust the President in the matter of foreign affairs." And that opinion is growing strong enough that Congress is beginning to bestir itself to the need of some legislation that will serve as a means of stopping belligerent agitation that is rampant in the country. In a recent debate on our foreign policy Senator Reynolds of N. C. said, the war propaganda in our land was getting dangerously strong and that, strangely, we were the only people who are being badly stirred up by the affairs in Europe. And Senator George of Georgia said among other things, his mail was loaded with letters from worrying mothers and fathers fearing war. That it was high time for Congress to let Europe know, where the United States stand. That whoever, in higher or subordinate position, was telling European countries that we are ready to go to war was leading Europe astray, for the Congress of the U. S. and the American people had no thought of going into a European war.

But the war propaganda is at work and anything may happen that will quickly get us stirred up to a point of war hysteria, so it behooves all who really and genuinely love our country, to get busy and petition our representatives in Washington to pass such legislation that will keep us out of an European war.

Perhaps it would help some of us in drafting and sending our petitions to Washington more readily, if we had some suggestions how to do it. Below we give two suggestive petitions, the first, general in its nature, can be addressed to the Congress at large; the second, more special, to be addressed to your representative and senators. The first can be clipped, signed and mailed as given, but this gives it a stereotyped appearance. A hand-written or type-written letter is preferable and more effective. It is also better if each petitioner composes his letter in his own words.

To the Congress of the United States--

Earnestly desiring to save this nation and its people from being drawn unnecessarily into foreign wars in which we ought not to be embroiled, we the undersigned petition your honorable body to:

Strengthen, not weaken, the Neutrality Act;

Mind our own business and keep out of foreign war; follow the sound foreign policy laid down by Washington of avoiding foreign entanglements and alliances;

Stop all loans or credit advances to foreign governments at war;

Enact effective legislation to take the profits out of war;

Keep our battleships and our soldiers out of foreign war zones;

Stop all shipments of war supplies to Japan or any other nation engaged in war;

Submit to the people for early ratification the War Referendum Amendment, introduced by Senator Capper and eleven other Senators, which would return to the people the sole power to declare or engage in wars, except when an attack or threatened attack is made upon the United States.

Dear Sir:

Since our country is in danger of being drawn into another European war with all of its terrible consequences, I am making use of the privilege granted me by the U. S. Constitution "to petition the government" and ask you, our representative in Congress, kindly to use your full influence and power in helping set up such bars as will keep us out of foreign wars.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Christian Hospital, Champa, C. P., India, 2-2-39

Dear Brethren of the Mission Board:

The outstanding event in the Champa church during 1938 was the conversion of Ganesh and Tetki, his wife. No, they are not high caste Brahmans nor rich, influential people of the Champa community. Ganesh has been a sweeper in the mission employ for about 18 years. Even the conversion of a sweeper is not such a new thing. In India there are many sweeper converts. The interesting fact is that Ganesh did not give up his job when he became a Christian. He and his wife were batpized May 1, 1938. Ganesh is continuing his work as before. The other Christians put considerable pressure on him asking him to do some other kind of work. Most sweepers change their work on becoming Christians. In this a definite victory has been won in the church.

The second step in this victory is the fact that since the baptism of Ganesh and his wife Holy Communion has been held three times. Each time both communed with the other Christians. No trouble has arisen. In most places in India the sweeper Christian is not allowed to commune with other Christians unless he changes his occupation. On New Year's Day 127 Christians communed, perhaps the highest number in the history of the Champa Church.

Ganesh has been building a new house which was to be dedicated on Jan. 3rd. He invited one member of each Christian family in Champa to a meal after the dedication. This was the final test! Would the Christians eat in his house? Ganesh felt that many were not receiving him into the Christian fellowship. Again in most places in India where there are sweeper converts, other Christians will not eat with sweeper Christians.

The day of the dedication appeared. Soon Ganesh came and said that three influential Christians had been to his house the night before asking him to have the meal on the hospital compound, then the Christians would come eat with him. Now, most of the Christians would not eat in his house. The missionaries advised him to go ahead and cook the food in his house. There was to be no compromise. Soon Ganesh was back again saying that none of the Christians would help him with the cooking preparations. Mrs. Penner announced it in the Girls' Boarding. Two women immediately offered their services. I announced it in the hospital. A trained nurse offered to go over and help them. By this time Ganesh sent word that men had arrived in sufficient numbers to make the meal possible.

Now comes the report that out of 63 signatures accepting the invitation to the meal, most of them were going to send one of their children for the meal and would not eat with Ganesh themselves. Some said that a signature does not mean anything. Again a paper was sent around stating that there was no compulsion but that children substitutes were not acceptable. A Hindu Brahman child can eat with anyone as long as the Brahman thread has not been put around his neck. There was to be no remnant of caste here. Not very many signed the second time but the meal was cooked. A blessed service of dedication was held after which at least 50 Christians ate together in Ganesh's house. Not a bit of food was left over. What a wonderful victory for Christ! The majority of the Christians had won the victory. The committee of three who had acted so concerned the night before was conspicuous by its absence They appear to be ashamed. May the Lord give them the full victory too!

In His name, H. R. Bauman.

The Church and the World Crisis

by Albert W. Palmer

(Concluded from last week)

WHAT THE CHURCH CAN DO

Now, if the major problem of the world today is economic fear, and if the economic fears of nations are driving them surely into war, what can the church do about it? It can do two things:

First: The church with united voice in every country the world around can urge its government to join in calling a world economic conference where these economic necessities of every nation can be frankly faced. At such a conference let every nation be invited to prepare in advance and bring as a basis of negotiation a condensed epitome of its economic problems. I would suggest that this brief be limited to three thousand words, as follows: One thousand words setting forth each country's fears and grievances; a second thousand words outlining its proposed solutions; and a third thousand words indicating the concessions and sacrifices it is willing to make to secure world-wide economic cooperation and appeasement, including reductions in armaments and tariffs. This would bring the essential tensions right out into the open. Let the conference then discuss these brief statements for a month and then recess for six months without taking any action. Then, after world-wide publicity and discussion, let it reconvene for action. Surely a formula could be arrived at which would reduce the fever of world fear and start us on the road toward economic cooperation and away from war.

What If Governments Won't Act?

But, suppose governments won't act. What then? Why then let the church be the church! Let it be a world church of ecumenical mind and pattern. Let it hold its own world economic conference. Let it summon its best brains and leadership, lay and clerical, with truly Christian economists and political scientists as advisers, and follow the same procedure as has just been outlined. Then, at least, the Church, which ought to be the conscience of the world, will know its own mind. Then the church will have an informed and farsighted witness to bear to governments the world around.

The strategy of Christianity now is to bear an intelligent and unified witness as to the causes of war and in behalf of a just and lasting peace. In the words of George Washington when the fate of a united constitution for our own country hung in the balance: "Let us lift up a standard to which all honest and just men can repair. The event is in the hands of God!"

Seven Questions

If you have followed me thus far I am sure that certain questions are already arising in your mind. I beg leave to anticipate them. Let us take up these questions, one by one:

1. When, where and how should such an economic church conference be called? Immediately, to meet next summer, and in Europe, preferably not in Great Britain lest it be, or seem to be, unduly under British influence. Let it be called through the World Council of Churches. Let the delegates include the deeply spiritual leaders of each country, with definitely Christian economists as advisers.

2, Can representation be secured from countries like Russia, Germany, Italy and Japan? Nobody knows until we try! If not we can lay hold of well-informed fair-minded people who can state the case objectively and fairly for these countries.

3. What authority would the findings of such a conference have? Only such authority as would reside in their objectivity, reasonableness and freedom from selfish or partisan bias. But it would be moral authority of the highest order.

4. Could Catholics and Jews cooperate? Yes. What I have in mind, however, is essentially a congress of the constituency of the Oxford Conference of 1937. Catholics, especially social minded educational leaders, should be invited as corresponding members. Jewish counselors would also be invaluable but the findings would probably be more effective if the conference spoke primarily as a representative of Christendom.

5. Wouldn't established business interests oppose anything that might look in the direction of a lowering of tariff walls? That would depend on the nature of the business, in some cases, and on the wisdom, capacity and Christian character of industrial leaders in other cases. But, in any case, we must not be intimidated in advance by any disapproval born of economic self-interest. In the long run every business, except one, will profit more by peace than war. And, of course, any tariff adjustments should be gradual and take account of the industrial problems involved.

6. Wouldn't such a conference be interpreted by the dictatorships simply as weakness and lead to greater demands? If you take that attitude are you not hopelessly headed for war? Must we not have faith in human nature at least to the extent of realizing that the people of every country hate and dread war today and that they will honor and welcome every sincere and fair-minded attempt to remove all irritating conditions and resentments which move toward war? At least it must not be said that nobody tried to heal the economic wounds or bind up the industrial open sore of the world!

7. Isn't this outside the church's sphere? Are not present world problems economic and political in character rather than religious? We need to do some very clear thinking at this point. Certainly the problems we face are economic and political. They must be settled according to sound economic and political principles. With the details of their settlement the church is not primarily concerned. But the thing which keeps these problems from being justly settled on the political and economic level is a spirit of cynical selfishness, fear, greed, injustice, hatred and aggression. These qualities are not economic, they are spiritual; or, more accurately speaking, anti-spiritual! Here is the moral issue before the world today. Shall world-wide economic problems be approached and settlements attempted on a basis of violence, self-interest and ruthless exploitation or on a basis of fair-dealing recognition of universal human needs and peaceful negotiations? Surely this is a moral issue and to it the church cannot possibly be indifferent! On the contrary, must not the church speak out clearly and emphatically if she is to maintain and command the respect of all mankind?

But in order to speak wisely and effectively she must know the facts and see them from every nation's viewpoint. Hence the imperative necessity of a world economic conference where the church can bring these facts to light, weigh their moral implications and speak a calm and well-considered word for the guidance of the conscience of mankind.

Will governments and nations listen? Let us not worry about that. The great heart of the masses of the common people in every land will listen! And will respond to a voice in the name of religion setting forth peace through justice. The world is groping in darkness for moral leadership and human unity. Let the church turn on the light!—From "Advance."

AUTO HAD TO BE PURCHASED TO VISIT SCATTERED FAMILIES IN VANCOUVER

When our Mennonite families settle in a city, they naturally must buy or rent where they can get a home and in order to be near to their place of work. It stands to reason that this causes our Mennonite homes to be scattered from one end of a city to the other in all four directions.

For some time it was felt that a car would be needed, but funds were needed elsewhere. Then our Field Secretary made mention to the Board that Rev. J. B. Wiens must spend so much time and effort to walk and travel by trolly to visit the scattered families.

Immediately following the Home Mission Board meeting in Chicago, Rev. David Toews went to British Columbia to attend an Immigration Conference. While there, he visited the different churches and communities and also Vancouver. The need for a car was so great that arrangements were made to purchase a good used car.

Who is willing to send some special gifts for this purpose to Rev. J. J. Plenert, our treasurer, 429 Knorr St., Philadelphia, Pa.?

The car and the necessary insurance costs us about $300.00. Can you help in this necessary work?

Brief Report of the Eastern District Quarterly Conference

This meeting was held at the First Church, Philadelphia, Pa., Monday, April 17. Missionary John Thiessen, just returned from India, with his family, conducted the opening devotion.—The treasurer showed that the Conference had gone over the top with its budget, which was good news to all. The secretary, who is also scribe for the Home Mission Committee, reported that the Napier Mission Church had paid $102.70 into the Home Mission treasury and Saucon, $100.00.—A motion was passed to the effect that the churches should be interrogated as to whether there should be another united chorus festival this summer, reports to be given at the Conference session in May. —Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Trustee of the Quakertown Community Children's Home, spoke on "Benevolent and Relief Work in the Conference," Mrs. J. R. Fretz and Mrs. J. B. Bechtel on the Needs of the Orphanage, Rev. Ernest Bohn in reference to Relief work in Spain and Rev. P. J. Boehr in China.

The Rev. H. T. Landes spoke on, "The Message from Easter to Ascension Day." This was very illuminating. He showed in many ways how Jesus manifested himself during these seven weeks, opening eyes, strengthening faith, giving hope, comfort and courage, and finally in giving his great Command.

Rev. Freeman H. Swartz presented his paper, "After Easter—What?" He used two passages of Scripture, "The Lord added to the church daily such as should be (were being) saved," and "Be instant in season and out of season." He spoke from his heart concerning personal experiences.—Rev. Thiessen in a few remarks said he was glad to hear the brethren expressing themselves so honestly on their pastoral problems. He, too, had his problems as pastor.

Rev. Harold Burkholder conducted the evening devotions. Three of the Thiessen children gave a musical selection, one son playing the violin, another a violin-cello, and the daughter accompanied them at the piano. Following this Rev. Erland Waltner gave an illustrated lecture on the Holy Land, and Rev. Bohn made a fitting close.

—From a report by the secretary, Rev. Howard Nyce.

—Announcement from the Eastern District.—Mr. John F. Reich, Secretary for the Committee on Spain of the American Friends Service, who has spent some time in Spain, will speak on the conditions existing in that country at the Brotherhood meeting May 6th in the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally. The Mennonite Central Committee is interested in this work. Mr. Reich is the son of Dr. Max Reich, well-known Bible lecturer. The program will also include Dr. H. A. Fast, Gen. Conf. Field Secretary and Mr. William H. Mohr speaking for Bluffton College.

PAUL EVANGELIZES A PROVINCE

Acts 19:1, 8-10; 20:17-21; Eph. 2:19-22

TOPIC: The Fellowship of Christian Faith

Introduction

Corinth was Paul's chief place of labor on his second missionary journey. Now on his third tour, begun Acts 18:23, Ephesus was his chief center of labor. It was the third city in size in the Roman empire and the great commercial as well as religious center in Asia Minor. On his second journey the Spirit forbade him to preach here. Now the time was ripe for a prolonged stay in this center of the worship of the goddess Diana, whose great temple was here. A considerable Jewish population was here and when Paul had stopped here briefly on his journey from Corinth to Jerusalem, he had declined their invitation to remain longer (Acts 18:19-21).

Paul Teaching in Ephesus vs. 1, 8-10

For three months Paul had the rare opportunity to teach freely and boldly in the Jewish synagogue (v8). He centered all on "the things concerning the kingdom of God." He did not waste any precious privileges. Many of the Jews showed a bitter attitude toward Paul, finally plotting against his life. When God's truth does not command obedience, it hardens, and leads people to speak evil of it to others. The time for a separation had come (v9) and Paul and his followers withdrew and found an open door of welcome in the school of Tyrannus. Here he held daily meetings for instruction and preaching for two years. From here, as a center, people from all over the province of Asia heard the gospel message. Many came to Ephesus and likely Paul did some preaching in the regions round about the city. Paul found new ways to cope with new situations. His long stay here is evidence that he was winning converts to his message. "The word of God grew mightily" (19:20). The great demonstration led by Demetrius, the silversmith (vs 24-41) indicates the large effect of Paul's work. There was a large element of the miraculous in Paul's work (vs. 11, 12).

Paul's Farewell to the Elders of Ephesus 20:17-21

Paul is now on the way back to Jerusalem. His ship stopped at Miletus, a seaport about thirty miles south of Ephesus. His farewell words give us an insight into his faithfulness as a pastor, and into his deep sympathy which he showed in all his dealings with them (vs 19, 20). Though he possessed the authority of his apostleship, yet they could testify to his "humility of mind" and his "many tears" of sincere sympathy. These were shed with them in their sorrows and troubles, in the trials which came to them and to Paul. The Christian worker who sheds tears of sympathy with others, will draw them to himself.

Paul showed his faithfulness in keeping back nothing that was profitable unto them (v20). He declared the whole counsel of God to them (v27), the whole truth. He sought their soul's welfare, not notoriety for himself. He preached repentance toward God and faith in Christ to Jews and Greeks. Paul showed true heroism in preaching the whole truth whether people wanted to hear it or not.

The Church in Ephesus Eph. 2:19-22

Paul is here addressing Gentiles (v11). These converts were gathered into the body of Christ and united in a local Church as a result of Paul's ministry. Formerly they were "strangers from the covenant of promise," given to the Jews. Now through the work of Christ, they are no more strangers, but fellow members of God's family with full rights therein (v19). In Christ, the chief corner stone, the family of God is united into one structure. Paul uses this figure to stress the thought of Christian unity in the Church. People who are of God's household are brothers and sisters in the Lord. By the blood of Christ (v13) they are united into a marvelous spiritual fellowship.

SERMON SKETCH

"BROKEN CISTERNS"

By Erland Waltner, Second Mennonite Church of Philadelphia

Text: Jeremiah 2:13, 4:1.

The world in Jeremiah's day was strangely like our world of 1939. Like ours, it was a secular world, bowing at the altars of materialism. Like ours, it was a fearful world, trembling at the sight of threatening war clouds. Like ours, it had its prophets, men with a simple message from God: RETURN. Jeremiah's message to his world is therefore a message to which our modern world may profitably attend.

I. The Diagnosis of Israel's Troubles

Jeremiah's day was not a time for mincing words. Neither is ours. He pointed a revealing finger at the wounds of corruption in Israel. He declares that two evils are the cause of the nation's condition: (1) They have forsaken God and (2) they have found no satisfactory substitute for God. (Jer. 2:13) The two evils really constitute one evil: They have traded off Jehovah for "gods which yet are no gods." (Jer. 2:11) Turning their backs upon the God who led them out of Egypt, guided them in the wilderness, and brought them into Canaan they now turned to other securities and other supplies of "water." They believed themselves now so mature that they could solve their own problems. They dug cisterns by their own hands. But the cisterns cracked and "would hold no water."

The sin of Israel is precisely the sin of the modern world. Karl Heim, a modern prophet in Germany, declares, "There is, properly speaking, only one sin, to which we are all prey. Like the prodigal son we have forsaken the Father's house, the fellowship of God which we might have had. As soon as we have passed out from our relation to God, we have lost our Archimeded-point, upon which if we took our stand we should find all things possible." When we forsake God as individuals or as a nation we "lose our balance" and are plunged into an abyss of chaos. Quickly we attempt to remedy our problems by our own devices. We hew cisterns by our own hands. We look to education, to science, to government to supply our needs. Then we discover that these cisterns are broken and will not hold water. Leading educators are saying that our education is chaotic, leading scientists say that science has no organizing center, leading students of government declare that even democracy doesn't know where it is going. Is this any wonder when God has been forsaken and men have become their own gods?

II. The Prescription for Israel's Recovery

As a mouthpiece of God, Jeremiah declares that judgment hovers over Israel as the sword of Damocles. Whether that sword shall do its bloody work depends not upon blind fate but upon a decision by Israel. In Jer. 4:1 God gives a conditional promise which is also a plea, "If thou wilt RETURN TO ME. . . . . then thou shalt not be removed."

The return to God involved for Israel a confession that their own devices to solve their problems were a failure. It involved the acknowledgement that neither an individual nor a nation can live long without God. It involved a forsaking of the "broken cisterns" and a return to the "fountain of living waters."

Only blind optimism can fail to see the impending dangers of our present world. Judgment is imminent unless men and women will heed the timeless message of Jeremiah and return to God. The way of this return is Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the Saviour of the World. He calls a prodigal world back to Himself. Yet the world is made up of individuals and thus the prophet Jeremiah calls to each soul which is trying to live its own life: Forsake those "broken cisterns" that will not hold water and return to Jehovah, "then shalt thou not be removed."

—Bethel College.—The German Department gave the drama, Schiller's Maria Stuart, Friday evening, April 28, to a good sized audience in the College chapel. The young people all acquitted themselves well, particularly the two main characters, Königin Maria and Königin Elisabeth, also Graf Lester. It is really surprising how well some of our young college people can handle the German, when they try.

Ministerial Conference of the Western District

Favored with fair weather this conference, which was held at the Eden church near Moundridge, Kans., April 25, was attended by ministers, deacons and their wives, and some guests. The theme throughout the session was EVANGELISM. As we shall try to bring the gist of some of the addresses or papers in these columns later on, we shall give only a very brief review of the good program now.

The session was opened by the chairman, Rev. David Wedel. The secretary and pastor of the host church, Rev. Walter Gering, preached the conference sermon. Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander spoke on Experiences in Evangelism, Rev. W. F. Unruh on Experiences in Personal Evangelism, and Rev. Art Miller of Hutchinson, Kans., gave an address. This concluded the forenoon program.

In the afternoon short talks were given as follows: Evangelism through Bible conference work, Rev. P. P. Tschetter; Evangelism through study groups, Rev. Walter Gering; Evangelism in the S. S., Rev. J. J. Voth; Evangelism in the Bible School, Rev. C. H. Dirks; Evangelism through moulding of convictions, Rev. P. H. Richert; Evangelism through song, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel.

In the evening the choir and orchestra of the Eden church presented Handel's Messiah under the direction of Prof. W. H. Hohmann.

TOLERATION IN EVANGELISM

The early Christians were not exclusive and aloofish. As Christians they worshipped together with the Jews in the temple. They were keenly aware of the outrage their fellow Jews had comitted when they crucified their Lord, and yet they continued to worship together with them in the temple. They were extremely loyal to their Savior. As disciples of Jesus they formed an intimate fellowship of believers, but yet they did not break away from the Jewish community. They utilized every opportunity to witness for their Lord and Savior even to those who had denied and crucified Him. They stayed within the group and witnessed as members of the group. They did not witness to them as outsiders. A witness for the Lord is always most effective when it is given to those of our own social community, to our own friends with whom we live and work. To talk to a person about Christ in the attitude of speaking to a "black sheep" is not winning. To talk to him as one of the group is quite another matter. People usually respond with the attitude that is being shown to them. The early church grew rapidly partly because the Christians were quite free in their associations with those of their own community who were not Christians but who were approachable with the Good News. Such toleration gives an added advantage to those who hear because they find the Christian life lived and presented by one of their own acquaintances.

China Relief Gains Momentum

A recent dispatch to the Church Committee for China Relief concerning a single region gives a sidelight on the magnitude of the problem with which the Committee is dealing:

"The calamity-stricken area in North Kiangsi alone, as a result of war and flood, covers 10,000 square miles. No accurate statistics of the dead are available; but the corpses already buried amount to 200,000. Homeless refugees are estimated to be more than 4,000,000. Those in urgent need of relief still amount to 2,855,425, including men, women and children."

Commenting on this dispatch, the most recent publication of the Committee says:

"This report from one small area only twice as large as Connecticut is a sample of the need the Church Committee is trying to help you meet. When you read these figures and pause to think about these 2,855,425 refugees in one area, do you have any real understanding of what they mean in agony of body, mind and soul? Are we so dazed by numbers that we say 'a million men and women' as glibly as we might say 'a million bushels of corn'?

There are American missionaries in China today who, for the rest of their lives, will be awakened from their sleep with haunting visions of little pot-bellied babies and small children, with spindling legs and begging eyes—passing in endless procession beside their beds crying for food they did not have to give! These devoted men and women, who are giving their lives in service to the missions in China, have the heart and the equipment to minister to this devastating human misery. But they need money for supplies and provision for maternal and infant care, as they minister to all forms of sickness, including agony from wounds and slow starvation."

"One Dollar a Month Can Save A Life in China!"

According to the estimates of the American Advisory Committee in Shanghai, through which the funds raised in America are distributed, $32,000 per week is needed during the spring in order to meet the minimum needs.

Faced with the continuing tragedy in China, the Church Committee for China Relief has voted to carry on its activities for another year, i.e., until the summer of 1940, unless greatly improved conditions should make it possible to discontinue the appeal earlier.

One of the best-informed Americans on China, Rev. George W. Shepherd, for many years a missionary and more recently Honorary Advisor of the New Life Movement in China, has just arrived in this country from Chungking, the new capital of China. Mr. Shepherd is available as a speaker throughout the United States in behalf of the Church Committee for China Relief. The address of the Committee is 105 East 22nd Street, New York.

Editor's Note: If we Christians have a heart for the terrible suffering endured by millions of Chinese, it appears as though we should do something to help now. Our Relief Board has just called our attention to China relief as one of its immediate objectives. All contributions should be sent to: Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas, the treasurer of the Board.

Invitation

We herewith heartily invite everybody to attend the Bible Conference which is to be held in Newton, beginning May 12 at eight in the evening. Dr. P. W. Rood will be in charge of the opening meeting. The program will take form as follows:

I. Dr. P. W. Rood, President of World's Christian Fundamental Association.

1. What is God's Message to the Nation in this Hour of Crisis?
2. What and Where is Heaven?
3. The Greatest Business in the World
4. The Signs of the Times, or, Is Christ Coming Soon?

II. Dr. P. R. Schroeder, past President of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of N. A.

1. The Bible—Surer than Heaven
2. Christ's Kingdom—My Kingdom is not of This World.
3. Has Modern Religious Liberalism Affected Your Thinking?
4. The Lodge—The Religion of the Lodge

III. Dr. H. A. Ironside, Pastor of the Moody Memorial Church, Tuesday to Friday afternoon: "The Longest Sentence in the Bible."

Evenings:

1. The Holy Spirit—in the Epistle to the Ephesians
2. Prayer—in the Epistle to the Ephesians
3. The Believer's Walk—in the Epistle to the Ephesians
4. The Believer's Warfare—in the Epistle to the Ephesians

IV. Dr. A. H. Unruh, Prin. Pniel Bible School, Winkler, Man.

1. Die Versoehnung durch Jesum
2. Das Empfangen der Vergebung der Suenden
3. Die Versiegelung durch den Heiligen Geist
4. Das Warten auf die Wiederkumft des Herrn
5. Die Reinigung der Wartenden

We anticipate hours of blessing from these meetings and everybody that can make it possible to do so should attend them. Where there is a will there is a way. To listen for a week to these men that are called and equipped of God will be time well spent.

NEW SERIES

In this isuue we present the first of a series of bi-weekly hymn studies by Professor Walter H. Hohmann of Bethel College. Mr. Hohmann is chairman of the Committee for the Revision of the Mennonite Hymn Book. This committee has and is working hard to provide a serviceable hymnal. All the studies to be included will be of hymns found in the new hymnal. Brother Lester Hostetler says, "But in my opinion we need something more throughout our churches than a revised Hymn Book. We need more training and more education in worship. We need a better understanding of the book from which we sing—its hymns and its tunes."

* * *

The Hymn Corner

by Walter H. Hohmann

O SACRED HEAD, NOW WOUNDED

This is one of the truly great hymns of the church. It expresses in three languages, the Latin, the German and the English, and in three confessions, the Roman, the Lutheran and the Anglican, the confidence of the believers in the Christ of Calvary.

Bernard of Clairvaux (1091-1153) wrote the original poem of three hundred and fifty lines in the Latin Language. Paul Gerhardt translated a portion of the poem into the German language in 1656. James Waddell Alexander in 1830 gave us the English translation of the hymn.

The first stanza of the hymn is a description of the Sacred Head with its crown of thorns. The second is an admission of the guilt of sin and petition for pardoning grace. The third verse shows the inadequacy of language to express gratitude for, "Thy dying sorrow, Thy pity without end," and a prayer of dedication to, and love for the Saviour. The fourth voices the believer's confidence in the completeness of the redemption wrought through Jesus' death.

The hymn tune known as the Passion Chorale was composed in 1601 by Leo Hassler, a German organist. Johann Sebastian Bach changed the melody and the harmony slightly and used the tune five different times in his St. Matthews Passion. The melody of this tune is easy to sing, the harmony interesting and varied, with easy and natural modulations from major to minor tonality. The Passion Chorale tune is used quite universally with this hymn. Our own Mennonite Hymn Book uses this tune.

Christian Endeavor Societies, Young Peoples Groups and Churches not acquainted with this great hymn should familiarize themselves with it.

"I Understand"

Blessed is the man who can say of his associates and their behavior, "I understand." His words are balm to hearts seared with criticism; they restore confidence to personalities over-awed by their own inadequacies and the hardness of the world, they loosen the tears and words of confession that cleanse the soul, they make the golden grain of accomplishment to grow, where otherwise would grow the briars of frustration, they make flow the waters of love and goodwill where otherwise would flame forth the fire of hate, they lay the solid foundation for the solution of baffling problems, and they help to make men think of the Christ who understood.

The Christ looked into the very depths of human beings, saw in utter nakedness the motives for their actions, and then dealt justly, wisely, and mercifully with them. Partly because He understood so well, souls believed in Him and found the upward way.

Perplexing problems of today will not be solved by hopeless ranting, platitudinous chanting, or unsympathetic denunciation. This is true of religion, government, and international affairs as well as of individual affairs. True, such vociferous behavior makes the headlines, fills the pews, and may make soldiers march, but the roots of problems continue to pain. Kipling was aware of a great truth when he said:

If we knew the cares and trials,
Knew the efforts all in vain,
And the bitter disappointment,
Understood the loss and gain—
Would the grim eternal roughness
Seem—I wonder—just the same
Should we help where we now hinder
Should we pity where we blame?

Ah! we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force—
Knowing not the fount of action
Is less turbid at its source;
Seeing not amid the evil

All the golden grains of good;
And we'd love each other better
If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Knowing what spur the action gives,
Often we would find it better,
Just to judge all actions good;
We should love each other better
If we only understood.

QUESTIONNAIRE RESULTS

Question No. 7 read, "Should the editorial staff work under the direction of the General Conf. Board of Education, Board of Publication, under Young People's Union, independently? The number of points given to each of the respective agencies listed was as follows, 3, 4, 8, and 1. Thus, the Young People's Union and the Board of Publication were most favored by those replying.

Question No. 8 reads, "What pictures and other pictorial material definitely improve a young people's paper?" Some comments were:

"Picture material pertaining to the season is excellent. Example: Sistine Madonna at Christmas time."

"Retreat and convention pictures, young people's rally groups, speakers, temperance cartoons, season decorations."

"Bible pictures, or pictures of great works of art, or pictures of Mennonite places."

"Pictures of general interest, Retreat groups, occasionally a Church picture, personal and committee groups, Missionary sketches with illustrations, etc. the daily press makes use of pictures with good results. I believe cost would be justified."

Goodwill to All

(World Goodwill Day)

Senior C. E. Topic for May 21, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Goodwill Toward All Mankind
Luke 6:27-38

I. Worship Service

1. Song: "We've a story to tell to the nations."
2. Some one gives the passage for the main topic by memory.
3. The Lord's Prayer, in unison.
4. Special music by a group in costumes of various nations, or with flags of various nations.

II. Introduction of topic by leader

In international relations, goodwill represents the positive approach to world peace. Only through the spirit of love and forbearance will progress be made in solving the many problems of international relations. Through friendly association, through deeds of kindness, by the road of justice and fair dealing, by the way of Christ-like service, even nations and peoples can live in peace with each other.

> "In Christ there is no East or West,
> There is no North or South,
> But one great fellowship of love."

Because this ideal seems so difficult to achieve, and almost impossible to reach, does not mean that Christians will not strive and work for it.

III. Suggested Topics for short talks

1. A good-will visit. I Kings 10:1-9
2. Goodwill expressed in trade between nations, 2 Kings 5:9-18
3. The angels proclaiming goodwill, Luke 2:10-14
4. Jesus overcoming racial prejudice, John 5:39-42

IV. For Discussion:

1. Lindbergh spreading goodwill through his plane flights.
2. Can trade treaties today be helpful in promoting peace and friendliness between nations? Illustration, Hull's trade agreements.
3. Are missions today the best goodwill message the church has to give?
4. What place do leaders like Kagawa fill in promoting world peace?

V. Facts for study:

What have Mennonites done to actively promote the cause of peace? The Friends are known the world over for their sacrificial service of love. They have done much to render service in war-torn areas in time of war, and rehabilitating peoples and places after the war, as well as living their life of love and service among the needy in other neglected places. They spread the ideas of peace by way of caravans, and peace institutes. Should we make the Institute of International Relations at Bethel College a vehicle through which we work for peace? What other ways can we find, as Mennonites, to work for peace? Could the Mennonites make their influence felt as workers for peace if they all and often wrote to their senators and representatives that they disapprove of huge armaments, that they are in favor of real neutrality, that they desire economic cooperation between nations? Should Mennonites more generally keep in touch with peace thoughts of other groups through a magazine like the "Fellowship"? (Have leader secure a copy of this.). Would it be advisable to keep in touch with Publica Action, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, to be informed of what is going on in our nation?

VI. "A Little White Cross"

"Barring a God-sent miracle, there is to be another war.
Stop and think—this is not just crying 'Wolf.'
Most of my friends have sons, big and strong.

Remember this, they are the first to go always.
You have given them all you have. You have watched them since the time they were little helpless things,
Watched them as their legs stretched long and straight and their chests became strong,
Watched them until you must look up at them, not down, and have been proud.
Can't you do something that will allow them to be more than a memory and a little white cross in those ghastly acres of the dead?"

May 18. Gifts to God are all from him. 1 Chron. 29:10-17.
May 119. Withholding is robbing. Mal. 3:7-12.
May 20. Cannot serve God and mammon. Matt. 6:19-25.
May 21. Topic. Ps. 24:1; 1 Pet. 4:10.

Opening song: "Cast Thy Bread Upon The Waters"

Scripture reading: Ps. 24:1; 1 Pet. 4:10; also Deut. 8:11-20; Matt. 6:19-25; 1 Tim. 6:10.

Prayer by Superintendent

Introduction by leader

A fine young man once came to Jesus and inquired how he might become a Christian. He was the type of young man that Jesus immediately loved him, but he knew that the thing which hindered his spiritual life was the love of money. The advice of Jesus was that he sell all that he had and follow Him. The young man went his way without replying. The thought that he might have to give his wealth in exchange for the fellowship of Jesus was too much for him. As Christian Endeavors let us not make the same mistake and let the appeal of money lay hold on us. Let us be honest with God.

Read Mal. 3:7-12.

Will a man rob God? When we repeat our C. E. pledge we say "I will be Christian." That statement does not mean that we pledge God the tag-ends of our time and money. Are we sure that we maintain a proper balance between the money we spend for ourselves and that which we give God? "Money spent on myself may be a millstone about my neck; money spent on others may give me wings like the angels."—Hitchcock.

Song: "Rescue the Perishing"

Program suggestion: We believe it would be interesting to have various members represent the different coins of money and give stories of what happened to them. Have these stories given just as if the money were speaking. The aim being to show wise and unwise ways of spending the gifts of God; 1 Chron. 29:10-17.

Thought to be given just before the offering:

The giving of money may be rendered as truly "unto the Lord" as the singing of a hymn or the delivery of a sermon. It should be a sacred service. This would be a fine time to start using an offertory prayer if you do not as yet do that. We would suggest the first verse of "We Give Thee but Thine Own" be used either before or immediately after the offering. The first verse reads:

We give Thee but Thine own.
What e'er the gift may be:
All that we have is Thine alone,
A trust, O Lord, from Thee.

Offering

Announcements

Questions you might consider:

1. When does the desire for wealth become sinful? When money is loved and laid up because it is loved it becomes sinful.

2. Does God wish us to set aside money for the future? a. God commends it in nature. The harvest of one season is to serve us until the next. The bee stores up honey in the summer to serve it for the winter. b. Through Biblical history and experience. As in Egypt so in all lands there are seasons of plenty and seasons of scarcity. We need to lay aside for a "rainy day."

3. How can one be a good steward? a. By acknowledging that God is the source of all things even the power to get money. Deut. 8:11-20. b. By realizing that if God would He could take away all financial success. c. By admitting that that which he has is not his own but God's. d. By studying the needs of men. e. By always asking God for guidance in the affairs of money.

4. The above discussions should lead up to an informal discussion on tithing.

Conclusion: The one who begins by giving tithes will grow as his fortune grows. The one who delays will harden. Money is never the measure of manhood unless consecrated to Christ. "It is ourselves we give to Him; it is ourselves he demands."

Song: "Give Me Thy Heart"

Close with sentence prayers asking God to guide us as our earning power grows so may our wisdom grow in the use of that which we earn.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for May 21, 1939

Theme: "This Is My Father's World. He Speaks to Us Through It." Amos 4:13; Acts 7:49-50

I. Worship Period

1. Call to worship by instrumental music.
2. Opening sentence in unison: "He hath made everything beautiful in His time. Ecc. 3:11a.
3. Song: "O Worship the King." v. 1, 2, 3, 4.
4. Leader's Prayer.
5. Scripture (read responsively by two juniors):

   Ps. 95:6: O come let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord our maker.

   Ps. 100:2: Serve the Lord with gladness: Come before His presence with singing. Know ye that the Lord is God: it is He that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are His people and the sheep of His pasture.

   Ps. 105:2: Sing unto Him, sing Psalms unto Him: talk ye of all his wondrous works.

   Ecc. 3:11a: He hath made everything beautiful in His time.

   Ps. 33:5b: The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord.

   Ps. 96:9a: O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.

   Ps. 96: 3, 4: Declare His glory among the heathen, His wonders among all people, for the Lord is great, and greatly to be praised.
6. Sing in unison, with heads bowed, the last verse of "Holy, Holy, Holy" as a prayer song.
7. Sing (standing) "This Is My Father's World."

II. Mission Minutes

1. Several juniors should report on items of interest found in the letters of our missionaries as found published in our church papers.
2. Leader should explain what we mean by "Foreign Mission" and "Home Mission."

III. Study Period. Aim: To help the junior to realize God's love and care as it is manifested in the world in which we live.

1. Leader's heart-talk: Jesus came to "show us the Father"—to tell us that God loves us and how much he loves us. But we can also learn to know God through the wonderful world that he has made.

   One of the most wonderful things in our life is that God speaks to us, although we can not see him, and we can hear his voice if we listen. Adam and Eve heard it in the garden. Noah heard it before and after the flood. Moses heard it at the burning bush. The children of Israel heard it in the wilderness. Elijah heard it in the lonely mountain. God's voice is everywhere. He tells us that he loves us and cares for us and has mercy on us. We can hear his voice if we "tune-in," if we listen. Jesus often said, "Let him who hath ears, hear." We must listen to what God says to us in His word, but we must also listen to what He says to us through this beautiful world that he has created.
2. Several juniors give short talks.
   a. Gen. 9:12-16 and 8:22. God's promise of love and mercy.
   b. Exodus 3:1-8a. God calls his children, and promises them a Savior.
3. Let ten juniors each memorize one of the following. Stand to recite, speak slowly, clearly and distinctly. Ps. 19:1; Isa. 1:18; Col. 1:16; Heb. 2:14; Isa. 40:5; Job. 26:7, 8; Ps. 119:64; Ps. 8:1, 3, 4; Ps. 50:10 and 11; Ps. 104:24.
4. Story given by a junior.
5. Song: "For the Beauty of the Earth."
6. Closing prayer by a junior.
7. Doxology.

THE VOICE OF GOD

"In an old Jewish book there is a story which helps us to see how great a wonder the voice of God was to the children of Israel. They were at the foot of Mount Sinai when they heard it. The mountain was covered with smoke. Lightning flashed out of the darkness; great peals of thunder shook the air; the ground trembled; the priests blew terrible blasts through their trumpets; the people were crying out in fear. In the midst of their terror there rose quietly along the roaring of the storm a still, clear sound. It was the voice of God. Everybody heard it. It seemed to come from everywhere. "It is coming from the south," cried some; "It is coming from the north," cried others. When they turned to the south, they heard it sounding in the north; when they turned to the north, they heard it coming from the south. "It is in the east!" "It is in the west!" cried others. When the people turned to the east, they heard it sounding in the west; when they bent their ears to the west, they heard it in the east. As they were turning to every side to hear it, some cried out, "It is coming down from the sky." Then they looked upward and as they looked they heard it rising out of the ground. It was everywhere—east and west, above and beneath, behind and before." It told them of his love and care. It told them to obey and be happy.

—Alexander Macleod in "The Child Jesus."

If God be infinitely holy, just and good, He must take delight in those creatures that resemble Him most in these perfections. —Atterbury.

CORRESPONDENCE

GRACE CHURCH, LANSDALE, PA., 4-18-39

It is good to report that our Sunday School and church are in a growing spirit. New interest is manifested in the Lord's work here. Sunday School enrollment is a few short of three hundred, while the congregation numbers about two hundred. Several applicants in the class of instruction will be baptized in the near future, which proves that our Pastor's work and words are not in vain. We hope the Lord will continue to bless us together in His service.

In January, a social fellowship supper of the Young People of the Eastern District Conference was held here and an uplifting program was presented. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Erland Waltner, pastor of the Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa. We were also richly blessed later in the month with a series of lectures by Rev. Max I. Reich, a faithful Christian Jew who knows the Bible from cover to cover and can explain and expound it to the hearer. In January Miss Elsie Pfister, our missionary in the Kentucky mountains, was with us. In February the Missionary W. F. Unruh family spent an evening with us in service. February 22 a well attended Brotherhood meeting was held, when Charles Weigand of Philadelphia gave an illustrated chalk talk to an appreciative audience.

Palm Sunday morning and evening we again had a full house, when our former pastor and family, Rev. D. J. Unruh, now of Pandora, Ohio, were with us and renewed old acquaintances.—Easter sunrise services were conducted by the Young People assisted by the members of the Bluffton College Vesper choir which gave a sacred concert in the local Senior High school auditorium on Saturday evening, April 8.—On Sunday afternoon, April 16, the Young People of the Eastern District Conference held a rally at this church. Rev. Alfred A. Murray of the local Baptist church gave the address.

We are looking forward with renewed faith in God.

—Mildred Fretz, Corr.

BETHEL COLLEGE CH., NORTH NEWTON, KS.

Some of the highlights of the recent months in the activities of the Bethel College church were:

1. The every-member canvass, soon after New Year, in which every home in the church was visited by committees appointed for the purpose. The spirit of Christian fellowship and the helpful suggestions and criticisms arising out of this project were definitely helpful.

2. Long to be remembered, also, was a splendid series of sermons before Easter on some of the vital questions arising during the last week of our Lord before his passion. The spirit of love and fellowship has been unusually warm this year.

3. The men's choir, under the inspirational leadership of Paul Baumgartner, known to most of the readers of THE MENNONITE for his efficient services as secretary-treasurer of the Mennonite Song Festival, has been going out, giving stewardship programs under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the church.

4. The young people's program on the junior and intermediate levels have been encouragingly constructive. Meetings have been regular, and well attended, and the activity program and social events have been well planned, executed, and integrated.

This week the Women's Missionary Society is sponsoring a Mother-Daughter banquet which is by this time an annual event.

Our sincere wish is that the grace of God so richly bestowed upon us may be the cherished blessing of all our fellow Christians everywhere.

LIMA, OHIO, 4-21-39

We were glad to be hostess to the annual union meeting of the Women's Mission Societies in this area. The churches represented were Grace and St. John of Pandora, Ebenezer and First Mennonite of Bluffton, New Stark and First Mennonite of Lima. Each society gave a musical number on the program. The speaker was Mrs. John Thiessen, a missionary from India. Each church was well represented and our building was filled to capacity.

Our children's work for the winter was closed with a program on Palm Sunday. We are looking forward now to the Summer Bible School in June.

Mrs. R. E. Bixel, Corr.

—From News Letter, Salem Church, Freeman, S. D. —Under the auspices of the Mennonite Ministerial Conference, Dr. Ernest M. Wadsworth, director of the Great Commission Prayer League, has been scheduled to give a series of addresses at Freeman, for the purpose of Spiritual Awakening and Growth. The speaker will also address the Freeman College assembly each morning.—Pertaining to the coming N. D. Conference, which will convene in this church, the Women's Missionary Society announces that it plans to have the families of the church take their guests home for meals during the conference. However, for the convenience of such families who live at a considerable distance, accommodations will be provided in the basement, where they may entertain their guests for the noon meal.

— Mennonite Radio Hour over Station K. F. H., Wichita. — Since last fall this station has broadcasted a fifteen minute program under the caption, "Mennonite Hour," every Saturday from 9:30-9:45 a. m. The Western District Conference had requested its Education Committee to do something along this line. This Committee asked the brethren J. N. Smucker, David Wedel and Menno Schrag to act as a Radio Committee and K. F. H., Wichita, agreed to donate the use of their station at the time mentioned free, provided the programs would be of such a nature that the public would appreciate them. At first dialogues on Mennonite history were attemped, but soon the manager suggested that the Bethel College Dramatics department be asked to take a hand in it. This was done and now for some months dramatizations of Bible stories from early Old Testament history have been given. Prof. B. Bargen prepared the plays and Miss Thelma Reinhard coached the student casts.— It is now found necessary to discontinue the series at least during the summer, because of a shifting of the time by the station and because the editor of the plays finds it impossible to devote further time to the work. It may be, though, that arrangements can be made to give a program each summer month, from this or another station.

— First Church, Philadelphia, Pa. — The following are our delegates to the E. D. Conference at the Bally Menn. Church, Hereford, Pa.: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bechtel, Mrs. Eva Vansworth, Miss C. Niswander, Mr. E. K. Kremer, Mr. Wilbur Lauer, Jr.. and Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Plenert.

— From the Cheyenne and Arapaho Messenger. — On Sunday, March 12, two of our churches were favored by the visit of Rev. H. N. Harder of Enid and a number of young people who presented a fine program.—Two old pioneers have recently died. John Williams died suddenly from an attack of hemmorrhage of the lungs. The previous Sunday he had intepreted at the Mennonite church on the topic, "Heaven." He had also planned to speak at the occasion of the reception of his nephew, James Fire. His wish was that those church members who had left the church might come back. The other old timer was Mr. Strongwolf, who lived to be 90 years of age. He had risen to the position of ceremonial leader in his tribe. Before death he confessed faith in Christ as his personal Savior.

Temporal and Eternal Things. Over the triple doorways of the Cathedral of Milan there are three inscriptions, spanning the splendid arches. Over one is carved a beautiful wreath of roses, and underneath is the legend: "All that which pleases is but for a moment." Over the other is a sculptured cross, and there are the words: "All that which troubles us is but for a moment." But underneath the great central entrance to the main aisle is the inscription: "That only is important which is eternal."

— Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebr. — "I am sending you the program for the Northern Dist. Conference, to be held in the Salem Church, at Freeman, S. D., June 10-13. Will it be possible to publish it for May 2nd issue? It not then for the May 9th issue, and again for the May 30 issue."—We are glad to have this program this early, that is the way it should be. And we are glad that we are given the choice of two dates. Conference programs have the right of way. But crowded as we are with contributions for the paper, we will bring this program May 9th, with Brother Friesen's permission.—Editor.

— After Easter—What? — After Easter some people declare a moratorium on church attendance. After Easter some people revert to a state of cold indifference until the church bells of September awaken them from their spiritual slumber again. How pathetic! Is the Easter Service a funeral rite by which we bury for five months our religious fervor? Is it not rather a service of NEW LIFE which should put renewed enthusiasm into all our church work. Let us demonstrate that Christ lives in the people of Second Mennonite Church — after Easter. —E. W.

— First Church, Bluffton, Ohio. — There will be a meeting this afternoon (April 23) of those interested to form a Bluffton College Associate group. The purpose of this organization is to secure closer cooperation between the college and the church. Similar organizations have already been formed in some of the Indiana and Illinois churches.

— Mrs. Valdo Petter, in asking us to continue to remember their work in our prayers, says:—"Maybe some of our friends get tired of hearing us always say "pray for us and the work." But beloved if you were here and could see how the devil holds sway in the hearts and lives of these precious souls whom Christ came to set free, you would realize with us that only through the power of the Holy Spirit working in their hearts, can we ever expect to see souls set free from the fierce bondage that they are now in.

—Worker's Exchange.

SPRING.—The year is repeating its old story again. We are come, thank God! to its most charming chapter. The violets and the Mayflowers are its inscriptions or vignettes. It always makes a pleasant impression on us, when we again open these pages of the book of life. — Goethe.

As the World Turns

by Robert Kreider

Few would dispute the observation that the American radio and press (periodical like Time) are now building up a terrific war psychosis. On all cylinders, the press is screaming out against the fascist front and chanting out a dirge for more deadly and extensive defenses.

George Seldes' book, Freedom of the Press, becomes at this moment of hysteria a "must" book for us, the gullible public, who believe everything we see in print. Seldes makes the shocking statement that ninety per cent of the readers of the world press are the victims of purposeful propaganda. The author fully documents his book with countless illustrations of the distortion and suppression of news, and gives the reasons behind it. It is little wonder therefore, that many book-critics employed by the large newspapers have "neglected" to review this dynamite-laden book.

In Freedom of the Press, Seldes pools his own experiences with those of scores of other journalists to reveal the truth that newspapers are not free — that newspapers are bound by influence and pressure exerted by advertisers, utilities, corporations, political bosses, and "friends." With vitality and fearlessness he portrays the journalistic side to the defeat of the Tugwell pure food and drug bill at the hands of patent medicine manufacturers, fabricated "Red" scares, falacious misinformation about the revolutions in Russia, Italy, and Germany.

One of the offenders in this treacherous occupation of distorting the news is the Associated Press (AP), the agency which supplies all of the national and international news in the papers we read. For example, in 1927 the Associated Press disseminated acknowledged falsehoods of a group desiring an anti-Mexican campaign aimed at intervention in the government of our southern neighbor. And so Seldes continues, piling up example after example to indicate that the news we read, especially the foreign news, is not always the embodiment of truth, but often quite the opposite.

The moral in Seldes' Freedom of the Press is this —when we read the news these days from Europe, "take it with a grain of salt" (to coin a new phrase).

Thoughts of Prominent Men on "Mother"

All that I am, my mother made me.—J. Q. Adams.

Men are what their mothers made them.—Emerson.

One good mother is worth a hundred school masters.—George Herbert.

The future destiny of the child is always the work of the mother. France needs nothing so much to promote her regeneration as good mothers. —Napoleon I.

A mother's prayers, silent and gentle, can never miss the road to the throne of all bounty.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A mother has, perhaps, the hardest earthly lot; and yet no mother worthy of the name ever gave herself thoroughly for her child who did not feel that, after all, she reaped what she had sown.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Mighty is the force of motherhood! It transforms all things by its vital heat; it turns timidity into fierce courage, and dreadless defiance into tremulous submission; it turns thoughtlessness into foresight, and yet stills all anxiety into calm content; it makes selfishness become self-denial, and gives even to hard vanity the glance of admiring love.—George Eliot.

She led me first to God;
Her words and prayers were my young spirit's dew—
For when she us'd to leave
The fireside every eve,
I knew it was for prayer that she withdrew.
How often has the thought
Of my mourn'd mother brought
Peace to my troubled spirit, and new power
The tempter to repel!
Mother, thou knowest well
That thou hast bless'd me since my natal hour.
—John Pierpont.

When Eve was brought unto Adam, he became filled with the Holy Spirit, and gave her the most sanctified, the most glorious of appellations. He called her Eva—that is to say, the Mother of All. He did not style her wife, but simply mother—mother of all living creatures. In this consists the glory and the most precious ornament of woman.—Luther.

To All Mothers

Hail! Mothers of the ages
  Of every land and clime!
We bring a humble tribute
  To Eternity from Time.

We bow in silent worship
  Before the God who made
Your love so strong and tender
  No matter race or shade.

On this, your day, we ask Him
  That children grown and small,
Of our restless generation
  May respond unto your call,

And put aside the barriers
  In the way of brotherhood,
While all the wide world kneels in love
  To honor Motherhood.
  —Mrs. Sara Marie Penner, Wayland, Iowa.

A LETTER TO MOTHER

Dear Mother: In this morning's mail the postman handed me
A letter, which I know will interest you, as it did me.
The sender made a sweet request and asked if I would write
A little poem for Mother's Day, and I replied, "Alright."

My goodness! What a bill to fill! I scarce knew where to start;
"But then," I mused, "the natural way, would be right from the heart."
I used to think a Mother was a child's world of bliss,
But now that I have grown up, I still long for your kiss.

I've learned that miles can't separate, or other loves destroy
The sacredness that binds us close and gives us such rare joy.
Your Mother-love is far too high and precious to define;
This is my prayer throughout the year: "God bless you," Mother mine.

Now I, too, am a Mother. Just a new one, it is true;
I want to be the kind you were when God gave me to you.
I want—like you—to guard his steps against life's bitter water,
And seek God's care.—With deepest love and gratitude—Your daughter.

—Mrs. Graycelyn Polstra Augsburger, Albany, Oreg.

A Little Parable For Mothers

By Temple Bailey

The young Mother set her feet on the path of life. "Is the way long?" she asked.

And her Guide said: "Yes. And the way is hard. And you will be old before you reach the end of it. But the end will be better than the beginning."

But the young Mother was happy, and she would not believe that anything could be better than these years. So she played with her children, and gathered flowers for them along the way, and bathed them in the clear streams; and the sun shone on them, and life was good, and the young Mother cried, "Nothing will ever be lovelier than this."

Then night came, and storm, and the path was dark, and the children shook with fear and cold, and the Mother drew them close and covered them with her mantle, and the children said, "Oh Mother, we are not afraid, for you are near, and no harm can come." And the Mother said, "This is better than the brightness of the day, for I have taught my children courage."

And the morning came, and there was a hill ahead and the children climbed and grew weary, and the Mother was weary, but at all times she said to the children, "A little patience, and we are there." So the children climbed, and when they reached the top, they said, "We could not have done it without you, Mother." And the Mother, when she lay down that night, looked up at the stars, and said, "This is a better day than the last, for my children have learned fortitude in the face of hardness. Yesterday I gave them courage. Today I have given them strength."

And the next day came strong clouds which darkened the earth—clouds of war and hate and evil, and the children groped and stumbled, and the Mother said: "Look up. Lift your eyes to the Light." And the children looked and saw above the clouds an Everlasting Glory, and it guided them and brought them beyond the darkness. And that night the Mother said, "This is the best day of all, for I have shown my children God."

And the days went on, and the weeks and the months and the years, and the Mother grew old, and she was little and bent. But her children were tall and strong, and walked with courage. And when the way was hard, they helped their Mother; and when the way was rough, they lifted her, for she was as light as a feather, and at last they came to a hill, and beyond the hill they could see a shining road and golden gates open wide.

And the Mother said, "I have reached the end of my journey. And now I know that the end is better than the beginning, for my children can walk alone, and their children after them."

And the children said, "You will always walk with us, Mother, even when you have gone through the gates."

And they stood and watched her as she went on alone, and the gates closed after her. And they said, "We cannot see her, but she is with us still. A Mother like ours is more than a memory. She is a Living Presence."—From Good Husekeeping, by permission.

"American Motherhood of 1939"

What a wonderful opportunity a truly Christian mother has in raising a family of sons and daughters to attain a semblance of the image of God and to become outstandingly useful, has been demonstrated by MRS. OTELIA AUGSBURGER COMPTON of Wooster, Ohio, who has just been elected American Mother of 1939 by the "American Mothers' National Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation."

Mrs. Compton is the widow of a late professor of philosophy at Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio. One of the strong reasons why she won this distinction is that she has three sons listed in "Who is Who" and a daughter of prominence. These children of hers have been the recipients of thirty-one college and university degrees and they hold positions of influence for good. Dr. Karl Taylor Compton is president of Massachussetts Institute of Technology; Professor Arthur Holly Compton is a scientist and Noble prize winner; Wilson Martindale Compton is general manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, and daughter Mary is the wife of a prominent missionary in India, Dr. C. Herbert Rice.

What interests us Mennonites particularly is the fact that Mrs. Compton was the daughter of a God-fearing Mennonite family by the name of Augsburger, of Wooster, Ohio. Being enterprising and bent on making herself genuinely useful, she managed to get a college education by working eight years for it, earning her way through by teaching. When she was 72 years old, she learned to drive a car to be able to take her crippled college professor husband out into the fresh air.

Having been so signally successful and blessed of God in bringing up her children, she has had many requests to tell how she did it. In doing this she emphasized two things: 1. Daily prayer for wisdom and strength and self control. 2. Constant personal attention to the care and development of the young lives, instead of turning them over into the hands of nurses. She writes: "We cannot live our children's lives, but we must ever be near them to guide. We must constantly discipline ourselves if we are to train children right." And in remarking about her desire to make her children the best she possibly could, she says: "I felt that nothing was too hard or too much of a sacrifice to achieve the kind of children I wanted to send out into the world." What a fine mother to emulate!

Save India Through India's Women

by Anbu M. Azariah, Wife of the Bishop of Dornakal, Central India

Out of the whole population of India, 352 million or more than eighty-nine percent live in villages. In spite of Government efforts at rural reconstruction, conditions in most villages are decidedly backward. Until recent years, nearly all village Christians were drawn from the "depressed classes." These still live in thatched huts outside of the village proper. These huts in themselves are great fire hazards; earthen cooking pots, with a brass vessel for water, large baskets for storing grain and other food stuffs, a rope bed or two and some mats of wild date palm leaves, are all the furniture in the hut. The wife and mother rises at dawn, pounds her grain, does some hasty cooking and departs for coolie work with her husband and children. She does not return until dusk, when she again cooks a meal for her family. For nine months of the year, this is her life, the remaining three hot weather months are less occupied, but are proportionately "lean."

In the farmer class, cattle and man live under the same roof, in deplorable unsanitary conditions. The filthy condition of the neighborhood, the cow dung heaps everywhere, and the flies are the root cause of much intestinal disorder.

Even under those conditions there is a much brighter side of the Christian family. Christianity lets in light, even in the darkest places. There is, for instance, the village Christian school for the children. Here the boys, and an increasing number of girls, are sent. There is the evening service, with hearty singing. The truths of the Christian religion, simply taught, give a new meaning to downtrodden lives. There is on the faces of some a look of inward peace and joy, and outward cleanliness which cannot be mistaken when compared with the non-Christian neighbors.

The Mother's Union, in spite of all difficulties caused by illiteracy and ignorance, has been a means of strengthening the faith of these village women, of improving their standards of life, and of giving them a sense of fellowship with other Christian women. The Union members are also able to preach the Gospel to others. During the "Week of Witness" in 1938, they went out to their caste neighbors with the Good News and witnessed for Christ under the leadership of teachers' wives.

But we must look outside of the village itself to see what Christ has done for the women of the depressed classes. Having passed through the Church's boarding schools, these girls have become teachers, nurses, doctors, wives of the clergy and Government officers. These are giving to India today many instances of the ideal Christian home worked out in practice.

In a village the teacher and his wife are looked upon as the leaders of the people. Where the wife is a very earnest woman the women of the congregation follow her example. Study schools for the teachers' wives and the wives of the clergy are conducted by the women missionaries, often assisted by the officers of the Mothers' Union.

The women have regular classes daily, from one o'clock to two forty-five, when the babies and children are left at home in the husband's charge. They learn a short outline of the Old Testament history, the Life of Christ, and the Acts of the Apostles. Once a week they go out and preach to non-Christian women. They also go out another day to do social and welfare work among the village women in the neighborhood. Every noon, intercessions are held by the women in turn.

They also write essays on home life, training of children, village service, and kindred subjects. They do Sunday school teaching for the local village men and women. Thus they are trained to take upon themselves the responsibility of the leadership among women.

If you want to transform the nation, transform the mothers. If you desire to transform the mothers, transform the girls, catch the children. The child, the girl, the wife, the mother afford great opportunities of service for India. Save the women and so save the nation. —Religious Digest.

REVIVAL MEETINGS IN PORTLAND

Rejoice and praise the Lord for such work!

March 16-26, 1939, Brother Homer Leisy, Salem, Oregon, conducted a successful series of Evangelistic Meetings in the Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon.

Brother Leisy is a business man, but in his spare time he frequently conducts religious services. He has a unique and also attractive way of bringing his messages to the hearts of his hearers by illustrating his Gospel messages. In reporting his work to the Board, Mr. Leisy wrote: "I used charts on the Judgments, Rewards, Resurrection, the Second Coming, etc. Then I used approximately 100 cartoons or sketches illustrating the main points in the messages."

The Lord's presence was manifestly felt and souls accepted Christ as their personal Savior, while others reconsecrated themselves to Christ. In other instances apologies were made and minor differences were settled in the Spirit of Christ.

Meeting For Historic Peace Churches

Realizing the importance of a strong personal commitment to the principles of Christian peace, the officials of the Kansas Institute of International Relations are providing a special discussion group for the members of the Historic Peace Churches, to meet each afternoon of the institute, beginning June 13.

To an ever increasing degree the Kansas Institute is becoming a place where the believers in Christian peace are strengthening their convictions, and where countless others are learning to know peace as Jesus taught it, as well as pertinent facts about the world situation. All who attend are made to realize, in the words of Miss Muriel Lester, who was the spiritual leader last year, that "the practice of the presence of God does away with the things that make for war: fear withers away, prejudice cannot live before God, and hate dies in the presence of God."

Last year four states, seventeen vocations, eighteen denominations, and fifty-four cities and towns were represented at the institute. Who can estimate the great power for peace and intelligent, righteous living wielded by the institute when all these intelligent, inspired leaders return to work in their respective communities? Who can doubt that here is a wide-open field for a new type of Mennonite missionary activity?

This year, when the opportunity to witness for peace is even greater, the institute officials are adding this new feature, the discussion group for the Historic Peace Churches. Leaders from the Friends, Brethren and Mennonites will guide the discussions, assisted at times by various institute lecturers. Subjects will be discussed such as historical surveys of the peace testimony of the three groups, experiences of the conscientious objectors during the last war, peace training and sacrificial service in peace time, and what our boys can do in the event of another war.

The Mennonites are numerically the strongest of these three groups in this area, and should, therefore, send the largest number of delegates. Every Mennonite minister should be there; every community should be represented; leaders of youth should be present. Attendance at the whole institute is desirable, but is not required to enjoy this special discussion group. There will likely be a small registration fee for those not attending the regular sessions of the institute.

Watch the papers for a complete list of topics and discussion leaders, and pray earnestly that great good may come from this endeavor.

—E. L. Harshbarger, Dean.

O wondrous power! how little understood,—
Entrusted to the mother's mind alone,
To fashion genius, form the soul for good,
Inspire a West, or train a Washington!

Do You Know?

At our last annual conference a resolution was passed that we appeal for a doctor to be sent to India this fall or as quickly as possible. We have prayed and are still doing so that the Lord of the harvest should send out workers according to the words found in the book of St. Luke, the physician. Luke 10:2: "Therefore said he unto them, the harvest truly is great but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers unto his harvest."

It has come to us that maybe you do not know that a doctor is needed here. Therefore if any of you have been prepared by the Lord we pray you to give this call prayerful thought for a place of opportunity is open to you right here in India. We are sorry if we have been slow making the need known to you.

Beverage Alcohol and the Home

Jer. 35:5-10; Ejh. 5:15-21; 6:1-4

Topic: What Alcohol Costs Our Homes

Introduction

The vast majority of people live in homes, so the home happiness is of very great consequence. People can endure with some composure, many unideal things, if within the home there is sympathy, appreciation and love. The effect upon children in an unhappy home is deplorable. They will seek satisfaction elsewhere. Many factors contribute to its happiness, while others have a definitely blighting effect. The beverage use of alcohol in any form, is probably the most harmful of all things affecting the home welfare.

An Example of Family Loyalty Jer. 35:5-10

The Rechabites, descendants of Horeb, brother-in-law of Moses, faithfully held to the command of Jonadab, whom they regarded as their father, not to plant vineyards, nor drink any wine (v 6). The lesson incident shows their loyalty to their family traditions, by steadfastly refusing to become like the people around them. Jeremiah brought a company of the Rechabites into the temple, set wine before them and asked them to drink (v 5), not to tempt them—he knew their answer—but to make of their example an object lesson for the unfaithful people of Judah, who knew well God's will, yet persistently disobeyed Him. Many professing Christians today know His will and nature's law regarding the use of alcoholic beverages, yet persist in disregarding both. To maintain the tradition of total abstinence from intoxicants, is one of the wisest and most beneficial things that can be done.

Understanding What the Lord's Will Is vs. 15-17

We must not lightly take it for granted that our manner of life is right. We need to look into it carefully. "Walk circumspectly" (v 15), not foolishly and unwisely, that is, live carefully, avoiding such things as are evils in their nature or tendency. We need to use carefully every opportunity to do right (v 16), acting as wise persons in a world where there is much evil. We can avoid being foolish by understanding the will of the Lord.

Filled With the Spirit vs. 18-21

Paul here warns especially against the sin and folly of drunkenness in which there is excess so easily, and it is the root of almost every other kind of folly. The use of strong drink tends to destroy every noble ambition and holy desire. The only cure for the desire for alcoholic beverages, is being filled with the Spirit (v 18). This fills the heart with spiritual song and thankfulness to God in the name of Christ (vs 19, 20).

Things that Beautify Homes

Paul mentions several things which help to make happy homes. Among these are good religion where parents are filled with the spirit; a recognition of the rights of each one in the home (v 21). In the last section (vs 1-4), Paul gives advice to children and to parents concerning matters highly essential to a happy home. Children are to be obedient and parents are to be reasonable in their demands.

Alcohol the Outstanding Home Wrecker

Without question, alcohol is the champion wrecker of homes. It uses up billions of dollars that should be used for food, clothing, fuel and proper housing. It transforms worthy fathers into shiftless parasites, and often changes them into brutes. It causes love and respect to fly away. It brings disgrace to wives and children. It dooms many children, before their birth, to lives of disease and degradation. The home must feel the full force of the sin of the use of alcoholic beverages.

SERMON SKETCH

"Three 'P's' of Pentecost"

Luke 24:49; Acts 1:8

by Jacob Unruh, Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo.

With the season of Pentecost comes,many times, a desire for somewhat of the power and spirit of Pentecost. Not that we would ask for Pentecost to be repeated for that could not be, but that we might have a new passion, a new infilling of the Holy Spirit, and that we might be more fruitful in the Lord's work. In our Lord's last message to His disciples, I think, we shall find the secret summed up in the three words:

1. Prayer—"Tarry ye at Jerusalem until ye be endued with power," Luke 24:49.—Somewhere we read the story of a young people's conference, where at one of the sessions a motion was proposed to make the devotions "snappy," because of tremendous amount of business ahead. Somehow this seems to be the spirit of our day. We rush "pell-mell" into our daily task and then wonder why we were not blessed of God, or why we were so powerless. We are afraid to take time to be holy, for fear that, while "The world rushes on," we are going to be left behind. We fail to "tarry" and we miss the next big word:

2. Power—"Ye shall receive power" Acts 1:8a. It was while the disciples tarried in one accord in one place that the Promise came not merely a word fulfilled, as we generally think of a promise, but a Person sent. The Holy Spirit is a person who uses us when we submit. I think it was R. A. Torrey who said: "The Spirit is not a feeling we want to get hold of; but a Person who wants to get hold of us." It was while they tarried that they were endued with power. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint." Isa. 40:31. "Tarry," and "ye shall receive power."

3. Passion—"Ye shall be witnesses." Acts 1:8b. It is only after the power of the Holy Spirit carries us along that Christian work becomes a joy. Our Christian service may be ever so efficient and yet not effective, because there is no driving force; no real passion. It is said of the Negro preacher, that when he was asked how he knew he was called to preach, he answered, "I has de unction," and so there are those of us today who have "de unction." But tne order is always the same—prayer, power, passion.

"Take time to be Holy, the world rushes on;
Spend much time in secret with Jesus alone—
By looking to Jesus, like Him thou shalt be;
Thy friends in thy conduct His likeness shall see."
(W. D. Longstaff)

Seventy-Sixth Meeting of the Mennonite Teacher's Association

This was held at the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, April 30. The theme of the convention was "A Christian as a Light in This Dark Age."

Dr. E. L. Harshbarger presided over the afternoon session. Rev. Warkentin read scripture passages on Light and led in prayer.—The Hesston College Male Quartet sang "Some Blessed Day."

"The Need and Opportunity of Mennonite Youth to Present a Hopeful Attitude in a World of Chaos" was presented by William Juhnke. The existing need is caused by so much hopelessness, defeatism, and lack of faith. Some of the problems confronting many are crime, poverty, inability to find work, divorce in the home. To those who trust in God and follow in the footsteps of the Great Teacher, there is an opportunity to present a hopeful attitude and to be missionaries of His light, His love, and His goodwill.

"Resultant Blessings—A Fulfillment of This Great Mission" was presented by Rev. J. N. Smucker. Christians have a unifying basis to hold life together which is not found anywhere else except in the religion of Jesus Christ. Light, hope, righteousness are contagious just as the forces of evil are contagious; hence we must grow from usefulness to usefulness, from strength to strength.—The Men's chorus of the Bethel College Church sang, "Threads of Gold" and "Protect Thou Me."

"An Unrestricted Commitment for Peace" was presented by Dr. Harold C. Bender. He stated that an unrestricted commitment must mean for men to observe all things. The reason that organized peace movements sometimes collapse is because their commitment on peace has been a restricted one.

Three restrictions to a commitment for peace are (1) to restrict to outright shooting; (2) to restrict to other forms of conflict besides those of violence; (3) to restrict to personal conflicts and power used to one's advantage. Such conflicts must be abandoned. The greatest commitment is to live the life of love.

At the evening session Prof. D. D. Driver acted as chairman, Maurice A. Yoder gave the invocation and the Alexanderwohl Men's Chorus rendered a half-hour program in song.

Dr. Harold S. Bender then delivered his address on "The Mennonites Under the Southern Cross" and also showed instructive motion pictures of the Mennonite Settlements in South America which he, as a member of the Mennonite Central Committee, visited last summer.

These Mennonites had learned that the most important thing in life is to do the will of God; and that is what brought them from Russia to Paraguay and Brazil. The new environments were entirely different, and so they encountered great struggles, especially moral struggles. In spite of them, these immigrants have developed the land, especially in Paraguay, have established their schools and churches, and missions among their neighboring Indians.—It is indeed a direct leading of God that these people responded to the founding of a colony in Paraguay—a land they knew not, and one in which equipment and homes were given them through the bond of Christian love and brotherhood.

The Mennonite Central Committee has extended aid to these struggling people; so that, at present the 4,000 Mennonites under the Southern Cross are indebted to the committee with a total of $650,000. Every effort is being made to furnish aid for there is a great oportunity to build a Christian community where it is needed.

Our Concept of Patriotism

As members of the historic peace churches we love our country and sincerely work for its highest welfare. True love for our country does not mean a hatred of others. It is our conviction that only the application of the principles of peace, love, justice, liberty, and international goodwill will make for the highest welfare of our country; and the highest welfare of our country must harmonize with the highest welfare of humanity everywhere. Our faith is in security through love, protection through goodwill; and for such we are willing to make the necessary sacrifice. We are opposed to war as a method of settling disputes because it is unChristian, destructive of our highest values and sows the seed of future wars. We feel that we are true patriots because we build upon the eternal principles of right which are the only foundation of stable government in our world community.

"Foreboding"

While I am rocking you, my son,
And singing lullabies,
Someone is planning stouter planes
For death to ride the skies;
While I am dressing you, my son,
In little boyish suits,
Someone is making uniforms
And sturdy soldier boots.

While you are chasing butterflies
Amid the tangled grass,
Someone is testing chemicals
To make a deadlier gas.
And while you eat your simple fare,
Perhaps the war lords sit,
To start again the bugle notes
That only call the fit.

While I would build a splendid man,
So fine and strong, my son,
Someone, in secret, tries to make
A farther-reaching gun—
A gun that on some distant day,
When drums of battle roll,
May leave me with a golden star
And iron in my soul.

Mother's Day

As time passes on, holidays and days of special observance, like many institutions, have a tendency to lose their pristine significance. They easily become days of outward observance, days of shallow ritualism. Mother's Day may mean the giving of flowers and the presentation of a card whose words do not actually square with our daily conduct. Yea, we bring offerings, but seldom do we bring sacrifices wrenched out of considerate, daily life. Mother's Day should be a day of special meditation. It calls for at least two things, appreciation and evaluation.

All but the most calloused are aware that mother daily has been freely pouring forth her love in tender solicitude and work. Such love merits deep appreciation—appreciation which has a keen concern for the fulfillment of that personality which contributes so much to our own. Such appreciation cannot be expressed in one day and then be neglected the other 364 days in the year. It calls for periodic meditations on how to bring happiness to one who is more concerned with the happiness of others than her own.

But appreciation involves evaluation. In fact evaluation precedes sincere appreciation. A mother deserves appreciation to the degree to which she embodied in her living the basic values of life. The mother of a spoiled child has no reason to be thanked for the spoiling. Mothers steeped in selfish love are a problem. All the girls of yesterday have not become sweet angel mothers of today. So let's not eulogize mothers uncritically. Mother's Day is not flattery day. Evaluate, and be sure you really do. Undoubtedly you will find much to appreciate. Then make this a permanent appreciation by embodying in your life the worthwhile values which your mother stresses. Live your appreciation from day to day and it will speak louder than words on Mother's Day.

Tributes To Mother

"She stretched out her hand to the poor, yea, she reacheth forth her hand to the needy.

"Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come.

"She openth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness.

"She looketh well to ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.

"Her children rise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her.

"Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all." —Proverbs 31:20, 25-29.

"I think it must be written somewhere that the virtues of the mothers shall be visited on their children as well as the sins of the fathers!"—Charles Dickens.

Young People's Home Night

Burrton, Kansas.—Have you ever tried a "Home Night?" If you haven't, then try one. It certainly can bring young people together for an up-building, recreational, and unregrettable evening. Of such a nature have been our meetings. The number of young people who participate has increased. Young people like to associate and enjoy one another's company. Such a "Home Night" gives them work to do and makes them realize what constitutes wholesome recreation. This creates interest.

Invitations are made in the form of pamphlets. The first page presents a hearty invitation. The theme song, local happenings, personal parade, and who's who complete the issue. The local happenings arouse the most attention and interest.

The decorating committee adds a few touches to the church basement, making a homelike, welcome atmosphere.

The reception committee receives the guests and introduces them. Our pastor took a box, placed a stencil on top and a light underneath it. As the guests enter they sign their names on the stencil. This stencil is then placed on the duplicating machine, which produces a copy for each one present. On the top, left corner of each copy appears this statement, "Let's Build Friendships, Not Battleships." On the right side are the words, "Christian Joy Can Never End." The center contains the names and the date. This sheet of names serves as an autograph helping us to remember our friends, especially our new friends.

The evening is spent in playing various games calling for cooperation, accuracy, oneness of mind, and laughter.

Before our refreshments our pastor gives a word of encouragement and offers grace. In closing we sing our theme song and while holding hands we sing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." Blessings are assured, for God does the blessing. Ella Pankratz, Corr.

Spiritual Power

Senior C. E. Topic for May 28, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Sources of Spiritual Power. Acts 2:1-21

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide," "Love Divine, All Love Excelling."
2. Reading of Acts 2:1-21, and prayer.

II. Leader's Introductory Talk

Pentecost had all the freshness of a dewy morning. There is nothing secondhand about that great day. Neither Peter nor the congregation repeated what some one else had said or written. They spoke what they knew; they told what they had seen; they expressed only what they felt deeply. It is ever thus when the Holy Spirit works within man. There is an inner urge, a convincing power which works in and through man. It takes away doubt and fear and hesitation, and makes courageous and strong. If the Holy Spirit is to dwell within you, you must keep in close touch with God. The following story illustrates what I mean.

At the corner of two busy thoroughfares, where the traffic was noisiest, the writer watched a man who was working quietly at the foot of a telephone pole; he seemed to know by instinct what was wanted by his mate, who was at work away up at the top of the pole; first one tool, then another, or a bit of wire would be sent up, and the two were working together in such harmony that I looked more carefully, and saw that the man on the sidewalk had clamped on his head what looked like a small telephone apparatus; one ear could hear the sounds around him, but the other was deaf to them, and was listening all the time to the voice from above. Being in constant communication they could work together in wonderful unity; and then I realized anew the need for us as Christians to be ever listening for the voice from above.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. The Holy Spirit our Helper, Jr. 16, 7-15.
2. The Holy Spirit our Comforter, John 14: 15-28
3. The Holy Spirit's power, Acts 1:4-8.
4. Receiving the Holy Spirit, Acts 19:1-7.
5. The Holy Spirit interceding, Romans 8:26-28.

IV. Facts for study:

Will the Holy Spirit impel men to go forth and work with might and main for the cause of missions? Our missionaries again and again ask for our prayers. They also ask for our money. They need this to build schools and churches and hospitals, in which they can tell the people of the love of Christ. Does the spirit say, "Pray and give" to us?

How about other things like having open eyes and willing hands for those who need some help and a lift over rough places in our own neighborhoods? Must the government give all the relief, or is the Spirit still urging us "to help the poor and needy"?

Is your life more purposeful because the Spirit dwells within you, and the fruits of the Spirit fill your life? Is your heart filled with peace and poise, with quietness and hope because the Comforter dwells within?

V. Illustrations

Surrounded.—The baby was taking his first steps, faltering and uncertain, but he was a very proud baby, laughing and crowing over his own achievement as he tottered across the carpet with his mother following, her outstretched arms surrounding but not touching him. "He thinks he is doing it all alone," said grandfather. "And so he is," that mother answered. "I am not carrying him, I am not hindering him; my arms are only so close that I can catch him in a moment if he falls." So it is that we older children walk, and fancy often that we are going on our way alone. God does not hold us back as we turn in one direction or another. He does not carry us; step by step we must make our way, but always His loving arms are close to uphold us if we fall. Unseen, unfelt, the everlasting arms surround us, and we cannot fall beyond their upholding strength and tenderness.

One Alongside to Help.—Here is a little girl standing on the curb down-town on Broadway in New York, with a bundle in her arms. She has been sent on an errand, and wants to get across the street. But the electric cars are whizzing past in both directions, and wagons, and carriages, and omnibusses, and horses jam the street from curb to curb, and she cannot get across. She stands there gripping her bundle, watching eagerly for a chance, and yet afraid to venture. But the jam seems endless, and she grows very tired, and by and by the corners of her mouth begin to twitch down suspiciously, and a big tear is just starting in each eye. Just then a big policeman steps up, one of the finest, six feet tall, and heavy and broad. He seems like a giant to her. He stoops down, would you imagine he had such a gentle voice! "What's the matter?" "Can't—get—'cross." And along she goes, past cars, under horses' heads, close up to big wheels. She is just as small as before, and just as weak. But, though her eyes stay pretty big, the tears are gone, and there is an air of confidence, because this big, kind-hearted giant by her side is walking across the street as though he owned the whole place, and he is devoting his entire attention to her. That policeman is a comforter in the strict meaning of the word. Jesus says, I will send another Comforter, one who will be right by your side to help. He will stay with you all the time. In the kitchen, the sick-room, with the children, when work piles up, when things jangle or threaten to, when the baby is cross, and the patching and the baking and the sweeping seem endless, on the street, in the office, on the campus, in the store, when tempted — almost slipped, when opportunity opens for a quiet personal word, everywhere, every time, in every circumstance. One alongside to help. Is not that wonderful?—Condensed from S. D. Gordon, Quiet Talks On Power.

Call to Worship

Enough

He that is down need fear no fall,
He that is low no pride;
He that is humble ever shall
Have God to be his guide.

I am content with that I have,
Little be it or much;
And Lord, contentment still I crave,
Because thou savest such.

Fulness to such a burden is
That go on pilgrimage;
Here little, and hereafter bliss,
Is best from age to age.

—John Bunyan, F. H. Revell, co

Opening song, "Yield Not to Temptation"

Scripture Reading: Heb. 13:18; Prov. 28:22; also Prov. 26:18, 19—"Sport to them is death to others"; Jer. 17:9-11—"God searches out and punishes evil"; Eph. 4:28-32—"Instead of robbing others, earn something to share with others."

Prayer by leader followed by all joining in "Create in me a pure heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me."

Introduction of Topic by Leader

Even as a gardener must weed his soil and prepare it for the very best production, so must man prepare his heart soil. Man must weed out the wrong and impure thoughts. He must cultivate toward perfection the flowers and fruits of right and beautiful thoughts.

As intermediates we are just beginning that weeding out process in our hearts. It is needful for us to consider seriously those things which may have an evil effect upon our hearts and lives. What effect does gambling really have upon character?

I. In its effect upon ourselves.
a. It hinders the answer to the prayer we have just uttered. We are standing in the way of the answer.
b. It mars our witness as a Christian.
c. It weakens the message and work of the church.
II. In its effect upon others.
a. It creates a lust for the things of the world.
b. It tends to harden conscience.
c. It will lead to greater evils.
d. It can mean only death for it leads a soul out of contact with God.

Song "Purer Yet and Purer"

Offering—Announcements

Discussion of points mentioned above. Follow this with a discussion as to what we as intermediates can do to weaken the force of gambling in our own communities.

1. I Cor. 10:31—Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

2. Gal. 5:16.—Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

3. The fulfillment of the above verses can only reveal itself in actual practice.

a. It will mean that we will have no part in any type of gambling.

b. By engaging joyfully in Christian activities we can often influence others and draw them away from vices.

c. We can plan Christian social activities for week days so that there will be less time for yielding to temptation.

d. Youth can appeal to leading citizens in the community.

e. Youth can show a most powerful influence by its most loyal support of those things which are clean and noble and its shunning of such things as gambling. If gambling is no longer the popular thing it will have to cease.

4. Above all let us strive to live acceptably unto God. Let us pray that we may become more like the Master.

Song to be used as a prayer "More Like the Master"

Mizpah Benediction.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

CORRECTION

In lesson of the last Mennonite III, 2, the following should have been the set-up:

2. Several juniors give short talks.
   a. Gen. 9:12-16 and 8:22. God's promise of love and mercy.
   b. Exodus 3:1-8a. God cares for His children.
   c. Gen. 3:8-15. God calls His children and promises them a Savior.

Program for May 28, 1939

THEME: "This is my Fathers' World. Jesus helps Us to See It"

To th Leaders:

If possible let this be an outdoor meeting (on the church lawn or some other lovely spot) held in the late afternoon or early evening just a little while before sunset. This should not be a picnic. A spirit of reverence should pervade. Have slips of paper prepared in advance on one side of which is written a word concerning nature, and on the other the scripture passage in which that word occurs. Make as many slips as there are children attendnig the Junior Endeavor. Pass out after Leader's "Heart-talk."

I. Call to Worship

Sing (seated on the grass) one verse of "Come Thou Almighty King."

II. Worship period.

It would help very much if some one who plays the violin rather well could be secured to accompany the singing.

1. Song in Unison—"This Is My Fathers' World."

2. Opening Sentence: Ecc. 3:11a. "He hath made everything beautiful in His time."

3. Scripture by leader: Selected verses from Psalm 104.

4. Leaders' prayer.

5. Poem by a junior: "All Things Bright and Beautiful."

6. Song: I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old." (M. H. B. 365).

III. Mission Minutes

A short discussion of the difference between "Home Mission" and "Foreign Mission" work. Refer to p. 4 of the "May" number of "Missionary News and Notes" for material.

IV. Study Period.

1. Aim: To enjoy together the beauty of this wonderful world in which we live and to find out how the flowers and birds helped Jesus to teach about God's love and care.

2. Leader's Heart-talk: "This is our Father's World." He created it and it is beautiful. We so often do not see the beauty about us. Not until someone speaks of a beautiful cloud, a lovely flower, or a gorgeous sunset do we notice it and enjoy it.

We believe that Jesus must have loved the outdoors for when He walked here on earth He noticed all things, the flowers, the birds, the weeds, the sun, the grain, the sun-set. He called attention to the many things He saw and used them as objects by which to teach us about Himself and about His Kingdom, about God and His love and care for us. Everything about us speaks of His care. Let us not forget to thank God for the enjoyment He gives us through the beauties of nature. Let us always remember that "the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord (Ps. 33:5).

3. Let us look about and see some of the things God has made. Each name one thing in turn. We will then see if Jesus spoke of these things and find what lesson He taught from them. (Use slips).

Sun—Matt. 5:45a; Matt. 13:43 (two slips)
Sky—Matt. 16:2, 3a.
Bird (fowls)—Matt. 6:26.
Flowers (lilies)—Matt. 6:28, 29
Grass—Matt. 6:30, 31.
Rain—Matt. 5:45b; Matt. 7:24-27.
Hill—Matt. 5:14.
Sparrows—Matt. 10:29-31.
Tree—Mark 13:28, 29.
Cloud—Luke 12:54, 55.

4. Duet (with violin accompaniment) "God Will Take Care of You." M. H. B. No. 155).

5. Poem

"From everything the Master saw,
Lessons of wisdom He did draw,
The clouds, the color in the sky, (Mt. 16:2, 3)
The gentle breeze that whispers by (John 3:8)
The lilies that the vale adorn (Mt. 6:28)
The fields all white with waving corn. (Mk. 2:13)

The reed that trembles in the wind. (Mt. 11:5)
The tree where none its fruits may find (Mt. 21:19)
The shifting sand, the flinty rock—
That bears unmoved the tempest's shock (Mt. 27:-24, 7)
The thorns that on the earth abound, (Mt. 13:7)
The tender grass that clothes the ground, (Mt. 14:9)
The little birds that fly in air, (Mt. 10:29)
The sheep that need the shepherd's care. (Lk. 15:4)
The pearls that in the ocean lie (Mt. 13:45, 46)
The gold that tempts the miser's eye, (Luke 12:15)
All from Christ's lips some truth proclaim
Or learn to praise their Master's Name.—Selected.

6. A short conversation or general discussion of the program.

7. In unison verse for month: "Sing unto Him, sing praises unto Him; Talk ye of all His marvelous works." Ps. 105:2.

8. Solo. (While all the juniors follow the words in the Hymn Book, softly humming the melody) "Fairest Lord Jesus." (No. 123 M. H. B.).

9. Leader's closing prayer.

CORRESPONDENCE

EDEN CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KANS.

The ministers conference held here Tuesday, April 25, was well attended. The theme "Evangelism" proved to be very interesting. The ladies' mission society served the noon and evening meals in the church basement. Prof. Hohmann directeed the church choir of about 100 voices presenting Handel's Messiah in the evening.

Church attendance has been large each Sunday. The committee on building decided to postpone the consideration of enlarging the church building until fall. —Young people's Bible study meetings are held each Wednesday evening, German Bible study meetings on Thursday, led by Rev. P. P. Wedel. Intermediate and Junior Endeavor groups have been organized. They meet twice a month on Sunday afternoon. The male chorus sang at the Lorraine Avenue Church at Wichit. They also broadcast a half hour program while in Wichita. On the same Sunday the ladies' glee club sang at the Bethel Hospital and Old People's Home, in Newton.

Recent weddings include: Dan Strausz and Juanita Stucky, Charlie Gehring and Matilda Stucky. Last Sunday the approachnig marriage of Alvin Goering of this church and Esther Schmidt of Tabor Church was announced.

Following the close of grade schools many schools are having several weeks of Bible school. Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander and Miss Ella Goering are two of our instructors.

The funeral of Ben. B. Goering was held April 22. He spent many hours of suffering during the past several weeks. He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, five sons, and three daughters. His age was 55 years. —W. J.

HEREFORD MENN. CH., BALLY, PA., 4-30-39

Thirty five members of the Sunday School were awarded pins for a perfect attendance during 1938 and 12 members received honorable mention for missing only one Sunday.—Willoughby Bieler and Miss Thelma Tarter were married at our pastor's home on Saturday evening, February 4th at 7:00 o'clock. May God bless this young couple in all their life.—Death removed our oldest member on February 8, Mrs. Amanda B. Moyer. She was aged 84 years. For 65 years she was a faithful member.—The Christian Endeavor Societies conducted a worship service at the Home for the Aged, Frederick, on Good Friday evening.

The tenth Intermediate C. E. Rally of the Perkiomen Valley, of which Bally is a member, was held at Palm on Sunday evening, April 30th. Miss Jane Poling, daughter of Dr. Daniel A. Poling, was the guest speaker.—Easter Dawn Services were again held on Easter morning. The Primary Department sang one selection and repeated the 100th Psalm at the Easter Worship Service. The appearances of the younger Sunday School members always delight the congregation.—The Bluffton College Vesper Choir composed of 48 members made an appearance in our church on Saturday evening, April 15th. A crowded house was present to enjoy this well-balanced and beautifully presented program.

Our pastor has been serving us faithfully in the past with the assistance of one of the sons of the congregation, Paul R. Shelly, who is a student at the Hartford Theological Seminary and who has just been awarded the William Thompson Fellowship by the Hartford Seminary Foundation which affords an opportunity of two year's study abroad. We are equally proud of this honor bestowed upon Paul. It is a well-deserved honor and reward for his hard work.

EBENEZER CHURCH, GOTEBO, OKLA., 4-28-39

At Easter time, this year, Gotebo and the surrounding communities had the blessed opportunity of a number of Easter services. The annual Sunrise Easter Pageant, held in the Wichita mountains, attracted many. For anyone who goes there in an attitude of worship, it is indeed a mountain-top experience to be with more than 180,000 people, all seated on the mountain side listening to the songs, and seeing the scenes of the life, death, and resurrection of our Lord.

In the afternoon and evening we had the rare privilege of hearing the splendid a cappella choir of Bethel college.—Monday evening our C. E. presented its Easter program, the main feature being "The Road to Redemption," portraying in words and song the scenes of Gethsemane, Calvary and the Resurrection. The reading parts were given by Misses Hilda and Johnny Kliewer and Evelyn Brandt. The songs were sung by the young people's choir.

On Sunday, April 23, a special farewell service was held for the P. G. Kliewer family who have moved to near Walton, Kansas. Rev. J. Kroeker of Bessie, a special friend of the family, spoke in German, followed by a double number by our men's choir, after which Rev. Henry Hege spoke in English. At the close of the service the ladies of the church served a lunch. As Mr. Hege expressed it in his sermon, "Their moving is our loss but will be someone's gain." The family were all active in church, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor work, and will be greatly missed.

Arrangements are being made for baptismal services to be held on May 21.

FRIEDENSTAL CHURCH, TAMPA, KANS.

We have had wonderful meetings in the Friedenstal Church, nine miles north of Tampa, Kansas. Rev. Clyde Dirks of Hutchinson, Kansas, conducted meetings in our church for two weeks.

New souls were born into the Kingdom of God, others were brought back to God and many resolved to serve the Lord better than ever before. We have all been lifted up to a higher plane of living and have been inspired to give our all to Jesus Christ, our Redeemer.

Rev. Dirks served us with a real message of the Gospel in the evening and with a Bible study each morning at our church. To God be all the glory and praise! We pray that the Lord may use Rev. Dirks at other places as He has used him here. For we believe he is in the hands of God and preaches the true word of God. —Harvey Jantz.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ANNA HALLMAN, daughter of Christian and Barbara Moyer Musselman, was born in Milford Township, Pa., Dec. 29, 1872. Early in childhood she learned to love her Lord, was baptized Oct. 10, 1885, and admitted into the membership of the West Swamp Mennonite Church, of which she remained a faithful member to her end.

Joy and deep sorrows were mixed freely in Mrs. Hallman's life. She was bereaved of her first husband, Mr. Daniel Hedrick, also of a son from this union, and of the husband of a later marriage, Jesse Hallman.

During her life she was interested and active in the Master's vineyard. While worshipping in the East Swamp Church, she served as president of the Ladies' Aid Society, 1915-1928. In the West Swamp Ladies' Aid and Miss. Society she served as secretary and treasurer from 1915 until her death.

The following sisters and step-sons survive: Miss Emma Musselman, Milford Square, and Mrs. Ella Myers, Quakertown; Henry S. Hallman of Souderton, Howard and Nelson Hallman of York, Pa. Many friends and relatives will mourn her unexpected departure. Mrs. Hallman, was a sister of the late Rev. S. M. Musselman.—She departed from this life Saturday, April 15, thus bringing her age to 66 years, 5 months and 16 days.—Interment, Trinity Reformed Church, Spinnerstown. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, her pastor, used Psalm 17:15 for his message.

PETER GRABER, JR., son of Chris and Elizabeth (Conrad) Graber was born April 23, 1875 near Noble, Iowa.

Upon his confession of faith in his Savior, Jesus Christ, he was baptized June 2, 1895, by the Rev. H. G. Allebrach and, received into the memebership of the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church. He was a loyal and faithful member and active in the work of the church as long as his health permitted. For several terms he served the congregation as a member of the Board of Trustees.

On February 9, 1899, he was wedded to Barbara Egli of Trenton, Ia., in a ceremony solemnized by the Rev. P. E. Stucky. She preceded him in death Aug. 20, 1937.

On April 3, 1939 he peacefully passed away after several weeks of illness.

MARY (EICHER) MILLER, daughter of Chris and Anna (Wenger) Eicher was born near Wayland in Washington county, Iowa, January 6, 1855.

Upon her confession of faith in Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior she was baptized by the Rev. Joseph Slagel and taken into the fellowship of the Sugar Creek Mennonite Church. In 1895 after moving to the Noble community she transferred her membership to the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church near Noble.

On February 15, 1875, she was united in marriage to Benjamin Miller in a ceremony solemnized by the Rev. Joseph Slagel.

About two weeks ago Mrs. Miller became seriously ill which proved fatal and she was called home to her eternal abode Friday, April 14, 1939, attaining the age of 84 years, 3 months and 8 days. Her husband and 11 children survive to mourn her passing.

MRS. ANNA HERDRICH KREBILL, daughter of Reinhard and Kathryn Herdrich, was born near Franklin, Iowa, August 28, 1892. She passed away March 26, 1939, at the Sacred Heart hospital in Fort Madison, Iowa, due to complications following an operation. She went with the fullest hope of returning home in better health, but it was not the Lord's will. All that could be done was done, but it was decided otherwise. She had reached the age of 46 years, 6 months and 28 days.

In 1906 she was confirmed into the Evangelical church of Franklin and later she transferred her membership to the Zion Mennonite church of Donnellson, Iowa.—On April 2, 1914 she was united in marriage to Rudolph Krebill. To this union two sons were born, Iven W. and Leonard E. Her mother preceded her in death.

She is survived by her husband, the two sons, one daughter-in-law, father, and brother Emil, all of this vicinity.

I hear a voice you can not hear
Which says I must not stay;
I see a hand you can not see,
Which beckons me away.

ANNA DUECK KLASSEN was born April 23, 1879, in Marion county, Kansas. On the 6th of June 1897 she was baptized upon the confession of her faith and joined the Alexanderwohl Menn. Church, of which she was a member at the time of her death. From the early days of her youth and through all the years, her desire was to belong to the saved. She was also much concerned about the salvation of all members of the family. In past years she suffered at times of a very severe headache. But the severest suffering came to her during the last four weeks, so that she often said, "Let the night pass." When unable to attend church services, she spent much time with her open Bible. The wall-motto, "He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might He giveth strength," a gift of the Sunday School class, gave her much comfort. About two years ago, she suffered a light stroke. On the 7th of February 1939, she had to submit to an operation for gallstone in the Bethel Hospital at Newton, Kansas. On the fifth of March she came home hoping that her health would be fully restored. She looked forward with joy to the celebration of her sixtieth birthday, April 23, but her condition became very serious from Bright's disease. The end came April 22nd, at the age of nearly sixty years. She fought a hard battle; dark clouds covered the heavens. Friday April 14 was such a day. She said, "Lord take me as I am . . . Lead, O Lord, thy child. Thy hand is strong and healing . . . Him that cometh unto me I will in no way cast out." With these words she comforted herself. Her last words, before she became unconscious, were, "Resist unto Blood . . . To be thine in all eternity—eternity is drawing nigh." And with the words of the song, "Jesus Savior of my soul, let me to thy bosom fly, when the waters nearer roll, dark clouds overcast the sky," she fell asleep. After seven days of intense suffering, the Lord brought her to her eternal rest and home.

In the year 1900, on March 22nd, she was married to Jacob J. Klassen. In this state of matrimony she lived 39 years and one month.—She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, Jacob J. Klassen, two sons and two daughters, Emil Klassen, Moundridge, Kans.; Mrs. Elma K. Schroeder, Canton, Kans.; Adolf Klassen, San Francisco, Calif.; Mrs. Agnes K. Budde, Newton, Kans.; two sons-in-law, one daughter-in-law, six grandchildren, two sisters and one brother, and other relatives and friends.

An Expression of Appreciation.—The editor and the readers of The Mennonite owe the many contributors to the columns of this paper a vote of appreciation for helping make the publication what it is. Particularly are we indebted to brethren like Dr. E. L. Harshbarger for his truly instructive articles on, "History Views the Jewish Persecution." Some may not have agreed with all of his findings, but we must not forget, histories do not agree either; Dr. P. R. Schroeder for his contributions, on God; Rev. J. J. Balzer for his articles, "Father Forgive," and "Watching under the Cross."

—Dr. Ella Bauman, Champa, C. P., India, writes in a personal note: "Have been wanting to write you for some time and tell you how much we enjoy the Mennonite. Am glad you continue publishing conference and convention programs. That helps us to follow the thinking of the church and conference groups. I usually read the paper from cover to cover and receive a blessing from it.

—First Mennonite Church, Newport, Wash.—"Catechism class meets at the home of Rev. P. H. Unruh each Monday night. A group from Deer Park attend with our young folks.—The willing workers have made quite a lot of articles to be sold at the Thanksgiving sale.—Rev. King and a group of the Onecho C. E. are coming to Newport to give a program May 7. We are looking forward to a blessed time with them.—Miss Katherine Schroeder and Mr. Frank Fast were married Sunday, April 16."

—Mrs. F. J. Kliewer, Corr.

—We have again been kindly remembered with a collection of splendidly decorated Sunday service programs, from the hands of Mrs. Christine Miller, wife of the pastor of the Mission Church of Portland, Ore. We wish we could send some of these pieces of art to each of our subscribers. They are a joy for the heart. Hearty thanks, Sister Miller.

—Rev. Howard G. Nyce, Allentown, Pa.—"My Sr. Deacon tells me that he has found new subscribers to The Mennonite.—He is contacting every Mennonite family. I certainly enjoy getting our church paper. It is really a wonderful publication, is a sentiment expressed by a number of people, so it must be true."

AMONG OUR COLLEGES

BLUFFTON.—Their neat, new 72-page catalog has just reached us. Of particular interest is their straight forward, "Statement of Faith," with which every honest Christian, not even the most orthodox, could find any fault. We shall publish it and that of Bethel College some day to show that our colleges stand firmly on the solid rock of Jesus Christ.—Their full time faculty numbers 19. Of these four hold the doctor's degree and twelve the master's degree. Besides there is listed a part-time faculty of five. Their total enrollment for the school year is 273. They have two "emeriti" professors, Dr. S. K. Mosiman, long time president, and Prof. N. E. Byers, for about twenty years dean and professor of philosophy.—Bluffton's $500,000 endowment drive has been closed quite successfully. Even such cities as Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago have not been missed. Efforts are now being made to join the American College Association.—An expansion program is next being formulated, which calls for the addition of several Ph.D's, complete commercial and physical education departments.

FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE.—The a cappella choir returned from its eastern tour April 17. Besides giving their much appreciated musical programs in many communities, the young singers visited many places of note.—At the music contest which was recently held at Yankton, South Dak., Freeman College was represented in 13 entries.

BETHEL.—At the Eighth Annual Booster Banquet held on the evening of May 3, Dr. A. E. Hartzler of Halstead, Kansas, famous physician and surgeon, and also author of the book, "The Horse and Buggy Doctor" gave the address. The gymnasium was packed for the occasion by a crowd of approximately 425. These banquets are featured by the Newton Chamber of Commerce, and have been a splendid means of replenishing the current expense fund of the school. The first ticket costs $10.00, another ticket or two for members of the family $1 each. The college has been realizing $3000 or more from these banquets each year.—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger has been awarded a Carnegie fellowship to study at the Hague, Holland, this summer. This fellowship, one of ten offered in the U. S., covers traveling expenses and tuition of the two terms of the session.—William Staerkel, freshman from Newton, won second place in the Kansas State Peace Oratorical contest, with a $30.00 cash prize.—Recently the Student Fellowship was privileged to listen to addresses as follows: "Distinctive Mennonite Principles," by Rev. C. E. Krehbiel; "The Mennonites of North America," by E. G. Kaufman, and "The Work of the Mennonite Central Committee," by Dr. Harold Bender of Goshen, Ind.—The Bethel Collegian, Bethel's student paper, has been awarded First Class Honors by the Associated Collegiate Press critical service in a nationwide contest conducted to judge the best newspapers among 401 colleges.—The college is planting a 3½ acre garden under the management of Rev. Sam Goering to raise vegetables for the college dining hall.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn. has voted 165 to 32, to remodel their church building at a cost of about $30,000. That is good news. Remodeling or rebuilding of a church is always an indication of life and growth in a church. But it is to be hoped that this splendid, live congregation will modify their plan of "remodeling" to that of a complete new brick building, in keeping with their characteristic ways of doing things thoroughly and substantially.

—Rev. Henry N. Harder of the Grace (Mission) Church at Enid, Okla. has been giving a series of morning devotions, from 7:30-7:45, May 1-6, over station K. C. R. C. We are sorry we couldn't bring this announcement in the last issue of this paper, so that more of our people might have listened in.

—A Card from Dr. and Mrs. Rodolphe Petter: On Train: Kindly change the address on our Mennonite from Lame Deer, Mont. to Vevey, Ct., Geneve, Switzerland, c-o Madamoiselle Cecille Petter, 5 rue Collett. We sail on Saturday, May 13 on the S. S. Ile de France, French line.

—Mr. Fred von Gunten, manager of the Conference book store at Berne, Ind., whose young wife was taken from him by death sometime ago, after giving birth to a baby girl, was married to Miss Edna Berky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Berky, of near Wooster, Ohio. Mrs. Von Gunten, had been employed in Wooster College. The couple will make their home in the apartment above the bookstore. The Mennonite wishes for them a long, happy and useful life, and God's blessings.

—St. John Church, near Pandora, Ohio.—"The hearts of God's people were gladdened, when Mr. and Mrs. David Wherly, both having passed the allotted three score and ten number of years, publicly confessed the Lord Jesus Christ as their personal Savior from sin, were baptized and received into the church at last Sunday morning's service. . . . That evening Mr. Wherly went to the hospital in Lima to have a cataract removed. The operation was successful. But the good brother spoke more of the joy of his heart than of the operation.

The Pastor's Chat

REGARDING PASTOR AND PEOPLE

After more than twenty years in the ministry I believe more than ever in the importance of pastor and people knowing each other intimately. Unless the people understand the problems of the pastor, they cannot sympathize with him or pray for him intelligently. Unless the pastor knows the life, the trials and conflicts that are the daily lot of the people, he is not in position to serve their greatest spiritual needs.

Preaching twice per Sunday to the same people over a period of years is no small task. Every minister knows this, though not many laymen appreciate it. Thnking ahead five years and contemplating the number of times one is supposed to say something in public that is tolerably interesting and helpful at the same time, inclines a minister to despair except for the grace of God. But only one sermon needs to be preached at one time and God's strength and guidance from day to day, and from Sabbath to Sabbath is sufficient.

Where do sermons come from? It may be that some are not sufficiently interested in mine to inquire where I get them. But a young man asked me recently, and here is the answer: My sermons come from my Bible study, from the books and papers I read, from things I see and hear, from thoughts that come to me every day and sometimes in the wakeful hours of the night; from meditation and prayer and communion with God;—and from YOU.

Many attend church for years without knowing that they have a part in every sermon they hear—a help or hindrance, depending upon their attitude. A good listener is an inspiration. He draws out the best in the speaker. On the other hand, a man in the pew who is indifferent, who goes off in a doze, or allows his mind to wander to his latest business venture, or who gives the impression that he expects nothing important from you, but is willing to stick it out, providing you hurry—such a listener has a blighting effect. Like a late June frost, he bites and freezes every sign of new life around him.

Thank God for those souls who come to church realizing their need, hungering for God, ready to confess their sins, enthusiastic with praise and gratitude for the blessings of life. They listen so eagerly to what the minister has to say that no grain of wheat escapes, even though there is some chaff from which it has to be sifted.

As pastor of the church, I desire to visit all the people frequently, not only for what little friendship and cheer I can bring them in the name of the church, but for the great good I get from it. From more than one home I have come away feeling that my visit was good for me. Mrs. Hostetler, who accompanies me frequently in pastoral calling, shares this feeling. Meeting you in your homes helps us to understand you better and to sympathize more fully with your problems.

One difficulty in pastoral calling arises out of the fact that many people can seldom be found at home on a week day, because their work takes them away, to office or factory or school. Sunday, being a strenuous day, is not a good visiting day for us and we have occasionally declined invitations out to Sunday meals on this account. Many of our week-day evenings are occupied with meetings at the church and, having children, we also wish to have some evenings with them at home.

Recently, on a Friday, we were invited by one of our families to their home for the evening meal. The few hours were a delightful occasion. It did not seriously interfere with their plans for the balance of the evening, nor with ours. And so we have decided to set aside every Friday evening, as far as possible, for special time out with the people. If it suits your convenience to have the minister and his wife with you for a Friday evening, say from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock, Mrs. Hostetler and I shall be very glad to accept, with the understanding that we share your common board, and that the purpose is primarily fellowship, and the meal secondary.

Your suggestions and constructive criticisms regarding any phase of our church work will be most welcome.

Sincerely yours, Lester Hostetler.

THE MINISTER is to be a live man, a real man, a true man, a simple man, great in his love; great in his life, great in his work, great in his simplicity, great in his gentleness. —John Hall.

THE CROSS.—Under the auspices of the Kansas Council of Religious Education five Sunday School Conventions are being held in different parts of Kansas each spring, so also this year. The largest one, with more than 1300 S. S. and church workers in attendance, recently met in Newton for a three days' session. It was noticeable that the speakers, a number of them with a national reputation as leaders of Christian thought and endeavor, emphasized the CROSS as never before, as the sole remedy for a sick, sin-beset world. In the opinion of one of the speakers, the Christian world has hardly begun to grasp the full meaning of the CROSS. We have talked about it in connection with Christ's vicarious death. We have sung about it in our church worship. We have preached about it as a symbol of sacrifice even unto death. We have revered it in pictures and paintings and statuary. We have held it high as a means of leading to glory. But we have not yet learned to bear it as Christ did all through his life. Selfishness is still rampant, even in the Christian world. But selfishness and cross-bearing do not agree, do not mix. Where one is the ruling urge or passion, the other has no room. Christ, the sinless one, daily, hourly, suffered the agony of contact with sin and its terrible results as it encroached upon him in his walks among men. He did all he could to counteract its blighting influence; to bring succor and relief to those who were suffering from its effect; to bring the sunshine of love and mercy into lives torn with despair. Thus he bore the cross. Are we following him in doing what he did?

THE REWARD OF DILIGENCE

The story of Emil Wasser and Alfie Gordon, told by E. B. Macy, banker of Lynville, Iowa, in "Banking" epitomizes this cock-eyed era: Old man Wasser and his wife have made the final payment on their 100-acre Iowa farm which they started to buy in 1910. Value around $10,000. It represents the sum of a half century of hard work, denial and thrift. Both are now too old to work. They have no debts and at the most $300 in cash. If the farm and their property were liquidated on a quick sale and the proceeds safely invested, it would yield an income of probably $30.00 a month.—Alfie Gordon is known as the most shiftless, impoverished old fellow in the nearby town. He never saved and never worked steadily anywhere. But he and his wife together now draw $48.00 a month in old-age pensions. "From each according to his ability, to each according to his needs."

—The Berne, Indiana, Mennonites are holding Peace Council Meetings at the suggestion of Dr. C. H. Suckau, pastor. The purpose of the meetings is to discuss the question, what stand the Mennonite church would or should take in case the U. S. should become entangled in a war.

METHODIST UNITY ACHIEVED

In the huge Municipal Auditorium at Kansas City, Mo., three main branches of the Methodist church have been in session a couple of weeks, in a serious attempt to unite their forces into one church. The scene in the auditorium suggests the imposing appearance of a parliamentary body. On the floor of the arena each of the 900 delegates has his assigned place and desk. The 60 bishops occupy a large platform at one end of the floor, and rising from the floor of the arena are tiers for 14,000 laymen and other visitors. Among the 900 delegates are 120 women, there to demand equal rights with the men for their sex.

During the century and a half of Methodism in America, the church has split up into 16 different branches (just like the Mennonites). After much preliminary work and previous approvals by separate conferences of the three largest churches, the merger of eight of the nine million American Methodists was set up as the great objective of this convention. These three churches are: The Methodist Episcopal Church, the parent body, with 4,864,000 members; the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with 2,847,000 members; and the Methodist Protestant Church, with about 200,000 members.

The first step in the unification brought back the last named body which had broken away in 1830, by setting up a presbyterial or democratic form of church government with equalized control by clergy and laity, and abolishment of the bishopry after they had found clerical control a hindrance to their work. This problem has been solved by getting the delegates of the two Episcopal churches to modify clerical control and the Protestant branch to elect their first bishops. The schism between Northern and Southern Methodists which had existed since 1845, because of the slavery problem, was healed by establishing a nationwide church district of some 300,000 Negro-Methodists, and bringing them into the set-up of the new church as a segregated and self-governing unit, with power to elect their own bishops.

One problem that threatened serious consequences was the conscientious objector clause, which we shall quote as being of special interest to us Mennonites:

"The Methodist church, true to the principles of the New Testament, teaches respect for properly constituted civil authority. It holds that government rests upon the support of its conscientious citizenship, and that conscientious objectors to war in any or all of its manifestations are a natural outgrowtn of the principle of good will and the Christian desire for universal peace; and that such objectors should not be oppressed by compulsory military service anywhere or at any time. We ask and claim exemption from all forms of military preparation or service for all conscientious objectors who may be members of the Methodist church. However, we recognize the right of the individual to answer the call of his government in an emergency according to the dictates of his Christian conscience."

A rather small faction, headed by the former governor of Kansas and presidential candidate, Alfred Landon, assailed this clause vigorously, as branding the Methodists as dodgers or cowards, while the young delegates gave it strong support. It was finally passed. Another interesting controversy arose over the proposal to grant to women equal rights with men, even clergy right. But this later item was voted down with a very small margin.

To seal the union which was finally effected Wednesday evening, May 10, the 900 delegates without a dissent arose and in unison chanted this declaration: The Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Methodist Protestant church are and shall be one united church.

The united church will control 45,432 church buildings, 2,898 parsonages, and 82 hospitals. It will operate 140 Methodist schools and colleges, valued at $300,000,000, with 6,000 instructors teaching 105,000 students. 2,500 clergymen carry on missionary work among thirty nations.—May God speed the day when the Mennonites will similarly unite!

A Mother Looks at War

They said there would never be another war—eighteen years ago, when the world was running red with blood, and echoing with the sobs and prayers of broken-hearted women. That was a war to end war, they said; it was so terrible that no one would dare to start another. And finally it ended—and we took up the task of mending the loss and ruin and suffering it had caused.

Eighteen years! Mother Earth has not had time to spread a green cloak over all the shell-torn fields; many hearthstones still lie broken and shattered. Soldiers who fought that last "war to end wars" still live with shattered bodies and brains for which there will never be any healing. And for each of these living dead, as for each of the blessed dead, there is a broken home, a broken heart. And they are talking war again!

No woman on earth hates war more than I hate it—for I have not only known the grief of every mother who has had sons go down to death on the battlefield, but I have endured the agony of seeing my family divided, my boys fighting each other, fighting to kill—one with the country of my birth, four with this country, which I love more than I ever loved my homeland. And I say to you—I who know, I who am called the Mother of the American Legion—that war is the greatest curse on earth. From it nothing, anywhere, is safe.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

KAI CHOW HOSPITAL, HOPEI, CHINA, 2-23-39

Dear Rev. P. H. Unruh:

This letter has been on my mind for a long ime. I have never had a busier time than this fall and winter, and many things were put off, because I couldn't get everything done. I want first of all to thank you and all donors, through the Emergency Relief Board, for gifts for relief work. I assure you that the need was great and the gifts sent were a great blessing to the people of this community. When one thinks of the situation a year ago, steeped in terrible poverty and misery, one can hardly blame men for turning to banditry. We from America can hardly imagine a condition where nine-tenths of the people simply do not have food to eat and communications so interrupted that none can be brought in. There was a small amount of grain available but, at a price that was several times normal, the people just couldn't afford to eat it.

We were able to keep hundreds of men at work over a period of several weeks before wheat harvest. Once we got started we couldn't stop and by faith we were sure that help would continue to come. Our faith was not misplaced and the money that came in, mostly through the Relief Board, more than covered what we had advanced in the emergency. There is still need, as always, and the money you sent recently will be very useful.

Below I have summarized the remittances we have received from you and if you have any differences, I will be glad to recheck them.

Date rec'd.	Amount	Date rec'd.	Amount.

Let me thank you again both for us and for the Chinese who received help. I wish it were possible for you or others to be here and see the situation yourself. I am sure you would be more than satisfied to be able to help whatever you can.

Again thanking you for all gifts, with best wishes,

C. L. Pannabecker.

Happiness in Dealing with Others

Rom. 12: 9-16

by Mrs. H. T. Reimer, Homesville, Nebr.

Not long ago we said, "Happy New Year." Did we fully realize the deep meaning of this wish? Things are often so quickly and thoughtlessly spoken. Can we give our fellowmen happiness by wishing it for them and telling them so? Yes, it should make them feel better, but most of all, I think, it gives one a satisfied and joyful feeling, to wish others happiness, if it is sincere.

Our scripture says, "Be kindly affectioned." This signifies that tender, undescribable affection that parents have for their children. There is a certain delight to feel that affection.

"In honor preferring one another." It is a hard lesson to consider your brethren more worthy than yourself and few persons ever learn it thoroughly. Who likes to be neglected? A conversation once heard between two persons was: "I know not," said one, "that I neglect to do anything in my power to promote the interest of true religion in this place, yet I seem to be held in very little repute, scarcely the people even noticing me." To which the other replied: "My good friend, set yourself down for nothing, and if any person takes you for something, it will be all clear gain, which you can thoroughly and happily enjoy." How full of meaning and common sense!—It is not good things received, but those given which make life happy, for God's word tells us: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Sometimes we feel handicapped, not being able to give as we would like to, but we always have the privilege to wish them happiness and to pray for others.

"Be not slothful in business." An idle, slothful person can never enjoy the company of active Christians. But to really find happiness with others in the service of the Lord, we must do it for His glory alone, being always in earnest and letting our hearts accompany our hands.

As faithful followers of Christ, we may rejoice in hope, may be patient in tribulation, remembering that what we suffer, we suffer for Christ's sake. But to have the strength to do this, we must continue in instant prayer, making fervent and intense application to the Throne of Grace for the light and power of the Holy Spirit.

There is also happiness in relieving our poor brethren according to the power which God has given us. And who could enjoy a home that would never open its doors to company. To find happiness in company with others, we need the loving and forgiving mind that was in our Lord.

"Rejoice with them that do rejoice and weep with them that weep." I wonder which is the hardest or the easiest? But I do know, it is a greater joy if there is someone that really takes part in your happiness, and on the other hand I also know what a relief and comfort it is, to have someone that will sympathize with you.

In conclusion, my scripture passage reads: "Be of the same mind." Mind not high things, be not wise in your own conceit. It is probably not easy on this earth to always be in perfect harmony. But we should always be able to pray for the same good; for all which we desire for ourselves. If we want to find blessed happiness we must not be puffed up with an opinion of our own wisdom, but believe that we stand in need, both of help and instruction from others. Just last week at a meeting I heard someone quote the following: "You can make more friends in one week by interesting yourself in them, than you can in a whole year trying to get them interested in you."

There are many hearts that we may brighten,
On the way;
Just a sunbeam shining, shining,
Showing forth a silver lining,
Helping someone sad, repining,
By it's ray."

FELLOWSHIP AND EVANGELISM

The fellowship of believers is a witness. By it true discipleship is recognized. The fellowship of the early church was a fair actualization of the Christian message. In love they shared with fellow Christians according as each man had need. It may be significant that the writer of Acts follows the record of this unity and love by this further enlightening statement, "And with great power gave the Apostles their witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus and great grace was upon them all." Peace, unity, and love in the church finding expression in loving helpfulness contributes greatly to efforts in evangelism.

We Americans--Our American Ancestors

The fact that our original thirteen states were settled by three million people of more than sixteen nationalities means that "the native American of colonial descent is an American of magnificently mixed ancestry."—This is the plea for tolerance presented to descendants of colonial stock by Harold J. Jonas in "Immigrants All," part of We Americans, a handbook interpreting America and its people, published April 27th by The Atlantic.

Using the 1790 census, the first one ever taken here, as the basis of his analysis, Mr. Jonas reminds us that America was peopled by English, Scots, Irish, Scotch-Irish, Germans, Dutch, French, Swedes, Spaniards, Italians, Portuguese, Welsh, Bretons, Basques, Jews, Moors and others.—Stating that approximately 60.9 per cent of early immigrants were of English stock, the writer adds that today, through the process of Americanization, "about 30 per cent of white Americans with English names are not of English blood."

The next largest group to populate America were the Germans, comprising 14 per cent of the population by 1790, who settled largely in Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Georgia.—"The earliest of the Germans to emigrate were, interestingly enough, the victims of religious persecution, and came to Pennsylvania," writes Mr. Jonas. "Followers of one Menno Simon, whose doctrines resembled those of the Quakers, they were welcomed by the English Quakers.

"The great migration of Germans came somewhat later, because of the constant spoliation of their home land, the Rhine Valley, by war. These Germans, known to American history as the Palatine Germans, looked eagerly across to the New World. In 1709, Londoners went to view the great tent city where 13,000 German "refugees" were dwelling, prior to their departure for new homes. Some remained in England, but a great many came to America."

The Irish contributed 9.7 per cent of our total population by 1790, with the Scots accountable for more than 8 and the Dutch for 3.1 per cent. By 1790 there were more than 21,000 persons of Swedish stock settled everywhere except in Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire. Most of them, however, located in Delaware, New York, New Jersey and Virginia.—Although the census of 1790 does not include Spaniards, Mr. Jonas writes: "It would be a serious oversight to neglect those of our ancestors coming from Florida and the trans-Mississippi region. For in these areas, at that time not part of the United States, but destined soon to be, there were in 1790 an estimated 25,625 Spaniards.

"The census of 1790 does not aid in determining the exact number of Jews in colonial America, but as early as 1560, long before the rest of Europe began to settle in America, Jews from Spain and Portugal had already colonized parts of Brazil and Surinam, D. W. I. Frequent wars between the Portuguese and Dutch, however, caused them to emigrate to the English colonies, and in 1654 the first group of Brazilian Jews landed in New Amsterdam. Refugees from Spanish and Portuguese persecution, as well as smaller groups from England, Poland and Holland, followed throughout the eighteenth century.—Many went to Georgia and South Carolina, where they developed large plantations. Another group went north to Newport, Rhode Island, bringing with them many new industries, and stimulating that city's shipping and commerce to the point where only New York and Boston could be considered its rivals. Jews, like other Americans of that period, were planters, manufacturers, explorers and businessmen.

"The latest estimates of the 1790 population leave 219,805 persons unassigned to any classification. Here is a group almost as large as the Scotch or the German, and almost as large as the Dutch, French, Swedish and Spanish stocks combined. Unassigned Americans! The thought is devastating, but the fact is true. Here we have a group of ancestors whose surnames do not fit readily into any classification used. They may have been Greeks, Poles, Basques, Finns or Bohemians. However, they certainly make the picture interesting, constituting, as they do, part of the "Yankee Stock" of which many Americans are so proud."

PAUL THINKS IN WORLD TERMS

Romans 1:1-17

Introduction

Paul's Epistle to the Romans was written probably early in the year 58, near the close of his third missionary journey and as he was about to leave Corinth for his final journey to Jerusalem. He wished to prepare the way for his soon-expected visit to Rome (R. 15:22-29). This letter is more of a systematic treatise expounding the way of salvation more fully than he does anywhere else. The Epistle is Paul's masterpiece of deep theological discussion.

The Gospel of God vs 1-4

Paul declares himself a servant—literally a "bond-servant" or slave of Jesus Christ. The term expresses complete subjection and devotion to Christ. He felt his life was not his own and he gladly yielded all his powers to Christ. Those closest to Christ give Him the highest honor. Paul felt God had "called" and "separated" him to be an apostle and preach the gospel (v 1). Every redeemed life is a witness to the saving power of the gospel of Christ. This gospel message, promised by the Old Testament prophets, is concerning Jesus Christ, the Son of God (v 3). Jesus' resurrection from the dead (v 4), is the supreme proof that He is the Son of God.

The Christians in Rome Called of Christ vs 5-8

Paul had received the spiritual blessings of the gospel—the cause of his apostleship—as an unmerited gift of God's grace (v 5). The definite purpose of his apostolic mission is to bring people of all nations to obedience through faith in Christ. He is thinking in world terms. Among these called of Christ, are the Christians of Rome (v 6). They are "beloved of God"—glorious privilege—and "called to be saints" (v 7). Paul summons the Romans, whom he had not yet visited, to holy living and service for the gospel. Paul rejoiced in the world-wide knowledge of the faith of the Roman Christians (v 8).

Paul's Interest in the Christians in Rome vs 9-13

Paul was eager to serve the Lord's people and help them to be even better Christians. God alone knew how concerned he was for the spiritual welfare of the Roman Christians (v 9). He is praying that he may soon be permitted to visit them (v 10). His purpose in coming was to be of spiritual service to the church and to see them well established in the faith (v 11). He himself would derive profit and benefit from his association with them (v 12).

Paul's Passion for a Lost World vs 14-17

Paul realized that the gospel was for all mankind and that he was duty bound to preach to all people (v 14). He thinks beyond the household of faith to an ignorant and unbelieving world—the cultured Greek and the rude barbarian, the learned and the unlearned. He was eager to bring the gospel message to Rome. Paul, the highly trained Jew, was not ashamed to preach the gospel of Christ (v 16), the only power of God unto salvation for all who believe the message. He believed in the gospel with all his heart. He knew his own experience. He made no apologies. He gloried in the gospel which offered life to all believers.

Paul thought in world terms. He had a message which was world-wide in its application. He knew the gospel contained power to change hearts and lives. This power is available to people everywhere by faith in Christ. The gospel of Christ breaks down all barriers of race and clime and has proved itself adapted to the people of all nations. The gospel meets the spiritual needs of all people.

SERMON SKETCH

"FOR OR AGAINST"

Luke 11:23—He that is not with me is against me, and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.

W. S. Shelly, Wadsworth, Ohio

These are the words of the Lord Jesus Christ and are a part of the discourse in which He said "a house divided against itself cannot stand," a principle which the great Lincoln quoted, referring to a nation half slave and half free. Lincoln's conclusion was that such a nation "cannot long endure." Lincoln had the vision and foresight of a prophet and insisted that a nation half-and-half, both for and against at one and the same time, is impossible and he took his text for that speech from these words of Jesus. The "house" to which Lincoln referred was these United States of America. The "house" to which Jesus referred was His own Kingdom and the people who profess to belong to that Kingdom.

I. A Dangerous Place

It has always been dangerous to be, or rather try to be, on both sides of an issue. Jesus recognized this impossible position. He advised against it, implying that He would rather have us openly against Him than attempting to be both for and against Him. "I would that thou wert hot or cold." The Apostle Paul also recognized the danger of trying to sit on both sides of the fence. He asks "what fellowship hath righteousness and unrighteousness; or what communion hath light and darkness." (II Cor. 6:14) The two can have nothing in common. There is not any "no-man's" land between them and if there were, no-man's land is a very dangerous place. One side or the other will sooner or later "get you." It is equally dangerous for us to be either against Him, or to be on neutral grounds, for in the sight of the Lord, all those in the neutral area are counted as against Him. They are not His own. They are not numbered among the overcomers.

In no area of life is it a safe place. Families have tried it. Husband and wife who could not live as "one" have tried to live in the same house but as a "house divided against itself." Such a husband-and-wife relationship will also not long endure.—To attempt to be both for or against Christ at the same time is dangerous and impossible. Between Christ and His enemy there can be no halting between two opinions. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

II. A Safe Place

Jesus has made it very plain where it is safe to be. During the three years of His earthly ministry He went about trying to influence folks to come over to His side. It would not always be a comfortable place, they would not be with the crowds, the gate is straight, the road is narrow, but it is a safe road and it leads to life. If we do not choose the side on which we want to be, He will separate the sheep from the goats. The sheep are lead into the sheepfold. He will be their Good Shepherd. He will know them by name and call them by name. There shall no harm befall them.

We all bear some relationship to Christ. That relationship is expressed in these two small words, these two prepositions, "for" or "against."

Zoar, Oklahoma, Church Dedication

The dedication program of the new enlarged building of the Zoar Mennonite Church of Goltry, Oklahoma, will be held Sunday, May 28th. The Power of the Gospel in Korea

For many years the Korean Church has maintained, unaided, its own missionary force of Korean pastors and evangelists in northern China, and thousands of Chinese converts have been won and formed into an indigenous and self-governing Christian Church. In Manchuria more than a million Koreans have crossed the border and settled down during the last thirty years, and there a great work is going forward, both among Koreans and Manchus. Here are some of the latest incidents from that far-off field:—

Mrs. A. R. Ross, of Lungchingstun, Manchuria, tells us that during the Communistic troubles of seven or more years ago, some of the rural churches were wiped out; many Christians fled to the larger towns for safety, whilst others, who remained on their little farms, professed to join the Communistic party and concealed their religious convictions. These people tried to forget God and all that Christian teaching had stood for, but in a few years they realized what a godless, loveless, lawless country it had become. Even those who most bitterly opposed the work of the Church are now begging that 'the Jesus way' of life may begin again. Now the good news comes that two small towns, dead to Christianity a year ago, each have eighty converts worshipping in the re-opened churches, while a third has a congregation of sixty. Another place, from which the evangelist had to flee for his life, and where fourteen young men were clubbed to death because they were friendly to Christianity, now has had services for six weeks, and twenty-five people have surrendered themselves to the Master whom once they hated.—"World Dominion."

Table Prayers for Children

Suggested by Dr. P. R. Schroeder, in his "Monthly News Letter"

Have you been looking for Table Prayers for the children? Here are several.

Before Meals: Heavenly Father, bless this food To Thy glory and our good. Amen.

Jesus, bless what Thou hast given, Feed our souls with bread from heaven, Guide and lead us all the way, In all that we may do and say. Amen.

He is kind: all things living He doth feed; His full hand supplies their need: for His mercies shall endure, Ever faithful, ever sure. Amen.

His mercies shall endure, Ever faithful, ever sure. Amen.

The eyes of all wait upon Thee, O Lord, and Thou givest them their meat in due season; Thou openest Thine hand and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. Amen.

After Meals: O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good, for His mercy endureth forever. Amen.

Thine infinite goodness our tongues shall employ; Thou givest us richly all things to enjoy; We'll follow Thy footsteps, we'll rest in Thy love, And soon we shall praise Thee in mansions above. Amen.

We thank Thee, Lord God, our Heavenly Father, through Jesus Christ, our dear Lord, for all Thy benefits, Who livest and reignest forever and ever. Amen.

All honor and praise to Thine Excellent Name! Thy love is unchanging, forever the same; We bless and adore Thee, O Saviour and King; With joy and thanksgiving Thy praises we sing. Amen.

The many friends of Prof. G. A. Lehman, who has been seriously ill at his home in Rochester, N. Y. will rejoice to hear that he is now greatly improved.

WHY SHOULD MENNONITE C. E. SOCIETIES SUPPORT THE KANSAS INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

by E. L. Harshbarger

1. Because the Mennonites have always held to the position of Christian peace, and this is a part of our testimony to the world which must be faithfully proclaimed in every possible manner.

2. Because the Institute gives the Mennonites the very best way to carry their message directly to non-Mennonite church, community and educational leaders who would not otherwise come into contact with this Mennonite principle. The institute lecturer dealing with the religious phase of the peace question is always chosen because of his belief in Christian peace. Other lecturers may or may not support the Mennonite position, but they are authorities in their field of discussion and interested in the peaceful settlement of international disputes. To hear these lectures, many non-believers in Christian peace attend the institute, where, in addition to getting information on world affairs for use in the school and club work, they hear Christian peace discussed by the religious leader. This has caused many community leaders to become believers in Christian peace.

Just a few examples:—One young man became interested in peace at an institute and later appeared before a Congressional committee to protest against exorbitant armaments; a layman had always opposed the Mennonite peace stand, but after hearing a single lecture by Muriel Lester was convinced that there was something genuine in Christian peace; a school teacher took the information and inspiration gained at the institute to his classroom with the result that a Mennonite pupil told her father, "he talks like a Mennonite"; a college professor who was not free to discuss peace in his classes sent some students to the institute, who returned with so much enthusiasm that peace is now discussed and special courses are in prospect. And so it goes. Other examples could be given. They all clearly show that the C. E.'s can aid in spreading Christian peace by aiding the institute.

3. It gives the Mennonites, who have always been accused of doing nothing except refusing to participate in war, a chance to do something constructive for peace and goodwill. By so doing they are also encouraged and strengthened in their own peace convictions.

4. When, as today, peace organizations are going militarist or losing their convictions, the institute still remains a real peace organization where youth can work in the spirit of tolerance and goodwill.

5. It furnishes information as to the causes of wars, ways to peaceful settlement of international disputes, and methods of propaganda. This study enables people to sift truth from falsehood in international affairs, and helps them to maintain a sane attitude when the world goes insane with war hysteria. An increasing number of sane, hopeful minds here and there will go a long way to keep our country out of war.

6. It gives Mennonite youth a chance to become acquainted with great leaders of inspiring personalities from this country and from foreign lands. Thus we develop friendly understanding of other peoples and develop our own personalities.

7. It is growing more difficult each year, as the war hysteria grows, to collect funds for peace organizations. Many have surrendered their feeble peace convictions, others maintain there is nothing we can do which is worthwhile. If Mennonite youth does not shoulder the burden, who will? Is not this a challenge to practical Christian action?

8. Because this year's faculty is especially strong from the Christian point of view. Heading the religious instruction is Dr. Leyton Richards, who proved so satisfactory and powerful in 1937; also on the faculty are T. Z. Koo, outstanding Christian leader, and Messrs. Inman, Markham, Libby, and Pickett, all of whom have been or are Christian missionaries and ministers.

9. Because it is strictly a well rounded educational organization which does not allow any political or sectarian propaganda.

10. Because the C. E.'s of the Western District have resolved to support the Institute.

NOTE: If all the speakers of the Institute were positively peace-minded and the situation in Europe were presented in a really impartial way, the older Mennonite folks of this section would also be likely to patronize the Institute more readily. But in the past, the Englishman, the Frenchman, the fugitive German Jew, and even some American speakers could hardly keep from showing a leaning toward one side. Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia, one of this year's speakers, though he is not mentioned above is also pretty certain to show that one side is "all right" and the other side "all wrong."

The Hymn Corner

by Walter H. Hohmann

God of the Earth, the Sky, the Sea
This Is My Father's World

This week, the Hymn Corner considers two wonderful hymns about Our Father's World, from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries respectively. In the springtime, we see nature coming to life all about us and our thoughts turn to God, the Creator and Sustainer of this, Our Father's World.

Samuel Longfellow, a brother of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, wrote the poem, "God of the Earth, the Sky, the Sea," in his Hymns of the Spirit. This hymn is an expression of the omnipresence and the immanence of God in the earth, the sky, and the sea.

The hymn tune "Sheltering Wing," is admirably adapted to this hymn. The various melodies, the chord progressions, the suggested modulations, all combine to make a wonderful and vigorous hymn tune. The hymn tune and the hymn together make a very reverent and thought provoking song, which young people will love to sing.

The second hymn, "This Is My Father's World," was written in 1901 by Maltbie Davenport Babcock. Dr. H. Augustine Smith says, "Like a spring which bubbles up from the earth and makes glad everything around it, this hymn seems to have bubbled up from the heart of a true lover of God, a genuine optimist, to make glad hearts of all who sing." From this hymn and other writings of Mr. Babcock, we may gather that he was a man of great faith in God; one who saw the beauties of nature about him, and loved them intensely. The officers of the Presbyterian Church at Lockport, New York, stated that Mr. Babcock was in the habit of saying, "I am going out to see my Father's World," and would spend many hours in God's great out-of-doors.

The hymn tune "Terra Beata," meaning happy or blessed earth, supposedly is an old English melody harmonized by Franklin L. Sheppard in 1915. Some authorities think that Mr. Sheppard was also the composer of the tune or melody.

I would suggest that some Sabbath evening you walk quietly and reverently in God's out-of-doors, read and sing these hymns. God will speak to you.

Summertime Opportunities

Senior C. E. Topic for June 4, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Summertime Opportunities for Christian Growth. Ps. 8:1-9.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Fairest Lord Jesus," "O Worship the King," "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."
2. Reading of Ps. 8:1-9, and a short prayer service. Ask several members before the meeting starts to share in this.

II. Leader's Introductory Talk

Summer offers many splendid opportunities for spiritual growth and achievement. One writer says:

"I still find each day too short for all the thoughts I want to think, all the walks I want to take, all the books I want to read, and all the friends I want to see. The longer I live the more my mind dwells upon the beauty and the wonder of the world. . . . I have loved the feel of the grass under my feet and the sound of the running streams by my side. The hum of the wind in the treetops has always been good music to me, and the face of the fields has often comforted me more than the faces of men."

Another says this: "How different life would be if we said softly to ourselves as each morning dawns, 'This is the day which the Lord hath made!' How changed would seem its duties and privileges, its opportunities and gifts, its possibilities and demands! Home and business, work and pleasure, would all be bright with the glory of His presence."

And here is a prayer which we may all offer at this time of the year as vacation time and summertime is here: "Create in us, O Lord, a taste for the beautiful and good and true. Make us like thyself that we may have discerning minds to choose the best. Amen.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. Harvesting in summer, Jn. 4:35, 36.
2. Necessity of rest, Mark 6:30-32.
3. Let Nature talk to us, Ps. 19:1-3.
4. A lesson in industry, Prov. 6:6-11; Prov. 30:35.

IV. Suggestive thoughts:

1. On the need of rest:

I am inclined to think, too, that we should follow Jesus' injunction literally, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while." How he understood the technique of relaxing, getting into a boat, pushing off from the feverish shore, inviting his soul to quiet, taking stock of his work in his Father's world. We need to be still and know that God is God.

2. On letting the voice of God speak through nature. "The rain had just about stopped. The elms and maples along the sidewalk were dripping soft, and everybody's gardens were laying still, like something new had happened to them. It smelled good, and like everything outdoors was going to start all over again and be something else, sweeter. — Zona Gale.

3. On being industrious in summertime: Let us not fall into the bad habit of making leisure synonymous with idleness. Some part of it indeed may be spent in physical and mental recuperation, as Jesus and his worn little band went apart to "rest a while." But there are hundreds of useful occupations for our hours of freedom: good books to be read, fascinating lines of study, ways of beautifying the home, forms of service to the community. As a wise writer has said, "Leisure is in its way as much of an asset to the individual as money in the bank, and should be invested with equal care."

V. For Study:

In what ways may the leisure time of various groups —wage earners, mothers of families, school children, college youth—be best used?

Some of the opportunities that come our way in the summer are the following:

1. Making new friendships and strengthening old ones.
2. Giving special attention to physical health, an important asset for Christian service.
3. Time for recreation, and living in God's great out-of-doors.
4. Reading good books and magazines.
5. Attendnig conferences, conventions, institutes, enjoying the fellowship of Christian people, and growing spiritually.
6. Engaging in special Christian service.
7. Being with the home folks, and building up home life.

Call to Worship

GOD'S DREAMS

Dreams are they . . . but they are God's dreams!
Shall we decry them and scorn them?
That men shall love one another,
That white shall call black brother?
That greeed shall pass from the marketplace,
That lust shall yield to love for race;
That men shall meet God face to face . . .
Dreams are they all,
But shall we despise them? . . .
God's dreams!
Dreams are they . . . to become man's dream!
Can we say nay as they claim us?
That men shall cease from their hating,
That war shall soon be abating,
That the glory of kings and lords shall pale,
That the pride of domination and power shall fail,
That the love of humanity shall prevail . . .
Dreams are they all,
But shall we dispise them? . . .
God's dreams!

Thomas Curtis Clark.

Opening song: "We've a Story to tell to the Nations"

Scripture Reading: Matt. 4:23-25; Sent by God—Mark 1:38; John 8:42, 43; John 8:12-19

Prayer: Father, we ask Thee to look through our eyes to find those who need Thy help.
Use our tongues to speak the words which others need.
Smile with our lips.
Direct our hands to deeds of mercy.
Fill our hearts with the passion of Thy love for everyone we meet each day.
Use us as divine channels through which the world may be blest and set to singing praise to Thee.
As Thou didst give Thy life for mankind so may we give ourselves to Thee so that Thou mayst use us to bring others to Thee. Amen.

Song: "From Greenland's Icy Mountains"

This is often mentioned as the greatest of missionary hymns.

Since all the topics this month are missionary topics would it not be fine to memorize a stanza of this hymn at each meeting?

Discussion suggestions.

It is our purpose to show that Jesus was a missionary by giving the motives of missionary work as found in the life and work of Jesus. Of course, these motives are still the same.

I. The command of Christ.

A. Between the resurrection and ascension of Jesus, he spoke of nothing but missionary work. That burden lay most heavily upon his heart. He was eager to prepare his disciples to proclaim the message of salvation.

B. This was the one theme upon which Christ spoke as a commander. He said "Go."

II. Compassion, Mark 6:34; Matt. 9:27-30; Matt. 8:3; Matt. 14:15-21; Luke 10:2. Christ's heart was moved with compassion not only for the people before him but for the multitudes of people in all ages to come. Hence, today as then he is sending out an appeal for laborers.

III. Positive conviction of his mission. Matt. 18:11; John 10:16; Matt. 28:19; Acts 15:13-18.

IV. Share of the church. "God is visiting the nations, and Christians have the high privilege of visiting with Him. He goes forth in the persons of the missionaries, not to convert all of the world but to gather out from it a willing people, heavenly in quality and innumerable in quantity, which shall be to the glory of his name throughout time and eternity."

Offering during singing of "We Give Thee but Thine Own"

Announcements—Announce a missionary Roll call for one of the June meetings. Procure names and stories of our missionaries and when your name is called at roll call rise and tell briefly what these people who represent you are doing. Brief stories of our missionaries have recently appeared in the "Missionary News and Notes."

Closing song: "The Whole Wide World for Jesus"

Close with the Missionary Benediction

"God be merciful unto us, and bless us;
And cause his face to shine upon us;
That thy way may be known upon earth,
Thy saving health among all nations."
Ps. 67:1-2

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Outline for June, 1939

Lessons from "God's Out-of-Doors"

June 4 On the Heights. Ps. 121:1, 2; Isa. 54:10.
June 11 By the Waters. Ps. 23:2b; Rev. 22:1.
June 18 In the Desert. Neh. 9:19.
June 25 Beneath the Stars. Ps. 8:3; Rev. 22:16.

Verse for month: "He hath made His wonderful works to be remembered: the Lord is gracious and full of compassion" Ps. 111:4.

Song for month: "For the Beauty of the Earth."

Opening sentence for each service: "Stand still and consider the wondrous works of God." Job 37:14.

To the Leaders: This is vacation time. May we use it wisely. During the vacation months many of our juniors will have a better opportunity to become acquainted with "God's Out-of-Doors." Some of them will take trips, but many will have their vacations at home. Whether at home or on a trip, God's "Out-of-Doors" is there for us to enjoy and to learn from. The world of nature is full of emblems, mountains, skies, seas, trees, wind, all suggesting truths of spiritual import. Let us help our juniors to find these.

May our study, then, this month, help our Juniors to have a better picture of the country of our Lord, and above all a deeper consciousness of our Heavenly Father and Our Lord Jesus Christ, which will result in more definite consecration, love and loyalty.

The children will enjoy making a relief map of Palestine.

PROGRAM FOR JUNE 4, 1939

"ON THE HEIGHTS." Ps. 121:1, 2; Isa. 54:10.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude
2. Sing in unison: "The Lord is in His Holy Temple."
3. Leader's prayer.
4. Scripture—to be read responsively:
   Girls—Ps. 121:1, 3; Boys—Isa. 54:10.
   Girls—Ps. 36:6; Boys—Ps. 40:5.
   Together—Ps. 104:24.
5. Song—"For the Beauty of the Earth."
6. A Junior recites—Matt. 5:1-18. (Jesus teaching his disciples on the mountain)
7. Song—"Awake My Soul." v. 1.

II. Mission Minutes.

1. Continue study of "Home Missions." Leader helps the children to see the need and importance of this mission work.

2. Memorize together: Isaiah 52:7; Compare this verse with Romans 10:15 and discuss before memorizing.

III. Study Period

Aim: To learn about the mountains of Palestine and the stories associated with them. To learn that mountains teach us that God's grace and love remains for ever.

1. Introduction by an older person. (Use map). Jesus spent His years on earth in this little country. As we see there are many mountains and hills, the highest mountain is Mt. Hermon. (Tell more of geography of Palestine).

Many times we read of Jesus going up into the mountains to pray. In our worship service we found that Jesus taught his disciples while on a mountain. The Psalmist often speaks of the hills and the mountains. David said, "I will lift up my eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help." Mountains teach us that God is eternal. His righteousness is like the great mountains, (Ps. 36:6) unchangeable. His love and grace will never cease to be. He gave us His only begotten Son, Jesus, our Savior, to save us from our sins. This is the most wonderful thing He did.

2. Opening sentence in unison from blackboard. Job. 37:14: "Stand still and consider the wondrous works of God."

3. Bible Reading, by a Junior: The Mount of Transfiguration, Matt. 17:1-9.

4. Solo from rear of church, Holy, Holy, Holy, v. 1, 2

5. Bible Reading—Mt. Olivet, Luke 22:39-46, by a Junior.

6. Poem—by a Junior.

"See a mountain-side deserted,
See a garden, midnight-still.
See a lonely figure kneeling
In the silence of the hill;
Hear Him pray, in tones of anguish,
Till His brow with blood is wet,
"Not My will but Thine, O Father"—
"Olivet!"

7. Bible Reading—Mt. Calvary, Luke 23:33-38, by a junior.

8. Poem (same voice as in 6)

"See the heaven's o'er spread with shadow,
See a steep and stony hill,
See a surging throng press upward on a morning cold and chill;
'Gainst the sky a cross uplifted
High upraised for all to see—
Hanging there the Prince of Glory—Calvary!"
Clarkson.

9. Solo—"There is a green hill far away" v. 1, 3, 4.

10. Bible Reading—Mt. of Ascension. Matt. 28:16-20.

11. Solo—"O'er the distant mountains breaking" M. H. B., 169, v. 1, 4.

12. Bible Reading—Mt. Zion—Rev. 14:1-5; Rev. 21:10-27. Read by two Juniors.

13. Song by all Juniors—"Jerusalem the golden" v. 1, 2.

Leader's closing prayer.

The Blood Of The Lamb

Heb. 10:4. "For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins."

Some time ago a young Jewess was passing the door of a chapel in England. She was attracted by the sound of music, and went in to the porch to listen. The minister gave out the lines,—

"Not all the blood of beasts,
On Jewish altars slain,
Can give the guilty conscience peace,
Or wash away the stain."

She was surprised to hear mention made of "Jewish altars" in a Christian place of worship, and waited on till the next lines of the hymn were read out,—

"But Christ, the heavenly Lamb
Takes all our sins away:
A sacrifice of nobler name,
And richer blood than they."

She was more than ever startled and interested, for she felt there was something here such as she had been conscious she needed, but had never known; and so she continued to listen while the minister read and the congregation sang the rest of the hymn.

She returned home. But the truth had found its way into her heart and conscience. She was evidently taught of God. It soon became known among her friends that she had embraced the faith of Christ, and not a little persecution followed. Her health was feeble; and now she found herself gradually sinking into consumption.

One day she sent a message to a Christian lady who, she thought, would sympathize with her. The lady came. She heard her story, and they talked together of the Lord Jesus. When the lady asked her what gave her soul rest, the dying Jewess replied in the words of the hymn which she had heard that memorable night in the chapel:

My soul looks back to see
The burden He did bear,
When hanging on the accursed tree,
And knows its guilt was there."

They still talked together; but her strength was fast giving way. She made a further effort to repeat another verse:

"Believing, we rejoice
To see our guilt removed;
We bless the Lamb with cheerful voice,
And sing—"

Her voice failed; in a few minutes she breathed her last. She had gone to complete before the throne the song she had begun,—

To "sing His bleeding love."

Warning by the Father of Our Country

"Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, I conjure you to believe me, fellow citizens, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government, but that jealousy to be useful must be impartial, else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defense against it. Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike of another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side and serve to veil and even second the art of influence on the other. Real patriots who may resist the intrigues of the favorites are liable to become suspected and odious while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people to surrender their interest."

CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM CHURCH, MARION, S. D., 5-4-39.

After a reasonably fair winter a late spring made its appearance. Weather was cold and spring work delayed some. But during the last few days the fields have painted themselves into a rich green. With grain up and looking very promising, our farmers all hope for showers. So far there is no damage, but rain will be needed before long. Many a sincere and silent prayer is going up for the blessings that can only come from the skies.

Our people have gone through some very trying experiences in late years. Somehow things have not broken in our favor. When we raised little or no grain and it was necessary to buy to tide over our live stock, prices were high. The last two seasons, when we had fair to good small grain, prices were down. So it requires a lot of hope and faith.

But even if we have suffered in material benefits we have also learned some very valuable lessons. We are getting a sample of the pioneer life of our parents who settled here 65 years ago. Then there was no benevolent government assistance. They only had their iron hands and wills and confidence in a higher power to rely on.

The church has continued to function throughout all hard times. Only when one attends churches of other denominations, comes the realization that our people are church-minded. Such attendance and interest as is evidenced in our own churches, becomes the envy of some of our neighbors. Let us hope that it will continue and bear much fruit.

The world outlook is not at all encouraging. On every hand can be seen the need of more of the old time religion. We are learning again that we cannot rely on our temporal rulers. There is altogether too much saber rattling. The roar of guns, the drone of the airplanes, the threats and counter-threats of so-called statesmen must be music in the ears of Mars. Only seldom do we hear repeated the old commandment "thou shalt not kill." Where is the music of the angelic host, heard by the shepherds nineteen centuries ago, of "peace on earth, good will among men?" The disturbing question of today is whether or not we have learned something as a result of our participation in the last world war. Is President Roosevelt living up to his "good neighbor" policy?

Our church is getting ready to entertain the Northern District Conference next month. The Freeman Junior College singers recently returned from a bus trip through Minnesota, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Nebraska. Among the recent deaths in the community was Mrs. Peter M. Waltner, as a result of an operation for cancer. Next Sunday the church will observe Communion service.—John J. Gering, Corr.

FIRST MENNONITE CONGR., NEWTON, KANS.

In the evening of April 2, Mr. Donald Smucker, field secretary of the Friends' peace committee, gave to the young people a very interesting view of world conditions. Having travelled lately in Europe, he made it very interesting, emphasizing the necessity and possibility of peace, if Christ comes in the heart of the people.—After the young peoples' meeting, the Bethel College a cappella choir sang "The Seven Last Words of Christ" very impressively to a good sized audience.

On Good Friday, we had service in our church in the forenoon. In the afternoon there was a union service in the Methodist church from 12-3 o'clock. Seven ministers spoke very earnestly on the seven last words of Christ. In the evening we had, in the basement of our church, a very solemn consecration meeting by candle light. Dr. Warkentin spoke on consecration.—On the evening of Easter Sunday our Junior Choir gave a very nice Easter program.

On April 30, there was held in our church, in the afternoon and evening, the meeting of the Mennonite Teachers' Association of Kansas. The addresses and the singing were very good and the session was well attended.—In the afternoon Dr. Harold Bender from Goshen, Indiana, spoke on Peace and the position of the conscientious objector. In the evening he gave a very interesting report of his trip to the Mennonite colonies in South America, showing many pictures, some moving pictures, which he himself had taken. The large audience was very much pleased.

IN MEMORIAM

FERDINAND R. FUNK, son of Gerhard W. and Elizabeth Rempel Funk, was born June 2, at Bruderthal, Kansas. He was baptized on confession of his faith on June 9, 1918 by Elder W. J. Ewert, and joined the Bruderthal Church near Hillsboro, Kansas. He was educated in the grade school and had 2½ years of college training. On October 8, 1925, he married Agnes Schroeder, daughter of Jacob J. Schroeder. At first they were at home in Hillsboro, then moved to Newton, Kansas, where they joined the Bethel College Church. Later they moved onto their farm north of Newton, and joined the Alexanderwohl Church February 7, 1935. He was a great friend of children. So they took into their home two children, LeRoy, now ten years of age, and Darline, now 2½ years of age.

He was a God-fearing, kind husband and father. He had a heart for the need of others and, whenever possible, he was ready to help. He proved himself as a regenerated child of God. He was deeply interested in school and church and discharged the obligation which these institutions entrusted to him cheerfully and conscientiously. Adversities were met patiently and it was his desire to live in peace with everyone. In his days of sickness and tribulation he held his faith in his Savior unto the end. During these days he prayed very often, and confidently he said, "Wonderful are His ways, we reason and God leads." The day before his death he remarked, "Why must I pass through this? God has numbered my days." He was ready to die and be at home with the Lord.

About seven weeks ago he became sick. Later he contracted blood poison which affected his heart seriously. The last 15 days—the very last eight days at the Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kans.—he was very sick. All that medical care could do for him was done, but it was God's will that he should pass on to his eternal reward, and he died April 26, 1939, at the age of 38 years, 10 months and 24 days. He lived in the state of matrimony 13 years, 6 months and 18 days. He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, Agnes; two children, LeRoy and Darline; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Funk; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Schmidt; 5 brothers and 3 sisters: Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard R. Funk; Mr. and Mrs. Solomon R. Funk; Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard R. Funk; Mr. and Mrs. Valentine R. Funk; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Funk; Miss Lydia R. Funk; Mrs. Ella and Mrs. Gerhard K. Warkentin; Mrs. Elizabeth and Mr. Adolf E. Schmidt; also 6 brothers-in-law, 5 sisters-in-law, 5 stepbrothers-in-law and 5 stepsisters-in-law, and many other relatives and friends.—Funeral services were held at the Alexanderwohl church, April 29. Words of comfort were spoken by Rev. C. C. Wedel, based on Luke 7:13; by Rev. P. H. Unruh, who used for his text, John 14:1 & 2; and by Rev. P. H. Richert who gave the closing remarks based on Jer. 29:11.

EMMA JULIA LEHMAN, daughter of Charles and Mary Schall, was born June 28, 1871, in East St. Louis, Ill., and passed away April 8, 1939, having reached the age of 67 years, 9 months and 10 days.

In young womanhood she with her parents came to Benton, Kans., later coming to Halstead, where most of her life was spent, except six years after marriage, when they lived in St. Louis, Mo. Later they again came to Halstead to live.

She was baptized by Rev. Christian Krehbiel, and joined the Mennonite church where she was a faithful member until her death.—She was married to J. W. Lehman on Aug. 28, 1892.

She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, J. W. Lehman, her daughter, Mrs. Herman Bansemer, one son-in-law, five grandsons, two granddaughters and one great granddaughter.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newton conducted the services, assisted by Rev. T. R. Mordy of the Presbyterian church.

— CONVENTION, RETREAT OF THE EASTERN DISTRICT Y. P.—The East. Distr. Y. P.'s Union will be held on Tuesday, May 30, at the Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa., Rev. Freeman Swartz, Pastor.—THE RETREAT this year will be in two groups. The elder Young People's Retreat will be held June 16-18, and the High Shool group Retreat June 23-25. General theme for both retreats, will be STEWARDSHIP.—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bechtel and Rev. Plenert attended the 10th annual State Convention of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches recently. —Bulletin, First Ch., Phila.

— Rev. L. H. Linscheid, pastor of the Bethany church, Freeman, So. Dak., has been able to interest his S. S. teachers and parents in the Junior Messenger, to the extent that he has just placed an order for the paper with addresses of 45 families, so that all who have children up to high school age may get the paper right into their homes. That is a fine piece of service which we sincerely appreciate and for which we offer hearty thanks. Ministers can do much to get our papers to go into the families of their church.

— The Mary-Martha Circle of Lehigh, Kansas, is a sewing society and an organization of five denominations of the Lehigh community, which holds its meetings every first Thursday of the month, in homes of members. We have 26 members. Our study book this year is "Moving Millions." An auction sale of fancy work and eats was held May 2, in the high school auditorium. The sale netted more than it had for several years.—Mrs. F. G. Unruh, Corr.

— Drilling for Oil in the Salem Church neighborhood, South Dakota. Within a few miles of this church oil wells are being drilled. In this connection the "Monthly News Letter" makes these observations: Oil drilling as a rule becomes a supreme test of one's character. Can you stand the profits or the losses that may come? . . . Not your attitude toward oil but your attitude toward God will be the crucial test . . . The key to oil-blessings is Matthew 6:3. Read it. The more oil, the more Bible reading! The less oil the more Bible reading. If you get oil, you immediately become a trustee.

— From the Salem Mennonite Church of Dalton, O. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger its pastor, writes, "We have recently started issuing a church bulletin of which I am enclosing some." Thank you, Bro. Rosenberger. And here is a wish for more of them. Bulletins help to make church service more worshipful and dignified.—At the recent Communion service in that church there were 178 participants. The Sunday School has an enrollment of 158.—Peter Schneck who has taught a class for 53 years had to give it up on account of illness.

— Prof. H. B. Adams, beloved piano teacher on the Bluffton College faculty for 25 years, passed away recently following a period of illness of more than a year, at the age of 81 years. Many readers of the Mennonite have fond memories of pleasant contacts with Prof. Adams. Mrs. Ackerman Adams, his good wife, is also a music teacher and made herself useful in many ways at Bluffton and vicinity.

— Happy Thoughts.—Knowing that you don't know much is knowing a lot.—A thin skin often denotes a thick skull.—To produce results a garden must be cultivated. So must happiness.—Life is a measure to be filled, not a cup to be drained.—A good substitute for brains is silence.—Life can never be one grand sweet song if your face is as long as a fiddle.—Menn. Messenger, Sugar Creek, O.

—WESTERN DISTRICT TIDINGS.—Number two of this paper, organ of the Western District Christian Endeavor societies, is before us. It is a very creditable 6-page production, brimful of interesting information and contributions. In it we are told that the date for the Retreat is set, but unfortunately the date is omitted.—This year's Convention is to be held at West Zion church, Moundridge, Kans.—A good article by Rev. Sam Goering urges readers to pray for peace and missions.—Another interesting article by Viola Graber, Bethel student, tells of the Mission Work in China.—A column is devoted to "Peace and Oratory" by Ervin Stucky.

—Rev. H. F. Unruh of the First Church, Bluffton, O., has a letter from Prof. Gerhard Toews of Freeman College in which Mr. Toews expresses his and his choirs heartfelt gratitue for the fine reception received at Bluffton. "It was very kind of you to take us in when you have such a fine school in your own community and much superior talent. We feel sincere gratitude toward you and your people whom we have learned to admire and to love during our short stay with you. May God bless you."

—From "the Messenger," Clinton and Canton, Okla. One more of the old Indians left us, our old native helper, Kias, Clinton. He had a bad cold, perhaps flu, and then pneumonia. Death did not come unexpected for him. He committed himself to God who was his Father through Jesus Christ, his personal Savior. His life was a life of service for his family, his tribe and his church. He filled his place behind the pulpit in his church two Sundays out of three. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord . . . they rest from their labors and their works follow them."—E.

—Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally. Pa. has also joined the group of those churches that are sending us copies of their church bulletin, through the kindness of Mae Latshaw, which we appreciate. A recent Bulletin reports that the Bluffton College vesper choir which gave them the splendid program April the 15th, was given an offering by the audience of $46.52. In all their bulletins occurs this announcement: "The Deacon will be glad to receive your subscription to "The Mennonite." Would that other churches featured such a reminder regarding the church papers.

—Mennonite Church, Burrton, Kans.—A nice folder entitled "The Pastor's Helper" is sent us by the pastor Walter H. Dyck. Many thanks. The following are given as "Sermon Subjects" for May and June: May 7, "What does it mean to become a Christian?" —May 14, Mother's Day, "What do parents owe their children?"—May 21, "What is meant by the baptism of the Holy Spirit?"—May 28, Pentecost, "How shall I confess my Lord?"—June 4, "God's call to a life of self-surrender."—June 11, God's call to a life of separation."—June 18, (Communion), "God's call to a life of service."—June 25, "God's call to a life of stewardship."

—The Hammon (Mission) district (Oklahoma) has a large community garden project. About five and one-half acres in front of the old Redmoon school building has been turned into a garden plot with irrigation facilities. The ground is laid off in lots, of which one is assigned to each family, cared for by that family, with benefits derived from the plot going to it.

The Institute of International Relations

From June 13 to 22 the Institute of International Relations will convene for its sixth annual session at Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas. And though this venture has not always been or brought what some observers had in mind, yet it looks very much as though it has come to stay, for it has grown in attendance, especially of people outside the Mennonite fold. It has been strengthened in giving more definite expression to the peace idea, of which people that attended only the early sessions are probably not aware. In a measure it has also improved through the care with which speakers are chosen. The Institute at Newton was started by the Friends Peace Committee and speakers were largely of its selection. However, more recently the local management, which knows the need of this section better, has had more to say concerning the selection of lecturers. As to emphasis on peace, last year every afternoon a group of ministers and school men, mostly representing non-Mennonite denominations, and others, met to listen to peace-talks and to discuss ways to disseminate the principle of Christian peace in churches, through clubs, and otherwise in their communities. That is certainly a good way to inaugurate peace action through Mennonite efforts, and to let our light shine, instead of keeping it under a bushel, as we may be charged of having done in the past. This definite and practical way to disseminate convictions of peace among other than our own people, we understand is to be carried on in a more aggressive way this year, in afternoon discussion periods, and it is hoped that Mennonite leaders will share in this work, through talks and discussion participation.

Then, too, we Mennonites must remember that standing up for peace and preaching peace is not enough amidst the pitiful conditions of the world in which we live. There are economic and social ills that need to be remedied and if the Institute can show us how this might be done, and how Christians may have a share in it, we shall certainly be benefitted. Though we have Christian nations, their governments can hardly be called Christian as long as they go counter to the teachings of the Prince of Peace, by making the preparation for wars practically their main business. So if we Mennonites, by becoming informed how to right wrongs through peaceful, common sense readjustments, can lend our help in this larger way, why not join in the effort? Just one illustration: The earth, coupled with man's skillful hand and thinking mind, produces enough of the necessities of life that every family on the globe might live fairly comfortably, if it were given its share. And yet how inadequately are these shares distributed, when we find millions at the starving point and thousands living in opulence and luxury. Christ did His best to teach the doctrine of sharing and did what He could to demonstrate it in practice, but still the world goes on with its "Haves" and "Have--nots" as ever. England, France, Russia, America, world empires, with a superabundance of natural resources at their disposal, care very little about the struggle of other nations, especially the struggle which the small shut-in nations endure trying to supply their bare needs. For thinkers and lecturers to find and promulgate ways to remedy such unjust economic conditions, at least in part, and as soon as possible, is certainly serving the cause of peace and goodwill to men.

The Institute has had its weak spots and the management has made mistakes, as they readily admit. But serious efforts have been made to improve and to make the institution a real source of help for the cause of peace. And, after all, "by their fruits ye shall know them." No enterprise should be definitely judged until it has had time to show its fruit, and it cannot be denied that the I. O. I. R. has shown some worthwhile fruit already. The speakers for this year, with one exception, appear to be persons who can do much to help spread the peace movement locally and in a larger way. We notice Dr. Leyton Richards, a real power for Christian peace. Next to him is the Christian Chinese leader, T. Z. Koo, who has greatly helped the peace movement, while there are others on the list that look promising. We hope many will come to share the good that may be derived from it.

Jesus organized the church, which is His vineyard. He commands all to go into the vineyard and work. All who are united to Christ by faith, and are thus members of His mystical body, should be members of His visible church.—Aughey.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN? — In Psalm 2:2 we read, "The kings of the earth set themselves and the rulers take counsel together against the Lord and against his Anointed . . ." If we continue the verse thus: "In preventing the Christ-brought message of peace and goodwill from taking effect in the hearts of men and teaching men everywhere to kill each other wholesale, instead of how they might live in peace," we have a pretty good picture of the world today. And I hope one may be forgiven for trying to imagine what would happen if the real Christians in the world—we will suppose that there are a few million—would rise in a body, saying we are done with war, we will have nothing more to do with it. We will not only not engage in any war activity but we will resist with all our spiritual force and fortitude. Yes, what would happen? Would the existing governments persecute these Christians? One would hardly think so. The experiment, if it were possible of enactment, would certainly be a test between the forces of evil and good. It may come to something like this, though. Before governments go much farther in their preparations for war, which is clearly indicated, in another armed world conflict, so-called Christian civilization would be destroyed. The real Christians will have to take a stand, to teach rulers their folly.

AN INTERESTING WORD FROM ABROAD.— In a letter to the editor, the elder of the Mennonite Church at Langnau, Bern, Switzerland, and editor of "Der Zionspilger," Rev. Hans Kipfer, says among other things, "What shall I say about the conditions in Europe? In a way we are glad when Pres. Roosevelt steadies the democratic nations of Europe their backbone. Of course the axis powers have their good side in that they fight menacing bolshevism. But the German national socialism, with its dictatorial woof, is really anti-Christian, which may be seen from their Aryan paragraph which excludes all other races. It is a frightful struggle against the Jews and therewith also against Jesus. The confessional church in Germany suffers seriously under the Hitlerian regime. Even in Switzerland has the experience of the German confessional church brought about considerable disturbance. We are now approaching ominous times. If national socialism should continue in ascendency, freedom, both in the Christian and political realm, would have a terrible set-back and there would likely be much suffering."

ORDINATION SERVICE

The Lehigh Mennonite Church wishes to announce the ordination of Brother Reynold Weinbrenner to the Ministry of the Gospel on May 28, 1939, at 2:30 p. m. All who possibly can are cordially invited to come to this service.

B. H. Janzen, Pastor.

The New Hymn Book

Many are asking when the new hymn book will be off the press and what it will be like. No definite publication date can be set. The book is still in the process of compilation; much editorial work still needs to be done; copyrights must be secured (some of them from foreign countries); and a working "dummy" must be made for the printer. Making the music plates is a slow process—the printers doing no more than three to five per day. The committee hopes that the book will be ready for use by late fall or early winter. But this is no promise. We promise only to do our work as faithfully as we know how before going to print; and to produce a book that will be worthy of a place in every Mennonite home and church.

In compiling this new hymn book, the committee, fortunately, has the benefit of many similar efforts on the part of other denominations. The Presbyterians, Methodists, Episcopalians, Lutherans, the United Church of Canada, as well as many smaller denominations, have in recent years published new hymnals for use in their churches. In addition to these, a number of non-denominational books have been published. We are searching these diligently for usable material, taking from each what seems best adapted for the needs of our own denomination. Then too we have spent many hours in going through the Gesangbuch and other books, formerly used by our people, to find tunes and hymns which have been used and which have stood the test of time. In the new books we seek to recover and make available many old tunes which our people have sung for generations and which are a part of our distinctive musical heritage.

A section of the book will be devoted to sixty or seventy of the finest of the German Chorales, covering the Church Year and also including a number for general use. There is nothing finer in church music anywhere than these Chorales and we believe they should be preserved and made available to a generation whose church music is tending towards the sentimental and frivolous and secular. The words lose something in translation for those familiar with the German. But we are happy to have found that many of them have been rendered into excellent English. It is the plan to set the German text, as well as the English, to a number of these Chorales.

Another section of the book will contain a collection of the so-called Gospel Hymns. There is some difference of opinion among our people as to this class of hymns or songs. But the committee believes that they will serve a good and practical purpose. They are easy to sing, many people like them, and have been greatly blessed by them. Fifty or more of the best and most loved of these songs will be included. Another special feature will be a section of about thirty of the metrical psalms which were once used exclusively in some sections of the Scotch and English churches and are still favorites among many congregations. The tunes, as a rule, are short, simple, dignified, and singable.

The committee works on the assumption that the center and most important part of our church music is congregational singing. Choir music and instrumental music have their legitimate place; but a place always secondary to congregational singing. We are looking for tunes, therefore, not for organists to play, but for the people to sing. A number of tunes in our present Hymn Book will be eliminated which, though good in themselves, are not well adapted for the use of congregations. Not every congregation will find all the tunes in the new book usable. Some of them are quite difficult and will be attempted only by such of our churches that have good choirs to lead the people in song. But we believe that every congregation, large and small, will find in the new book an adequate selection of material to meet their needs for church worship, Sunday School and Young People's Societies.

Other articles to follow will explain in more detail certain features of the new hymn book. It is our earnest hope and prayer that it will meet the spiritual needs of our people at worship; that it will preserve the heritage of song which is ours; and that it will serve as a bond of union and fellowship among the brotherhood. We seek the interest and prayers and counsel of ministers of the congregation, musicians and interested laymen to the end that this new hymn book may rank with the best in the field; that its format and content will be of such distinction and distinctiveness that it will find a large and useful place in the life of our beloved church.

Return to India

Plans for the return to India have now been completed. By these, Mrs. Moyer and I and Teddy will leave New York on July 19th, on the S. S. President Roosevelt, Pier 59, N. River, W 18th St., New York City. Again from Southampton we expect to sail on the S. S. Ranchi on July 29th, to arrive at Bombay on August 17th.

If friends in America have small parcels for friends in India, they may be sent to Berne by June 20th, or to Lansdale, Penna., by July 10th. Please address us: "W. Main Street, Berne, Indiana," after June 19th; or "940 W. Columbia Ave., Lansdale, Penna.," from July 12th to 18th; or "c-o S. S. President Roosevelt" sailing July 19th; "W. 18th Street, New York City" up to July 19th; or, thereafter, Janjgir, C. P. INDIA.

Observations and appreciations of what this furlough has meant to us will be sent in later. God has been good.

A German Bishop Speaks to Mennonites

At the recent Methodist uniting conference in Kansas City, Methodist leaders from many parts of the world were in attendance. Among these was Bishop Dr. Otto Melle from Berlin, Germany. Through the kindly mediation of Mr. J. J. Kroeker, son of the well-known Jacob Kroeker of Wernigerode, Germany, Bishop Melle was induced to visit Newton, Kansas, on Sunday, May 14. He preached a wonderful sermon at the First Mennonite Church in the morning, and as the Mennonite Bible Conference just happened to be in session, he spoke to that large assembly in the city auditorium, both afternoon and evening.

In the afternoon, following a full Bible lecture, the Bishop decided that he had better give the audience lighter food, and started to tell them a few stories of God's wonderful doings in missions, opening doors here and closing them there, even today just as He did of old, citing for an example Paul's experience as shown in Acts 16, part of which he read. Two of his stories were as follows:

The German Methodists have been doing missionary work in southern Europe for years. From a certain town in Hungary had come an earnest request that someone be sent there to give lectures on temperance, and gospel messages. As Dr. Melle was then serving as missionary in that territory, he was directed to this service. The meeting had been announced by the small group of Christians, under whose auspices he was to speak. When he arrived there, he received written orders from the city authorities, through the chief of police, that he was forbidden to speak. But the group met nevertheless, with two armed policemen at the door, ready to arrest the preacher, in case he attempted to speak. Dr. Melle then called for some one who could read the manifesto, and asked if there was anything in it that forbade singing. And the answer came, "No." So, since this was on the evening of Christmas day, they sang a couple of Christmas songs like "Stille Nacht," and the people sang with such zest and force that the singing of the angels above Bethlehem's plains could hardly have been more fervent. Then he asked if there was anything in the order against prayer, and the reply was, "No." So the Bishop prayed as probably never before in his life. After the prayer he asked if the order forbade solving riddles, and it did not. Then he asked the audience, what was really the most wonderful, the most important part in the story of Christ's birth, and received all sorts of answers, to all of which he shook his head. Begged to give his answer, he replied that it was that Christ came into the world to save sinners, I Tim. 1:15, which he quoted in the sense of the German, because of its greater force: "Es ist gewisslich wahr und ein teuer wertes Wort" etc. It is absolutely true (true beyond a shadow of a doubt) and a truly precious word that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners (of whom I am the chief). Being questioned and begged to explain this, he did so for full 45 minutes and thus put across one of the most effective sermons he ever gave. By this time the policemen were as interested as anybody.

Getting ready to dismiss the meeting, he was entreated to propose another riddle. And this was it: Which is the most important letter in the alphabet? Many letters were guessed, but finally the preacher had to tell them that it was the letter M. "O that is because your name begins with M," somebody asserted. "No!" "Well then tell us why." There is "ein Heiland—ein Erretter" that came to save us, he remarked; but that does not help us unless we can put the M before ein and say, mein Heiland, mein Jesus, my Savior, my Jesus. Then the preacher had to explain the full meaning of this, and again in effect preached a 45 minute sermon. The next day as the dignitaries of the town met around their "stammtisch" to enjoy their mugs of beer, they confessed that they had had many requests to let the visiting preacher go on with his work, and since they were quite convinced that it was harmless, the result was a series of spirit-guided meetings with men and women being born anew.—T.

An Internationally Renowned Christian of Germany

By J. J. Kroeker

A brief summary of the information which Dr. F. H. Otto Melle, Berlin, Germany, Bishop of the German Episcopal Methodist Church, and Executive Secretary of the Association of German Free Churches, gave in his four talks in Newton, Kans., will surely be welcomed by all who seek to discern truth in our days of universal war propaganda. In both, the First Methodist Church, and in the evening assembly of the Bible Conference at the City Auditorium, Dr. Melle emphasized the following facts:

First: During the past twenty years Germany has had no less than four different flags. First there was the flag of the Monarchy. Then there were red flags of Communism, which, in their turn, were replaced by the flag of the Marxist Republic. In 1933 the flag of National Socialism triumphed. These rapid changes, and the unrest which goes with them, had their influences on general conditions. The changes themselves were rooted in the World War, and especially in the utterly unjust Treaty of Versailles. The changes are really a continuous revolution, which culminated in the victory of National Socialism over Germany; a revolution which cannot be ended within a few years, and which still is going on. It is also a revolution which means more than a mere change of a government system. It is a radical re-molding of a status quo ante and it will take perhaps another twenty, even fifty years, until Europe in general, and Germany in particular, will have overcome the after effects of the World War and its results.

Dr. Melle pointed out that each revolution carries within itself new religious ideas, just as each religious reformation is always a carrier of revolutionary ideas. There are movements in Germany which would like to re-make also the religious foundations of the country, but these movements were present before. If hateful propaganda seeks to exploit them for purposes of its own, this does not mean that anti-Christian trends have become a greater menace to the true Church of Christ in Germany, as they are a constant menace to his churches in all countries, including that of the United States. But Germany has its church conflict. To give his audience an objective picture to this conflict, Dr. Melle used the following illustrations:

(1) Leading churchmen of our country had been interviewing Dr. Melle concerning the conflict of the German Evangelical Church with the government. For many generations this church has been practically a part of the State Government, which has been financing it. The head of the State was always also the head of the churches. An anomaly, which in Bavaria, an overwhelming Catholic country, made the King of Bavaria, himself a Catholic, nominal head of the Bavarian Evangelical Churches. The pastors in Germany were thus in reality State officials, paid by the State. Dr. Melle had asked the American churchmen, whether they would insist on controlling the spending of money given for a cause, as well as the spending agencies and their agents. The answer had been an emphatic affirmation. "Well," Dr. Melle said, "The German National Socialist government in the year 1938 alloted not less than a quarter billion dollars—500 million marks—to the Evangelical Churches of Germany, and it insisted on the right to control the activities of a church which did not mind to accept such vast amounts out of the state treasury.

(2) How a church conflict can arise, and how it can be avoided. All Free Churches of Germany are absolutely self-supporting, and independent. To illustrate how easy a conflict can develop, Dr. Melle told us about a singular incident within his own Methodist Church. A church in a large town had been closed without any apparent reason. A council of pastors was called and one of them suggested that the American sister churches be immediately informed that, now, the Methodist Church, too, was being "persecuted." Someone else proposed to defy the government, and if all the church leaders were arrested, the world would soon hear about it. But then it was decided to investigate, and it was found that the pastor of this church had, for some time, been conducting revival meetings in a village which was 95 percent Marxist and Communist. This pastor had met with great success. People had joined his church, and the local parish church had remained rather empty during these weeks. The pastor of that church had a police official for a friend, and he told the friend that the Methodist preacher must be a sympathizer of Communism, and was preaching Marxism, because the people were flocking to his sermons. When the truth was brought out, this pastor's church was immediately opened. He now has the confidence of the police, and he can preach wherever he wants to preach, and whatever he wishes to preach. Had the Methodist Council acted according to the advice of some of its members, the Methodists of Germany, too, would have had their "conflict." As it is, neither they, nor the Baptist, nor the other Free Churches are involved in any strife and controversy.

(3) The work among young people. All of Germany's youth has been drawn into the "Hitler Youth" organizations. To avoid possible conflicts, all denominational young people's organizations were dissolved. But the dissolution of the multitude of denominational organizations does NOT mean that work of the church among its young people is prohibited, or is hampered. It is now the church itself which appoints the leaders which control the work. As a result, a Methodist pastor, instead of announcing an evening meeting of the "Epworth League" simply tells the congregation that "the young people of the church will meet tonight for their regular activities." The outstanding result of this change is, that these young people's meetings are better attended, and that they are better conducted than they ever were in former times.

Second: The early churches of Christianity, said Dr. Melle, have always been self-supporting and independent. Connections with the State came up and all troubles of any of the German churches with the State are rooted in this connection. The Free Churches of Germany have been upholding the principles of the early churches, and they have been doing so with remarkable success. They have been able to adapt themselves to the situation WITHOUT giving up any fundamental principles of Christian faith and conscience. This proves that a church absolutely independent from the state church is "The Ideal," which must be preserved, and which America should never give up.

Dr. Melle closed his remarks with the truth, that the fight of the Church of Christ is a fight with sin. The churches of Germany are carrying on this fight, as they have always been doing. The Free Churches have their very well-attended annual conferences. The Methodists have five of them every year. The great "Blankenburger Allianzkonferenz," of which Dr. Melle is chairman of the Executive Board, celebrated its 50th Anniversary in 1936 and over 5000 out-of-town visitors were assembled for a whole week for no other purpose than to study the Word of God; both, the Old and the New Testament. Because the assembly hall of the Conference had been too small, the National Socialist Party of the town had given its own large auditorium for this purpose, and the mayor of the city had been very active personally, to prepare everything for a successful and undisturbed Bible Week. If Christians throughout the world, instead of believing in hateful propaganda, would pray for each other, and would practice the love of Christ, conditions in general would be vastly different from what they are. As far as the Church of Christ in Germany is concerned we should not think that its troubles are different from the troubles it has found in this country. But these are troubles which it has been having since it was founded, and which to overcome, we all need the aid of the Lord Jesus Christ, yesterday, today, and for all times to come.

Letter by the Eastern Conference to President Roosevelt

May 11, 1939

To the President,
Greeting:

A unanimous vote was taken at the 141st Session of the Eastern District Conference of Mennonites held in the Hereford Mennonite Church May 4-7, 1939, Bally, Pennsylvania, declared it to be the sense of the conference that it was to be deplored that the Chief Executive of the land had consented to and in fact officially opened the World's Fair at New York on a Sunday. By this act, the President of the United States has given added courage to those who have neither regard for the foundation of our nation nor consideration for our spiritual and moral well-being.

Furthermore, if the President was correctly reported in the newspapers concerning a reference he is said to have made to the Eighteenth Amendment, as the only amendment passed in the past twenty years that encroached upon human freedom in the United States, the President not only mistakes freedom for license but gives moral support to the drink evil in our land which has already risen to the levels which prevailed in the Jeffersonian era.

Mr. President, I was instructed to convey to you sir, this expression as the sense of our Conference.

Respectfully yours,
Howard G. Nyce, Secretary of the Eastern District Conference.

How different the peace of God from that of the world! It calms the passions, preserves the purity of conscience, is inseparable from righteousness, unites us to God and strengthens us against temptations. The pace of the soul consists in an absolute resignation to the will of God.—Fenelon.

Paul Solves Church Problems

I Cor. 1:1-3, 10, 11; 4:14-21; I Thess. 5:12-15

Topic: Christian Solution for Church Difficulties

Introduction

In today's lesson, Paul gives the fundamentals for solving church problems. Wherever there are people problems seem to arise. No organization is long free from them. Since men cannot agree on all matters, difference of opinion will inevitably arise in the church. Such problems may well be settled by an honest seeking for light, and with a real desire for the welfare of God's work. There were problems in the churches founded by the apostles. Paul's letters were occasioned largely by various kinds of church problems. A careful study of the Church of the first few centuries reveals the existence of serious church problems.

Paul's Greeting I Cor. 1:1-3

In his preface he announces that his apostleship is "through the will of God." This will is the ruling principle of his life. He addresses the Corinthian Church as "the Church of God," whose members are "sanctified" in Christ, and "called to be saints," set apart for God. Paul saw in them the Church of the living God.

Problem of Divisions vs 10, 11

The problem of divisions in the Church is very modern as well as ancient. The Corinthian church members had formed factions, a common condition today. Paul is deeply concerned about the glory and honor of Christ (v 10), and in His name urges them to be harmonious and like-minded in Christ. His Spirit is the spirit of unity. What Paul means in verse 10 is more fully explained in verse 12. He urges all to magnify Christ instead of the several leaders to whom they hold allegiance. Four parties had arisen (v 12). Paul's whole aim was only to magnify Christ. What must Christ think of the factions, divisions, which exist at times within congregations today? It is very needful that each church speak—in practice as well as in words—with one united voice in the world today. The remedy for church divisions lies in emphasizing the things upon which the members agree, stressing the fundamentals, particularly Christ. The more such divided churches become actively busy in doing Christ's work, the less inclination and time they have for divisions.

Problem of the Proud Leaders 4:14-21

Paul has been telling of his suffering for Christ's sake. He does not say this boastfully to make them feel that they have suffered so little in comparison (v 14). He was the founder of the church and they, the converts, were his spiritual children and he, their spiritual father (v 15). He relied upon the example of his own life to help them. In contrast to Paul's humility, there were leaders in the Corinth Church who had become very proud and self-important during Paul's absence and did not care for his return (v 18). He will, when he comes, (v 19) estimate these men by their actual power in the kingdom work, not by their proud words. This is the real test (v 20). Many a church today has the problem of the man who feels all-important and will oppose much that others may suggest and desire. This serious problem, the meek and lowly Spirit of Christ alone can solve.

Problem of Christian Conduct I Thess. 5:12-15.

Paul was entirely free from the domineering spirit. He urges believers to esteem and value their spiritual leaders properly (v 12). They are to hold them in loving esteem "for their work's sake." Christians must always study to be at peace among themselves. Those who are unruly, disorderly, are to be warned or admonished—for they bring reproach upon God's Church. This needs to be done in the spirit of gentleness and with a deep concern for their souls. Some need instruction, others need to be reminded of the seriousness of their Christian profession and their obligation to Christ. The Church must deal with unruly members in the spirit of Christ. The fainthearted should be encouraged, comforted; the weak spiritually, should be supported, strengthened. Encouragement usually helps far more than rebuke. In all things we should be Christ-like.

Friendship

Friendship is the strangest power
That to you or me can come,
For it consists of love and kindness
And its powers survive the tomb.

Perhaps you've had some great desires,
But grown weary in the chase,
Let us cultivate the great thing friendship,
You'll find it thrives most any place.

Friendship is the love that's in us,
The bestest thing you ever saw;
It is a golden treasure chest
From which rich and poor alike may draw.

The world today needs a real foundation;
If it should look to me or you
Let's point it to the word called friendship,
'Twill hold the building staunch and true.

The Challenge of Personal Evangelism

Sermon preached by Rev. Walter Gering, President, before the recent West. Distr. Ministerial Conf. at Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas

Text: "And the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza which is desert. And he arose and went." Acts 8:26, 27.

Think of it! Here was a man conducting one of the finest evangelistic campaigns recorded in the New Testament. Philip was one of the seven deacons of the early Jerusalem Church, whose duty it was to provide for the physical welfare of needy widows. With the dispersion, due to the intense persecution of the Jewish leaders, Philip made his way unto Samaria, and there began a successful campaign. The extent of his success is evidenced by three facts: The whole city was moved to a great joy, the very strongholds of Satan represented in Simon were literally shaken, and the word of the great revival brought forth an investigation on the part of Peter and John. The revival at Samaria comes to us as one of the most outstanding in the entire New Testament.

And right in the very midst of that campaign, just when we read that the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, we read these words: "Arise, go! And he arose and went." Can you imagine any evangelist, in the midst of a successful series of meetings, suddenly leaving the field? To our way of thinking this was a tragic mistake on the part of Philip. And it would have been had it not been for one fact: It was the Lord who had called him out. We might understand it if it had been the Jews who commanded him to leave, for they were constantly opposing the Gospel. We might have understood, had it been the Jewish Christians for they still could not believe that the Gospel was for all. But it was none of these, it was the Lord Himself calling unto Philip to leave. And in response to that divine call we read: "He arose and went."

Now, why should the Lord call Philip away from the field at Samaria? We might understand it if we read that at Gaza Philip was conducting an even greater campaign than at Samaria. But we read no such thing. We read simply that Philip, passing through, preached in all the cities till he came to Casaerea. All that we read is that on the way to Gaza he met an Ethiopian; a man who had been worshipping at Jerusalem and now was on his way homeward. In that one, lowly esteemed as he may have been by the Jew, though highly honored at home, we have the answer to the call of Philip. In behalf of that one man the Lord commanded Philip to leave Samaria, make his way over the desert ways, until he reached the chariot of this seeking worshipper.

This incident out of the life of Philip, a successful evangelist, ought to challenge us as a conference. It ought to challenge us to reconsider God's emphasis upon the unspeakable values of the individual soul. One of the tragic mistakes of our day is the undue stress upon numbers, when God's Word and the course of history repeatedly reveal that the Lord is interested not primarily in masses but in individuals. Think of a man like Apollos, divinely led from his home city of Alexandria to Ephesus, there to meet Aquilla and Priscilla, also divinely led from Corinth to Ephesus. Consider a passage such as that recorded in the 4th chapter of John, in which we read that "he (Lord) must needs go through Samaria." Or turn to a passage like Luke 19 in which we read that the Lord speaks unto Zachaeus: "Today I must abide at thy house." The Scriptures as well as history are a constant reminder of the emphasis the Lord places, not upon the masses, but upon the individual soul.

This incident out of the life of Philip ought to challenge us to reconsider the need of individuals who may be used as instruments in winning these single souls. God, in the fulfillment of His divine purpose, has constantly used human instrumentalities. When He desired to lead His chosen people out of bondage, He called and used a man. When He sought to prepare the way for the coming of Christ He sent forth a man. When He delivered the apostle Paul out of the hands of a band of men who had vowed they would not eat until they had seen his death, it was a young boy who served as an instrument in the hands of the Lord. When England sank into the depths of sin and the tide was turned, it was God using men like John and Charles Wesley. In our own land men like Edwards, Knapp, Finney, Cartwright, Moody, and countless others became His instruments. In His divine providence the Lord has seen fit to use human instruments in the carrying out of His program of individual salvation. And to this day the plea is still: "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?"

This incident out of the life of Philip ought to challenge us to reconsider the importance of being in the divine will of the Lord. The question which we are to be constantly asking ourselves is not whether that which we are doing is a good thing, but rather whether that which we do is the Lord's will for us. Paul might have preached the Gospel in Bithynia, for surely there were those in the place who needed the Gospel. He might have turned to Asia and preached the Word to needy hearts but, good as that might have been, it was not the will of the Lord. Macedonia was the will of the Lord at that time. Philip might have continued in Samaria, proclaiming the Gospel to a hungry, aroused city, but it was not the will of the Lord and because it was not His will, he arose and went unto Gaza. The constant plea of the Sriptures is not merely to do good but to do that which is in accordance with the Lord's will. That becomes all the more challenging when we pause to realize that wherever man has submitted himself to the divine leading, the cause of Christ has leaped forward. It was true in the case of Paul, it was true in the case of Philip.

May this conference be an inspiration to us as workers in the vineyard of the Lord to reconsider the importance of evangelism in the light of God's Word.

A Hill and a Hole

Cora M. Silvius

A short time ago I was called to take care of a woman who had broken her ankle. Fifty-four people were living in twenty summer cottages along a water front. Back of these cottages was a strip of undeveloped land, a quarter of a mile wide. The trolley ran along the road at the further edge, and a rather zigzag path across it was the nearest approach from the car stop to the cottages.

I had taken this trolley, and as I followed the path I went around what was evidently a made hill. Just beyond this, in the direct line of progress, was a hole, twelve or fourteen feet across, which the well-beaten path carefully avoided. I could see no need for its being there.

Arriving at the house, I was told that Mrs. Decker had met with her accident at this very hole while crossing the field in the dark. Naturally I asked why the hole was there. And no one knew.

"It's a menace!" cried Mrs. Decker. "The land belongs to a rich man who lives in Europe. Something ought to be done."

I agreed, and I talked.

"Say, now you might be able to do something," Mrs. Decker said. "The men play golf and other games for exercise. The boys run wild. If you could get them interested in filling in that hole, it would be a good thing for both the boys and their fathers."

So I promised to try, and I racked my brains for a wise approach to the subject.

The two Decker boys, nine and eleven, took a walk with me. Coming to the excavation or depression, I talked of it and what fun it was to dig. At the dinner table I spoke to the father.

"Why don't you men and your sons make up a party and fill in the hole?" I asked.

They had never once thought of doing such a thing. But it caught their fancy.

"Did it ever occur to you that every time any one of you goes to or from the trolley you have to take fifty extra steps because of that hole and the little hill that is near it?"

It hadn't.

On Fridays it was customary for some of the men who could not be there every evening to come for the weekend. The little children were always delighted, but the fathers and older sons seemed to have little in common. When Friday evening arrived, Mr. Decker talked with the men, suggesting the project. I talked with one of the boys and he promised to interest the others. Then I suggested to Mr. Decker that he get the fathers to tell the boys that the men needed their help.

On Saturday morning a group of eighteen men and boys gathered at the hole with shovels.

"Why not throw in some of the rubbish to start with?" asked the boys.

What a time they had then. Just as the last bit of earth was being smoothed over, I went out. They were admiring their work.

"I actually enjoyed this little bit of shovelling," said one of the men to me.

"And each of your sons has enjoyed doing things with 'father,' " I assured him.

This, too, was a new thought, it seemed.

Who Goes There?

Who goes there, in the night,
  Across the storm-swept plain?
We are the ghosts of a valiant war—
  A million murdered men!

Who goes there, at the dawn,
  Across the sun-swept plain?
We are the hosts of those who swear:
  It shall not be again!

Litany of Peace

By Opal Gooden

(With permission from Girls' Circle, Christian Board of Publication.)

Leader — Amid mounting turmoil and confusion throughout the world, in this hour before it is too late and the deadly hysteria of war has poisoned our brains and feelings, solemnly and soberly,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We remember Sarajevo in 1914; we remember armored nations awaiting that strike; and remembering,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We remember mud and slime and screaming shrapnel; we remember mild young men who learned to murder and were murdered; and remembering,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We remember the dead that are dead, and the dead that still live, and the death that is born of deadly disease; and remembering,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We remember Versailles with its humiliation and defeat; we remember the years that have followed leaving victory to no nation and defeat to all; and remembering,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We see behind us the fruits of war, death and disease, hatred and hunger, profiteering and plundering, and seeing this,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We see before us in the promise of war not only the death of our bodies but the death of our souls, the bankruptcy of our economy, the end of our civilization, the suicide of the race, and seeing this,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Leader—We believe the hour comes and now is when nations must act with understanding instead of armies, when they must abide by the wills of their peoples instead of the intrigues of their diplomats. We believe the hour comes and now is when nations shall not attack nations, neither shall they learn war any more. To the realization of this end,

People—We dedicate ourselves to peace.

Memorial Day

There is a grave danger that Memorial Day will not be observed in its deeper significance this year. The adrenal glands of the American public are again being stirred by the fierce war-cries emitted by the Chiefs of the Press. Fear and hatred hold sway where sorrow, pity, and regret should reign. Falsehood thrives where information should live.

On this day it is for the living to remember the dead and why they died. As one thinks of the World War dead one wishes the world could never forget why they died. Yet on this point the memory of present day America is suffering from a starvation diet. With $4,300,000 worth of cold, hard marble do we remember our war dead in Europe. We mark the place where they lie, but with comparatively few history books and few newspapers do we remember why they died. Have they died in vain?

Yes, utterly, unless we learn from their experience. Let us, as a nation acknowledge that many fought for high ideals, but that they failed miserably in the accomplishment of their aims. Let us admit that a minority's desire for economic gain catapulted them into the war, that they were victims of propaganda, and that they uselessly lost their lives. Remembering and knowing let us see the similarity of the pre-World War days to our own. Then let us say, "Never again," and the dead will not have died in utter vain.

If the dead could speak would they ask us to honor them? Would they not prize more highly in us, a deep sorrow and regret for the horrible and futile sacrifice of human lives, a feeling of pity for the personalities whose talents were wasted, a clear insight into the destructiveness of war, and a firm resolution never to leave the path of peace?

May our memories be so impressed with this lesson from history that future generations will not have more war dead to remember on Memorial Day. The dead remind us to remember the living, that they may not die in vain.

Questionnaire Results

Question No. 9 read, "About how much would a young people's paper be worth to you per year?" The amounts mentioned in the answers ranged from 30 cents to $3.00. The average of the amounts suggested was $1.40. Several suggested that personally it was invaluable. Some comments were:

"If a dollar and cent value is meant, I would keep it down to $1.00 per year. I believe it would then cover the widest possible range and give the publishers a little fund to work with. Of course such a paper is really 'invaluable' and becomes an absolute necessity when the constituency is scattered from coast to coast. Personally, I consider the publication work the most important factor of any, in accomplishing anything worthwhile in short periods of time and with limited resources."

" . . . I'd be willing to pay that amount which is necessary to keep the publication out of the red."

The Needed Little

A little more of giving and little less of taking;
A little more of sensing what our neighbors have to bear;
A little more of pity for the ones to sorrow waking
And we'd have more of laughter and less of bleak despair.

A little more of friendship and a little less of sneering;
A little more of trusting and a little less of doubt;
A little more of cheering and a little less of jeering
And we'd have more contentment and much less to fret about.

A little more of sharing and a little less of grasping;
A little more of loving and a little less of hate;
A little less of bickering and voices harshly rasping
And we should all be stronger when the need for strength is great.

A little more of charity and less of selfish dealing;
A little more of willingness another's need to see;
A little more of wisdom, both of knowing and of feeling
And life would be the joyous thing it really ought to be.
Edgar Guest.

II. Leader's Introductory Talk

In making plans for the future it is important for young people to seek vocation in which they will be able to serve. Christ needs strong young men and women in his service. The glory of his own life was that he came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. No one is so poor, no one is so lowly, or has so few talents, that he cannot share in the privilege of being of service. Service beautifies the most homely face, it adds loveliness and sweetness to any life, and has the approval of the Master.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Moses called to service, Ex. 3:7-10.
2. Gideon called to special duty, Judges 6:11-16.
3. Peter's commission, Jn. 21:15-19.
4. The challenge to Paul, Acts 6:1-6.
5. Called to "give them to eat," Mk. 6:37.

IV. For Discussion:

1. What vocations offer the most opportunities for Christian service?
2. How do young people know where Christ wants them to serve?
3. Should a person wait till God gives him a special call till he begins to live a life of service?
4. How much time should young people give to church work?

V. Facts for study

The people whose lives are remembered the longest, and whose influence has meant the most happiness for others have been those who have led a life of service. Think of the lives of missionaries like John G. Paton, Livingstone, E. Stanley Jones, Grenfell, Albert Sweitzer, or of women like Clara Barton, Eliz. Try, Florence Nightingale. What blessings have come through the untiring service of workers like Louis Pasteur, and Madame Curie. And the lives of many humble unnamed men and women continue to bless those with whom they lived because of their untinted loving service.

VI. Illustrations:

1. A Useless Church Member.—"Yes," said Aunt Sarah, surveying her bandaged wrist, "the doctor says it's a bad sprain; and the minister says I know now how the church feels in not having the use of all its members. The minister did not mean that for a joke, either; he looked at me as if he wanted to see how I would take it. I had sense enough, too, to feel I deserved to have him say it to me. A word like that comes pretty straight when one of your own members is useless, and worse. I've never thought just what being a member of a church meant before, although I've been one for thirty-five years. I've never felt obliged to do what the church wanted done. I felt it was a favor, my doing it at all, and half the time I let some one else do it instead. When I was through with work at home, and with what things I liked to do outside, then I was willing to do something in the church—if it was the kind of work that suited me. I guess I've been about as useful a member to the church as the sprained hand is to me, all stiff and crippled, and refusing to bend more than an inch or two. There's lots of things I need to do, but I can't use this member to do them. I guess that's about the way the minister has felt about me. I'm ashamed of myself, and things are going to be different."—Forward.

2. Serving Heroically.—Mary Reed has stimulated thousands to prayer and to greater consecration. It was in 1891 that this young American missionary suddenly awakened to the appalling fact that she had contracted leprosy while in India. Taking this as a sign of God's will for her life, she has, even to the present time, devoted her life to work among the lepers.

At the heart of the missionary enterprise is the conviction that the greatest need of mankind is to know God and Jesus Christ whom he has sent. Its passionate yearning is that others should have the experience of the priceless treaure that is in him. It is the impulsion to share Jesus Christ that above all other things leads to the determination, heroism, and sacrifice that characterize Christian service.

VII. Food for Thought

Four things come not back:
The spoken word;
The sped arrow;
Time past;
The neglected opportunity.

June 6. Worship of beasts. Rom. 1:18-25.
June 7. Immoral religion. Rom. 1:28-32.
June 8. Women degraded. I Tim. 5:3-14.
June 9. Caste. Luke 10:29-37.
June 10. Keen minds. Acts 17:18-20, 32.
June 11. Topic. Matt. 13:38; Acts 16:9, 10.

Pre-Prayer Service

Leader, prayer meeting committee, missionary committee, others.

Song: "Christ for the World We Sing"
Scripture Reading: Matt. 13:38; Acts 16:9, 10.
Prayer by leader

Introduction of topic by leader.—All are very familiar with the fact that the Indian people are steeped in poverty and wretchedness. Do we all know the reason for these conditions? Perhaps you will be surprised to learn that much of it is caused by their religion. Because of their religious belief that the souls of the dead are reincarnated sometimes in the form of beasts, rats cannot be killed even though they may destroy large quantities of wheat. There are many cows in India since they are held sacred but very little milk. Thirty per cent of the disease in India is due to malnutrition.

Topics for discussion:

1. What language difficulty does India present? To be understood in all parts of India one would have to be able to speak 200 languages.

2. Need of literacy in Indian villages. Christian missions are realizing in a greater way that they must help in this work of teaching people to read. The Christian church needs Bible-reading Christians. If a written message were sent to the people of India, 90% of the people would be unable to read it.

3. Low standards of living. The average family in India has an average income of only $70 a year. The cost of supporting an orphan boy or girl in India is $30. Wouldn't you like to consider this as a project for your society?

4. Disease. Illness is very prevalent. Hookworm, guinea worm, malaria, typhoid, cholera, and other preventable diseases take many lives.

"In America there is about one doctor for every 800 people. In India today there are thirty thousand physicians among more than three hundred and fifty million people, one doctor for every twelve thousand. Fully half of these doctors are poorly trained and would not be allowed to practice under American laws.

One million lepers; ten million pulled down physically every day by malaria; one hundred thousand untreated cases of tuberculosis in Bombay streets; hookworm sapping the strength of an otherwise vigorous race; such are the medical needs of India today."

Sixty million untouchables are on the move to better living today. They are turning to Christianity in larger numbers than ever before. The Christian church needs to be ready to offer them the love they need.

5. A land of religious festivals. Evidences of this fact: gaily colored beads which adorn the necks of animals; painted horns of cattle; withered little bunches of margosa leaves hanging from the doors of homes and temples; shaven heads of children; cocoanuts, plantains, and betel leaf, the articles so on demand as offerings to the gods.

"The heathen, in his blindness, bows down to wood and stone."

Song: "From Greenlands Icy Mountains"—Memorize second verse.

It is hoped that the above discussions may have made us aware of the need of India.

If your society does not yet have the map of our India mission field we suggest that you get one from the Literature committee of the Women's Organization of the General Conference. Write to Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, 122 Juniper St., Quakertown, Pa.

We suggest that you paste either a picture of our missionaries, or their names, beside their stations. The names and stations will be given in the discussion next week.

Unrest, sin and darkness, meet on every hand. Laborers are needed to win the millions who are lost in sin. Christians active for their Savior will evangelize the land. Win them.

Is it nothing to you, O ye Christians,
  That in India's far-away land
There are thousands of people pleading
  For the touch of a Savior's hand?
They are groping and trying to find Him,
  And although He is ready to save,
Eight hundred precious souls each hour
  Sink into Christless graves.
Is it nothing to you, O ye Christians,
  Can you say you have naught to do?
Millions in India dying unsaved!
  And is it nothing to you?

Sentence prayers.

Pray that the hearts of Christians may respond to this cry of need.

Offering and announcements.

Close with missionary benediction.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for June 11, 1939

"By The Waters"—Ps. 23:2b; Rev. 22:1

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude
2. Call to worship. The Lord is in His Holy Temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him."
3. A sing-song.
   a. "Sing Them over Again to Me."
   b. "I Love to Tell the Story."
   c. "I Think When I Read that Sweet Story of Old."
4. Scripture by leader. — Ps. 104:10-14.
5. Leader's prayer.
6. Verse of month in unison: Ps. 111:4, "He hath made His wonderful works to be remembered: The Lord is gracious and full of compassion."

II. Mission Minutes.

An older Junior may read Ezekiel 47:1-9. The leader or a guest then may make a missionary application: Ezekiel takes us to the door of a church (temple) and points to a tiny little spring of water (water in the Bible means God's word, the Gospel). As small a thing as that is the first preaching of the Gospel in a heathen country, just a trickle of water,—sent out into a country where nobody yet knows of God's love. But just as the little spring becomes a stream and the stream deepens at every step, so with the preaching of the Gospel once begun it spreads through the entire land until tens, hundreds, and at last thousands worship God and serve Him with gladness of heart because they have been saved by the Lord Jesus Christ. And they have been saved because they heard the Gospel.

III. Study Period. Aim: To learn about the lakes and the rivers of Palestine and some stories associated with them. To learn that God's Word is the "water of life."

1. A Junior tells about the lakes of Palestine, using the map. He should especially tell of the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea.
2. A Junior tells about the Jordan river.
3. Story of the storm on the lake. Luke 2:22-25.
4. Story of Jesus walking on the sea. Mt. 14:22-33.
5. Story of the miraculous draught of fishes — John 21:1-12, told by three Juniors.
6. Story of John the Baptist at the Jordan. Mt. 3.
7. Song: "O, Have you not Heard of That Beautiful Stream." No. 147, M. H. B.
8. Bible Findings: Deut. 8:7; Deut. 11:11; Neh. 9:11; Ps. 23:2; Ps. 46:3; Ps. 63:1; Ecc. 11:1; Isa. 11:9; Isa. 41:17; Isa. 43:2, 16; Isa. 55:1; Ezek. 36:25; Amos 8:11; John 3:5; Matt. 10:42; Rev. 22:17; Rev. 7:17; John 7:37.

Leader's heart-talk

Draw attention to the beautiful promises in the above verses. Close with a prayer that we might be faithful in reading God's Word.

Closing Song: Doxology.

The best is yet to come. Mrs. Decker came to see me the other day. She told me happier relationships had come from the father-son contracts that were made that day. The men really hadn't realized their boys were growing up; the boys hadn't realized how boy-like their fathers could be.

The hole was there all the time. So was the hill. If fathers who read this would look about they might find hills and holes that need combining—also sons that need contacting.

CORRESPONDENCE

EMMAUS CHURCH, near WHITEWATER, KAN.

As there has been a change of ministers in our church since our last annual meeting, just before New Year, it might interest the readers of this paper to know what has been going on. Whether it is as inspiring as it might be, the Lord only knows.

Rev. B. W. Harder, our elder, had once been elected and in later years been reelected by the church which he had served 36 years. But after this last annual meeting, he declared it was better for the welfare of the church that he should resign, and at the same time he asked for his and his wife's church letters which were granted to them. When this had happened it seemed best that Rev. Henry Thiessen who had likewise served us a number of years also resign, and so he did. Then we were without a pastor which had not happened since the beginning of our church sixty years ago.

So we inquired of the Minister's Placement Committee which gave us the names of several men that might serve. As we voted our preference, a certain brother received nearly all the votes, and it was the sincere wish of most of the members that he become our pastor, and we got in touch with the brother and, after careful consideration, we came to realize that our plans and wishes are not always according to God's will, for the dear brother answered with a polite NO. So in another election Rev. J. C. Kaufman was chosen with a large majority, and he accepted our call, and he has already served us a few Sundays. Last Sunday, May 7, he gave his dedicatory sermon as servant of our church, and we consider him as the man sent us by the Lord for our special situation, according to our prayers.

The church had planned to make the reception of the new pastor and his family a special occasion and a day of joy with them and friends, but so far this has been impossible since sister Kaufman had to undergo an operation and is now in the Bethel Hospital, but is gradually recovering. May we realize that God has his loving plans also in this case.

For over three months we had been served by a different pastor every Sunday and heard very inspiring sermons, which we appreciated very much. And now may the Lord have his guiding hand in this change and make the dear new servants a blessing to our church, that we may labor together unitedly in the vineyard of our Lord Jesus Christ and to his honor and glory. That we might have real Christian fellowship with him and one another, is our wish and prayer.

Christian Thierstein.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, DALLAS, ORE.

The first Sunday in April we had the Lord's Supper and dedication of babies. Easter Sunday in the evening, we had an Easter program. April 16 was Bro. Widmer's last Sunday with us, and we had a surprise dinner in the church for them. It surely took them by surprise. In the afternoon we had a little program, consisting mostly of songs.

Brother and Sister Widmer and family left Wednesday the 19th for Bloomfield, Mont., where they have accepted a call. We wish them God's richest blessings in their new home.

April 23, the Gideons from Salem brought us the morning message. April 30, an ex-convict told us of his life, before and after his conversion. This Sunday, May 7, Brother J. M. Franz from Pratum will be with us. We are always glad to have him come to Dallas. As yet we do not know whom we will get for our pastor. We leave it entirely in the Lord's hands.

As to the weather, it is very dry here already. If we do not get some rain soon, the spring grain will be like last year. It won't pay to cut it.—Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call ye upon Him, while He is near.—Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, corr.

FIRST MENN. CH., MT. LAKE, MINN., 5-16-39

Last Friday, the First Mennonite Church observed the Golden Wedding festival of our dear, retired minister, Rev. David Harder and his wife. It was a perfect spring day, and about 400 people gathered at the church to take part in the happy event. The service opened at 2 p.m. Rev. and Mrs. Harder received all their guests at the door of the church. A fine program was carried out. Henry M. Harder, youngest son of the family, and our church secretary, served as chairman. Rev. Harder, as the first speaker, reviewed the joys and sorrows of the past half-century, and gave God the glory for His love and protection in their family life throughout. Our pastor, Rev. I. J. Dick, spoke especially of Rev. Harder's work in the church, and the full love and honor the congregation gave him in return. Rev. J. J. Balzer also spoke fittingly of Rev. Harder's church activities. The second half of the program was composed of songs and recitations by the children and grandchildren of the family. The front of the church was brightened with many flowers. Closing remarks were made by I. I. Bargen, who was one of the first school teachers of Mrs. Harder, and who has been closely associated with Rev. Harder in church work since its beginning in 1878. He closed his talk with an original poem which told about Rev. Harder's call to the ministry, and the hardships of the early days. As the last feature of the program, Rev. Dick presented the honored couple with a bronze loving cup, bearing these words: "To Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Harder from the First Mennonite Church in loving remembrance of 42 years of faithful service." There were many other valuable gifts for the Harders. A substantial supper was served to all the guests, prepared by the church members. The Harders have 4 sons and 2 daughters, all living in the Mt. Lake vicinity, and all of them active church workers. There are 15 grandchildren. Rev. Harder is now 75 and Mrs. Harder, 70. They have their home 2 blocks from the church, and are enjoying fair health.

Rev. Dick has a Catechism class of 16 young people who will be received into the church by baptism on Pentecost Sunday. We feel at our Sunday services that the Lord can still "restore the souls" of his children if they come to him with listening hearts. The Sunday school also is growing in attendance and offerings. The boys and girls enjoy the use of the church library which was started last December. Some one once said: "The lover of good books is the happiest of men."

The younger mission society had a sale of aprons and fresh food on May 13, which netted them $55.00. Many of the older women assisted at a hospital supper last week on National Hospital Day, with receipts of $105.00, which will be used for new hospital equipment.

Hope to meet old and new friends at the Northern District Conference at Freeman, June 10.

Mary Bargen.

MENN. MEMORIAL CHURCH, ALTOONA, PA.

On Easter Sunday we had our Sunrise prayer and praise service, at 6 o'clock a. m. Good interest was shown throughout the service. During the morning worship hour, two children were consecrated to the Lord, and one adult was taken in as a member by the right hand of fellowship. The Easter program was held in the evening. The children and some of the young people presented the Easter story in recitation, dialogues, and song.

April 16-30, revival meetings were held, with Rev. F. Geisenheimer from Chicago as evangelist. Rev. Slotterback and Mr. A. C. Shaffer, one of the deacons, attended the Eastern District Conference which was held at Bally, Pa. On Sunday morning in Sunday School, Mr. Shaffer gave a report of the Conference, telling of the rich blessings they had received.

We are looking forward to the Young People's Rally which is to be held in our church on May 20. We trust that many young people will attend this Rally and take home with them the blessings which the Lord has in store for each one.—Corr.

One family—we dwell in Him,
One church above, beneath,
Though now divided by the stream,
The narrow stream of death.—
Charles Wesley.

IN MEMORIAM

HEINRICH SCHROEDER, son of John and Maria Schroeder, was born at Montau, West Prussia, June 10, 1867 and died in the Deaconess Hospital at Salem, May 6, 1939, at the age of 71 years, 10 months and 26 days.

He came to the United States in 1882 and settled near Halstead, Kansas. In 1900 they moved to Paso Robles, California, and from there, in 1912, to Pratum, Oregon, where they made their home until death called him from us.—He accepted the Christian faith and was baptized by Rev. Gerhard Kopper in 1881 at West Prussia.—He was united in marriage with Elsie Hirschler, April 19, 1897.

When they moved to Oregon, he united with the Emmanuel Mennonite church and has been a very faithful member and good worker. He served as Sunday School teacher and janitor for many years.

He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, Elsie; one daughter, Mrs. Anna Funk of Aberdeen, Idaho, and one son, Albert of Los Angeles; four grand-children; two brothers, Wilhelm of Madera, California, and John of Kansas, and many friends.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, May 10, in the Emmanuel Mennonite church at Pratum. J. M. Franz and S. S. Baumgartner officiated.

MRS. MARY LAMBERT, daughter of Samuel and Hannah Sloucum, was born at Oneco, Ill., Feb. 14, 1864, and was called to be with the Lord on Thursday morning, April 20, at the age of 75 years.

She was married to Uel M. Lambert on Dec. 19, 1880, who proceeded her in death in the year 1934.

About 45 years ago they came to Oregon, and have since then lived in this state. For a long time they made their home on a farm west of Pratum. When they lived in this community, she united with the Emmanuel Mennonite church in 1923, where she retained her membership until death took her from us.

She leaves to mourn her departure her children, Mrs. J. J. McKibbon of Airlie, Roy Lambert of Sheridan, Mrs. C. B. Bell of King Valley, Mrs. Roy Jones of Gaston, Roger, Lowell and Marlin Lambert of Salem, Mrs. John Roth of Salem, Mrs. J. A. Blackstone of Bend, Miss Esther Lambert of Los Angeles, California; 52 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Emma Runner of Salem, and many friends. Funeral services were held Saturday April 22nd. J. M. Franz officiated.

Peace is the proper result of the Christian temper. It is the great kindness which our religion doth us, that it brings us to settledness of mind, and a consistency within ourselves.—Bishop Patrick.

—First Menn. Church, Nappanee, Ind., has our thanks for copies of their church bulletin. That is a good way to furnish the editor with items for Jottings.—This church has just remodeled the basement of their house of worship. The work was done mostly at night by willing church members.—A peace institute was held at the Eighth Street Church, Goshen, Indiana, June 7, under the leadership of Carl Landes with Dean Bender and Dan West as speakers.

—From Rev. H. G. Nyce, Allentown, Pa.—"We had a very good District conference. All reports were very encouraging. Dr. H. A. Fast, our conference field secretary, delivered fou very inspirational and helpful messages on The Source of Power in the Early Church. He also delivered an address at the Brotherhood meeting and a very helpful message to the young people Sunday evening."

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Hanston, Kans., writes May 12: "Well we did have a really good rain last Saturday evening, and with it a real hail storm, too, with stones as large as walnuts, but there being little wind not much damage was done. Since it had been dry so long, this much coveted rain came too late to help wheat much, but it means much for spring crops and pastures.—The churches here are going to have a Union Vacation Bible School again. — We are planning a visit with our daughter and family in Summerfield, Ill., in June.

—Brother and Mrs. Reinold Weinbrenner of Lehigh, Kansas, who have been teaching together for a couple of years, are planning to spend the summer months with the First Mennonite Church at Reedley, Calif., where Mr. Weinbrenner will assist the pastor, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, in carrying on community religious and social work. On Sunday, May 28th, the young brother is to be ordained for service in gospel ministry in his home church.

—WEDDING BELLS! Mary Weikel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Weikel, was united in marriage to Pershing H. Hallman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hallman, Saturday morning, May 6, at the East Swamp, Pa., Menn. Church, by Rev. Harold Burkholder. Mr. Hallman is superintendent of the S. S. there.

—Mennonite Church, Turpin, Okla.: The married people's class surprised their teacher, T. T. Dirks, on his birthday, about 28 turning out for the evening. The men's chorus, with Mr. Dirks as leader, has been giving a numbr of programs in neighboring churches this spring.—Wheat fields are suffering from lack of rain, and the crop that looked so promising a while back, seems to slip away with those of the last five or six years.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak.—Nine candidates for baptism are being consulted with and will now be presented to the deacons for consideration. The candidates, all young men, are: Felix Albrecht, Alfred Gross, Owen Kaufman, Clarence Kleinsasser, Albert and Milton Preheim, Jakie Tschetter, Joseph Wipf, Erwin Wollman.—We are glad to have Mrs. (Dr.) M. J. Wollman, who had been with her mother, Mrs. Albert Lugibihl, seriously ill at Bluffton, Ohio, several weeks, with us again. The patient has improved some of late.—The pastor's subject for his address at the high school baccalaureate service was, "Jacob, the Wrestler with God."

—In the Lehigh (Kansas) Menn. Church, 15 babies were consecrated on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 14. A program for all mothers, given by five S. S. classes preceeded.

—Mrs. S. M. Musselman, wife of the late Rev. Musselman, wishes to have her address changed from Wichita to Pretty Prairie, Kansas.

—From Bulletin, First Church, Bluffton, O.—This is the Lord's Day in all the earth. A blessed day it is and should be. God gave it for that purpose.—May we perform our week-day duties with laughter and kind faces, with cheerfulness and good will abounding in our place of business . . . Sunday, the best day in the week, should and will make every day a better and happier one.

—Berne, Indiana.—Dr. Herold Linquist, D. D., dean of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, and writer of the syndicated Improved Uniform S. S. Lesson, will be the Christian Temperance Union speaker at the Mennonite Church on Sunday, June 4. A splendid program is being arranged for the event.

—Persecutions in Poland.—"The government, in close alliance with the Roman Catholic church authorities, is carrying on an intensive campaign against the Orthodox and Protestant Churches, who are accused of antinational tendencies. There are 1,000,000 Protestants and 4,000,000 Orthodox. Recently about 121 Orthodox Churches have been burned or pulled down, and a still larger number are closed to worship."—Christianity Today.—Strange that the A. P. spreads the mantle of silence over this. It must be because it doesn't happen to be Germany.

The Fatal Church Raffle

Published by Request

As the heavy prison bolts turned on the minister, he looked sadly on the prisoners in their strange garments, and thought with more and more anxiety of his errand. He had come to see a young man of his congregation, convicted of forgery. The heart-broken parents had begged him to visit the prison, hoping the peace of the Gospel might reach even his gloomy cell.

As the minister kindly greeted him, the youth scarcely replied, but gazed with a sort of defiance. He began giving the mother's tender message, with the interest all the Church felt in his welfare.

At last the prisoner broke out, "Do you know you were what did it?" . .

"What have I done?" asked the pastor, striving to understand his strange language.

"I began the business," returned the youth, speaking very loudly, "in your Sunday school. Don't you remember the Sunday school fair, when they hid a gold ring in a cake? For twenty-five cents, too, I got a whole box of little books. I was pleased with my luck and went in afterwards for chances. Sometimes I gained and sometimes I lost. Money I must have for lotteries. I was half mad with excitement; so I used other folks' names, and here I am. Don't let the Church come blubbering around me. Their raffling ruined me!"—Christian Standard.

PENTECOST

Pentecost means the fiftieth day, i.e., after Easter. Christmas is the festal day of God, the Father, for on that day he gave us his only begotten Son. Easter is the festal day of the Son, and Pentecost is the festal day of the Holy Spirit. It has been regularly observed by the Christian Church since the fourth century. The Holy Spirit is co-existant with God. "And the Spirit of God moved upon the waters," Gen. 1:2.—Even in the Old Testament it made men prophesy, Numbers 11:25.—It came mightily upon kings, 1 Sam. 10:6.—It filled artists with wisdom, Ex. 31:3, and lead the believers into a better way. But in the Old Testament its work was confined to a few people. John gives us reason for this, when he says, Jesus had not yet ascended unto the Father. The mass out-pouring of the Holy Spirit occurred on the first pentecost day when 3000 received it. The Holy Spirit is a gift of God, bestowed in the baptism of God. But it is the bringer of many other gifts. Jesus calls it a comforter, for it is ever ready to give solace and comfort in tribulation, Acts 9:31. It is a power the receipt of which Jesus promises the disciples through the Holy Spirit, Acts 1:8, for the Christian's own strength is so often inefficient to cope with the problems and temptations he has to face. In 2 Peter 1:5 the apostle mentions other gifts, graces and powers bestowed by the Holy Spirit, faith, virtue, knowledge, self-control, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and love. And in Gal. 5:22, Paul says, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-cntrol." How fortunate is the child of God in having such wonderful gifts bestowed on him, if he permits Christ Jesus to be the guide and arbiter of his life!

"Doing It To The Least You Did It Unto Me"

Many of our readers know that the American Friends are the philanthropists among the Christian denominations. Wherever there is war, famine, distress, they do Samaritan service. After the World War they built houses and villages in France; they did a great work in feeding and sheltering orphaned children during the recent war in Spain. They have done so much to heal wounds and to save life that they have befriended the nations, so that it is said of them that "they do not have an enemy in the world." In recognition of the Friend's organization, Dr. Rufus M. Jones, 75, chairman of the American Friend's Service Committee, and Clarence E. Pickett, 54, executive director, a couple of months ago were each awarded a purse of $5,000.00 by the Academy of Music at Philadelphia. In the address given upon the occasion, the following were some of the points brought out: "Since 1917 the Friend's Service Committee has been thinking through the problem of war-ravaged, depression-ravaged, and dictator-ravaged civilian population." "There are two kinds of businesses, there is the business that uses men to make money; but the really big business uses money to make men —and when they are broken to mend them." Recently, Dr. Paul Jones and others of the Committee have been busy in Germany to arrange for bringing several thousand, mostly orphaned Jewish children, to homes in America. A good many American Christians have a burden upon their heart that they must do something to rescue some of these children. And a wave of relief went up the country over at the news from Washington, D. C., that Senator Wagner had introduced a bill, later labelled the Wagner-Rogers bill, which provides that during this year and next, 20,000 refugee German children be brought here and placed in good American homes. The Friend's Service Committee will do the picking and see to it that all kinds of children, none over fourteen years old, are selected. When they do come, it is hoped that many a Mennonite home will find a blessing in taking in one or more of these children. That would be a real service unto the Lord.

LIVE FOR SOMETHING! Yes, for something worthy of life and its capabilities and opportunities, for noble deeds and achievements. Every man and every woman has his or her assignment in the duties and responsibilities of daily life. We are in the world to make the world better; to lift it up to higher levels of enjoyment and progress, to make its hearts and homes brighter and happier by devoting to our fellows our best thoughts, activities and influences.

"No man liveth unto himself" still has no meaning for a great many people.

The Problem of the Persecuted Jews

The American people and the civilized nations of the world have generally condemned Germany's treatment of its Jews and doubtlessly with good reason. But now as these nations are facing the problem of finding a home for this half million or more refugee people, from full blood to one quarter blood Jews, plus a few million others living under restraint in other lands, they are stunned. This is, in spite of the fact that there are still hundreds of thousands of square miles of unused, tillable land in various parts of the world, enough of which might be assigned to all the Jews in distress, where they might carry on and develop a nation of their own. Countries mentioned have been sections of South America, of Australia, of northern and coastal Africa, of Soviet Russia, of Canada and American Alaska.

Some of the more thoughtful American people, who feel that definite and early action is imperative, think that the United States should "take in" the German refugee Jews. They hold that since most of the 38 millions of people who have migrated to the United States since the birth of this land were fugitives from persecution, or had been otherwise handicapped, it would be a fine example of Christian generosity to invite this comparatively small group to make their homes with us. They also refer to the fact that of the 150,000 immigrants that the U. S. is willing to admit each year, only about 500,000 have come in during the years 1929-1939, leaving us short about a million. So, to offset this shortage, partly, Congress could easily pass a law to take in the German Jews at this time. It is further asserted that with our birthrate rapidly declining and the proportion of old folks to young folks rapidly rising we need the influx of prospective new citizens with large families. Another argument for admitting the German Jews, now, is that the large sums of money going to Europe for the relief of refugees had better and more advantageously been spent on them here.

But, though there are many who want us to open our land to these poor refugees, there are many that voice opposition. They say it would be folly, if not suicidal, for our nation to try to absorb hundreds of thousands of poor people, many of them pennyless, under obligation to take care of them and find work for them, when we already have twelve million unemployed, that, in fact, we have more millions on relief than the world has refugees. Besides, there are signs that antisemitism is growing among some of our people and the sentiment is rather against more foreigners in the country, so that the upshot of the whole matter is likely to be that as a nation we will do nothing to bring the Jewish refugees here.

Then, what shall be done with the Jewish refugee problem? It has been suggested that a world congress of charity-minded, government appointed delegates from all civilized nations be called in an attempt to find a solution to this problem that has been with us for centuries, and has left behind a trail of persecutions, bloodshed and general suffering. One slight attempt of this sort was made months ago somewhere in France, with no result. Unless the right type of man for a congress of this kind can be found, men who have the backing of the best people of their countries, little could be expected. Another plan would be for all the Christians of the world, in whose hands is much of the wealth of the world, to unite and tax themselves heavily enough to buy a tract of land sufficiently large, somewhere in the world, where the Jews might settle and prosper and expand. But, alas neither of these plans may coincide with God's plan which in His good time will come to pass. Yet, it is a tragedy the way these people have had to suffer, oh so long. And he is a poor Christian whose heart does not go out to them in prayer and supplication that their tribulations may come to an end, and will not otherwise lend them such help as he can.

INVITATION

The Salem Church at Freeman, So. Dakota, invites all the delegates of the Northern District Conference and others to be present at the conference session, which is to convene from June 10 to 13. That we all may have a blessed time is our prayer.

Salem Church, Freeman, So. Dak.

NOTE: In connection with the above we wish to announce that Brother C. B. Friesen of Mountain Lake, a teacher by profession, but who has recently been selling books, partly under the auspices of the Mennonite Book Concern, will be in charge of a book and magazine display at the Conference. There will be books by Mennonite authors and other valuable volumes, also samples of our publications: Christlicher Bundesbote, The Mennonite, Senior and Intermediate Sunday School Quarterlies, Lektionshefte, Year Books and Junior Messenger which are finding much favor with Sunday School workers. May we hope that many subscriptions will come in for this paper as well as for our other publications. Subscriptions to the Bundesbote and Mennonite will be 50 cents for the remainder of the year.—J. R. T.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Mennonite Young People's Conference of Ohio and Indiana will have their annual conference on July 15 and 16 at the Grace Mennonite Church at Pandora, Ohio. The theme which has been chosen is "The World's Greatest Need—CHRIST!" We have secured for our speaker Rev. A. C. Shultz of Bluffton, Ohio. We wish to urge all the young people of this district to plan to attend this conference and we are sure you will receive a great blessing from it. Come and join us in these inspirational meetings.—

—Winifred Sprunger, Sec.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, May 9, 1939.

Dear Brethren of the Home Mission Board and All Mission Friends:

Enclosed find a brief report about the work in Saskatoon. I feel that it is a move in the right direction to publish some of the reports from the different stations. Churches are interested in what constitutes the joys and disappointments of another church.

According to Acts 18:9-11 we read: Thus spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace: For I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city. And he continued there a year and six month, teaching the word of God among them." In this article I want to make mention of the fact, "I have much people in this city," not simply in general, but a large number of Mennonites and such who are closely connected with Mennonites.

It might be stated that some 60 families and their children, 95 adults who are working in the city and 30 students attend the services in our church fairly regularly. Besides, these dozens of families live in the city that come from Mennonite circles, but these do not attend our nor any other worship service. It is to be regretted but they do not send their children to any Sunday School. Spiritual life among these is at a very low ebb if there is any at all.

It is a sad fact but some of the young men from these Mennonite homes have been very lax and have come into the hands of the law. Shall we pass these by who have fallen into the hands of the robbers? In each heart is a soul! Shall we let these go? Indeed not. This constitutes a real field of labor. We must go to these and seek to win them to Christ. This demands much time and effort.

Visits into these homes is one of the best ways to contact them for that which is high, good and holy. In many of these homes there is a tragic ignorance of that which is spiritual. This requires careful and prayerful teaching and leading. Here the Lord's promise to Paul is strength and support: "Be not afraid, for I am with thee."

The work in the Pleasant Hill Mission Hall, which was rented from the Anglican Church, is progressing nicely. Sunday school and worship services are held each Sunday. Three sisters and a brother from our church help in the Sunday school and a group of young people help in the R. P. work. We praise God for the success in this new field. Remember us in your prayers.

With brotherly greetings, J. J. Thiessen.

THE ORDINATION OF TWO MINISTERS

At a church meeting in the city of Kai Chow, Hopei, China the outside ministerial work of the church is discussed. Three places come into consideration. There the church has held services with good success on Sunday afternoons. More thorough work should be done at these places. Besides these there are yet two other places where work should be started. The church has a salaried minister, but he is very busy with the work inside of the church. So far this expanding work has been done mostly by lay brethren. But various difficulties obstruct the way of these. It has been regarded more as a personal affair than as an affair of the church. So a brother, Ma Ping Jen, gets up and asks for the word. "Two years ago," so he begins, "I already felt the call to the ministry. I presented myself too at that time, but matters stood in the way, so that the missionary and the church council at that time, prayerfully let this matter rest. But now, brethren, after waiting for two years, I present myself again. I feel the call of the Lord and must listen to His voice. I answer the Lord, Here am I, Use me as you please. It is true, I have my position as teacher in the church school, which I would also like to keep in the future, to care for the livelihood of myself and family, but on Sunday afternoons I will gladly serve at an outstation. My bicycle will be useful to me in this. There are also many other occasions where I can serve. So I apply for the service of a lay minister of our church." He sat down. Everything was quiet. Missionary Brown rejoiced in his heart, but hardly knew how the council stood in regard to this matter. Then brother Wang Chi An gets up. He too is a teacher in the same school. Tears roll over his cheeks, and he begins with a trembling voice: "Brethren, I too have felt this call for two years, I gave notice of this at that time, but the matter came to a standstill, and so two years have gone by. But now it burns in my breast and I can no longer resist it. I too apply for service with the Word of God. My free time I would like to consecrate to the Lord in this manner."

Now missionary Brown takes the word: "Dear brethren in the council, for years I have prayed about this matter and especially for these two brethren. God be praised! Today my prayer has been answered. What do you think? In case this council so decides, the congregation must vote on this. Let us kneel down before the vote is taken and ask the Lord in silent prayer for the leading of His Spirit." — All had again arisen and the vote should be taken. Then yet another young brother asks for the word. He would just like to know whether there would, later on, be opportunities for more such service, for he too feels the call of the Lord. The result of the election was: "It is unanimously accepted, that the council of the church nominates these two brethren for the ministry."

Two weeks had again passd by since on Sunday the chairman of the church had asked them to consider this matter prayerfully. One man in the church worried the leader, for according to all appearances he had never had deep spiritual experiences, and yet he wished to become a minister. The chairman of the council comes to the missionary with a heavy heart. "The man is not yet converted. He is not at all fit for the ministry: but he can easily gather followers, and when the vote is taken, cause disturbance in the church. You remember, how years ago he carried away the whole church and tried to found a separate congregation. I fear disaster." The missionary answered: "Now brother, for these two weeks we have already been praying for the leading of the Lord. He can and will guide the hearts of the members as He pleases. But I will gladly follow the desire and be present at the election."

Now before the congregation could meet, on Friday just before this Sunday at ten o'clock in the morning, airplanes came and bombed the city. It is true, the soldiers are scattered in the villages and one third of the inhabitants have also moved away, and the walls of the city have been torn down too, and yet today we were suddenly attacked. More than a dozen bombs fell in the city. There was just then a market day and many people had appeared. Suddenly the airplanes are humming above, and one runs in all directions. Again and again there are crashes. Dead and wounded are lying about but seven houses too are lying in ruins. Missionary Brown and his assistant T'sao were at the church on the West street in this hour of terror. A bomb fell one block from the mission compound. The crash was so great that in seven windows of the dwelling house the panes fell out. But now the airplanes left the city and missionary Brown and his assistant went hurriedly to look for wounded. Here houses are lying in ruins but not one has suffered harm. There on the street a few dead are lying. A poor man in his terror has left two cabbage heads lying there. He runs back to get them but another bomb comes down and he is done for. The Sung milkman has come into the city with milk bottles on his bicycle and finds himself in great danger. He throws down the bicycle and runs for the field. The bicycle and the milk bottles fly into a thousand pieces but he has saved his life. A man calls them into his yard. There too a crash has come. The little house of a widow lies in ruins and she under them. Already thirty minutes have passed since the attack and still no one is there to save the life of this poor woman. Missionary Brown and T'sao quickly fell to it, but neither the spade nor shovel was to be found. With the hands they tear the ruins apart and with the hands they scratch away the earth, until they finally find the body and can pull it out. But it is too late. The poor woman has already suffocated. Now they hurry into another home. The parents are church members, the daughter-in-law too and the granddaughter come to our services, only the son belongs to the Catholic church. Here too the house lies in ruins. The two women mentioned have been wounded. Before the missionary comes in, the Catholic priest is already there with his candles and holy water. Missionary Brown begs him to step back, since the persons belong to the Protestant church, and must be transferred to the hospital at once. On the street a boy seventeen years old grasps the hand of the missionary and wants to be saved. After going a bit farther a school boy comes weeping towards them. He takes him too by the hand and leads them to the mission compound. Terror has suddenly taken hold of the population, and every one wants to leave the city as soon as possible.

What success can one expect under such circumstances on Sunday for the election of ministers. The congregation gathers but some members are missing. The large group of pupils is not there either and yet a nice assembly has appeared. The minister, Liu Ch'ing Hsuean preaches an earnest sermon on Isaiah 6:8, and at the close of the meeting the two brethren are unanimously elected, and on the following Sunday they are ordained for the ministry by missionary Brown. This is the first ordination of ministers in the China mission field. The work is great, and there is yet room for many living sacrifices, who are holy and acceptable to God. Rom. 12:1.

The Call of the Church of the Countryside

by Rev. A. R. Keiser, Pastor of Bath Church, Iva, O.

In these changing times, a new field of church work is calling for special consideration. During the past few decades the young minister has looked upon the church of the countryside as a step toward the church in the city. We have become accustomed to thinking that the city with her slums and her Fifth Avenue population, as the pagan spots in America, is where the greatest challenge to Christian service is to be found. But this is no longer quite the truth. In the recent report of the Institute of Social and Religious Research we find that 52 per cent of the rural population belongs to the church while 58 per cent of the population of the city are found to be church members. Many rural areas, once over-churched, are today without adequate church facilities and a sufficiently well-trained leadership.

Seminaries need to emphasize the need and the high calling of the rural church. Young men need to specialize in this field. This is a type of work where Mennonites are especially well fitted. We Mennonites are primarily a rural-minded people and we have a gospel and a religious philosophy that appeals to the folk of the countryside. We have, in a number of instances, tried our skill in city churches but our successes there are very, very few.

Will the readers of The Mennonite please pardon the writer for narrating some of his recent experiences in the work of one of these neglected rural church areas. I will do so in the first person. After having served as pastor in one of our Mennonite Churches for nearly fifteen years, I felt it would be a good step both for me and for my church if there would be a change. I needed a new challenge and the church, I felt, would be benefitted by a new voice in the pulpit.

I knew of approximately a dozen fellow ministers who would welcome a change, but nothing appealing seemed to be in sight. At about that time I was contacted by the Rural Secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches. The result was a call, and the acceptance of the church where I have been serving since June of 1938. It is an undenominational church with an entire township as my parish. It is an old settlement. There used to be seven denominational churches on the various corners of the township, then within the last two or three decades they were abandoned, and a large host of people became churchless.

Immediately on coming into the field I made an every house canvass and survey. In less than a year, 94 new members have been brought into the church; some quite aged, who came by baptism; a large group of young people, who have been instructd in a catechetical class; some by letter; and still others by the right hand of fellowship. The entire township is open to the gospel and hungry for pastoral visitation. There are still 150 families in the parish who are interested in the Christian Church, but who are not members as yet.

Being the only minister in the entire township, there is a large opportunity for service in conducting funerals, etc., thus making many vital contacts. The church board is representative and very business-like and efficient. We have a wonderful choir, a good school system with the teachers cooperating in the work of the church. Many of our young people go on to college and to other advanced training beyond the high school. The work of Christian Endeavor is going well. We have many professional men and women active in the church, who work in a nearby city but reside in this parish. A Community Council has been organized and a Daily Vacation Bible School is being planned. All in all, I enjoy the challenge for service and the fine Christian interest in evidence throughout.

Very true, this is not a Mennonite Church, but I will always remain a Mennonite in spirit even if not in affiliation. And I do hope to remain a Mennonite as long as that is possible. Those to whom I minister will, in time, be little different from many of our Mennonite church-folk. Is the Kingdom of God not of greater importance than any denomination? Are we Mennonites not also serving even if our own Conferences do not sponsor the particular work in which we are engaged? The article in the April 18 issue of the Mennonite by Marie J. Regier is very timely. I feel I am engaged in as real Home Mission work as any to be found in our denomination, but the difference lies in the fact that the church here is financing the project.

Our Conferences should welcome the reaching out of her workers into such service. That is, I believe, the way we can best grow and make our contribution in the world. The Society of Friends have lost themselves in service and have not concerned themselves in building churches of their distinctive denomination and now they are coming to be known and esteemed everywhere as a great benefactor to Christianity. Perhaps the greatest mission of the Mennonites of the future might be found in ministering unto some of these neglected rural areas. We need to redeem these peoples for Christ even if they never become Mennonite in name, which should not matter, and thus by losing ourselves in service we may actually be finding ourselves. We will be like salt which gives flavor, and like leaven which gives growth to the Kingdom of God upon this earth.

Those responsible for such fields are looking for workers equipped for ministering to such needy areas. They need to be men well-trained, tolerant, but having a dynamic evangelical gospel to preach. The pay may not be equivalent to the highest salary in the Conference but as the congregation grows, the salary increases and, above all, the joy of thus ministering is a large compensation in itself. Who knows but that the Mennonite Church may have come to such a day as this in order that she may serve in the many needy areas, thus bringing the glorious gospel of Jesus Christ to those who otherwise are rapidly in the way of becoming a sector of pagan America?

Conferences and Conventions

PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE plans to meet at Monroe, Washington, June 9 to 11 inclusive.

PAUL PLEADS HIS OWN CASE

Acts 21:40—22:4; 24:14-16; 26:19-23

TOPIC: A Good Life Its Own Defense

Introduction

Today's lesson is the last in this quarter's series taken from the Book of Acts—read chapters 21-28. Luke's account is quite detailed, unmistakable marks of an eye-witness. The emphasis of this lesson is upon the nature of Paul's defense of himself on various occasions. We see in the excerpts from three different addresses, the nobility of the man, Paul, and his fidelity to the truth as he knew it.

Paul's Address to the Jews 21:40-22:1-4

Paul was seized in the Temple by a Jewish mob which went about to kill him. The Roman soldiers rescued him (read chap. 21). Paul requested permission to speak to the people (21:37). His one thought was to witness for Christ and lead some of the Jews to know their Savior. Paul was tactful as well as brave. He declared his nationality and his citizenship. He felt he must speak to his unsaved fellow Jews. What an example of loyalty to Christ. He spoke to them in their own familiar language. All preachers may well learn wisdom from Paul and speak in words that their listeners can understand. He begins very courteously (v1) and tells his life story as his defense (21:1-22). He showed that a radical change had taken place in him who had been trained as a strict Pharisee (v3). He had been a severe persecutor of "the way" but now had become an apostle of it.

Paul's Address to Felix 24:14-16

Paul readily admitted that he worshipped Christ, which the Jews called "heresy." Such worship was in truth a worship of God. In accepting Christianity, he remained loyal to the teachings of the Jewish Scriptures (vs 14, 15). Paul "believing all things written in the law and the prophets," would be much out of date with some today. Paul sought earnestly to have a clear conscience before God and men, a conscience that did not stumble nor cause others to stumble. Such a conscience gives courage and strength. He could not keep a clear conscience and compromise concerning the beliefs he proclaimed, nor concerning the life he lived. His enemies caused his arrest because he fearlessly proclaimed the gospel of Christ.

Paul's Address to Agrippa 26:19-23

Verse 19 contains the key to Paul's life and success. Obedience to the heavenly vision was essential to having a clear conscience before God. That vision was the reason for the kind of life he was living. Paul began his witnessing after his conversion, calling on people to repent and turn to God (v20). Repentance involves a radical change of mind about God, sin, and Christ and with it a change of heart. Through the years, with God's help (v22), he pursued his calling, witnessing to all people as the Ambassadors of Christ. Paul's vision was real to him, but one course was open, obedience. Such obedience is essential to our welfare in this life and in that to come.

Paul's Good Life His Defense

Paul had received an excellent intellectual training, including the high privilege of sitting at the feet of Gamaliel. Paul knew about God, had great zeal for Him, but was wholly mistaken about Christ. His zeal without knowledege led him into violent persecution. Christ appeared to him and revealed the truth unto him. He learned that salvation is attained only through faith in Christ. Paul was honest in heart, he determined to follow the heavenly vision in true fidelity, no matter what the cost might be.

SERMON SKETCH

"MY GOSPEL"

by Delbert E. Welty, Emmanuel Menn. Church, Noble, Iowa

". . . . according to my gospel." Romans 2:16.

"Ye are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men," 2 Cor. 3:2.

St. Luke in the opening words of his Gospel informs us that many writers have undertaken to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us. It would be very interesting to know who these persons were and what they wrote.

St. John in closing his account tells us that there were many other things which Jesus did, which if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. Yet, in spite of these facts of which Luke and John inform us, we have today but four short accounts in our scriptures. Why did Matthew and Mark, Luke and John stop so soon? Where are these other gospels?

I.

Our text speaks of a fifth gospel. Its author was neither an eye witness to the event recorded by the four gospel writers, nor had he been instructed in these things by them. This gospel was not written on papyrus, but written by the SPIRIT OF GOD ON A HUMAN HEART. St. Paul is talking about his gospel, which he preached before any of the evangelists had written. What was his gospel?

He had an experience of the risen and living Christ in his innermost life. Christ had come to him and had cleansed him from his sin. The apostle knew Christ as his personal Savior and Lord. Through the surrender of himself, he found the good news of Christ's power cleansing him of sin, and giving him joy and peace and a new life. He has come into the possession of inner healing.

II.

This is the gospel which the apostle preached to the Gentiles. It was the good news of what happened to him. He did not read it out of a book nor did he get it from a new manuscript, but as he himself writes—"I thank God, through Jesus Christ our Lord." And again, "For the law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

It was a new power in life and death which the world saw in the lives of the men and women in those early days of the Church. They were new kind of men—men who were pure, gentle and strong. They wrote their gospel in blood. For the love of Christ they suffered tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, peril, sword. These new men and women went singing to the cross, the rack, the wild beasts. These were some of the things that Paul had in mind when he wrote to the Corinthians. (2 Cor. 3:2, 3) "Ye are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men: Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart."

III.

People today want reality. They want to see the power of Christ in a saved life. It is living gospels, known and read in your neighborhood and mine, which are the hope of the church and of the world. "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted?" "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid." Have you lost your gospel?

No matter how hard men may try they will never find a substitute for a new life. Christ came to give us new lives, and these new lives are our gospel. St. John, the beloved, makes this very clear in 1 John 5:10-12, "He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself; he that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, AND THIS LIFE IS IN HIS SON. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." This must be my gospel.

—Middle District Conference.—We have advertised the date for this gathering, June 17-20, in The Mennonite several times, and have been anxiously looking for a copy of the program for publication. But, so far, no sign of one. We also notice the churches of the district are electing their delegates, because the event is less than three weeks ahead.

It is also proposed to have the local Church orchestra accompany the general singing one or more evenings and bring special music.

John Bartel, P. R. Schroeder, A. W. Friesen.

You, Graduates

Bear this in mind, you must now work in another sort of competition.

You must WORK for your daily bread and you must be satisfied with what you get. You must not be contented—you must be satisfied with beginning.

You must expect hard knocks. You must take it on the chin. Theodore Roosevelt once said: "If a man falls down, help him up—do it again—but if he 'lays' down, let him alone. He is lost."

All the rest had to begin. Now your conquest, your personal achievement, begins. Obey the rules of the game. Keep clean. Keep your ideals. Strike the line hard. The goal way out yonder is worth the cost.

Mennonite Song Festival

The Mennonite Song Festival society will hold its annual Festival June 4th beginning at 2:30 P. M. at the Bethel College Bowl.

This Festival is held annually in the spring of the year. Hundreds of singers gather for this occasion from surrounding Mennonite Churches. More people are expected to take part than ever before.

This Festival came from small beginnings. Choirs of various Mennonite Churches were invited to sing at one particular church. But soon no church was large enough to take care of the audience and the singers. Large tents were then used to help accomodate the audience. This, however, proved unsatisfactory and in 1934 bleachers were built on the banks of the "Kidron" which flows through the Bethel College Campus. Here under the shade of the majestic trees the Festival has been held since.—The Women's Ass'n. of Bethel College will serve a lunch of sandwiches, soup, pie, cake, ice cream and coffee, following the afternoon program.

"O sing unto the Lord a new song for he hath done marvellous things." Ps. 95:1. Perhaps some of us forget to sing songs of praise to God or we sing them sparingly. Let us gather in mass for this Song Festival and unitedly praise God in song, either by hearing or singing new songs, for we have so much for which to praise Him.—Editor.

Announcement and Program

We, the members of the Woodland Mennonite Church of Warroad, Minnesota, desire that Brother Arthur Ortmann be fully ordained to be qualified to serve our church in every official capacity, as well as that of pastor. We have, therefore, arranged for a special ordination service and, combined with it, the dedication of the church to the service of the Lord. We invite all who are interested to attend these services. We ask all Christians to remember these services in their prayers.

Dedication services, the Lord willing, to be held July 2, 1939, at 10:00 a. m. and Ordination services at 2:00 p. m., with the following arranged program:

Dedication Program

General Song, No. 70
Opening Scripture reading and prayer, D. S. Heppner
Song by the Junior Boys and Girls
Theme: The Responsibility of the Church to its Pastor, by Rev. Hellmuth Ortmann
Song by Mrs. John Harder
General Song, No. 66.
Dedication Sermon, Rev. Ed. Duerksen
Reading by Adelina Ortmann
Song by Pete Unruh
Closing song, No. 38 and prayer.

Ordination Services

Opening by chairman, C. I. Krahn
Song, No. 21.—Song by George Krahn
Theme: The Responsibility of the Pastor to the Church, by Rev. Edward Duerksen
General Song, No. 6
Special song by Mrs. D. S. Heppner, No. 61
Ordination Sermon by Rev. Hellmuth Ortmann
Duet by Mr. and Mrs. Otto Unruh
Closing Song, No. 107 and prayer

—C. I. Krahn, member Board of Trustees

WEST SWAMP CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

For many years our church services were held in the morning and afternoon alternately, but this year the schedule was changed to three morning services and one evening service. We hope that this will strengthen and not weaken the church.

Two members were united into the fellowship of our church at Easter time. One member, Mrs. Anna Hallman, passed on to her reward on April 15. She was an active member of the church.

On Sunday, April 23, while our pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander were visiting the latter's parents, the pulpit was occupied by Rev. P. J. Boehr.—On Sunday afternoon, April 30, over fifty members of our Sunday School visited the Hilltown Lutheran Sunday School and joined in their worship. A fine fellowship was enjoyed by everyone. The same evening, a graduation service was held for the members who have completed the Teachers Training Course. There are four members who received diplomas, namely, Verna Keiser, Lizzie Myers, Huldah Myers and Anna Weiss. Several others received certificates for completing a part of the course. Prof. Russell Stein, professor of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa., gave the address of the evening.

Many of our people attended the Eastern District Conference in Bally from May 4 to 7. On Saturday afternoon the Young Women's Missionary Society gave a play called, "If I Be Lifted Up."—Arrangements are being made to hold a Daily Vacation Bible School in our church this summer, beginning Monday, May 22 and continuing for three weeks. The Christian Endeavor Society is going to visit the Tylersport Mission on May the 27th. They will render a short program there.—Correspondent.

—East Swamp, Quakertown, Pa.—Consecration of two children was held on May 14, pastor Burkholder officiating. May God richly bless these little ones that they grow up in the grace and knowledge of the Kingdom.—Our Junior C. E. Society won the attendance banner at the annual Junior Convention at West Swamp, May 20.

C. E. Activities of the West Zion Mennonite Church

(Editor's note: The following summary of the type of programs presented during the year and some of the things done was sent in by Miss Maxine Taves, Sec. Program Committee. The editor thanks Miss Taves for the excellent and prompt report and wishes that more C. E. workers would send such reports.)

Moundridge, Kansas.

For most of our programs we followed the programs outlined in the Mennonite and the Christian Endeavor World. We found their suggestions helpful and secured many ideas from them.

During the last few years we have made it a practice to exchange programs with the C. E. societies of two or three churches in and near Moundridge. This year the C. E. of the Garden Mennonite Church gave a program in our church. A group of members of our society presented a program at the South Mennonite Church of Christian and at the Eden Mennonite Church. We were impressed by the large number present at the Eden Church, which shows that their young people take an active part in Christian Endeavor work.

A type of program which proved interesting to us was what we called a "Surprise Program." The program committee prepared a number of questions which were handed out to members just before the program began. During the program these people were called upon to give a short talk on the question given them. Some were called upon to furnish a special music number. As part of this program we had two members come prepared to ask the group questions about the Bible. We found this a good way to give everyone an opportunity to take part in the meeting.

For another program we had several members interview as many people during the week as possible on certain questions pertaining to the Bible, such as—"What in your opinion is the best way to study the Bible?" and "What part of the Bible has meant most to you?" etc. At our Sunday meeting these people reported results of their interviews.

There are a number of people in our organization who have been members for many years, but who no longer take an active part. We call these Honorary Members and gave them an opportunity this year to present their own program. They enjoyed giving the program, and those present enjoyed hearing it.

On April 9, the Men's and Ladies' Choirs presented an Easter program of sacred music. Quite a number of people from outside our own congregation attended this program.

Our C. E. Mission Committee was in charge of one program. They arranged to have Mrs. Anna Neufeld present, who gave us an interesting talk on her flight from Russia.

At present we are contributing toward the support of a boy in India, and the proceeds from the collection at this Mission program went for that cause.

Our society does not meet during the summer months so we have only a few more meetings left this season. We hope to close the season with the feeling of having had a successful year, and of having accomplished the true purpose of Christian Endeavor work.

Marching On

The Mennonite young people of the Western District Conference are marching to West Zion Church at Moundridge, Kansas, for their annual convention on July 30 according to a recent announcement. The convention has member C. E. groups in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska. Their annual retreat is to be at Elmdale, Kansas, again this year from July 25-30. The retreat attracts over 150 young people annually.

In addition to a convention and an annual retreat they sponsor mission drives in support of foreign and home missions. To stimulate interest in missions they have offered one expense-paid retreat to the endeavor society that sends in most money to their treasurer, Hilda Wiebe, Beatrice, Nebraska. Her teaching address was Hyannis, Nebr.

An oratory contest is again being held for C. E. members. Edwin Stucky from Moundridge is the peace secretary and is in charge of the contest. Entrants have written orations on either peace or missions. The winners receive expense-paid retreats also. Last year they had nearly twenty entrants in the oratory.

The convention has endorsed the Kansas Institute of International Relations to help in promoting constructive peace action, to assist in spreading Christian pacifism for which Mennonites have stood for over 400 years and to enable Christians to give a more adequate peace testimony. KIIR scholarships are offered to them.

Of special importance to them is the part of the institute which is called a Historic Peace Church Seminar. This is a special discussion group which meets each afternoon at Bethel College beginning on June 14. Mennoite, Quaker, and Brethren leaders will guide these meetings. They will discuss such topics as: the Christian peace testimony; experiences of C. O.'s; sacrificial service in peace time; what to do in event of war; and others.

An appeal from A. J. Neuenschwander, secretary of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference, to help in the building of a new church at Swift Current, Sask., has recently been called to the attention of the young people of the district.

This appeal and other convention business will be considered in an executive committee meeting at Newton on May 26.—W. J.

Finding Treasure

Senior C. E. Topic for June 18, 1939

Main Topic: Finding Hidden Treasure, 2 Tim. 3:14-17; 2 Peter 1:19-21

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "I Love to Tell the Story," "Sing Them Over Again to Me," "Tell Me the Old, Old Story."
2. Reading of main topic, several short prayers
3. Special music: "Mother's Bible," or "Thy Word Have I Hid in My Heart."

II. Leader's Introductory Talk

The Bible, indeed in more senses than one, is the "Book of books." It is a living book, as vital and powerful today as in the centuries when it was formed. It is a book that belongs to every generation. It is always up-to-date. Its message is not for any one time or circumstance, but for every age and for every situation.

People everywhere recognize that there is treasure in the Bible. Even those who do not turn to it for guidance in religious matters regard it as a mine of rules and principles for both individual and group living which are altogether practicable for present-day use.

But the Bible has in it hidden treasures that only spiritually sensitive people can find. Its greatest riches are uncovered by those who use it as a "rule of faith and life." For them it is the Word of God.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Jesus pictures the Kingdom of God. Mk. 4:26-32
2. The Parable of the Sower. Mt. 13:1-9
3. The Parable of the Tares. Mt. 13:24-30
4. The Law Revived and Regarded, 2 Kings 23:1-3

IV. Facts for Study

There is hidden treasure in the Bible. One may find there great history, thrilling biography, inspiring poetry, stirring drama, wise exhortation, even fiction with a point to it. One may find there spiritual help for every necessity and moral power for every emergency.

V. For Discussion

Let various members select a Bible passage which is especially valuable to them, and tell what it means to them.

VI. Illustration

3. Something to Pass Around.—Dr. Stuart Holden tells the story of a boy from his own church, who was badly wounded some time ago. He found himself in Great Britain, in a hospital where he was very much dependent for necessaries, as well as for trifling luxuries, upon the parcels which reached him from home. After his mother had sent him one or two weekly parcels she got a letter from him, thanking her, and adding this request: "Mother, next time you send a box please send something that can be passed around, because there are others here as well as myself." In the Gospel of Jesus Christ we have got something that can be passed around.

VII. Food for Thought

The individual who would enrich his spiritual life must set aside some portion of each day for meditation and prayer.

The family that would build strong spiritual foundations for the home must have daily worship.

The group that would have an increasingly vital influence must continuously nurture its own spiritual life.

What Missionaries of Our Church Are Accomplishing

Intermediate C. E.

For Daily Reading:

June 12. Teaching. Acts 20:17-21, 31.
June 13. Finding leaders for the churches. Acts 14:23.
June 14. Guiding the women workers. Phil. 4:3.
June 15. Counselling the young. 1 Tim. 4:12-16.
June 16. Settling disagreements. 1 Cor. 6:1-7.
June 17. Correcting false teaching. Gal. 1:6-9.
June 18. Topic. Acts 26:16-29.

Song: "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun"
Scripture Reading: Acts 26:16-29
Prayer by Superintendent

For this meeting a copy of the last mission number of the MENNONITE will be very necessary. It would be a fine thing to have the members bring copies to the meeting and to then study the most significant parts together. This will mean that the leader should have studied it carefully before the meeting. If you are privileged to have a missionary on furlough or a returned missionary in your community by all means ask him to speak of the accomplishments in his field. Or assign different fields to various members previous to the meeting. Ask the members to give very careful attention and then conduct a quiz bee at the close of the program. Ask your superintendent to jot down questions while the reports are being given.

The names of the missionaries, to be placed on the map of India as suggested last week, are:

1. Korba—Rev. and Mrs. Paul Wenger, Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Jantzen
2. Janjgir—Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Moyer (on furlough until July), Miss Martha Burkholder, Miss Helen Nickel, Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner (on furlough)
3. Champa—Drs. Harvey and Ella Bauman, Miss Eva Pauls, Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Penner.
4. Birra—Rev. and Mrs. J. Thiessen (on furlough), Rev. and Mrs. F. Isaac.
5. Basna—Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Dester, Rev. and Mrs. Duerksen, Miss Augusta Schmidt.

(Names taken from Mennonite and News and Notes).

A few facts taken from the statistical information given in The Mennonite.

	America	India	China
Native helpers	11	149	130
Churches	9	20	15
Sunday Schools	12	20	16
Main Stations	9	6	3
Hospitals		2	1

Missionary Roll Call

We are taking it for granted that the Mennonite is available to all. We are certain your pastor would be glad to lend you his copy. For that reason we are not giving details of all the mission fields. We trust your members have prepared for this Roll Call as suggested several weeks ago and through it a lot of information concerning each field will be given.

Song: "From Greenlands Icy Mountains" (memorize third verse)

Did You Know

1. That the present working staff of Foreign Missions numbers 64?

2. That to each of the American Missionaries in India fall approximately fifty thousand people?

3. That the Champa Leper Home has six hundred inmates?

4. That the total number cured in the Leper Home until 1938 was 109?

5. That the four stations among the American Indians in Montana have around two hundred and fifty members?

6. That Oklahoma is our oldest Mission field?

7. That we have had Missionaries among the Indians in Arizona for forty-five years?

8. That the Home Mission Board has twenty-two workers in Canada, many of them itinerant ministers?

9. That in India over fifteen thousand are baptized every month?

10. That there are still three hundred and forty-five million in India without Christ?

11. That only two leaders of the Church in China lost their lives in the war and that there was very little damage to church property?

12. That last summer in China there were five hundred and eighty enrolled in vacation Bible schools?

Mission quiz in charge of superintendent.

Offering during the singing of "We Give Thee But Thine Own."

Announcements

Closing Thought: "Come over and help us," they call to you and to me.

What shall we answer to them and to Christ?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for June 18, 1939

"In the Desert." Neh. 9:19

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude
2. Rise to sing in unison, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him"
3. Remain standing for a short prayer season. Four juniors should have been asked to take part in this and as many others as will, the leader closing with a short prayer.
4. Song: "For the Beauty of the Earth"
5. Verse of the month in unison: Ps. 111:4, "He hath made His wonderful works to be remembered; the Lord is gracious and full of compassion."
6. Poem:

Praise Ye the Lord

"Praise the Lord, ye heaven of heavens,
Sun and moon and stars of light,
Praise Him, all His vast creation,
Deepest deep and highest height;
Praise Him, meadow, mount and valley,
Praise Him, forest, field and stream,
Praise Him, sky and earth and ocean,
Praise Him, desert in your dream."

—Annie Johnson Flint

7. Duet: "This Is My Father's World" v. 1, 3
8. Scripture by leader. Ps. 63:1-8. This is a Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.
9. Song in unison, "Fairest Lord Jesus" v. 1, 2. Sung softly as a prayer song.

II. Mission Minutes

1. A junior should tell the story of the ordination of two Christian Chinese into the ministry. Show the picture. (Refer to Missionary H. J. Brown's letter.)
2. Pray for these new workers and their work

Study Period. Aim: To learn more of the geography of Palestine. To learn that "desert" or "wilderness" in the Bible does not always mean a sandy, barren, unproductive region, but that usually it means a lonely, uninhabited region. To learn of God's abiding presence and care. Neh. 9:19.

1. "The Wilderness of Sinai"—by a junior boy. (Use a large map). This region is situated within the peninsula of Sinai that lies between Egypt and Palestine. It is a lonely plateau, crossed by narrow wadys, or river valleys, and bounded on the south by ranges of hills, where the few springs water the earth and in the river valleys date-palms and other fruit trees, tamarisk and thorns flourish. The Israelites wandered in this wilderness forty years.
2. "The Wilderness of Judea"—by a junior girl. Beyond Bethany, (south) for fifteen miles lies the wilderness of Judea; a succession of hills and gorge, terrace and plain to the shores of the Dead Sea. This is a desolate and picturesque region, terribly lonely and wild. This wilderness was the scene of the hermit life of John the Baptist and the temptation of Jesus.
3. Read Psalm 107:4-6; John 6:31
4. "Fed in the Desert"—A story told by a junior in his own words. (Read Exodus chapters 16 and 17 and Numbers 20.)
5. Solo, "I'm a Pilgrim." Gospel Hymns
6. "A Voice from the Wilderness"—Told by a junior in his own words. (Read Isa. 40:3-5; Luke 1:57-80; Matt. 3:1-12.)
7. Duet—"Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet"
8. "Jesus Feeding Five Thousand in the Desert"—Told by a junior in his own words. (Read Matt. 14:13-21; Mark 6:32-44; John 6:1-15.
9. Song in unison, "Break Thou the Bread of Life"
10. Leader's heart talk, closing with a prayer of Thanksgiving for God's wonderful care of His children.
11. Doxology

Dualism of the Christian

John J. Kroeker

Recently I heard a sermon in which the speaker told his audience that it is wrong to be a pessimist and to bewail the conditions of the day. As faithful Christians we should joyfully tackle our Christian tasks and seek to become worthy of our Christian calling.

An attentive listener could hear that the speaker was tempted to denounce the social and economic order of our age and that he, had he been speaking in, perhaps, some poor neighborhood church, would have enjoyed doing so.

This sermon reminded me forcefully of the dualism of the rank and file Christian. Every member of the Christian world seems to be composed of two distinct personalities, each of which lives its own and very independent of the other's life: one life which reveals itself when he is in church, and the other life which comes to the fore in his every-day life and business.

This is not the place to go into lengthy discussions of the origin and causes which have favored and reared such dualism, but I wish to point out to those who wish to learn more about its characteristics that the Apostle Paul has given a very accurate analysis of this dualistic human who feels that he can live two lives: one in the service of his irrational passions and greed, and the other in the service of a Sunday cult.

A fact of primary importance, though, is that this dualism of the Christian world is really the cause of all our political and economic troubles of today. I have often wondered how such a doctrine as we have in Marxism could ever ensnare even sincerely faithful Christians. The more I think of it, the more I become convinced that the mass of liberal Christians who, today, seek to formulate a social Gospel, fail to realize that all radicalism is, in reality, a deep feeling of resentment against the failure of the Christian world.

When Christ insisted that man must be born again He meant that man must become a new being not merely in some of his habits and passions. It seems that Stalin and his Communists have grasped this necessity much more than we Christians do. A true Communist must be a new man in faith, in thinking, in actions and in his aims. All dualism is being eradicated, if necessary by the firing squad, and the new Communist man must do his utmost to think in but one Communist opinion.

We, the Christians, can let some questionable public opinion sway our political convictions; the money which we have, or do not have, will determine our point of view in economics, and our sympathy with one or a hundred of the many doctrinal rules and regulations serves as indicator for the degree of our holiness. Is it any wonder that such a dualism leads directly into an Atheistic Christian world which, for the sake of giving Liberalism and an anthropocentric Humanism a religious color, will profess faith in a Christian God? A God, however, who has become a very anthropomorphic God and whose teachings must be re-interpreted in accordance with such a discovery.

According to James 2:1, a Christian must be free from subservience to man. Not only the rich man must not be judged according to his earthly possessions, one is to be equally far from assuming that poverty must be a sign of godliness.

This must be kept in mind in all our efforts to exert Christian influence on the shaping of living conditions. Only then will we be able to discover that reforms must always begin where Christ has been making His beginnings, deep in the heart of man. Let us try to combat the dualism of the Christian mind, and we will soon discover that a new Christian mind will do away with the need for liberal radicalism, which always leads us to Atheism for the simple reason that it knows nothing of any Christocentric Humanism.

CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM MENNONITE CHURCH, DALTON, O.

Salem Mennonite Church is an active rural church and is widely recognized as such in this section of Ohio. There are many activities and interests of its people, and of the former leadership of Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Keiser. This has made it pleasant for the new minister and his family to take up the work here.

The following are some of the activities and items of interest that have taken place within the last few months.

On Sunday evening, May 7, we enjoyed a splendid program by the Dalton High School. Numerous musical numbers were presented by students under the direction of Victor Gerber, one of our own members, and Mr. Garver. Superintendent Hathaway gave a helpful address stressing the need of co-operation on the part of the home, the church and the school. Four members of our church are teaching in this school district. It is fine to have these young people at home and numbered among our workers.

Our C. E. societies are finding their present plan of holding meetings working very satisfactorily. Joint opening and closing sessions are held but for the discussion period seniors, intermediates and juniors each meet separately and then each present a short report of their discussion to the entire group. Barbara Zuercher, our C. E. President, and Betty Long were recently elected to the directorate of the very active Wayne County C. E.

Twelve young people were received into the church on Palm Sunday by baptism and one by letter. Two others have been received by letter since then. Nine children were consecrated at the Mother's Day service on May 14. Last March we lost one of our faithful members in the death of Miss Esther Amstutz, aged 56. She was one of those fine souls so helpful to the church and community. She was active in the work of the church and auxiliaries and had been instrumental in aiding the church secure an organ some years ago.—A recent Bible memory contest in the junior department of the Sunday School was very successful. The winner memorized 110 verses which she effectively recited before the school. Many others learned a large number of verses. Adrian Amstutz has been the efficient superintendent of the Salem Sunday School for 11 years.—We will again co-operate with the Dalton churches in a summer Bible school to be held for two weeks beginning June 5. — Mrs. A. S. R.

WAYLAND MENN. CHURCH, WAYLAND, IA.

March 21: "We had the privilege of hearing Rev. Emil D. Gruen, Philadelphia, Pa., a converted Jew, give an inspiring talk on work among his people, being sent by the American Board of Missions to the Jews. Dr. J. E. and Mrs. Langenwalter, Twin Falls, Idaho, called on friends a few days in March. We are always happy to visit with this good family. During Lent, Rev. Penner held Tuesday evening services, which were followed by very impressive Easter services. May 7th, the Dorcas society sponsored a missionary playlett, "The Call from Afar." An offering was taken for medical work among our workers. May 14 Mrs. Sara Marie Penner brought us a very touching Mother's Day message. The evening of May 14 Rev. Penner preached the baccalaureate sermon in our high school auditorium. Mrs. Selma Sommer, Pandora, Ohio, and her son Otto from Chicago were here for the high school activities, Irvin Sommer being a member of the graduating class. We are very glad that Mrs. Sommer is able to be with us. We enjoy her inspiring presence in our community. April 10, we were privileged to hear the drama "Let My People Go," given by the Peace Society, sponsored by Rev. Landis.—April 14 the Freeman College Choir from Freeman, S. D., gave a sacred program which was highly appreciated. Our Men's Club meets monthly.—May 21, Holy Communion was observed. A large number participated in this most sacred service. 18 young people were added to the church by baptism and one by letter. May the Lord abundantly bless our fellowship and may their lives be enriched in His service.—Sister Marie Penner, Beatrice, Nebr. is spending several days with her brothers, Rev. Penner's and family. — Correspondent.

The Psalms are an everlasting manual to the soul; the book of its immortal wishes, its troubles, its aspirations, and its hopes; sung in every tongue, and in every age; destined to endure while the universe of God has light, harmony, or grandeur, while man has religion or sensibility, while language has sublimity or sweetness.—Henry Giles.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ANNA SPRUNGER, daughter of Christian and Katherine Lehman Lichty, was born Jan. 20, 1854 and passed away April 24, 1939, having reached the age of 85 years, 3 months, and 4 days.

During her young womanhood she was baptized upon confession of faith, and received into membership of the First Mennonite Church of Berne, Ind., where she remained a faithful member until her death. On October 31, 1874 she was united in holy matrimony with Stephen Sprunger. This union was blessed with twelve children. Her husband preceded her in death in 1893; also three children, one grandchild, and one great grandchild preceded.

Surviving to mourn her departure are nine children, nine grandchildren, two great grandchildren; five sisters, and one brother.

In the fall of 1911 Mrs. Sprunger moved from her farm two miles north of Berne to her home on 218 Van Buren St., where she passed away. She was ill since January, but was bedfast only two weeks. Death was attributed to old age and complications. She was a conscientious Christian mother, and ever sought to bring up her children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Final rites for the deceased were conducted by her pastor, Dr. C. H. Suckau. Messages and words of comfort by Dr. Suckau were based on Psalm 23 and Rev. 21:1-7.

—Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebraska was at Freeman, S. D. preaching the baccalaureate sermon for the academy and college graduates. He has also given directions for some changes in the program of the coming Northern District Conference. The program is being printed in the Bethel College print shop.

—Rev. W. F. Unruh, at present residing at Pawnee Rock, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Mennonite Church at Pulaski, Iowa. The family will presently move there and begin work the first of June.

—A Sad Message.—Word has just reached us that Robert Grubb, son of Mrs. Silas Grubb and Dr. Grubb, former editor of the Mennonite has passed away. We extend to dear Mrs. Grubb our heartfelt sympathy in this bereavement. Her cup of sorrow has certainly been running full. Not long ago her husband died, then her father-in-law. And, if our memory serves us correctly, Robert has been their only child, so that she is now left lonely in the world. As for some comfort regarding her son we would refer her to Is. 60:20.

—The Conference Printing Plant.—Again and again brethren are asking what progress is being made in the project of acquiring a conference printing plant. At the suggestion of the Conference Executive Committee the Board of Publication has asked the directors of the Herald Publishing Company if they would be willling to sell their plant and under what terms. At a meeting held by them in February, they decided they would first have to find out, if they could sell. So far no answer has been forthcoming. Time flies, hence, an early answer would be greatly appreciated.

—Freeman Junior College has plans for next year already completed. The faculty will consist of eleven members, one, the president, with a Ph. D. degree; four with M. A. degrees and six with A. B. degrees. Three new college courses in commerce will be offered; also survey courses in physical and biologocal science for normal students.

—The Mennonite Bible Conference held in Newton, Kansas, May 12-19, had a remarkably good attendance. At the Mennonite Church in the forenoon, there were approximately 300 listeners, on Ascension Day, 600-700; in the afternoon, at the auditorium, the crowds numbered 600-700, and on some evenings, as on Sunday evening, they practically filled the hall which seats 1300-1400 people. May God abundantly bless the seed which spirit-filled men scattered so bountifully, to the salvation of many souls and to His own honor and glory.

—From the Monthly News Letter, Salem Church.—The pastor has received an invitation to the wedding of Rev. Erland Waltner and Miss Mary Winifred Schlosser, at Greenville, Illinois, June 5. May the fragrance of June roses be a prophetic symbol of the joy of this union.—Monthly mission offering, May 2, $127.65; special offering, May 14, when Rev. Cornelius Mortens spoke, $41.43.—A large number of individual petitions were sent to our state representatives in Washington last week, humbly requesting these gentlemen to do all in their power to help keep our country out of foreign wars. About 135 were sent to each of the congressmen in packages.—331 took part in the communion service May 7.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa.—The Mennonite, our denominational church paper, has been greatly improved the past few years. It calls attention to affairs in our denomination and problems which are facing the world which every Christian should read. The subscription price is $1.00 for new and $1.50 for old subscribers. You may send your subscription to Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas, or give it to the pastor.—New subscribers, coming in now, may have the Mennonite from June to Jan. 1940 for 50 cents.—Editor.—The retreat for the older group of young people from the Eastern District, which is again being held at Green Lane Boys University Camp, is from June 16-18. The retreat for young people of high school age or from 13-17, will be held June 23-25.

—Health Guide Messenger is a new, 8-page mimeographed paper that has recently reached our office. It gives this explanation of itself:

What is the Health Guild?

We have been asked this question repeatedly. Words may tell part of the story, but to fully realize what it is, it is necessary for such persons to attend some of our meetings. The Health Guild is composed of a group of people who are vitally interested in health of body, mind and soul. Once a month we eat together. Each family brings a dish of health food. While we are eating we discuss the value of the different foods and the eating habits. At our meetings we discuss various phases of health. We realize that a person can not enjoy life to the fullest extent if he is suffering from some disorder, be it physical, mental or spiritual. . . . "I came that you might have life and have it more abundantly". It is this fullness of life in Christ that we seek. (E.D.S.)

—A Parsonage for the Portland Mission.—A parsonage has been purchased for the Portland Mission. It is a lovely place, and the location is ideal, about seventy-five feet from the church. The Pacific District Conference bought the place. The Millers are to move not later than May 25th. The new address will be 5215 N.E. 23rd Ave. — Mrs. Miller, who has been sick now and then in the past few months and quite severely so last week, has been advised by her doctor that she must have a major operation. May we hope and pray that the operation will be successful and that Mrs. Miller may soon be restored to health and the work in which she has such a vital part.—Workers Exchange.

—A Truly Worth While Summer Bible School.—Berne, Indiana, is always in the foreground when it comes to religious activities. This year they are again having a five-week Bible School. Notice, not two weeks or three, as so many communities have, where there is just enough time for a beginning and an end, with very little time for real work in between. Then, too, in Berne the pastors of the different churches in the place take an active part in the work. Notice the roster of teachers: Superintendent, Dr. C. H. Suckau. Teachers: Kindergarten: Mary Ellen Riesen—assistant, Flora Amstutz; Grade 1: Mrs. Harry Johnson—assistant, Anna Barbara Liechty; Grade 2: Mrs. Paul Shoemaker; Grade 3: Frances Burkhalter—assistant, Verna Baumgartner; Grade 4: Mrs. Menno Stauffer; Grade 5: Mrs. Wilbur Nussbaum; Grade 6: Mrs. Carolina Zook; Grade 7: Rev. C. P. Maas; Grade 8: Rev. C. H. Wiederkehr; Grade 9: Rev. C. A. Schmid; office assistant, Evelyn Habegger. Notice, too, the splendid organization and classification, and the inclusion of students of high school age.

—Our good brethren in South Dakota are again anxiously looking and praying for rain as it is getting too dry for crops to make headway. May the gracious Heavenly Father have compassion on them and send them the needed moisture. They have suffered so much from drouth.

—Pastoral Message: "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." Thus a proverb describes the power of a mother's hand. If this is true then the greatest need of the world today is a responsible Christian motherhood—a motherhood who sincerely prays and works to bring children to God. Give us Christian mothers and we will have Christian homes. Give us Christian homes and we will have a Christian nation.—E.W.

—Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, O.—Mr. Russell Mast who will preach for us next Sunday was a graduate of Bluffton College in 1937 and has completed two years of work at Hartford Seminary, Hartford, Connecticut. Among many other activities, Mr. Mast was a member of the Gospel Team at Bluffton and as such probably has spoken before in this church.

—The Young People's Rally of the western part of the Eastern Conference, which was held in the Mennonite Memorial Church at Altoona, Pa., May 20, was well attended and a fine interest shown. Miss Huldah Myers of Quakertown was the guest speaker in the afternoon, and Rev. J. J. Plenert, chairman of the Eastern Conference, gave an inspiring address in the evening.

—Year Book, First Church, Philadelphia. This book which lies before us shows on its front page a beautiful half tone of Rev. N. B. Grubb who served the church more than 38 years as pastor. On another page is an equally good picture of the present pastor, Rev. J. J. Plenert. How busy he is may be learned from the following table: calls made, including sick, 490; officiated at funerals, 12; Bible studies and prayer meetings, 44; Y. P. Bible Studies, 20; sermons preached at church and elsewhere, 105. The deacons are: J. B. Bechtel, Nelson Weiss, A. B. Martin. The membership is 330. The church treasury received $5,150.81. Auxiliary treasuries bring this up in the neighborhood of $7000.00, which is a splendid showing.

—Constitution of the First Mennonite Church of Halstead is the title of another booklet sent us. We have given it a rather close examination, and like it all the way through. The statements are concise and in simple language. The chapter on "Rights and Privileges" is a classic with the exception of the last paragraph with parts of which the editor would have some difficulty to agree.

There is scarcely a man who is not conscious of the benefits which his own mind has received from the performance of single acts of benevolence. How strange that so few of us try a course of the same medicine!—J. F. Boyes.

"Keep America Out of War"

On May 13 the Associated Press reported that within the last 60 days more than 1,000,000 letters had reached Congressmen from their constituents demanding, "Keep America out of War." By this time, the number has probably been trebled, for the people are generally beginning to realize that it is not only their privilege, but their duty to speak their mind to the government, through their representatives, on this all-absorbing problem of a war in Europe, into which sinister forces all about us are trying to drag us. In these petitions, single persons, groups and associations from all walks of life have united in demanding that under no circumstance is the United States to give aid to one power or another to the extent that our participation in war becomes NECESSARY. The congressional journals have been packed with speeches of congressmen, letters from constituents and anti-war editorials. We give here a few very pertinent expressions from leading senators and representatives, showing their opposition to entanglements in a new war, as we found them in the May number of PEACE ACTION.

The greatest service we can perform to the ultimate cause of peace and the preservation of democracy is to keep war and its civilization-destroying ravages out of this hemisphere. We can best assure this by adopting a policy of genuine neutrality. This means that the decision of war or peace—which is the real question involved in taking sides, whether economically or otherwise—should not be left to one man, even though he be the President.—Rep. Melvin J. Maas, Minnesota.

For over a year the heads of our government have denounced Hitler and Mussolini in violent and provocative language. For the first time in our history our foreign policy has been based upon hatred, threats, and attacks on the forms of government and rulers of foreign nations. It is the most amazing departure from American traditions and has created war hysteria at home and hatred abroad.—Rep. Hamilton Fish, N. Y.

It has been proposed, and is now being adroitly urged, that we engraft upon our foreign policy the doctrine of "the aggressor." The next step is for this nation to open up an economic war upon the aggressor nation. It is the most subtle and effective method yet conceived for bringing us into all European controversies at any moment. Senator William E. Borah, Idaho.

Every one of us has a right to feel indignant about (aggressions of Germany, Italy and Japan), but should we now start, by official action or by official inaction through failing to limit the tendencies of the President in that direction, to punish these nations for absolutism and conquest? We may have felt indignation, but we did not interfere during the conquests of Great Britain and France during the past century, possibly because we were making our own conquests.—Rep. John M. Vorys, Ohio.

The issue of peace and war lies right in this body and in the body at the other end of the Capitol. It ought to be made abundantly clear and plain that we do not propose to carry the country into war; that when that issue arises, there are those of us here, humble though we may be, who will not vote to have the country go into war.—Senator Walter F. George, Georgia.

If any member of the Senate has any illusions as to whether or not many people are hell-bent on putting us into war all he needs to do is to read the current issue of the newspapers and magazines, for there is apparently a very studied effort on the part of a large group in this country to thrust the United States of America into the conflicts of Europe by force of arms.—Senator Homer T. Bone, Washington.

We all know that we, by the grace of God, do not have to fight in Europe unless we chose to do so. Nothing on earth can draw us into a European war except propaganda, emotional hysteria, or misguided thinking and leadership.—Senator Warren Barbour, N. J.

America must stop hating and stop "sicking" other nations into war. She must stop deceiving them or permitting them to assume the existence of an alliance with us which will never be consummated. —Senator Hiram Johnson, California.

I have received a number of telegrams with reference to the European war situation and our relationship to it, and I assume that other Senators have been the recipients of similar messages. An overwhelming number of my correspondents have strongly urged and pleaded that we avoid any and every possibility of becoming involved in a European war. Many of these communications are touching, indicating a very keen and worried attitude on the part of millions of our people lest our Government pursue a policy that may involve us in war.—Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts.

Have you, kind reader, if you are an American citizen and of accountable age, made use of your great privilege of asking your congressmen to do all they can to keep us out of war? If you believe with our church that war is a deadly sin, and that it is our duty to work for peace, here is your opportunity to use your influence toward maintaining peace.

Our Duty to Others

Jesus sums up our duty to others in the second great commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." This finds its practical explanation in the golden rule—doing to others as we would they should do unto us, or putting ourselves in the others' place. Our parents are the first, and for many years the chief ones, with whom we have to do. They care for us in helpless infancy, provide our needs and train us as we grow up, and qualify us to enter hopefully on life's opportunities. That we should love and honor them is a course which affection and gratitude dictate, and which God emphatically approves.

The recognition of the great primal rights of others is held to be fundamental—life, the first of all, and inclusive of all others, must be held sacred; chastity, which underlies and guarantees the family relationship, must be inviolable; property, the foundation of law and order, must be maintained. These laws of Moses were carried over in their complete integrity into Christianity, and given higher and firmer sanctions. Against the violation of these rights the prophets cried vehemently, and against their flagrant disregard today, as evidenced in the records of crime, divorce, and dishonesty, the Christian church incessantly protests.

The sacredness of truth is ever to be upheld, the lie and the liar to be despised Truth is the basis of all our dealings with others. Falsehood breaks up all human relationships. Paul says we are to speak the truth with our neighbors, because we are members one of another, all linked together. We may lie by deeds as well as words.

To be rich and to be religious at the same time was a problem in Christ's day; it is still. "Beware of covetousness," said He. Yet the desire to possess is inborn, and prosperity is promised to the righteous—the natural must be subordinated to the spiritual. The rights of God and man harmonize and are inseparable. Glorifying God we stand for human rights; respecting the rights of man we help to establish God's kingdom upon earth.

Measuring Success in Teaching Sunday School

The editor, who is an ex-teacher with some forty years of experience behind him, often has to think sympathetically of the several thousand faithful Sunday School teachers in our General Conference churches. There they are, scattered over a large part of North America, trying to teach some forty thousand live boys and girls the WAY OF LIFE, and how to become engrafted as branches in the true vine, Jesus Christ, in order to bear good fruit for time and eternity. I am sure that the majority of them are doing the very best they can, though often hampered by handicaps of which the public school teachers know very little. One of their real problems is to have a measure, or measures, of some kind with which to test the success of their work. If they are fortunate enough to be working under a superintendent who sympathetically and tactfully guides their work, gently points out to them how to eliminate possible weaknesses and indicates ways of improvement, they have one of the best means of seeing their success measured. But, alas, not all Sunday School teachers are thus fortunately situated. And comparatively few are working under conditions where they can make use of some of the simple tests used in the public schools.

So what are some of the measures that may be applicable anywhere? Sometimes numbers mean success. If the enrollment and attendance increase, many think a class is a success, and there is something to that, in some cases more than in others. Another conventional measure of success is the growing interest shown by the members of the class in their work, their willing preparation and lively participation during the lesson period. But even there, tried measures are inadequate to test actual success. Real success in Sunday School work is attained only when a tangible spiritual change is taking place in the life of the pupil. Does he show some fruit of the Christian life? To ascertain this, the Sunday School teacher is handicapped, for he meets the pupils only about one hour a week. It is, therefore, necessary for him to find opportunities to be together with the class more often. Frequent and close contact with the group between Sundays, listening to their utterances as they talk over their experiences, their actions and attitudes with their day-school companions and teachers, may be quite helpful. But this does not go far enough. Individual visits with the pupil and heart-to-heart talks with him about his inner life, and enlistment of the parents' cooperation, are quite necessary to a real comprehension of what success may be in the making in the molding of Christ-like lives.

Had I but serv'd my God with half the zeal I serv'd my king, He would not in mine age have left me naked to mine enemies.—Shakespeare.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

K'ai Chow, Hopei, China, 12-31-38.

Dear Members of the Mission Board:

This year has rolled around quite fast after all, even though during the first quarter everything seemed to move so slowly. At the beginning of the year I was still in the hospital in Seattle, busy with my course in maternity nursing. Then came the wait in Seattle until April 13, and a second time of waiting in Tientsin, China, until July 4. Finally, on July 16, I came to the field.

I have been very much occupied this last half of the year. There is an increase in the number of patients in the hospital. Our services seem much in demand. We have more patients of the higher class of people come to us than formerly. The fact that the Pannabecker brothers stayed on the field during much of the time early this year, has given the Mission and the hospital a good reputation. Then too, many of our patients go home either cured or at least much helped, and they in turn bring in, or send to us, such of their acquaintances who need treatment.

The last ten years our in-patients have increased from 96, in 1929, to 610 in 1938. We recently operated upon three patients with tumors, one of which weighed 57 pounds. The patients made uneventful recoveries. They said there were others waiting in their neighborhood to come to the hospital as soon as good results were evident.

During this quarter (fourth) of 1938, we have also reopened our School of Nursing, which had been temporarily discontinued since November, 1937, because of unsettled conditions. We have eighteen students who are in their first year of training. It takes much time and energy to train and supervise the work of such a large class of newcomers. Our graduate staff has been very limited. We have from 35 to 40 in-patients, on the average, and as many as 100 in the afternoon in the clinics. Thus we are reaching many people. Our desire is that they should all hear the Gospel and come to know the Great Healer of both body and soul! We find the patients very open to the Gospel message and every day there are those who teach and tell them of the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. And from the villages we hear, occasionally, of those who have gone home from the hospital and have remembered the message heard while here. Thus we sow the good seed in faith that "it shall not return void!"

My course in maternity nursing has been a great help already. The mothers come with confidence and we have had more confinement patients this year than any two years together previously. The field is growing larger and larger and we are doing what we can to meet the needs of the sick as they come to us. We are happy for the coming of a young man, the son of one of our evangelists, as a graduate nurse. He was trained in the London Mission Hospital, near Peking, and is a very fine help. He is in charge of the Men's department.

Our prayer is, continually, that the Lord will supply our every need—our "expectation is from Him!" With the increased work, comes the need for more buildings and more room. We look to the Lord to supply also this need. May we all do our utmost!

Yours very sincerely, Elizabeth D. Goertz, R. N., C. L. Pannabecker, M. D.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Dear Mission Friends:

The following article is a bit longer than usual. Please do not neglect it on that account. Start reading it and be sure to keep on. You will be glad for the new thoughts it brings, if you read on to the end. It is well that we are made to put ourselves in other people's places.—A. J. N.

Waterloo, Ontario, May 6, 1939

Members of the Board and Friends:

It is pardonable if I write something again concerning the Home Mission work in which I am engaged. However, I find this task difficult since I know the whole field and the work is so near to my heart. Home Mission work is to be more specifically all church work at home, such as winning souls for Christ and also spreading the Gospel to such places where it is not yet known. Home Mission work covers also many churches in our country that are partially or completely supported through the Home Mission Board.

Such churches that need no outside support to carry on their work, hold an enviable position. They can work and plan according to their best desires and the means for the work is at hand. Churches receiving mission support are not as fortunate. Their possession consists mainly of spiritual and physical poverty, but by good fortune, in most cases, they also have a good physical and also spiritual hunger. This spiritual hunger can be satisfied only when the means are at hand, but the means cannot be supplied from within the group, they come only when those that have means are touched by the Lord and have an appreciation for the needs of others and give to help them. Frequently we understand physical hunger better than spiritual hunger, and are therefore more ready to meet the needs.

The thing most needful is that the flagging spirits be built up, that the heart be made ready for the seed of the Word. The Mission worker is in an enviable position when at a moment's notice he can give material and also spiritual help to the soul. No work brings greater dividends than when a Mission-worker has been permitted and is able to help; to see the revived and encouraged family take up the battle of life anew, in full trust in the Lord.

What if, however, in the home of the missionary, sickness and physical needs present themselves? The farmer on his own farm is at once the workman, the one who pays and also the one who grants a rest period; and the self-supporting church is much in the same position. They are intimately acquainted with their pastor's needs and stand ready, constantly, to aid him if need arises. The Mission worker is in a completely different position. The group that he serves is not able to help him much or often, they rather expect help from him, and if the the Mission-workers cannot help his needy group, dissatisfaction arises. Cases are where there is real need in the Home Mission worker's home and family, but where is a home and family without hardships? The Home Mission worker is expected to be present to help, comfort and encourage, in spite of the fact that he would need to be helped and comforted. Those who have hired him, and pay him are far away. They cannot see how he gets along or whether he might need a helping hand. In order that they might know, the worker is forced to write a letter picturing his plight and this smacks of begging which is distateful to everyone.

You members of the Board understand this better than I do, because you have the whole field and not only one worker to care for. You must have a wide outlook as a Board, and how often your kindness and readiness to help has been a source of great comfort to me. I often wonder whether all our Conference churches have a right conception of the many needs of the Board and the needs of the many workers? Do you all remember the Board members in your prayers and are you ready with gifts and sympathetic hearts to help?

It often seems so much easier to picture the difficulties and needs of the Foreign Field, than to see the needs of the Home Mission field. The latter are often so near and because of this nearness we fail to see them. In this article, I as a worker under the Home Board, do not want to complain. So much has been accomplished: Girls' Homes have been started, Mission churches have been established, itinerant work has been maintained—yes, many a one who might have despaired, has found new hope in Christ as Savior. In many cases where courage was almost gone, new hope was established by means of the Gospel.

Personally, it is always a source of satisfaction to me to get a word of appreciation from some who receives the "Briefe an Mein Volk." Most of these letters could not be published, because of the personal elements that they contain. Correspondence from young people is of peculiar interest to me. Here is hope; here is courage. Occasionally one tickles my vanity when he says that he enjoys my short sermons much more than the long sermons in the old Preacher's Book. Consciously I have endeavored to make my message short, direct, but still deep in devotional content and warm in the love of Christ.

You, as a Board, support this work regularly. I am to solicit the money that is needed to purchase stencils and postage and other incidental costs. Perhaps I am a poor beggar because the deficit is growing. Still I trust that the Lord will direct a way so that help will come that this work need not be stopped. Keenest appreciation for the "Briefe" is expressed by such who are shut-ins, or small groups that do not have a church as yet.

I appreciate the responsible positions you hold as members of the Home Mission Board and, therefore, I constantly remember you in my prayers. Please remember me in your prayers, and impress it on the churches that they should never forget the far-reaching possibilities of the Home Mission fields. As workers, we hope to be remembered regularly in the prayers of the conference people, because we often have many very difficult battles to fight for the Lord and for the right.

With kindest regards and thanks for all the many kindnesses you as a Board and conference churches have manifested to me, and to the other workers in the Home Mission field, I beg to remain,

Your brother in Christ, Jacob H. Janzen.

ANNOUNCEMENT AND INVITATION

The Lord willing, the ordination of Brother Orlando Waltner and Mrs. Vernelle (Schroeder) Waltner is to take place on Sunday A. M., June 11th, in the Salem church, near Freeman, South Dakota. They are appointed to go to India.

All mission friends are herewith invited to a prayerful participation. May the Lord bless the ordination services, and protect the dear couple on the way to India in September.

In view of the reduction in the workers' staff recently on account of sickness, we are doubly glad for this addition to our force.

P. H. Richert

—The China Home Bond is an eight page sheet that has just reached us from the China Mission field. It is full of worth while things. The first page shows a map of the field and the location of the stations. On the second page is a valuable chronicle. Following this are these articles: "Some effects of 1938 on Missions" by S. F. Pannabecker and "Chai Chow Hospital Mission grows" by C. L. Pannabecker. There is also a news items page and a page listing the missionary staff which gives the addresses of the workers, the kind of work they are doing, their children and their schooling.

PAUL WRITES PERSONAL LETTERS

2 Tim. 1:1-6; Philemon 1-7, 21, 22

Introduction

Paul's two letters to Timothy and the one to Titus are classed together as "The Pastoral Epistles," being written to pastors of Christian churches. These three letters and the one to Philemon, are the four extant personal letters of Paul. Today's lesson consists of excerpts from two of these which were written while Paul was a prisoner in Rome. Second Timothy was written during his second imprisonment when he expected his death to be near. In his "Pastoral Epistles," Paul gives rules for guidance in Church organization, in maintaining a pure doctrine and in developing good Christian character.

Timothy, Paul's Dearly Beloved Son 1-6

Second Timothy is more personal in nature than the other two Pastorals and more fervent in tone. The section of today's lesson reveals Paul's deep longing to enjoy fellowship with Timothy once more (vs. 3, 4). The note of fatherly affection stands out prominently in verse two. He thinks of Timothy constantly. His loving heart went out to God daily in prayer for him (v 3). This is a real test of our affection for others. Paul's forefathers served God and he did not consider his Christian faith as a different religion from theirs. Paul had full confidence in the genuine faith of Timothy, a faith instilled in him by his mother and grandmother (v5). Home religion is vitally important in developing the religious life of childhood and youth. The potent leaders of the Church, in all ages, have largely come from homes where they received Christian instruction in their early years. Paul exhorts Timothy (v6) to use the gift which God gave him—the power of the Spirit. This exhortation is for all of us. There is some gift God has given to us. Most people do not realize how much they can do for the Lord.

Personal Letter to Philemon 1-7, 21, 22

This, the shortest of Paul's epistles, is a perfect gem of letter writing. Paul here calls himself a "prisoner of Jesus Christ" (v1). He is in his own hired house in Rome. Philemon had probably been converted during Paul's long stay in Ephesus. He evidently was an active member, possibly a leader, in the Church which met in his home for worship (v2). Paul had learned of his love and faith and felt sure that the testimony of his life would win others to a like faith in Christ Jesus (vs 5, 6). The influence of a truly Christian life upon others is irresistable. The hearts of his fellow-believers were made glad by Philemon (v7). There are greatly discouraged ones who need to be refreshed in heart. What are WE DOING to help them?

In this letter, Paul very tactfully advises his Christian friend Philemon, to receive back his slave Onesimus, who had previously wronged him and had run away and gone to Rome. There he had come to know Paul and had become a Christian convert. Paul advises Philemon (vs 16, 17) to receive Onesimus now as a Christian brother, assuring him that now, as such, he would be more valuable to him than he was as a slave. Paul feels confident his advice will be well received (v21).

Personal letters may be made a source of encouragement and of spiritual profit to others. They can bring encouragement to the soul and strengthen faith.

SERMON SKETCH

A Secret to be Learned

Phil 4:11

John Bartel, Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn.

"I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content."

"Godliness with contentment is great gain." Piety connected with a contented mind; a mind free from fret and worry and complaint at the allotments of Providence; a mind trustful and calm and satisfied with God's will—this is the highest possible wealth, the greatest gain. We must remember that this is not something that comes to us in a natural way. This is a secret to be learned. The apostle Paul learned it as a tireless traveler. Surely contentment was not natural with such an ambitious nature as Paul possessed to spread the Gospel.

1. "I have learned." The remark: "Travel is educational" is exactly what it was for Paul also. He had learned a great secret in life, contentment. Our literature tables are heaped with magazines which contain experience of great world travelers, yet do we learn from them the needed contentment? Our missionaries report of their travels, some having learned the secret, others being far from it, like John Mark on his first missionary journey.

A correspondent in the Bundesbote laments the fact that our pastors transfer from one place to another. Our lay-people move and shift from one place to the other, because of economic conditions. What are we all to learn? Or have we learned with Paul that "in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content?" Contentment, after all, lies very largely within ourselves and is not from without. It is the result of an inward state of mind more than the outward environment.

"True happiness is to no place confined
But still is found in a contented mind."

"To be content with what we possess," well said

Cicero, "is the greatest and the most secure of riches." Socrates asked: 'Who is the richest of men?" He also replied, "He who is content with the least, for contentment is nature's riches." "Rev. Dr. John Hall, New York, liked to look into the windows of the stores at Christmas time, to see how many things he could do without!"

2. Let us look at what we possess and value them, then our soul will be more content with the riches of Grace in Christ Jesus. When we learn to appreciate the Christian Graces, the outward cravings will lose their grip on us. "When I survey the wondrous cross," etc. The next secret is to make the most of your little enjoyments. We must learn to be content over such blessings as are within our reach and not discontent over those we may never attain. "Count your many blessings, name them one by one," etc. We have the principal ingredients of happiness at this moment—home, health, food, friends, clothing, three meals each day. Do rich people enjoy six meals a day? Do they wear their fancy fur coats in summer for fear of show that they cannot afford these? "Ah, if the rich were as rich as the poor, fancy riches!" exclaims Emerson. We brought nothing into this world and we are surely not taking anything out, except the stripped soul, which is transferred. Therefore, if we want to enjoy some of these material things in the next world, we must invest them in heavenly deeds, so that they get there before our souls do. "They rest from their labors and their works do follow them." Surely these works do not contain the savings or hordes. D. L. Moody, on his deathbed, was asked: "Are you not glad to go on to your reward?" He replied, "No, no for many of my accounts remain."

3. Another secret is this: Do your best with little duties. Duties, no matter how small or insignificant, contain the principle of true service. They are the make-up of most of our lives, and by them we shall be judged "whether good or bad." I believe these are the secrets to a happy, useful life; our supreme confidence and devotion to God. This is our supreme privilege, to have a peace of mind unknown to the world. "As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things," II Cor. 6:10.

— Progress at Winton, Calif.—Rev. D. B. Hess, who is working there writes: "The Lord is doing wonderously beyond what we had expected here. We now have 73 actually enrolled in Sunday School and on Easter we had 73 present. The average S. S. attendance is about 54. During the last quarter we had a gain of 198 in S. S. attendance over the previous quarter. We are planning a Vacation Bible School. The churches of the community are all cooperating in this project."—Worker's Exchange.

Rev. J. W. Regier Celebrates his 90th Birthday

Sunday, May 21, at Immanuel Church
Los Angeles, California

ALONG THE NINETY-YEAR WAY

Born in Germany, May 20, 1849.—Married to Agatha Dyck, May 12, 1876.

Came to America in 1876, settled in Kansas, 1877.

Ordained to the ministry in 1892.

The passing of his beloved wife on June 1, 1911, greatly saddened the past 28 years for him.

Has seen many years of active service in the General and Western District Conference, and remains a loyal supporter of the Mennonite cause.

Helped to organize and served in high offices in Bethel College, Bethel Hospital and Home, and the Mennonite Mutual Fire Insurance Co., all located in Newton, Kansas.

Named the town of Elbing, Kansas.

Came to California in 1922.—Served on committee which chose the location of the present Emmanual Church, at Los Angeles.

Has three sons and one daughter, ten grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. He is the only living member of a family of five. And as life's shadows lengthen, the Christian desire in his heart grows stronger—"Ich moechte heim."

PROGRAM

7. Remarks—Rev. W. A. Regier—Pastor, Immanuel Mennonite Church—"Does Usefulness End at 90?"
8. Duet—Rev. and Mr. D. D. Eitzen—"Wenn in des Lebens dunkeln Stunden" (The words of this song were written by Rev. David Goerz with whom Grandfather Regier has served the Mennonite cause.)
9. Remarks by Rev. J. W. Regier
10. Closing remarks and prayer—J. C. Eymann, Sr.

—Gypsy Smith tells of a man who didn't like his preaching. "You rub me the wrong way," said the critic. "Then why don't you turn around?" asked Gypsy. Even so very often a person who criticizes a gospel message becomes his own judge and shows which direction he is going. Have you ever considered how terribly uncomfortable it would be in heaven for those who can't stand to hear the truth of the gospel preached here?—E. W.

Report of the Resolutions Committee 141st Sessions

Eastern District Conference, Hereford Church, Bally, Pa., May 6, 1939

The Resolutions Committee submits the following resolutions:

Be It Resolved:

1. That we express our gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the abundant grace and the material and spiritual blessings He has bestowed upon us during the past year and particularly during this conference, and that we make such expression by closing our conference session with the singing of the hymn "Now Thank We All Our God," No. 383 in the Mennonite Hymn Book.

2. That we thank the Hereford congregation for their kind hospitality and the commendable way in which they have entertained this conference.

3. That we commend Dr. Henry A. Fast for his illuminating Bible presentations on the Conference theme "A Revitalized Church" and that we hereby express our sincere appreciation of his lectures.

4. That, to combat the prevalent secularism of the modern world and to check its invasion of our churches, we re-emphasize the vital and fundamental standards of prayer, a study of the Word, the consecrated life, and personal evangelism.

5. That we accept the suggestion of Dr. William Mudge and instruct our Executive Committee to communicate with leaders in the Pennsylvania State Congress urging them to use their influence in bringing the pending bills No. 1342 and 1345, relating to Sunday movies, before the public for a hearing.

6. That, in view of the modern international problems and the uncertainty of our own national leaders concerning them, we continue to stress in our teaching and preaching the historic Mennonite attitude toward war and to declare it openly by a testimony of word and life.

(Published at the request of the Conference).

Respectfully submitted,
Catherine Niswander, J. Walter Landis, and Erland Waltner.
Howard G. Nyce, Secretary

—Notes on Stewardship.—In a recent conversation with Dr. Nash of Yankton College, we drifted onto the subject of student accounts. I intimated that our collections were somewhat slow. To this he expressed surprise, saying that he would hardly expect this to be true in our community, long known for its simple, frugal, and devoted spiritual living . . . Out of the Wadsworth meetings has come to me a keen appreciation of the fact that if God's work is worth anything it is worth everything. Limited space forbids the development of these two references. To summarize briefly: If ours is the reputation that Dr. Nash suggests, can we afford to let it fall by the way-side by neglecting our obligations to church and school? By neglecting our church obligations will not other obligations suffer in turn? To keep reminding ourselves that times are hard hardly solves our problem. Even the poorest of us can lay something aside for the Lord and his work. Systematic giving works on the basis of a dollar a month income as well as it does on five hundred a month or more. Those who have tried it (and are trying it) have experienced blessings untold. To the extent that we will remember the Lord He will remember us. Let us not fail Him.—J. D. Unruh.

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by
the Young People's
Committee of the General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

What Does Mennonite Youth Know About War and Peace?

Do you know how the Mennonite Church became convinced believers in the doctrine of non-resistance? Do you know the horrors through which our Mennonite fathers went to uphold this doctrine? Do you know the source of the strength which helped them to overcome temptation and persecution?

What have you done to prepare yourself for another war which may overtake us soon? Where can you get needed information about Christian Peace? What has your minister taught recently about peace?

What are the Scriptural teachings on peace? How can we help to spread such knowledge? Why is the person who knows his Bible fortified to meet temptation? What other information can he get to still further strengthen him in his stand?

What will you do if war comes? How will you face the draft board? What are they likely to ask you? What answers will you give? What will be the fate of the conscientious objector in the next war?

Mennonite youth, this summer you will have precious opportunities to secure answers to these questions. If war should come, happy will be the youth who is informed. Through these opportunities, build your peace convictions on solid rock so that the storms of conscription cannot wash them away.

In the western part of our conference the seminar for Historic Peace Churches, which will be held in connection with the Kansas Institute of International Relations, beginning June 13th, will provide an unusual opportunity. All the above questions and more will be answered. Brothers J. N. Smucker and P. H. Richert, well known Mennonite ministers, will be among the leaders. Members of the Brethren and Friends churches and other Mennonite leaders will be added. Discussions will be held on the afternoon of each day. A complete program will soon be out.

Every Mennonite community which values its young people and hopes to see them following their Master in the event of another war should have at least one delegate at each session. Young men who feel the need of help on these problems should be there. Parents whose sons may be called up as cannon fodder in the event of war should be there.

For those in the eastern part of our conference the Citizenship Camp, to be held near Philadelphia, probably from June 25 to July 23, provides an excellent opportunity for the answering of the above questions. Watch for an article on this camp in the next issue of "Our Youth Says."

For those who can attend neither the institute nor the camp, the two booklets, Christian Peace, Four Hundred Years of Mennonite Principles and Practice by C. Henry Smith and Christian Peace, New Testament Peace Teachings Outside the Gospel by Rev. Ernest J. Bohn will provide a valuable source of information. For twenty cents each of these can be secured from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana.

THE HYMN CORNER

by Walter H. Hohmann

COME THOU ALMIGHTY KING

According to a study made for the Inter-Church Hymnal, this hymn ranks first in usage in the various church denominations of the United States. This hymn made its first appearance as an anonymous poem, in a selection of hymns published by George Whitefield, in 1757. It is quite universally attributed to Charles Wesley. The hymn has found a place in many hymnals and has been translated into many languages.

Come Thou Almighty King is a hymn of prayer. It is composed of numerous petitions significant among which are Come or draw near, Almighty King, draw near, Incarnate Word and draw near, Holy Comforter. Each Person of the Trinity is asked to assist the worshipper in rendering acceptable praise. Other petitions are: Help us to praise, Reign over us, Rule in every heart, Ne'er depart, Thy people bless, Give Thy word success, and Our prayer attend.

The Deity is addressed in a variety of titles: Almighty King, Father All-glorious, Ancient of Days, Incarnate Word, Spirit of Holiness, Holy Comforter, Thou Who Almighty Art, Spirit of Power, Great One in Three, and Sovereign Majesty.

One requisite of a good hymn is, that it have a distinct motion God-ward. Come thou Almighty King meets this requirement very definitely.

The hymn tune, Italian Hymn or Moscow, is the tune to which this hymn is now quite universally sung. The tune is stirring and vigorous as if calling the worshipper to awaken from a mental or even religious lethargy. The chord progressions are simple, having a certain openness of position and even a hint of the ruggedness and vigor found in Russian music. Felice Giardini, an Italian, born in 1769, composed the tune. Mr. Giardini spent thirty-four years of his life in England, after which time he returned to Italy. The closing years of his life were spent in Russia, where he died at the age of eighty.

Serving the Master

Senior C. E. Topic for June 25, 1939

Main Topic: Serving the Master. Matt. 7:21-29

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Take Time to be Holy", "More Like the Master", "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus"
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Special music—Men's quartet
4. Reading. We offer a most beautiful short reading in poetry for this week.

The Watered Lilies

The Master stood in His garden
Among His lilies fair,
Which His own right hand had planted
And trained with tenderest care.

He looked at their snowy blossoms,
And marked with observant eye
That His flowers were sadly drooping
For their leaves were parched and dry.

"My lilies need to be watered,"
The Heavenly Master said,
"Wherein shall I draw it for them
To raise each drooping head?"

Close to His feet in the pathway
Empty and frail and small,
An earthen vessel was lying
Which seemed of no use at all.

But the Master saw and raised it
From the dust in which it lay,
And smiled as he gently whispered:
"This shall do my work today."

"It is but an earthen vessel,
But it lay so close to me;
It is small but it is empty
That is all it needs to be."

So to the fountain He took it
And filled it to the brim
How glad was the earthen vessel
To be of some use to Him.

He poured the living waters
Over His lilies fair
And again He took it to the fountain
And again He filled it there.

He watered the drooping lilies
Until they revived again
And the Master saw with pleasure
That His labors had not been in vain.

His own hand had drawn the water
Which refreshed the thirsty flowers,
But he used the earthen vessel
To carry the living showers.

And to itself it whispered,
As He laid it aside once more:
"Still would I lie in His pathway
Just where I did before."

"Close would I keep to the Master
Empty would I remain,
And perhaps some day He may use me
To water His flowers again."

II. Leader's Introductory Talk

The keynote of the Master's life was service. "I came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." All those who would serve him must serve others. Truly their watchword must be, "Others." Their plans must always include doing things for others. Their day's work is lost if they have not in some way done something for others. Living for Jesus means living for those with whom our lives come into contact. "Whatsoever ye have done unto the least of these, ye have done unto me."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Hearing the call to service, Mk. 2:14
2. Serving always. Lk. 12:36-40
3. Whom shall we serve. Lk. 10:25-37
4. Serving with our talents. Matt. 25:14-30

IV. Facts for Study

Make a study of the life of some men or women who served the Master—like Livingstone, Florence Nightingale, Mary Reed, Jane Adams, Jacob Riis, Martin Luther, John Knox.

V. For discussion

What is the purpose of service?
What is the test of true service?
What are worthy motives of service?
What are worthy aims of service?

VI. Illustration:

In the Slums.—Did I tell you of my friend whose house stands in a garden with a sand heap in which the children dig and romp with their cat and kittens and the terrier dog? Of how the dog will try to smother a kitten in an opportune sandhole, with the children ever on the watch to avert the threatened catastrophe? And of how they did avert it, until one unlucky day they found a dead kitten in the sand heap? Whereupon the little girl rushed into her mother's presence with it in her apron and cried out indignantly: "There, mamma, a perfectly good cat spoiled!" Just so with these children of the tenements. Perfectly good, as good as any on the avenue with the brown stone mansions, they are spoiled in the tenement slums, and the loss is ours, our irreparable loss.—Jacob Riis.

VII. Food for Thought

Of the many ways of love, one of the dearest is to serve in silence, to celebrate and not to be found out. —Richard C. Cabot: What Men Live By.

Worship Service

Theme: God's call through great personalities
Text: "I bear the marks of the Lord Jesus."
Organ or piano prelude, using the following hymns:

"Dear Lord and Father of Mankind"
"Lord, Speak to me that I May Speak"
"Take my Life and let It Be"

Hymn: "Draw Thou My Soul O Christ"
Scripture Reading: Matt. 28:16-20.
Prayer
Hymn: "Breathe on Me, Breath of God"

Leader: "O God, who by Thine own will created the world and all that is therein, who art working in the world and the lives of Thy children.

Members: "Create within us a desire to know Thy will, O God."

Leader: "Thou hast made man after Thine own image and hast breathed into him Thy breath of eternal life, and hast given him the power to think, to will and to do.

Members: "May our thoughts and our actions be the channels of Thy will, our Father."

Leader: In the world, in the church, and in the daily lives of Thy people, there is need for the fulfillment of Thy purpose and Thy plan.

Members: "May we so live and work that Thy Kingdom shall come and Thy will be done, our God."

In Unison: "Take Thou ourselves, O Lord, heart, mind and will. Through our surrendered souls, Thy will fulfill. We yield ourselves to Thee, time, talents, all. We hear and henceforth heed Thy sovereign call."

We suggest that this service be copied on the board.

Hymn: "Spirit of God, Descend Upon My Heart"

Joys of Missionary work:

1. The joy that comes in fulfilling Christ's command. Mark 16:14-20.
2. The joy that comes from knowing that we are fulfilling Christ's will for our lives.
3. The joy that comes from the feeling that God has thought us worthy of serving Him through our ministry to others.
4. The joy that comes through reception of the gospel by those who have not heard it before.
5. The joy that comes from answered prayers.
6. The great joy that comes with the knowledge that someone has been able to enter into eternal life because we have brought him the gospel.

Hymn: "Have Thine Own Way"

Offering during the singing of the third verse of "Take My Life and Let It Be"

Announcements

Period of quiet meditation followed with the hymn, "A Charge to Keep I Have"

How are we to recognize God's will for our lives? Have the following points discussed further:

1. Does God have a plan for each life? Eph. 2:10.
2. What comes first in the recognition of God's will for our lives? Personal consecration. Rom. 12:1, 2.
3. How may we see His will? Communion with Him. John 7:17.
4. Where may we find information? Reading God's Word.
5. How may we be assured that the work we have chosen on the mission field is God's will? God will close every door but the one He would have us enter.
6. Is there any other source of help? Consult experienced Christians.
7. How can we attain the greatest happiness in service? Obey God's command.

His Call

I heard Him Call
"Come, follow,"
That was all.
My gold grew dim.
My soul went after Him.
I rose and followed,
That was all.
Who would not follow
If they heard His Call?

Ready to go, ready to stay,
Ready my place to fill;
Ready for service, lowly or great
Ready to do His will.

Ready to speak, ready to think,
Ready with heart and brain:
Ready to stand where he sees fit,
Ready to stand the strain.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for June 25, 1949

BENEATH THE STARS, Rev. 22:6; Ps. 8:3, 4

This meeting should, if possible, be held on the church lawn. If it is not possible to make this an out-of-doors meeting, use candles instead of lights in the church.

I. Worship Period

1. Call to worship by instrumental music.
2. All sing: "This is My Father's World."
3. Scripture: Psalm 8, by an older junior boy.
4. Prayer by leader.
5. Recitation of Gen. 1:14-19, repeated from memory by a junior girl.
6. Song—"The Heavens Declare Thy Glory," M. H. B. 53, v. 1, 2, 4. (There should be a silent reading of this hymn, the pianist playing the melody very softly during this reading. Then the song should be sung. All stand to sing.)

II. Mission Minutes

Refer to recent reports in our church papers and find the names of missionaries who are now at home on furlough. Also find the names of those missionaries who are returning to their fields of work, naming the countries to which each worker is going.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors to realize the vastness of the universe which our heavenly Father has created, and to awaken a sense of deeper reverence and greater devotion.

1. Read in unison, Ps. 19:1, 2.
2. An older person should describe some of the more commonly known constellations using pictures, if possible. During this talk the Juniors should read the references in which the constellations are mentioned: (a) Pleiades and Orion, Job 38:31; Job 9:9; Amos 5:8. (b) Scorpius, a summer constellation, Job 26:13. (c) Names of stars, "Acturus," Job 38:32.
3. Repeat in unison, Ps. 111:4: "He hath made His wonderful works to be remembered; the Lord is gracious and full of compassion."
4. Song: "For the Beauty of the Earth," v. 1, 2.
5. Two-minute talks by three Juniors.
   a. "When we see the stars we think of Him who created them." Gen. 1:14-19; Ps. 19:12; Ps. 97:6; Ecc. 12:1, 2; Ps. 147:4.
   b. The star that led to Jesus. Num. 24:17; Isa. 60:3; Matt. 2:1-10.
   c. We should lead others to Jesus. Dan. 12:3.
6. Duet, "Will There be Any Stars in My Crown?"
7. Poem:

"The perfect world, by Adam trod,
Was the first temple built by God;
His fiat laid the corner stone,
And heaved its pillars one by one.

He hung its starry roof on high,
The broad expanse of azure sky;
He spread its pavement, green and bright
And curtaind it with morning light.

The mountains in their places stood;
The sea, the sky; and all was good;
And when its first pure praises rang,
The morning stars together sang.

7. Pass out verses about the stars written on slips of paper. While they are being read the pianist plays very softly, "Silent Night." Suggested references: Gen. 1:16; Job 38:7; Ps. 147:4; Ps. 148:3; Ps. 136:9; Dan. 12:3; Ps. 8:3; 1 Cor. 15:41; Job 22:12; Ex. 32:13; Deut. 1:10; Matt. 24:29 Dan. 12:3; Rev. 2:28; Rev. 22:16; Joel 2:10; Matt. 2:10; Ps. 97:6; Ecc. 12:1, 2.

8. Leader's closing prayer of thanksgiving that God has made the world beautiful. Of petition, that we may be soul-winners with "stars in our crowns." If this meeting has been indoors the Juniors and their leader should now go, at the close of the lesson to look at the starry sky, and softly repeat together, Ps. 19:1: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork." Gen. 1:16: "And God made two great lights: the greater light to rule the day, the lesser light to rule the night." He made the stars also. The leader then repeats Num. 24:17: "There shall a star come out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel," closing with Matt. 2:10: "When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy." They rejoiced because the star led them to Jesus, their Savior. The children then quietly leave, humming, "Into My Heart."

The Church-Related College in American Life

By Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., President, Villanova College, Villanova, Pa.

During this week, there are gathered together in this very hospitable City of Louisville, the representatives of over three hundred colleges which acknowledge definite religious affiliations with both Catholic and Protestant Churches. Meeting together as the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, the delegates of these colleges will discuss ways and means of emphasizing Religion as the very heart of true Education.

More and more, thinking people are realizing that the Church-Related College has ever held and must continue to hold a significant place in American life.

Let me make use of a quotation to emphasize this thought—"Our doctrine of equality and liberty, of humanity and charity, comes from our belief in the brotherhood of man through the fatherhood of God. The whole foundation of enlightened civilization, in government, in society, and in business, rests on religion. Unless our people are thoroughly instructed in its great truths, they are not fitted either to understand our institutions or provide them with adequate support. For our independent colleges and secondary schools to be neglectful of their responsibilities in this direction is to turn their graduates loose with simply an increased capacity to prey upon each other. Such a dereliction of duty would put in jeopardy the whole fabric of society." These are not my words, nor are they the words of any official of a Church-Related College. They are quoted verbatim from an address delivered at Phillips Academy, in Massachusetts, by the late Calvin Coolidge, while President of the United States. These words of President Coolidge will serve admirably to sum up the creed of the educators who are gathered in Louisville today under the auspices of the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges.

Our Church-Related Colleges, because of their definite Christian character can be shown to be more in accord with the genius of American Democracy than the tax-supported college. Although it is very true that our Government recognizes no particular form of religion, it is undeniable that our democratic government was Christian in its formation and development. Our Constitution was framed in a Christian spirit, and this same spirit pervades our customs and laws, many of them being administered with the Ten Commandments in mind as the norm of conduct.

No doubt any college can help to develop in young men and women a sense of responsibility, a respect for authority and a recognition of the rights of one's neighbor, which are virtues so absolutely necessary in a democracy. But, somehow or other, it seems to me that the college which can emphasize man's accountability to his Creator, which looks upon conscience as the voice of God speaking within the individual, which can trace all authority to God, Who placed man in this world to work out his destiny in fellowship and cooperation with his fellowmen—somehow or other it seems to me that such a college has the advantage over the college which considers it to be outside its province to delve into such matters of religious belief.

In its present circumstances, the tax-supported college must act as if it were only the body of man that matters, whereas, the Church-Related College needs to recognize no such limitation. It can deal with man in his true dignity as a creature composed of body and soul, and made to the image and likeness of God. That this is a distinct advantage is widely recognized for there is far more than knowledge needed to make good citizenship in this democratic land of ours.

Today, the cost of crime is figured in dollars and cents, and we are told that crime costs us yearly in the United States 15 billions of dollars. This is a staggering sum. I have no way to check the accuracy of such a statement. But, if crime costs but one small fraction of this amount, and greater facilities for education will reduce crime, I am in favor of spending more money on education. It seems to me, however, that education alone will not save the day. I know that knowledge alone is not power. All the crimes of which I have ever heard, no matter what their nomenclature, seem familiar to me as offenses against the Ten Commandments given by God to man on Sinai many centuries ago. To my way of thinking, crime is more than "anti-social", it is more than a staggering tax on our national income—it is an offense against the Divine Being Whose command is: "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul and with thy whole mind, and thy neighbor as thyself for the love of God." In order to observe these Commandments effectively, in order to curb crime effectively, motives both natural and supernatural are needed. It demands more than a love of decency. It demands the love of the God-man, Jesus Christ, Who dwelt among us, and Who has shown by word and example that He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

Hence, it strikes me that the Christian College, by the very fact that Christ is permitted to shine through the curriculum and to inform both the lives of the professors and the students, can erect a more effective barrier against crime than the college which is forced by circumstances to be silent about the importance of God and His Commandments.

Before the Church-Related College of today, there looms the spectre of decreasing public support and the competition of highly subsidized publicly controlled institutions of higher learning.

Having before us the painful example of what has happened in other lands to privately controlled educational institutions, and being aware of the danger which may exist through indirection in this country, it is necessary that three basic truths exemplified in the Church-Related College should receive the widest recognition of our fellow citizens: First, There can be no ideally complete education without religion, since education consists essentially in preparing man for what he must be and for what he must do as a citizen of this world, in order to obtain the sublime end for which he was created by God. Second, our so-called privately supported Church colleges are, in effect, public institutions rendering a public service that is of tremendous importance today when a sound philosophy of government is under attack. Third, in a very real sense, the continuance of American principles and democratic processes rests upon the independence of our educational institutions and for this reason the privately supported Church-Related Colleges act as a most salutary check upon the inherent dangers of government controlled education.

Up to the present, at least, we have been spared the harm that would certainly follow in the wake of a Government monopoly of Education. This republic founded on Christian principles, has been blessed with leaders who have realized the importance of Christian teachings as the safeguard of personal liberty, and as the bulwark of a democratic form of government. In the enthusiasm that surrounds the rapid development of state-controlled institutions of higher learning, we cannot afford to be unmindful of the significant place which the Church-Related College holds in American life. The wide recognition of the three basic truths which I have mentioned as typified by the Church-Related College, will, I am confident, impel all thinking citizens to continue to give to our Church Colleges their sympathetic encouragement and their moral and financial support.

If I Had A Son

by J. Edgar Hoover

I'd probably be frightened. I've never feared the responsibilities which have come to me in twenty years' experience with crime and criminals, but if I were a husband and father I might be afraid. So much would depend upon me. I'd feel that it would be my fault if my son didn't grow up to be a fine, honest man—a good citizen in every sense of the word.

If I had a son I'd vow to do one thing: I'd tell him the truth. I'd never let him catch me in a lie, because I would not tell him any lies. I wouldn't skimp the truth, either. If I couldn't answer my son's question, I'd say so. Then we'd get together and find out.

Fathers are heroes. This matter of the whole truth is doubly important. His inclination is to look up to his father as head of the house, a repository of all knowledge, the universal provider, the righteous judge. He cannot do so if he's continually catching his father in half-truths. A liar is a weakling and a boy admires strength. No matter how difficult it might be, I'd tell my boy the truth.

And in return, I'd insist that he tell the truth. That might be hard to enforce. But, though some scientists have said that all children are born liars, it's certain that the courageous telling of truth is a character builder. The whole matter of good citizenship revolves around the simple proposition of honesty. A truthful boy is an honest boy. And an honest boy grows into a successful man.

I'd try to be absolutely fair with my son, to the extent of my capacity. I'd try to be understanding. Boys will get into trouble now and then. They can't help it. So if my boy made an honest mistake I wouldn't punish him unless he lied about it. I'd have a few rules, but they'd be enforced. After studying hundreds of thousands of cases I've been forced to the conclusion that family discipline is the exception rather than the rule today. Boys don't become bad overnight. They get away with little things because their parents are too careless or too soft to punish them. Presently the little offenses become big offenses.

I'd try to be a pal to my boy. Fathers and sons can go fishing and hunting together. But when the young fellow wants to get out with his friends, he doesn't want an elder along. I'd encourage him to join the Boy Scouts and Boys' Clubs and similar organizations. But before he joined I'd make a point of getting acquainted with the Leader of the Troop, or whatever the Troop Chief might call himself. I'd want to see my boy in charge of an upstanding, virile, husky young man who would enforce the practice of masculine virtues by example.

I think that life nowadays is often too easy for a child. I think every child should have certain definite duties to perform, if it's nothing more than mowing the lawn or spading the garden. Dish washing isn't a pleasant chore, but a child who persistently evades it reduces his mother to the level of a servant. A boy with responsibilities at home gains pride. After all, the home is not only a place of living, it's a place of learning. It's there and not in schools that children are fitted for the burdens they must bear later.

Of course, I'd go with him. Apart from religious instruction, church going is a means by which the young man meet persons of fine character.

But above everything else, I'd try to understand my son. For I fully realize that if I didn't I'd be a failure as a dad.—From "The Thought Loom."

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHEL CHURCH, HYDRO, OKLA, 5-24-39

At our annual church meeting, Rev. Henry Funck of Geary, Oklahoma, was chosen pastor of the church for the year 1939, and A. S. Heidebrecht was elected church leader. We are happy to know that our church is progressing so well in all different lines, for which we thank our Savior, Jesus Christ.

The Christian Endeavor meets the first and third Sunday of each month. Our pastor, serving the church on those two Sundays of the month, also brings us a sermon after Christian Endeavor meeting.

A group from our church attended the Oklahoma Bible Workers' Conference, held March 19 to 21, at the different churches near Corn, Oklahoma. Rev. Tschetter was the main speaker. His addresses were very interesting and heart-touching.—During the Easter season, Rev. Funck brought us a series of sermons, beginning Thursday evening and continuing Friday morning, Friday night, and Saturday night, in which he explained the Easter story.

Our Sunday School is very busy, at present, preparing a Children's Day program for June 4.—Corr.

BETHANY CHURCH, FREEMAN, SOUTH DAK.

5-24-39

Very exceptional opportunities along the line of religious services were available to the people of this community. The local High School and Freeman Jr. College baccalaureate services, the former by Rev. Linscheid of the Bethany Church, the latter by Rev. Abr. W. Friesen of Henderson, Nebr. were an offering to the younger folks.

Rev. Martens from Winnipeg, who went through the communistic persecution and whose wife arrived in America a little over a year ago, after being banished to Siberia for eight years, spoke three evenings in the local church. He also appeared in most of the surrounding Mennonite churches. Although of special interest to the older folks, his addresses inspired all to more Christ-like living and greater appreciation of the wonderful blessings that are ours.

Mothers' Day was observed by the children of the lower Sunday School classes, singing several very appropriate songs for their mothers, just before the regular services. And a sermon on "Jochebed, the Mother of a godly leader," by the pastor.

On May 22, the Daily Bible School opened in the church building with Prof. Gerhard Toevs, Ruth Pollmann, June Tschetter and Doris Wipf as teachers. The aim was to enroll about one hundred children.—On three successive Sundays these services were to take place in the local church: Preparatory, baptism and communion. A class of nine young men will join by church letter and otherwise.—To complete this array of services, the Northern District Conference will begin in the Salem Church, June 10, near Freeman.—J. A. W., Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. EMMA LYDIA (NEE MAYER) KLEMPEL, daughter of Samuel and Lydia Mayer, was born in Stafford, Oregon, on June 17, 1897. In the spring of 1900 she moved with her parents to Odessa, Washington, where she grew to womanhood. In the fall of 1917, she came to American Falls, serving as clerk in one of the business firms. She was also an active church worker in the Baptist Church of that city.

She was married to Herman Klempel, August 27, 1929, and moved to the Aberdeen vicinity, where she lived until the time of her passing. She joined the First Mennonite Church of Aberdeen, Idaho, 1930, remaining a faithful member until death.

The Lord blessed the home with two children, Arthur Dean and Robert Dale, who were a great joy to the parents and the objects of the mother's loving care and devotion.

Mrs. Klempel died suddenly and unexpectedly at the American Falls hospital, following an operation for apendicitis. Death was caused by a blood clot in the blood stream leading to the lungs. She passed away on May 13, 1939, attaining the age of 41 years, 10 months and 26 days. Those who mourn her sudden passing are, her devoted husband and two sons, Arthur Dean, age 6, and Robert Dale, age 3; her mother, Mrs. Lydia Mayer of Odessa, Washington; three brothers and three sisters, Richard Mayer of Pocatello, Idaho, Arthur of Odessa, Robert of Yakima, Ida Frater of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Lillian Davis of American Falls, and Anna Reed of Yakima, Washington.

—"The Perils of Youth" were discussed on Friday morning. Seeds of sin come with us as we enter this world. It isn't easy to go upstream, but the way of truth is upward. Sin is buried deep within us just as the roots of weeds are buried deep in the soil. Sin is communicable—it is a matter of inter-socialism. The only way to escape the perils that endeavor to take us is to accept Jesus Christ, the Savior of mankind.

—Ebenezer Church, Gotebo, Okla.—On May 21, thirteen young people were received into our church through the rights of baptism, conducted by Rev. J. M. Regier of North Newton, Kans. Previous to this, he held two meetings preparatory to it and the Lord's Supper which was observed Sunday afternoon.—Corr.

—First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho.—Twenty young people were baptized in the First Mennonite Church on Pentecost morning. Preparations are being made by the Pacific churches to attend the Pacific Conference at Monroe, Washington. Rev. Phil. Wedel is president of the gathering and Homer Leisy, secretary. We have a daily vacation Bible school. Sixty are enrolled, four teachers in charge.

—Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Bechtel and daughter of Hanston, Kans. have gone to Summerfield, Ill., to visit their older daughter.

—Regret.—It has been customary for the editor to say a good deal about our colleges around commencement time, but since he is situated now so that he cannot do as he would like to, he hopes to do it later.

—First Church, Upland, Calif.—Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner, missionaries to India, on furlough, and residing at present at 371 Mission Road, Glendale, Calif., were with us for a series of addresses on India. They came Tuesday, May 2, spoke at the Cottage Prayer meeting, at the Church Night meeting on Wednesday and then at two special meetings Thursday and Friday evening. They also served Sunday. Their addresses were interesting and inspiring, and an encouragement to the further support of the mission work. We are glad to report that Rev. Penner, who left India in poor health, is greatly improved.—The Herald.

—Rev. Herbert Widmer writes from his new charge at Bloomfield, Mont.: "Before we left, there was given us a real surprise pot-luck dinner after the morning service. In the afternoon there was a program of music and speaking. The 19th we left by car and arrived in Bloomfield the eve of the 27th. A pleasant trip, good weather and a warm welcome at our parsonage. Our lines have fallen in pleasant places, and the Lord helping we will serve Him."

—Prof. W. H. Hohmann of Bethel College, with Mrs. Hohmann and their three children, expect to spend the summer in Upland. Prof. Hohmann and Rev. Hostetler are collaborating in the editing of the new Hymn Book and expect to give much time to this work during the summer.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.—Not long ago our Jottings reported that this church was going to enlarge and remodel their church building. We dared to remark that inasmuch as the good people of this church were in the habit of doing things well, we hoped that they would go one step farther and erect an entirely new church, a brick church. We truly rejoice that the Mountain Lake Observer reports: That at a recent meeting the congregation has voted to build a completely new structure; that the finance committee has already reported pledges in the sum of $22,000 and that it was decided to issue bonds in the amount of $20,000. We offer hearty congratulations and wish them God's blessings upon the project.

—From the Bulletin, First Church, Allentown, Pa.—"The Conference President, the Rev. J. J. Plenert, preached a very impressive sermon on the theme "The Revitalized Church." He based his remarks on Nehemiah 6:3. He stressed the following points: A Revitalized Church must (1) have faith in a living God. (2) There must be a vital prayer. (3) There must be a confession. (4) There must be a right estimate of church work. (5) There must be cooperation. (6) A revitalized church will not compromise. He said "God will honor the person and the Church that honors the Lord's Day."—"The following Ordinations were reported: Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander reported that he ordained the Rev. Emerson F. Slotterback as an Elder at Altoona on December 9. Rev. J. J. Plenert reported he ordained the Rev. Erland Waltner as an Elder in the Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Sunday, September 18, and the Rev. Harold Burkholder as an Elder in the East Swamp Mennonite Church, Sunday, April 2."

—British Writer Thinks America Can Be Had.—The British say that, "In the next war, as in the last, the result will probably be in the way the United States acts, and her attitude will reflect the reaction of her public to propoganda properly applied . . . Fortunately, with America our proaganda is on firm grounds. We can be entirely sincere as our main blank will be the old democratic one. We must clearly enumerate our belief in the democratic form of government, and our firm resolve to adhere to it . . . We shall as before send over our leading literary lights and other men with names well-known in the United States to put our point of view over the dinner table. Conversely, we shall exploit, to the full, the views and experiences of American nationals . . . We should make much of them, decorate them, signal them out for mention in dispatches and in the press and use their stories as propaganda material to their own people." — Peace Action.

BROTHERHOOD

The crest and crowning of all good,
Life's final star is Brotherhood,
For it will bring again to Earth
Her long lost Posy and Mirth,
Will send new light on every face,
A kingly power upon the race.
And still it comes, we men are slaves,
And travel downward to the dust of graves.

Come, clear the way then, clear the way;
Blind creeds and kings have had their day.
Break the dead branches from the path:
Our hope is in the aftermath—
Our hope is in heroic men,
Star-led to build the world again.
To this Event the ages ran:
Make way for Brotherhood—make way for Man.

EDITORIALS

"Whom He has appointed heir of all things. . ." Hebr. 1:2. "Now the God of peace . . . through the blood of the everlasting covenant" (Hebr. 13:20) has made Christ the absolute heir "of all things." The word "heir", here, intends three things: title, dominion, and lordship, and the significance of this meaning sets us to think about what the individual believer can, and must, contribute, to add to, and to enrich the heirloom of Christ. Daily one is impressed by the fact that contemporary Christendom is, more than ever before, seeking to contribute things of merit to this heirloom of the Son; that it has become conscious of having grossly neglected its Christian duties, and failed in its task. Hence, much zeal and activity are being evidenced; loud, and heart-stirring appeals are being addressed to the masses, in which these are asked to build the Kingdom of the Lord, and to begin with that task without further delay by promoting "Christian" ethics and morals within a world which has become rather indifferent toward Christ, or the laws of behavior and conduct, which the Savior proclaimed.

If, now, we study the ways of Christ in building His Kingdom, and the tactics which He used, to improve His heritage, we soon will discover that he employed quite different from today methods. Instead of appealing to the masses, Jesus commanded a few fishermen to join Him; to abandon whatever had been theirs without hesitation. Perfect obedience of the individual, and undivided loyalty are the qualities of a follower of Christ, which were emphasized by Matthew. Luke's version supplements that of Matthew by pointing out the Lord's power to grant all things abundantly, which have been abandoned for Christ. And John's narration makes unshakable faith the most important attribute of those whom the Lord called to His side. All three Evangelists show that it was the individual person to whom Christ appealed, and, most important of all, that not a single one of His disciples joined Him in the expectation of material gains or comfort. Each of these twelve very first Christians was fully aware of the pre-requisites for their participation in the work of Christ: each of them, personally, had to submit his own will unconditionally to the will of their Master; he, then, had to live in practice whatever their Master's will demanded of each of them.

This careful method of building the Kingdom of Heaven has, since long, been abandoned by Christendom. We are living in an age upon which an unholy spirit of collectivism has descended, and organized Christianity has lost sight of the fact that the heirloom of Christ—that which He will approve of, and accept when He will make His inventory—that the realm of the God of peace cannot be built or improved in the modern way of mass production. Christianity, also, forgets that it is the individual, and the sincerely believing Christian who constitutes the only integral part of Christ's heritage; but not a human society which is governed by, or which is behaving according to, a code of Christian morals and ethics, not because it seeks to serve and honor Christ, but because it expects material advantages and a great deal of personal comfort of such a social order. In this we have one of the causes why Christian morals and ethics remain powerless, and why they fail to bring about the results, which the masses are made to expect of them. Is it any wonder that Christ's teachings are being blamed when Christians fail to uphold the personal angle on which these teachings rest?—J. J. K.

"Warning by an Aged Military Officer.—"A dupe during my whole life, to the prejudices I now reprobate, I speak from experience, and discharge a conscientious duty, when I warn my country against military enthusiasm, and the pride of arms; and against the arts and intrigues by which the yeomanry, the palladium of the republic, are depreciated, and standing armies and navies are encouraged. For what would it avail the citizens of the United States, if in a political frenzy, they should barter their rights and liberties for national renown? And who would exchange the blessings of freedom, for the repute of having eclipsed the whole human race in feets of valor and deeds of arms? This is a serious question! It affects the vital interests of every freeman; and the course of the government makes it proper and necessary that these states should pause and reflect before it is too late. We have escaped from one war with a crippled constitution; the next will probably destroy it; therefore let the motto of the state be—PEACE."

"This warning was extracted from the 'Memoirs' written by General Wilkinson", writes the "Friend of Peace." "We hope that the sentiments which he has expressed will be duly weighed by all who have any influence in the government of this country."

It goes beyond saying that History repeats itself. The above item, as well as the poem on page 11 of this issue, are from a periodical "Friend of Peace", which was published one hundred and twenty three years ago in Philadelphia, and of which the writer recently could procure a set—perhaps one of the very few in existence.—J.J.K.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

SOME EFFECTS OF 1938 ON MISSIONS

S. F. Pannabecker

Apart from the larger issues involved, political, economic, and social, there appear a few immediate results relating to Christian missions following the events of 1937 and 1938. These may be summarized in a few generalizations with illustrations from our own work. They are confirmed by observation elsewhere.

Christian missionaries meet a new welcome. Foreigners in China have not always been welcome. Ten years ago we were commonly met with uncomplimentary epithets. In the 30's the "yang kuei tzu" and "lao mao tzu" were largely forgotten but there lingered a suspicion and feeling of strangeness. Last year missionaries remained in the interior, took the fortunes of war and the menace of bandits with the common people and were welded into a new comradeship. I shall never forget the greeting received during those hectic days of incompletely established order when I daily arrived at the city compound to spend the night with Christians and refugees. Non-Christians and strangers on the street nodded and spoke with a warmth of feeling inspired by the confidence that here was one who understood them and also had some standing with the newly arrived powers. While the first blush of that has now passed off it remains that the missionaries are tied up with the Chinese people in a way that tends to remove the stigma of "foreign."

The work of the church receives a new appreciation. Refugee and poor relief contributed greatly to this coupled with the opportunity to observe Christian work carried on in spite of turmoil. The words of a bandit leader comes to mind here. We sent 48 wheelbarrows 25 miles to transport lime for poor relief building projects during a time when all reasonable people stayed close to home. Passing through wild territory they were accosted by bandits and accused of being spies and traitors, for no man would be building at such a time. Led to the bandit chief the headman of the wheelbarrows presented his credentials from the mission. After a brief perusal, the immediate release of the group was ordered with the enlightening observation to the underlings, "Don't you know it takes more than a war to stop their work."

Imagine the situation with war on hand and banditry about, schools long closed, business shops cleaned out, streets deserted, houses in ruins, all ordinary work at a standstill, and women and children fled to the country or refugeeing in compounds of the Catholic or Protestant churches. Under these conditions, 100 men were daily employed on relief projects, women also given help, Bible classes held for all refugees who averaged close to 1000 for a period of three months, and catechism classes opened for four weeks for those especially interested, numbering about 300; even country work was carried on by classes in villages. Finally, after careful examination and elimination of 85 per cent of the applicants, 102 were actually baptised. This in one county in a time of war. The Chinese accept this as evidence of the stability of the church. The further fact that no refugee or Christian suffered harm in the church compound gave a good reputation known miles away. The county official returned during a brief period while the Japanese army was gone and said "Our thanks for your work for the common people is inexpressible." The Japanese commander remarked that "The only place in the county that looks like anything is the East Suburb." These are a few of the testimonies that came from various quarters and represent the general esteem in which the church is held at the present.

There is a new openness to the gospel. This is due to the general observation on the part of the Chinese that Christians suffered less than others. Their confidence in God's care tended to eliminate fear and unquestionably put them in better condition to meet the time of trouble. To this may be added that membership in a responsible organization gave one a certain standing and eliminated suspicion. Then also cases where Christians almost miraculously escaped injury were accepted as providential and widely published. To the scientific and mathematical mind of the west the question arises as to how much such miracles are matters of chance and how much providence. To the average Chinese "chance" is no explanation. When a Christian went into a side room in a Nanlo church compound to pray and shortly after a bomb made a direct hit on that room and demolished it, "chance" was not thought of. When shortly after he crawled out of the debris through what had been the roof absolutely unharmed, Christians were more firmly established in the faith and non-Christians simply overwhelmed. "It certainly pays to be a Christian" was their response. Before the war a certain openness to the gospel was noticed but 1937-38 made a change which might be expressed as an active openness in contrast to the preceding passive openness.

There is a new demand for the scriptures. This is a matter of fact and subject to proof by statistics. A man half blind and sometimes apparently only half intelligent wanted to sell scriptures. I gave him 100 gospels to sell. He was back in two days for more. Again and again he sold his 100. Suspicious, I asked him each time where he had sold the books and received reasonable replies. Finally I demanded that he show me the cash received from his sales each time as proof. This he did. During one month this man sold over 1200 gospels and this in an area supposedly overworked. 10,000 copies of scriptures were sold by our workers in six months. On requesting the Bible Societies for more, they asked me to check over our supply and see if we really needed them as they were not able to meet the demand. In the meantime the balance of our supply was used up and for the moment we have none. Scriptures are being published at the rate of one copy (complete or portion) every two seconds. Present orders more than cover all copies now in the press according to information from the Bible Societies.—The China Home Bond.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

FROM THE CANADIAN FIELD

Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 6th, 1939.—Perhaps something about my work should have been reported long ago. First, however, I want to express my thanks and appreciation for the support that is still coming to me although because of my eczema I am not always able to give full time to my work.

For some time past, praise God, I have been a little better so that I have been able to do my work without interruption. On Sundays I preach here in the city or in other places.

While others may be doing itinerant work, I have given myself to visiting the sick, of whom we always have many here in the city, especially in our own Concordia. How fortunate we are to have such good doctors and such efficient and faithful nurses in our institution. Visitation of the sick I count as a principal part of my work.

The value of a Scripture passage, or of a familiar religious song, prove themselves again and again in a sick room, as I have experienced long ago. It has always been my desire to read such helpful, inspired songs to those who were sick. It has been one of my delights for years, to collect such fine hymns, so that I might always have a fitting hymn to share with a patient. Frequently these hymns have been written down and then shared with others, and at times the patients have committed them to memory. One man who was sick a long time committed 30 such hymns to memory. In turn I frequently share my sick-room experiences with younger ministers.

I have relinquished my position as Elder and in my place they elected Rev. Johann H. Enns, North Kildonan, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and I kindly request that in the future all matters pertaining to the Schoenwiese Church be directed to him.

Cordial greetings, J. P. Klassen.

Laird, Saskatchewan, May 8th, 1939.—As I look back over the work that the Lord, and your Board entrusted to me at the last Conference, and which I was to perform, I can only say: Praise the Lord, O my soul and forget not all His benefits." Constantly the Lord supplied health, courage and spiritual power as needed.

My field of labor is among the widely scattered Mennonites of northern Saskatchewan; sometimes with groups, and, again, my labors were with individual families. A many-sided ministry is required. "Seelsorge" in individual homes, the gathering of members to a place of worship, to conduct the election of a minister, to perform ordinations, direct the organization of Sunday Schools, examining such who desire help, baptism, administer Holy Communion, and visitation to the sick, are frequently required.

This type of work is never finished here in Saskatchewan, where constantly new Mennonite settlements are started. It takes time and effort, but if they are neglected, they are often drawn elsewhere, and often are lost to the cause of Christ completely.

Such that are discouraged need to be built up in their faith, the weak need to be strengthened; such who have become backsliders need to be won back to Christ; the sick need comfort, and sinners need to have the good news of the Gospel preached to them. This is truly a compensating undertaking. And to prove that this work is appreciated, we get invitations again and again to come back and revisit the brethren.

That I have been enabled to carry on this work, I praise God, and thank the Home Mission Board for their support, and to all who contribute to this work, I pray a hearty: "God bless you." My hope is that this type of work might continue to be supported regularly by fervent prayers of intercession and regular gifts.

With brotherly greetings in Christ,
Johannes Regier.

"Your spiritual life is just as abundant as the measure of the light you have permitted to work in your secret being, there reproving, judging, separating, cleansing, vitalizing. Your spiritual life is just as deep as you have allowed the divine voice to enter, the sword of the Spirit to penetrate, working a deeper disgust with the sin that used to fascinate and bewitch you, a deeper hatred of the carnal pleasures that hide their corruptions beneath the false glamour and glitter which the serpent has thrown over them."

Regarding the End of the World

by Rev. Lester Hostetler

There are Christian people who love nothing so much as to speculate about the end of the world. They get great satisfaction out of the thought that it is probably very near. And they see all manners of signs convincing to them—that the prophecies are being fulfilled which speak of the close of the age. They read the Bible faithfully but prefer to dwell on Matthew 18 and Mark 13, Daniel and Revelation, rather than the Sermon on the Mount or the book of Romans.

Nearly twenty-six years ago, while selling books in northeastern Iowa, I came into a community where people generally were expecting the end of the world. They had set the date for the month of August and when the war broke out in that month there was much excitement. The nations were now getting ready for the final great battle, Armageddon. Some people quit tilling their fields. One had built a cistern so as to be able to hide in it when the fatal day dawned. Another man withdrew his money from the bank, precisely on what theory I do not know. One farmer stopped his team and spent several hours trying to convince me that the end was near. He believed it was more important for me to accept this teaching than for him to buy my book. The appointed day arrived but nothing happened. The explanation was later given out that a mistake was made in the figures.

Since 1913, we have heard of a good many dates set for the end; sometimes an exact day was named, more often, with more modesty, a day was not named but assurance was given that the end was very near. One evangelist who held meetings in Upland had set December, 1937, if I remember correctly. He had an interesting story to tell and the crowds who listened to him believed that he knew much about the Bible and especially about prophecy. But his prophecy remained unfulfilled, just as has a more recent prophecy that Hitler was to meet a violent death on April 21.

In all the history of the church, from the first century to the present, there have been those who set dates for the end of the world and without exception they have misled the people. They erred in their interpretations of the Scriptures. They have taken literally what was not so intended. They have looked for real fire and blood and vapor of smoke and forgot how Peter interpreted these passages from Joel, viz., that the events on the Day of Pentecost were their fulfillment.

Now what shall we make of all this? There are many earnest Christians who still believe that the end is near, very near. They do not mean a hundred years from now. They believe it might come tomorrow or the next day, and certainly within the next year or two. They read books and magazines which explain it all very clearly and listen to prominent ministers who teach that. They love that doctrine and feel sorry that not all ministers give more time and thought to it.

As for me, I believe it is wrong to set dates for the end of the world. It presumes knowledge which no man on the face of the earth possesses. Jesus did not pretend to know the day or the hour. We know much less, not even the season or the age. A thousand years with the Lord are as one day and one day as a thousand years. And so the world as we know it is still very young. It may be that God will destroy it in its infancy. But I am convinced that the appearance of a Hitler or a Mussolini will not make Him do it. When, then, will the end come? The answer that satisfies me best is that no mortal knows.

But why worry about the end of the world when the end of life is so near and so certain? I do not know when the world will come to its close, whether soon or in ten thousand years from now. But I know that my little day will soon have passed. My end may come at any moment; tonight, or tomorrow, probably not till next year, perchance not until another score or two score years have passed. But at the most it will be a very brief period of time. Let me not worry then about the great Architect and His times for the completion of the great city He is building. Let me only be concerned that I, His servant, do faithfully the work He has given me, and for which I must give an account.—The Herald, Upland, Cal.

Mennonite Song Festival

The Mennonite Song Festival which was held, last Sunday, at the Bethel College Bowl, must be called an out-standing, all-around success. Only God could have provided such a beautiful day for the thousands of song and music lovers which crowded into North Newton; and, again, only the Lord could have inspired singers and musicians to do what they really did—put heart and soul into their renditions.

The history of the song festival has been mentioned in these columns two weeks ago. We have no doubt that all who came, from nearby towns, and from far-away places, were not regretting it. The number of those who enjoyed the treat we would not try to guess. But it was a great song festival, and from the remarks which were being made, when everything was over, it seems certain that—in 1940—everybody will be back, and have a couple of friends with him, or her, whatever the case may be. "O sing unto the Lord a new song for he has done marvellous things" (Ps. 95:1) stands also for the coming year, and the various choirs and bands, as well as the Women's Association of Bethel College, can rest assured that their contributions, respectively refreshments, will be as welcome next year, as they were now.

To the Chairman of the festival, Bro. Nelson W. Krehbiel, to the various song leaders, the singers, musicians, and to all those who, in one or the other way, contributed to the success of the undertaking goes a hearty thanks of everybody who was a lucky partaker of the blessed afternoon and evening. Dr. Albert D. Belden Replaces Leyton Richards

It is with regret that the dean of the Kansas Institute of International Relations announces the resignation of Dr. Leyton Richards from this year's institute faculty. The cause of the resignation, however, should strike a responsive chord in the hearts of all Mennonites. As most persons know, British conscription of man power begins this month, and Dr. Richards felt it his duty to remain in England to give spiritual counsel and advice to the young English CO's who will refuse to allow their consciences to be conscripted. For this service Dr. Richards deserves the prayers and gratitude of all Mennonites loyal to their doctrine of peace based on the teachings of Jesus.

We are happy to announce that Dr. Richards' place on the program will be filled by another prominent English clergyman. Coming to this country as a special messenger from British Peace Societies to present a million-signature petition to President Roosevelt calling for a World Peace Conference before a war, Dr. Albert D. Belden has consented to remain in the United States a few weeks, serving as lecturer at the Kansas Institute and other similar meetings.

Dr. Belden is one of the leading Free Churchmen and peace advocates of Great Britain. For the last eleven and one half years he has been superintendent of the famous Whitefield Central Mission, where he has carried to modern expression the two traditions of his illustrious predecessors, George Whitefield and others, with their emphasis on personal and social evangelism.

Recently nominated for the Chairmanship of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, Dr. Belden withdrew his name for the time being. He is a member of the National Free Church Council, the World Brotherhood Federation, and former vice-president of the British Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Dr. Belden is the author of eight volumes for adults, including the latest biography of George Whitefield, and seven volumes for children. It is estimated that during his eleven and one half years ministry at Whitefield's, all over the British Isles and in four previous visits to this country, he has addressed an average of 6,000 persons a week in the interests of world peace.

Out of this wealth of experience Dr. Belden will bring vital Christian messages to the institute. He will follow the same general schedule which was tentatively outlined for Dr. Richards, as outlined on the latest institute announcement.—E. L. Harshbarger, Dean.

If We Would Be Christ's

By May Allread Baker

The sympathy we often feel,
But feeling, fail to speak;
The brokenhearted whom we know,
But knowing, do not seek;
The proud, defiant attitude
Towards the poor and weak—
Is not the creed our Saviour taught—
He'd have us humble, meek.

The note of discontent with life;
The weary, fretful tone;
The sullen face we sometimes wear
In privacy of home;
An avaricious spirit
That cares for self alone—
We cannot share these things with Christ
And claim we are his own!

PAUL REVIEWS HIS LIFE

Phil. 1:12-14, 21-24; 3:12-14; 2 Tim. 4:7, 8

Paul is interpreting his life motives and experiences as a believer in Jesus Christ and in his mission to the Gentiles. He wrote the letter to the Philippians toward the end of his first imprisonment in Rome. This Church, the first one he founded in Europe, was especially close to his heart. A most sobering thought is the question: What is my life accomplishing? God and man have differing standards of value. His estimate will be based upon our personal character and upon our ministry to and for others. Paul's life stands out as of surpassing value as it was wholly devoted to Christ.

Paul's Zeal for the Gospel. Phil. 1:12-14, 21-24

Paul feels persuaded that his imprisonment was not a tragedy, but in God's providence and guidance it has definitely contributed to the spread of the gospel in Rome (vs 12-14). This is the vital matter. Paul came to Rome with an unquenchable missionary zeal. Now he converts his prison home into a great opportunity to preach the gospel to the soldiers guarding him, and to all others who came to him. In the imperial palace and other places, people recognized that Paul was in bonds because he had been preaching Christ. Paul's zeal and courage emboldened many of the Christians to speak more boldly for Christ (v14). Limitations and severe handicaps were used by Paul as stepping-stones in furthering the Lord's work. God blesses the efforts of his zealous servants.

The great purpose of Paul's life is stated in verse 21. Christ sums up for him the whole purpose of living. Although in chains, yet Christ filled his heart with joy. Even death would be gain, for it meant being with Christ. Yet for the sake of the good he can do, he is willing to live and labor fruitfully, suffer, if need be. For their sake, he is willing to forego his greater personal joy in being with Christ, and remain in the flesh (vs 23, 24). Such self-sacrificing compassion is needed today.

Paul's Holy Ambition, Phil. 3:12-14

He had not yet attained to the resurrection of the dead (v11), was not yet "made perfect," as they are perfect, but his face is firmly set toward that goal (v12). Christ had laid hold on him for a definite purpose and Paul presses on to lay hold of the prize, the bliss of heaven. He did not give much thought to the past. His face was set forward, looking to the better things on ahead (v13). Too many Christians are contented with present attainment. All that may hinder our progress forward toward heaven should be put out of our minds.

Paul's Crowning Testimony 2 Thess. 4:7, 8

Paul is expecting martyrdom in the near future (v6) and he gives his final estimate of his life in triumphant words (v7). How wonderfully comforting to any one who can speak such words when nearing the close of life. They are the natural sequell to a life lived to God's glory. Now he turns his eyes to the future, to the "crown of righteousness," the reward, more than compensating, for all the hard fighting in his active service for Christ (v8). Paul's majestic words of confident assurance sound through the ages as the exultant cry of the victor in his fight with sin and Satan and as an assurance to us that we too shall receive a crown of glory if we finish our course and keep the faith.

Additional Help Will Complete a House of God

Enid Church Building Nearing Completion. The committee of the Western District Conference for Home Mission wishes to express its sincere appreciation, and thanks to all churches for the cooperation and support given in the work of building God's Kingdom. Some time ago the appeal has gone out for funds for a new church in Enid. With gratitude to God and the churches we are glad to report that contributions have come in to the extent that the building of a mission church was begun and is making rapid progress toward completion. The building will seat about 225 people on the main floor and requires an investment of about $6,000. Even though many contributions have been received, more gifts are needed to complete the building which will soon be ready for dedication. It would indeed be gratifying to all to dedicate this church to the Honor and Glory of God entirely free of debt. Will you, dear reader, not help to make this possible? If we all make a small donation of about twenty-five cents this will become a reality. The committee appeals once more to our conference churches to take special offerings for this worthy purpose as soon as possible. It is a privilege to share in the joy of saving souls. Please send all contributions to P. W. Bartsch, Newton, Kansas.

Will you remember this need in your prayers and with your gifts?

A. J. Dyck, Chairman, John E. Kaufman, Secretary

As I view this great humanitarian and religious institution, the Sunday School is an evangelizing agency for the church. The Sunday School is of the young people, for the young people, and by the young people. But it is not something apart from the church. Rather the Sunday School is the church itself, expressing in itself its special and appropriate relationship with the young.—Roger W. Babson in The Young People's Teacher.

SERMON SKETCH

LAUNCH OUT INTO THE DEEP

by Rev. H. H. Quiring, Mountain Lake, Minn.

Text: Luke 5:4

Introduction

Jesus told Simon to launch out into the deep and to let down the net for a draught. Peter was obedient to the Master's command and the results were very good. Thus the Master commands us to launch out into the deep things of God.

1. Shallow Water

There are many people in the world that never learn to swim, although they have put on their bathing suits and are in the water with the other folks at the beach. Why these folks don't learn to swim, is because they will not venture out into the deep, but stay where the water is shallow. This is true with many Christians; they have confessed Jesus Christ as their Saviour and are comparing themselves with other Christians. But when it comes to a place where real faith and conviction in God is necessary, they fall back because they have always stayed close to the shore. In other words, they are in shallow water. They have never launched out into the deep things of God, and therefore never learned to trust God at all times under all circumstances.

2. Launching Out Into the Deep

When we were boys we went out to bathe in the ditches along the road in shallow water. We tried to swim when our hands touched the ground and we stayed above the water. But the water did not carry us. We never really learned to swim as long as we stayed in shallow water. But when we launched out into the deep we soon learned to swim. So it is in the Christian life. Launch out into the deep water, into the deeper things of God, and you will learn to trust God at all times. We will learn to swim in the abundant, all-sufficient grace of God.

3. Cutting the Shore Lines

As long as there is a shore line fastened to a boat it is impossible to launch out into the deep. The reason so many people never get into the deep things of God is because there are shore lines that are not cut. All those that have launched out into the deep and are enjoying the sweet fellowship of Jesus, have cut all shore lines. The principal shore line that is holding many from launching out into the deep is the selfish "I." The "I" must disappear entirely if a person wants to launch out into the deep thing of God. Another shoreline that prevents so many from launching out into the deep is the companionship with the world and its pleasures. A complete separation from the world is necessary. The shore lines of worldly pleasures are holding the church in shallow waters. She makes efforts to launch out into the deep but the prayers are lacking and instead of going onward she moves backwards into shallow water. This is true also with many individuals.

An incomplete surrender to God is another shore line that holds many back in shallow water. There are so many people today that surrender only certain things and to certain points and a strong shore line is still holding them. May God have mercy upon them. This shore line can only be cut by a full surrender to God. What a blessing to know that all shore lines are cut and we can launch out into the great promises of God!

" 'Tis so sweet to trust in Jesus,
Hallelujah, what a Saviour!
Hallelujah, what a Friend!
Saving, helping, keeping, loving,
He'll be with me to the end."

What People Like About Their Minister

"Excerpts from Prize-Winning Letters in the Christian Herald. He works at his profession as though the destiny of all rested in him. He interprets his work in lives of others . . . . He knows his job and thoroughly believes in it . . . When in the pulpit he commands the attention of all, because his great enthusiasm, although well under control, transmits to the congregation the very message from God . . . . Whether he is bent on some disagreeable, hard task or talking to his people from the pulpit on Sundays there is always the look as of one marching to music, gladly following the instructions from a beloved master." And about a "Young man who became our pastor less than a year ago": "The fundamental integrity of his character showed up in every direction beginning with the most important: faithfulness in God and to His Word. A quiet, good-tempered industry was apparent in the number of church members visited by him and his friendly little wife; by his availability and readiness to help in any time of need, by the increasing depth and power of his sermons, that indicated unmistakably, many solid hours of study, research and prayer."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST CHURCH, BLUFFTON, OHIO

The Middle District Conference will be held at the First Mennonite Church, at Bluffton, Ohio, June 17-th to 20-th. We extend a hearty welcome, and we are ready for a big conference. Plan to attend!

Andrew Shelly, a Senior of Bluffton College, presented the message Sunday evening, June 4th. The church appreciated the co-operation of the church school in the choir, the young people's organization, and Sunday School.—Correspondent.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, NEWTON, KAN.

Dear Eidtor and readers of the Mennonite! The month of May has been a month of richest blessings for our congregation. During the first week of the month the very well attended Regional Sunday School Convention was held, and the young people's banquet was given in our church basement on Friday evening.

On May 7th in the morning Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, President of the General Conference preached in our church.

On Friday, May 12-th, in the evening the Second Christian Bible Conference was opened by Dr. Paul Rood. On Saturday evening he spoke in our church. Sunday, the 14-th, Dr. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, So. Dakota, spoke on Christian Education. He said: "Secular education ends in materialism, and is for this life only. Christian education ends in eternal life. Christian education is for the whole life, for time and for eternity. Christian education has resources of power unknown to secular education." Dr. P. R. Schroeder was followed by Bishop Otto Melle, Berlin, who preached an excellent sermon. We can mention only a few points: "An increasing power goes out from Jesus Christ. The power of Christ influences all sides of life, all nations. Christ's words are a power. Christ lived a life of prayer. What is prayer? Not merely to ask and to thank, but to be in intimate communion with God. Prayer was a power, and is a power still. Christ's love is the greatest power. If we have Christ's love in us, it will flow out from us."

During the week Dr. A. H. Unruh, Winkler, Man., spoke in our church in German, in the forenoon. The meetings were interesting and well attended. Dr. H. A. Ironside, pastor of the Moody Memorial Church, Chicago, spoke in the afternoon and evening meetings at the City auditorium to very large audiences.

Sunday, May 21-st, the articles of faith were read to the catechumens, and Rev. J. E. Entz gave a short message on Eph. 2:8-9. In the evening Prof. D. H.

Richert of Bethel College gave an illustrated lecture on Astronomy. Sunday, May 26th we had a very solemn and impressive baptismal service, and 19 young people were baptised.—The correspondent.

THE EBENEZER MISSION SOCIETY, BLUFFTON, OHIO

It is soon time to, again, elect new officers for the society, so I will try and write a few lines.—Our society meets every first Thursday of the month. During the winter months we knitted some comforters and cut some quilt patches, besides the program, and we had quite a good attendance. We also had some of the mission workers with us who gave us interesting talks about their work. They were Miss Catherine Niswander from Philadelphia, Pa., and Miss Minnie Hilty, returned missionary from China. We are always glad and appreciate such visitors, especially if they are from our own community. We did not have our scripture lessons with our programs for quite some time, as our pastor, Rev. P. A. Kliewer, has not been well. However, we hope and keep on praying that he might keep on improving, so that he can be with us again.—S. L.

MEDFORD, OKLAHOMA, CHURCH

The Lord has richly blessed us, spiritually, and also has given us a good prospect for a wheat crop, for which we are very thankful; especially when we hear how crops are elsewhere. On April 23rd Rev. J. M. Regier, Newton, gave us a very interesting talk on stewardship. May 22-23, Rev. J. B. Epp gave us an exposition on Phil. 3; very interesting. May 25-th we had a baptismal service, and 9 young people—6 boys and 3 girls—professed Jesus as their Saviour, and were added to the church. The Lord willing, we plan to have the Lord's Supper on June 11-th. Rev. A. J. Dyck, Inman, Kansas, is expected to be with us. At 10 a.m. on Memorial Day we met on our cemetery for a short service, to remind ourselves of the loved-ones who have passed away, and also, that we ourselves are on our way. On the same day we had our annual children's day in the Historical Park, at Jefferson, Okla., with a splendid big dinner, cafeteria style, and a splendid program. In the afternoon there were several visitors from Newton, Wichita, Hillsboro, and a few other places. We also came to realize that our church needed some improvements and gave the building a new coat of paint, both inside, and outside.—Pete Neufeld.

Books Worth Knowing

Three books have recently been published which are of interest to all who know the German language, and who seek information about religion in Germany, which is free from propaganda. As these books were not written for foreign consumption, they will be of especial interest to all who are worried over the status of the Church of Christ in Germany, as well as in Europe as a whole. There is, first of all, "Die Kirche Luthers zwischen Rom und Mythus" by Fritz von der·Heydt, a prominent Theologian and leader in the "Deutsche Evangelische Bund," which exists since 1886. The book is a definite and unequivocal refusal to accept anything of A. Rosenberg's Germanic religious philosophy. "Our people," we read on p. 108, "came to God through Christ . . . . It remains before the question: do the people stand above God, or God above the people? Our fathers answered: Christ is our King; God is our Father. For us this question is worded differently. After Christianity once entered German History the question is: faithfulness or betrayal, which? For us there isn't any possibility to return to paganism, but only the possibility to make a turn toward anti-christianity." (Price, in paper binding, apr. $1.20).

The second book is "Was erwarten wir von der deutschen evangelischen Kirche der Zukunft," by Prof. D. Heinrich Bornkamm. (apr. $0.75). In the interesting chapter "Der Kirchenkampf" we read: "Who is the Church? The State church? The People's Church? The Confessional Church? . . . The Lutherans, Reformed? Church is there where the Gospel is being preached in word and sacraments, where people believe in it, and live it. Our belonging to any of the many churches is no guarantee that we belong to God's church, the body of Christ." These few sentences are given to show what spirit dominates the whole contents of the books.

Lastly, we have "Protestantismus. Zeugnisse der Gegenwart." This book contains eighteen articles of various leaders of Protestantism in Sweden, England, Poland. Hungary, France, etc., countries, and has been edited by Dr. Gerhard Ohlemueller. (apr. $0.75).

While all these books are definitely Lutheran in their doctrinal aims, we are certain that many of us, especially teachers and educators, to whom our young people come fo authentic and truthful information, will want to read one, or all of the above books. They may be ordered through our Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana.—J. J. K.

Citizenship Camp

Citizenship Camp Near Philadelphia, Pa.

The Mennonite Peace Society cooperating with The Retreat Committee of The Eastern District Conference, is planning another Community Citizenship Camp this summer.

Last summer twelve young Mennonites from seven states and four conferences spent four weeks working, studying, and training. The work project was the painting of the interior of the Twenty-sixth Street Mission in Chicago, and building recreational and vocational equipment for the children of the church and community.

This summer, probably from June 25th to July 23rd, such a camp will be held near Philadelphia, Pa. The work project will be the erection of permanent buildings on a 23 acre track, to be used as Permanent Retreat Grounds and for "Fresh Air Camps" for underprivileged children of Philadelphia.

As plans are growing we plan to spend four days per week at manual labor, and three days a week in study, discussion, lectures by leaders, visiting our churches on Sunday, and caravaning as many communities as invite us. Several "Goodwill-Study-Tours" will be made to Philadelphia.

Jesus once turned to his admirers and said, "Why call ye me 'Lord, Lord' but do not the things which I say? The spirit of the camp is to "take up the Cross" and "do." Young people don't "talk" about following Christ as much as "doing the good" He asks us to do.

We Invite You To Share This Experience

We would like to invite two types of people to share this experience:

(1) We invite young people—students, teachers, farmers—to come for the four weeks and spend this time with us in camp. We are anxious to have as many Mennonite groups and communities represented as possible. We Invite You!

(2) We invite those of you who can't spend the month with us, to share this experience by a scholarship contribution which will help someone else who has time, but cannot finance his camp fee. If young people give their time, others ought to be willing to provide the material means. Last year we received a number of gifts from individuals, S. S. Class, etc., ranging from $15.00 down.

We invite you to share the opportunities and responsibilities of Peace Education. One young person is giving $150.00 this year for the projects of The Mennonite Peace Society.

Those interested please communicate with the Mennonite Peace Society, Bluffton, Ohio.

Eastern District -- 12th Annual Retreat

Many of our Retreaters will welcome the announcement that this year's Retreat will be divided in two periods; the first one for the adult group, June 16-18, beginning on Friday evening and ending on Sunday evening, permitting those employed during the week to attend all sessions as heretofore.

The high school group includes those up to about 18 years, and will begin on Monday, June 19, for four days. This will prove especially interesting to the younger folks, for an interesting program is being prepared, both in instruction in the Scriptures and suitable recreation. Several features of interest will be announced later.

Our crowded schedules and facilities during the past few years have not only taxed the best abilities of the leaders, but many retreaters themselves have been denied thereby, those precious hours when they could meditate on and "digest" what had been presented during the lecture periods. This year we are providing more leisure time.

The tremendous amount of work necessary in the short time available to prepare our own Retreat Grounds properly, has made it necessary to engage the University Boys' Camp at Green Lane.

The theme for the Retreat this year will be "Stewardship." Among the leaders to be present this year are Prof. A. C. Schultz of Bluffton College, Rev. E. J. Bohn, Rev. Freeman Swartz, Mr. William H. Mohr, Mr. Edward Hild, Miss Catherine Niswander, and Rev. Howard G. Nyce, for the older group, while Prof. Schultz, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Rev. Harold Burkholder, Mr. Charles Wiegand, Miss Catherine Niswander, and Mr. Henry Detwiler will be present during the sessions of the younger group.

The cost for the week-end period will remain the same as last year, namely $5.00, including the registration. The high school group, however will have a special treat in that they will have almost twice as long a period at a complete cost of $6.00 for four days.

Cowpen's "Pity for Poor Africans" Applied to War

For the Friend of Peace. (1816)

"A youngster at school more sedate than the rest,
Had once his integrity put to a test;
His comrads had plotted an orchard to rob,
And ask'd him to go and assist in the job."

"He was shok'd, sir, like you, and answer'd, Oh no!
What! rob our good neighbor! I pray you, don't go;
Besides, the man's poor, his orchard's his bread.
Then think of his children, for they must be fed."

"You speak very fine, and you look very grave,
But apples we want, and apples we'll have:
If you will go with us you shall have your share,
If not, you shall have neither apple nor pear."

"They spoke, and Tom ponder'd—'I see they'll go;
Poor man! what a pity to injure him so—
Poor man! I would save him his fruit if I could,
But my staying behind will do him no good.'"

"If the matter depended alone upon me,
His apples might hang till they dropt from the tree;
But since they will take them, I think I'll go too,
He will lose none by me, though I'd get a few."

"His scruples thus silenc'd, Tom felt more at ease,
And went with his comrades the apples to seize;
He blam'd and protested, but join'd in the plan:
He shar'd in the plunder, but pitied the man."

"Thus many acknowledge that war is an evil,
The fruits of vile passions—the work of the devil—
Deplore its injustice, its murder and woe,
But yet will join it—for others do so."

Why We Protestants Believe in Democracy

Senior C. E. Topic for July 2, 1939

I. Suggested songs:
"America, the Beautiful"
"My Country, 'Tis of Thee"

II. Short prayers by two or three designated persons, closed by leader.

III. Leader's challenge to thought:

In these troubled days of the weakening of democratic influence throughout the world, of direct challenges to democracy to prove its worth, of the rising strength of philosophies directly opposed to it, we can well afford to spend time thinking about why we as Christians believe in democracy. In a country where church and state have always been separated, it is easily possible to get into the habit of separating them in our private lives too completely, of thinking our duties and privileges as citizens of our nation have nothing to do with our duties and privileges as citizens of the kingdom of God.

In our "right minds" we are individuals composed of various feelings, beliefs, ideals, habits, attitudes which add up to make a whole personality. The more divided the personality or mental activities of an individual, the less healthy he is mentally. Would it be heretical or sacriligious to suggest that we might extend the influence of our religious beliefs so that they would be a sort of combining and refining factor to make our whole lives—our everyday words, thoughts, and acts—reflect our whole-souled love for God and devotion to our neighbor?

Should not devotion to our country be a part of loving our neighbor as ourselves? Not the kind of devotion that made hysterical preachers during the World War lead hysterical men into giving their lives to "make the world safe for democracy," but the kind of devotion which will make us work and think and sacrifice to make democracy safe for the world—a workable way of life in a world where the totalitarian philosophy demonstrates its ruthlessness and disregard of the individual.

Just what do Christianity and democracy have in common? For one thing, they have a kindred attitude toward people. Democracy seeks to liberate people of all grades and conditions and to give to each person his largest possible chance. Chritianity seeks to do for individuals spiritually what democracy endeavors to do for them politically and socially.

IV. Discussion problems:

1. A common belief or maxim of American democracy is that "all men are born free and equal." Is this strictly true as far as economic privileges go? political power? intellectual gifts? spiritual worth of the individual soul?

2. The importance of the individual is one of the bases of democracy. How is it also an essential in our Christian beliefs?

3. What has Christianity done for woman through the teaching of the equality and worth of the individual?

4. Another basis of the democratic way of life is the belief in majority rule, of sacrificing personal desires for the good of the group. Is this belief illustrated also in Christ's life or in his words or in the lives of his followers?

5. An ideal of democracy is the right of private choice and judgment, chiefly through the vote. Do we have the same right in the spiritual and moral world of choosing between right and wrong according to our own individual consciences? Are we restricted by religious "do's and don'ts" any more than by political or social ones?

6. How far should a Christian be concerned with politics? Need we go any farther than the instructions in 1 Timothy, 2:1-4?

7. Christ put his idea of the unity of himself with his followers into a form familiar to all—a kingdom. Is this idea compatible with the democratic principles which are found elsewhere in his teachings. Carry the analogy of a political framework for a spiritual concept as far as you like.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

How to be Patriotic in a Christian Way

Intermediate C. E. Topic for July 2, 1939

For Daily Readings

June 26. Righteousness exalteth a nation. Prov. 14:26-35.
June 27. Love the stranger. Lev. 19:33, 34.
June 28. Jeremiah's courageous patriotism. Jer. 26:11-19.
June 29. Paul's patriotism. Rom. 9:1-5.
June 30. Blessing to other lands. Mic. 4:1-5.
July 1. Zion's promised glory. Isa. 62:1-7
July 2. Topic. Matt. 22:16-22; I John 3:11-18.

> He serves his country best
> Who lives pure life and > Doth righteous deed,
> And walks straight paths
> However others stray,
> And leaves his sons,
> As uttermost bequest,
> A stainless record which
> All men may read;
> This is the better way.
> —Susan Coolidge

Program suggestions—We believe it would be very fitting to have this an outdoor meeting. If possible, have a Bugler accompany the singing. Also it would be very fine to have the American flag and the Christian flag in front of the group.

Pledge to the American flag—I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Song—"America"

Pledge to the Christian flag—I pledge allegiance to the Christian flag and to the Saviour for whose kingdom it stands; one brotherhood, uniting all mankind in service and love.

Song—"Onward Christian Soldiers"

Scripture Reading—Matt. 22:16-22; I John 3:11-18.

Prayer by superintendent.

Song—"God of our Fathers"

Presentation of topic by leader.—As Christian Endeavors we are going to study this topic in an effort to find how we may best please God as citizens of our country. True patriotism is not merely a matter of flag waving but something far deeper than that. It is a thing of the heart. Is it not basically obedience to the laws of God? Christ's principles are the guide in a democracy that is safe. The Golden Rule which He taught is the test of citizenship relations.

Let us discuss some of the qualities of really good citizens:

I. A good citizen keeps the laws.
  A. He must know the laws.
  B. He will do well to study the origin of laws.
II. A good citizen earns an honest living unless for some good reason it is impossible for him to do so.
III. A good citizen is a good neighbor.
  A. He is tolerant.
  B. He is broad-minded.
IV. A good citizen votes intelligently.
  A. Thinks clearly.
  B. Studies party platforms and candidates.
V. A good citizen has a sense of obligation to community, state, and nation.
VI. A good citizen does all he can to promote peace and goodwill on earth.
VII. A good citizen reverences God.
VIII. A good citizen honors God's Word.

"A nation is only as strong, as righteous as is the citizenship of which it is composed."

Song—"America, the Beautiful"
Announcements
Offering

A few questions for further discussion

1. Are right and justice and honor different things for nations than they are for individuals?
2. Suppose a law is unjust to me or to others. What shall I do about this?
3. Suppose an enforced law does injury to my friend or to my brother or sister. Shall I support the law when it does this?
4. What was the attitude or what were the attitudes of Jesus to authority? Luke 20:20-26; Luke 17:14; John 8:2-59; Matt. 23.

Song as a prayer—"Dear Lord and Father of Mankind"

Closing Prayer. "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer." Psa. 19:14.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Being a Good Citizen

Lesson for July 2, 1939

Note to leader: We have now spent a month in studying the land of our Lord. Since next Tuesday is Independence Day let us spend this hour in helping our Juniors realize their responsibility and duty as a citizen of the land we love, America.

The plan for the programs for the month of July will be given next week.

Decorate with flags.

I. Worship period

1. Prelude—"O beautiful for spacious skies."

2. All Juniors stand at a given signal and sing the above song.

Scriptures (responsively)

Leader: Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, and the people whom He hath chosen for His own inheritance.

Juniors: Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.

Leader: When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn. If thou hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth.

Juniors: Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, and the people whom He hath chosen for His own inheritance.

Leader's prayer.

Song by Juniors, "Come Thou Almighty King" v. 1.

II. Mission Minutes

Let us learn the missionary alphabet during the month of July.

A—Ps. 2:8. Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.

B—Rom. 10:15, Beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel.

C—Isa. 34:1. Come near, ye nations to hear; and hearken, ye people, let the earth hear.

D—Ps. 34:14. Depart from evil, and do good.

E.—Isa. 55:2. Eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

2. What new missionaries are being sent to India?

Study Period, Aim: To help the Junior to appreciate his own country and to realize his responsibility as a citizen.

1. What is Independence Day? A short talk by an older Junior boy.

2. Discussion by three Juniors.
   a. Being a patriot. Rom. 13:1.
   b. What we can do for our country? Pray for its welfare; obey its laws.
   c. Thanking God for our Country. Deut. 8:7-10; Deut. 26:1-11.

3. Bible Drill. Psalm 33:12a; Acts 5:20; Malachi 2:10; Romans 13:1; Romans 12:17, 18, 21; Hebrews 12:14a; Psalm 34:14; Matthew 5:7-9.

4. Song—My Country, 'Tis of Thee.

5. Leader's heart talk, closing with a prayer of thanksgiving.

6. Doxology

All men desire peace, but very few desire those things which make for peace.—Thomas á Kempis.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. W. S. GOTTSHALL. Nancy K. Von Nieda, daughter of Henry and Sallie Kesler Von Nieda, was born June 2nd, 1867, at Bowmansville, Penna.

Early in life she confessed Jesus Christ as her Lord and Saviour and was received into the Muddy Creek Reformed Church.

On September 22nd, 1886, she was united in marriage with Rev. William S. Gottshall. As a result she transferred her church membership to the Mennonite Church. Five children were born into this union. One daughter, Hannah Alieda, died in infancy. In 1936, another daughter, Jennie Mae, wife of Rev. Peter J. Boehr, also preceeded her mother in death. Those who survive are: Aaron E. Chevy, Chase, D. C.; Mrs. Flora A. Geiger, Cleveland, Ohio; and P. Herbert, Wilmington, Delaware; 11 grandchildren, besides her ailing husband and many relatives.

During the almost 53 years of her married life, she shared in a most noteworthy manner the duties and responsibilities of a Pastor's wife, in providing a home that was always a haven of rest and inspiration to anyone who came.

Her deep spiritual life, fostered by a daily study of God's Word, always found an outlet in a kind word, or the assurance to a friend that the matter would be remembered in prayer, or in a tract that was given with a warm clasp of the hand.

Many individuals and homes, in the communities of Schwenksville, Allentown, Pa., Bluffton, Ohio, Freeman, South Dakota, and Quakertown, Pa., where she lived, have been helped and inspired by her kindly Christian life. Her missionary friends can be counted by the score in many lands.

She gave her life in glad and willing service as long as the Lord gave her strength. About two months ago she was no longer able to care for her life-companion and in turn she had to be served. She bore her sickness with fortitude and patience. She fell asleep in the Lord on Saturday evening, May 27th, thus bringing her life to 71 years, 11 months and 25 days.

Funeral services were held in the East Swamp Church and Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, where she was laid to rest.

"They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Daniel 12:3.

The brethren A. M. Fretz, Harold Burkholder, J. J. Plenert, E. J. Bohn, Howard G. Nyce, H. F. Schmidt, a long time friend of the family, Freeman H. Swartz and A. J. Neuenschwander, participated in the two services. Rev. Swartz at Eden Church used Proverbs 31:28 and Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander used Psalm 121:5, 7-8 as text at East Swamp.

This, and the next following issues of the Mennonite are being edited by brother J. J. Kroeker, Newton, Kansas. He is substituting for the editor, Dr. J. R. Thierstein, who is confined in the Bethel Hospital, Newton, since May 16-th, as a result of an external operation. While he is not seriously ill, he will appreciate the prayers of friends, and the reader-family as a whole. (This concerns also errors, omissions, or shortcomings of any sort. We will be the guilty one. J. J. K.)

—Barto, Penna. Our correspondent, Miss Mae Latshaw reports, from church bulletin: "Those who in any way are connected with the activities of the Hereford Mennonite Church will be pleased to know that our own Paul R. Shelly graduated from the Hartford Theological Seminary, May 24th, receiving the Bachelor of Divinity. He was the winner of the Wm. Thompson scholarship, which provides him with the necessary funds for 2 years of further study in Europe. He was also the winner of the Greek Prize, awarded annually to that student in the Senior Class who shall exhibit most proficiency during the 3 year course in New Testament Greek and interpretation. We wish our congratulations. (Which are extended also by the Mennonite. Editor). This is the second time in 13 years, a son of our church won the fellowship in Hartford. The first was Dr. Irwin W. Bauman."

—Berne, Indiana. We learn that not less than 356 pupil enrolled in the Summer Bible School of the First Mennonite Church. This is an increase of nine children over 1938. A total of 173 boys and 183 girls are attending the five weeks term. The school is divided into kindergarten and nine grades. 18 boys and 17 girls are in the graduating class. We feel that many of our readers would welcome a more detailed report about such impressive vacation activity. Dr. C. H. Suckau is superintendent of the S. B. S., and he may have somebody among his helpers who would enjoy writing us just how the work is organized, what the courses are, and so on. Other churches might be helped by it.

—Mountain Lake, Minn. The annual meeting of the Bethel Hospital Aid Society was held in the Bethel Church on May 25-th. Over one hundred members attended, and elected the following officers for the coming year: Mrs. J. M. Franz, president; Mrs. John M. Harder, vice-president, Mrs. John A. Warkentin, secretary, and Mrs. John F. Stoesz, treasurer.

Ira, Ohio, is the address of Rev. A. R. Keiser, pastor of Bath church, and not Iva. We apologize for the error, which crept into the heading of brother Keiser's article in Number 22 of the Mennonite.

—Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Penna. "The Messenger" of May 28-th reports that Brother Arthur Schaumberg is conducting the Sunday and Wednesday services of the church during the first three weeks of June.

—Rev. W. F. Unruh, formerly missionary in India, has accepted the pastorate of the Mennonite Church of Pulaski, Iowa, and has taken up his work on June 1-st. We are certain that the Lord will bless Brother Unruh's work in his new surroundings, and that He, also, will shed an abundance of additional joy and blessings into the life of Brother W. W. Miller, whom God let grow old in His service.
